Attack on Kosygin 'Humiliates' P M

Burke Group Proud

'Bassen's closed the barn door!'

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Edmund Burke Society said Monday that society members are "all very proud" of their colleague, Gesa Matral.

Victoria Andrews, a member of the society's national council, was commenting in an interview on the attack earlier in the day on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin in Ottawa.

RCMP arrested Matral, 27, a Toronto member of the society and a member of the Canadian-Hungarian Freedom Fighters' Association, in connection with the attack on Mr. Kosygin. Matral is contesting the Oct. 21 provincial election as the Social Credit candidate in the Toronto High Park riding.

A spokesman at society headquarters said the society is an "ultra-conservative, right-wing movement and is concerned with growing communism in our country."

"It is dedicated to preserving the Christian principles and ethics that have made this country."

It is named for the 18th-century British statesman and political writer whose ideas said "the only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

Mrs. Andrews, whose husband Donald is chairman of the society's national council, said Matral had shown "the disgust and anger that many Canadians feel about Russia and communism but are too scared to show."

She said Matral and other society members went to Ottawa to demonstrate against Kosygin's visit. She said the others returned Sunday night, but Matrai remained.

Matral's campaign littrature for Thursday's election says his chief goal in life "remains the freeing of Hungary and all the captive nations from their Soviet slave masters."

Matral, unmarried, manages a society bookstore here. He also has worked part-time as a barber and hairdresser.

He moved to Toronto about 18 months ago from Edmonton, where his family settled after fleeing their native Hungary in 1956 when the Russians crushed the Hungarian uprising.

Man Leaps Barrier And Tackles Visitor

But, in response to Monday's string of embarrassing incidents that included a flying tackle on Mr. Kosygin, his motorcade sped so swiftly to the Parliament Buildings that a car in the Kosygin motorcade nearly bowled over two RCMP constables.

In police court, Hungarian-born Gesa Matral was remanded without plea to Nov. 2 on a common assault charge in connection with the unarmed attack that left Mr. Kosygin shaken but unharmed.

Matral will be held in custody at least until his bail application is heard Oct. 28.

No plea was entered for Matral, 27, a self-styled member of the Hungarian Freedom Fighters Federation of Canada and Social Credit candidate in Toronto High Park constituency in Thursday's Ontario election.

He was 8 years old when he came to Canada as a refugee from the 1956 Hungarian rebellion. He is a former Edmonton resident.

Ivan Gordon, 32 and Andrew Sacnez, 29, both of Montreal, were charged with illegal possession of explosives. A third man—unidentified—was released.

Mr. Kosygin appeared relaxed this morning as he arrived at Parliament Hill, a few steps from where he had been attacked Monday. Security forces ensured protection from all sides today.

A short distance away, 28 rabbis shouted, two blowing rams' horns. Otherwise, there was only a handful of spectators.

They watched from lobbied barricades well back from the Parliament Building entrances. At least 50 uniformed RCMP were on hand, plus numerous others in plain clothes.

"A very humiliating event for Canadians," Mr. Trudeau told the Commons after a man yelling "Freedom for Hungary" leaped over a Parliament Hill barricade, charged through RCMP and Soviet security forces and threw himself on Mr. Kosygin from behind.

He left the Soviet premier startled but unhurt, his coat half pulled off, before the assailant was wrestled to the ground, searched and borne away.

Mr. Trudeau, who was walking beside his guest, helped Mr. Kosygin back to his feet following the assault.

That was the most embarrassing incident Mr. Trudeau had expressed hope before the start of the day would be that Canadians would welcome the Soviet leader.

Two previous ones early Monday with the discovery near the Soviet embassy of two unexploded Molotov cocktails, plus more dynamite and 11 gasoline-filled containers apparently pre-

Jewish Defence Head Deported

MONTREAL (CP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the militant Jewish Defence League, was deported to the United States today after being denied entry to Canada Monday night. On immigration department official said the rabbi left on Air Canada's first flight to New York at 7 a.m.

Six other persons detained by Canadian immigration authorities with Rabbi Kahane when they arrived from New York about 8 p.m. Monday were still in custody and due to be returned to the United States later today, said the official.

They had tried to enter Canada to join protests in Ottawa against the current visit of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin but were denied entry after a hearing immediately after their arrival.

As Rabbi Kahane was put on the plane, about eight supporters of the league carried protest placards and blocked the entrance to U.S. Customs in the airport.

Attacker Subdued

The attacker of Russian Premier Alexei N. Kosygin is forced to the ground by RCMP officers. The man, who identified himself to reporters as Gesa Matral, was reported to have shouted "Freedom for Hungary" before grabbing the premier and ripping his coat half off. Heath Allows Tories Free Vote on Euromart

LONDON (CP) — A demand that the Labor Opposition allow a free vote on the crucial Common Market entry issue was rejected by the socialist Parliamentary party today as Harold Wilson sought to prevent a split in party ranks.

First reports indicated that the socialists defeated market

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Extensive fog once again blanketed all of southern and central Ontario overnight and reduced visibilities to less than a few hundred yards at many localities.

A southerly flow of warmer air will spread across the province today and afternoon temperatures will climb into the low 70s in the south and from the low to mid 60s in the north.

Wednesday will be mostly cloudy with a few showers and a little cooler in Northern Ontario. The south will continue unseasonably mild with afternoon temperatures in the low to mid 60s.

supporters in their own party by 150 to 111 to reject the free vote move.

The final Labor strategy on the six-day Common Market debate to end with the critical Oct. 28 vote is to be set by the Opposition Chief Whip Bob Mellish Thursday.

However, the size of the force demanding the free vote—which Prime Minister Heath has already yielded for his own Tory party—indicated there may still be a Labor split Oct. 28 unless Wilson provides some last-minute compromise.

Reports emerging from the meeting indicate that the market supporters put up a major struggle for the right to express their views during the debate in which Heath will seek Parliament's approval on the principle of market entry on negotiated terms

Today's Chuckle

Autumn is that magic time of year when you look out to see that your pool is no longer filled with your neighbors' children, but with your neighbors' leaves.

Wilson maintained that by changing his tactics, Heath had sustained "a bitter defeat." He said that the prime minister's manoeuvering had made nonsense of all he had said in the past and the Labor party would not resigned by manoeuvering.

Government ministers are keenly aware that an extensive summer campaign to turn public opinion in favor of the market has been largely ineffective. Opinion polls still show a majority opposed to entry.

Canadian, U. S. Stands On China Poles Apart

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly has set out in an unusually business-like manner to determine who and how many should represent the Chinese people here.

For the next week delegates to the 131-country assembly will debate whether it is possible to invite the People's Republic of China to take a seat here and whether Taiwan should be expelled.

There were 19 speakers, starting with Albania. Right, including Canada, supported the Albanian one-China resolution.

The U.S. and two others supported the American proposals to seat the People's Republic in the assembly and the Security Council and retain a seat for Taiwan in the assembly.

Tass Report On Incident Only 18 Lines

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet news media, in the first report of Monday's mishandling of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin in Ottawa, today described the incident as a provocation and attempted act of hooliganism

The official news agency Tass issued an 11-line report on the incident some 18 hours after a young Hungarian refugee broke through security lines while the Soviet leader was walking with Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau. The emigre threw himself on Kosygin from behind and half pulled off the Russian premier's coat.

Jet Lands Twice at Vancouver Before Hijacker Surrenders

VANCOUVER (CP) — A jet airliner hijacked over Alaska and headed south landed here twice Monday and the second time the gunman who seized it surrendered to RCMP.

Del Lavon Thomas, held overnight in nearby Richmond, was expected to be deported to the United States. The FBI in Anchorage, Alaska, said a complaint had been filed charging him with air piracy.

The hijacker surrendered to RCMP Sub-inspector Bruce Northrop after four crew members of the plane were freed. No one was injured in the 10-hour hijacking attempt.

The Wien Consolidated Airlines Boeing 737 took off from Anchorage at 7:30 a.m. PDT with 30 passengers and a crew of five on a flight to Bethel, a village at the mouth of the Kuskokwim River in Alaska.

The hijacker, armed with a .25-calibre automatic, forced the plane back to Anchorage where his passengers and a stewardess were let off. Then the man ordered it to take off for Vancouver.

The plane touched down at Vancouver International Airport at 12:27 p.m. with the hijacker, stewardess Nancy Davis, Captain Don Peterson, co-pilot Ray Miller and Keith Forsgren, flight deck officer, aboard.

Captain Peterson filed a flight plan to Mexico City while the plane was being refuelled and food brought aboard, and the plane took off again at 1:44 p.m.

Jim MacDonald, 29, of Richmond refuelled the 727 and RCMP warned him not to try "any heroics." He said he spent 45 minutes refuelling the plane, a job that would normally take about 15 minutes, in an attempt to keep it on the ground as long as possible.

While he worked under a wing, Sub-Inspector Northrop attempted to talk to the hijacker via radio from the terminal building as the jet sat a mile away at the end of Runway 12. The gunman refused.

Loaded with 22,000 pounds of fuel, the jet took off for Mexico City, 2,326 miles away, the first leg of a planned flight to Cuba. But about an hour out of Vancouver, the plane changed course and the pilot radioed he was returning.

Airport officials said they understood the hijacker wanted to exchange the plane he had commandeered for a longer-range aircraft which could fly directly to Havana without a stop in Mexico. The plane landed here for the second time at 3:40 p.m.

Inspector Gordon Dalton of the RCMP criminal investigation branch said the gunman had second thoughts about his mission after leaving Vancouver and "decided his alternatives were better back here."

He said the hijacker asked to see a policeman after landing the second time and Inspector Northrop boarded the plane after driving to within about 100 feet of the boarding ramp.

Some schedules were disrupted as airlines, believing the hijacker had come back here for a longer plane, sought to keep larger planes out of the area—or out of sight at the airport.

FBI in Anchorage said Thomas, believed to be a native of Hawthorne, Calif., was released on parole Aug. 23 from a term for manslaughter involving a barroom shooting death six years ago.

Carl Cashinoon, part owner of a service station near Palmer, 40 miles north of Anchorage, said Thomas suddenly quit his job at the station Sunday night, saying he was going to look for work in Anchorage.

He had been hired at the garage following his parole and although Cashinoon described him as a "loner," he said he was a good worker.

Liberal Candidate:

Jobs Have Priority In Sandbanks Dispute

PICTON (Staff) — Pollution control demands government involvement through funding and financing, according to Barry Young, Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Young stated yesterday at a question and answer session during a Liberal meeting that firms in existence before pollution legislation was passed deserve consideration.

He noted the government has legislation to penalize industries openly defying pollution control, however.

Mr. Young then referred to quarrying at the Sandbanks by the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. and suggested it is "no time for petrol rationing" between ecologists and industry.

He said the Liberal party stands alone in providing a solution in this issue for both groups.

Leader of the opposition Robert Nixon has suggested the government buy back the cement company's lease on the 16 acre quarry site and then provide a forgivable loan as job protection.

If the Conservative government buys the lease, approximately a half million dollars will be required by the plant for changeover costs.

Mr. Young criticized New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis' alleged suggestion to "give back $75, it's all they deserve."

"He's wrong, he's irresponsible when he makes a statement like that," said the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Young stressed the land parcel now quarried by the cement company was given to them on a 75-year lease basis by the Crown since it feared sand instability in the land tract, formerly used by the plant.

He indicated the government placed the company in its present situation and should recognize this fact.

Mr. Young said he certainly approved of tourists but observed letters in a Toronto paper concerning a "desecration" of the Sandbanks were written by summer visitors who did not fully understand the situation. He remarked the letters were pushing the government to close quarrying at the Sandbanks.

Job protection, in his opinion, should have priority with every consideration for protection of the sand dunes.

Cycle, Car Collide

A 17-year-old Belleville youth escaped serious injury when his motorcycle was struck yesterday by a car driven by Mihaly Korosi, 36, of 7 Harvey Street.

At the corner of Gaddes Street at College, Kenneth Robert Vos, of 81 West Street, was attempting to overtake the Korosi vehicle, when the car turned into his path.

He sustained minor cuts, bruises and scrape burns. Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

A Belleville man injured in a motor vehicle accident in Pembroke, Oct. 9, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital yesterday with back and rib injuries.

Harry Latham ,51, of 31 Brock Street, returned home following the accident, but was admitted to hospital for observation.

Street Name Change Sought

TRENTON (Staff) — Council learned last night that a movement is afoot to have the name of Wragg St. changed.

A preliminary survey of the street indicates many favor the change but one industry, Fabricon Ltd., is against altering the name immediately.

The company position, according to town officials, is that it would face a considerable loss because stacks of packaging and stationery bearing the Wragg St. label would have to be destroyed.

Mayor Duncan McDonald suggested last night that the name could be changed once these materials are used. An indication of the date when the packaging and stationery will be used will be sought from the company.

Building Officials in Belleville

Three men identified by police as Montrealers were arrested and two were charged No bombs went off.

Mr. Trudeau said of the attack on Mr. Kosygin that he doubted his guest was as upset "as I am ashamed." He expressed hope it would have no diplomatic repercussions.

There was no official reference to it in the Soviet Union, nor in Mr. Kosygin's address later at an official Canadian dinner.

Geza Matrai, 37-year-old Ontario election candidate in Toronto High Park, was charged today with common assault in connection with the attack on Mr. Kosygin.

Mr. Matrai is standing for election as a Social Credit candidate, although he has been repudiated by the national party.

He was 12 years old when he came to Canada as a refugee from the 1956 Hungarian rebellion. He is a former Edmonton resident and has been active in a group called Hungarian Freedom Fighters.

Ivan Gardos, 22, and Andrew Szenes, 20, both of Montreal, were charged with illegal possession of explosives. A third man—unidentified—was released.

A police source said a car was spotted by the RCMP about half a block from the embassy. He was chased about five blocks before he dropped the bomb. It was said to be set to go off at 3:07 a.m., 12 minutes after explosits dismantled it.

The police said they found 11 Molotov cocktails outside the Soviet embassy near the spot where a demonstration took place Sunday night. Numerous embassy windows were broken during the demonstration.

At least 200 demonstrators of Jewish, Ukrainian, Hungarian, Estonian, Lithuanian, Latvian and Czechoslovakian extraction were on hand as Mr Kosygin came and went during the day. Mr. Kosygin was told to go home over and over during the day, and called a "Soviet pig" among other things.

Many demonstrators, however, were orderly, restraining themselves to booing Mr. Kosygin and speaking quietly with Mr. Trudeau outside Parliament's West Block before the state dinner Monday evening.

The evening pickets presented a brief to Barnett Danson, Mr. Trudeau's parliamentary secretary, complaining of Soviet treatment of small nations in the Eastern bloc and warning that U.S.-Canadian relations could be endangered by Mr. Kosygin's visit.

Mr. Danson said the brief would be given to Mr. Trudeau and thanked the demonstrators several times for being peaceful.

They were blocked by 250 police when they marched towards the Soviet embassy in the afternoon to deliver a submission for Mr. Kosygin and settled for singing a Hebrew psalm and reading the two-page letter.

It asked for religious and cultural freedom for Soviet Jews and called for an end to prohibitions on Jewish emigration to Israel.

A young man was also escorted from the Commons public gallery before he was able to unfurl a banner saying "Let my people go."

Despite the only positive public reception Mr. Kosygin received came during an afternoon tour of the research facilities of Bell Canada and Northern Electric.

In Toronto, a spokesman for the Canadian Jewish Congress said more than 1,350 Toronto-area Jews were planning to arrive in Ottawa today for an afternoon rally, joining an expected 50 busloads from Montreal.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of our father and grandfather, Chester Patrick who passed away October 19, 1967.

Those were the great, the black seasons,
Why those that have lost can tell.
Only those that have lost can tell.
Only those that have lost can tell.
Your will would not wish for sorrow,
Nor that we should weep for you.
But just to be remembered,
And that's what we intend you.
God, just pray arms around him,
Kiss him for me dear God,
Tell him I'll be coming soon.
Ain't all that was unfair.
Just a few more years.
Just a few more years.
Then we'll be together, always reunited.

In loving memory of a dear husband, Eva M. Peck who passed away October 19, 1970.
God loved him much I miss him,
But He does not answer prayer like mine,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
Dear memories linger round his grave.
Wife Eva
Brother-in-law and sister-in-law Bill, mother, brother Elmer, sister Ruth.

FOX — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Fox, who passed away October 19th, 1970.
Always a smile instead of a frown,
Always a joke to cheer us down,
Always a helping hand to lend,
Wonderful memories the left behind.
Sadly missed by wife Lena and family.

REAL ESTATE
REMODEL OR BUY ANOTHER HOUSE?

ED McKIDDEY
J. E. McKIDDEY Realty Ltd.
It depends on whether your home is basically worth the investment.
Assuming your house is soundly constructed and the floor plan is a popular one with remodelling possible in big detail most owners fall into is that the total cost of the remodelling is not economically sound.
If you live in a neighbourhood of $18,000 to $25,000 houses, for instance, and your remodelling will increase your total investment to $30,000, you may not get your investment back when you sell.
A safe margin of improvement above the neighbourhood average is usually 10 to 15 percent. Above that you may be pricing yourself out of your neighbourhood market.
First proceed by adding the total remodelling estimate plus 20 percent for contingencies. Then have your house appraised. Compare the total of the two against what that amount of money would buy in a new or alternative home to suit your tastes.
An indispensable ally in this decision is an experienced Realtor. His knowledge and experience will help you make the best decision.

Leo Maher To Receive Medal

LEO MAHER

POINT ANNE (Staff) — Thurlow Township fireman Leo Maher of Point Anne, will be awarded the bronze medal for bravery from the Royal Canadian Humane Association at a ceremony to be held Friday, Oct. 22.

Ontario Provincial Police Superintendent D. E. Wellesley will make the presentation at 11:30 a.m. in the Canadian Cement Lafarge Ltd. meeting hall here.

On Feb. 5, 1971, five snowmobilers were travelling on the icy surface of the Bay of Quinte, when two of the three vehicles broke through ice at treacherous Telegraph Narrows, 1½ miles west of Desoronto.

Mr. Maher, travelling closer to the shore at the time of the accident, crawled across the ice and managed to drag Donald and Peggy File, of 179 Haig Road, Belleville, and Mrs. Barbara Uens, 187 Farley Avenue, Belleville, to safety.

The fifth snowmobiler, Alfred Edward Uens, perished after helping the trip escape from the freezing water and before Mr. Maher could return for him.

At the time of the incident, an OPP officer praised the fireman for his coolness and calm. "He deserves a lot of credit for what he did; he deserves a commendation."

Picton Workshop for Retarded Planned

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded will open a workshop here for the county's adult retardates within the next two months.

Plans already have been made to seek a workshop program supervisor.

Larry Richardson, a guidance counsellor at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute and an association spokesman, said yesterday the workshop will remain separate from Prince Edward Heights, the Ontario government village complex for the retarded.

Workshop services, however, will be organized to co-ordinate with facilities at the government complex instead of duplicating them.

Mr. Richardson said the basic concept of the workshop is to provide a place for the adult retarded to socialize and enjoy meaningful activity, they will not be encouraged to relate to society and to each other.

The workshop will be eligible for some provincial grants but initially will receive a substantial financial boost from PEYMR (Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded).

"For the past five years PEYMR workers have promoted an annual 20-mile walkathon to raise funds for the workshop.

A total of approximately $8,000 has been earned by PEYMR walkers for donation to the Prince Edward Association of the Mentally Retarded.

Mr. Richardson, staff advisor to PEYMR's membership, reported that 150 persons finished the cross-county walkathon to earn $3,000 in pledges. This figure represents $600 more than the sum collected last year.

First walker to return to PECI was 18 - year - old Larry Ferguson, a grade 12 student who completed the course in two hours and 13 minutes.

A blind adult student at PECI, Arko Ypma, 25, also completed the 20 mile trek to earn $50 in pledges.

Mr. Richardson said most of the weary walkers went the last mile between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m.

The guidance counselor added he finished in 34th place at 3:45 p.m. Saturday.

The walkathon, sponsored this fall by PEYMR, was co-ordinated by Pam Rose, a grade 11 student at PECI.

Mr. Richardson expressed special thanks to members of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police who patrolled the walkathon route and to the St. John Ambulance which offered treatment for footsore hikers at every checkpoint.

The Prince Edward County Milk Board donated $30 worth of milk for distribution during the walkathon, while the Prince Edward Association for the retarded donated $40 worth of chocolate bars.

Napanee Yacht Has Its Problems

Johann of Rhu, the six-metre sloop from Napanee that was the object of a CFB Trenton air search and rescue operation in August got into difficulties again off Belleville Sunday.

The yacht was bound for Belleville Harbor to be lifted out for the winter when she ran aground off the reclaimed land project east of Bay Bridge Road.

The owner and skipper, Robert Wartman, came ashore in his dingy for assistance and the yacht was drawn off by La Salle Rescue Servic. e

One of the reasons for the grounding was the low water level in the bay — two-and one-half feet below normal mid-season level.

Johann of Rhu, an entrant in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's 'round-the-county race in August was blown off course by a severe storm and was missing for 24 hours. She was sighted by a search and rescue Dakota in a cove off the south shore of Prince Edward County where she had taken shelter after running with the storm.

Township Honors Its Senior Citizens

MELROSE (Staff) — It's an era that puts the stress on youth.

whole of Tyendinaga township took the afternoon off to emphasize its senior residents.

The whole township, that is, as represented by its township council.

The whole affair came to a head at an afternoon banquet in the township's century - old community hall, at which more than 100 of the oldtimers were entertained.

The idea was to pay tribute to Tyendinaga's older citizens, explained Carman Gibson, township reeve.

It also gave them an opportunity to visit each other, since activity slows with age. It's not the easiest business getting from one end of a rural municipality to another, and friendships made in younger days often decline with age.

"We felt it could possibly be the only way that many of them could get together with their neighbors in the township," said Reeve Gibson.

Several reeves from former years joined the current council in making the senior citizens welcome to the banquet, served by the local Women's Institute.

One of the ex-reeves in fact won the prize for being the oldest man there: William McLaren, at 94, among the sprightliest of the banqueteers served on township council back in the mid-1920s.

Taking the prize as the oldest woman in the hall was Mrs. Agnes Candon, 95, from the township's sixth concession.

Most of those present were direct descendants of Canadians who had settled the township early in the last century.

But youth — indirectly — had its say at the get-together by way of the guest speaker. Arthur Duncan himself now retired after years in public relations.

Stressing the difference in time elements, Mr. Duncan noted that in the days of settlement it could have taken 30 days or many days to clear a new farm.

Today, the same work could be done in a week by two young people using modern equipment.

However, this wasn't the only difference.

Younger people are "bigger, stronger, better (academically) than we were — we had them that way."

Criticism of each other now circulated among the generations, said Mr. Duncan. But older people should not make the mistake of dismissing an entire generation because of the behavior and attitudes of a minority of young people.

As for the oldtimers themselves, they have possession of a "vast storehouse of knowledge they have gleaned from their experience in life".

Both generations faced the common dangers of complacency and indifference.

"So be content," by all means," Mr. Duncan told the oldsters. "But placent? Never."

Ontario Vote

On Thursday the people of Ontario go to the polls to choose between the ruling Progressive Conservative party, the Liberal party and the New Democratic Party. Party standings after the last election four years ago were: "Progressive Conservatives 69, Liberal 27, New Democrats 20.

Voting patterns in Ontario have not changed in a long time. The Conservatives, as most people with only the slightest interest in politics know, have been in power for nearly three decades. It would be surprising if there were any other result this time, but it is conceded that if the Conservatives are returned to power as anticipated their hold on the reins of power may not be quite so strong.

There have been changes and surprises in other provinces; there may well be some in Ontario too, what with the new youth vote and the general mood of a society evolving rapidly in a swift-paced world. But we do not see the need for any radical changes in the course Ontario has been taking; we believe in free enterprise and that the policies of the present government afford the best opportunities for all.

This province is one of the better places in which to live in this world. It is progressive, it is relatively law-abiding and generally free of the kind of natural disasters which plague other parts of the world. It may not have jobs for all, there may be poverty, but the State ensures that a man need not starve either. Unemployment moreover is not just a phenomenon of this country alone.

Some of the Conservative government's publicity has been sugar-coated perhaps, a little cloying. It may compare unfavorably with the ho-hi-sense "blueprint for government" of the Liberals which sets out precisely what that party wants for Ontario, or the NDP's claims that if elected it would be a compassionate government which would pay close attention to the needs of people.

But why visit the sins of its publicists on a party? What counts is how this province is going to be governed — by men of experience who also concern themselves with people (as in the case of Premier Davis' decision to halt work on the Spadina expressway) or by forces of radical change which could lead us into costly and unwanted endeavors. There are many areas of policy with which the next Government of Ontario must concern itself: with unemployment, pollution, health care, to name only a few. We think they will be best met by a continuance of the existing government and its policies.

One-Sided View

The so-called Church of Scientology which claims 5,000 members in Ontario, most of them in the Toronto area, is a sect whose origins are as mysterious as its philosophy and methods are questionable.

In a campaign in which members have been in Belleville among other places, passing out leaflets, the sect has launched a full attack on Ontario's mental health program, on the profession of psychiatry and by association the medical profession, as well as on methods of treatment.

We would have to agree that there is still progress to be made in unravelling the mysteries of human psychology, that treatment methods have not progressed all that much since the pioneering work of Sigmund Freud, that electric shock, drugs and brain operations have their element of risk and failure; that conditions in our mental hospitals need to be updated, staff increased, and all the rest of it.

But to make serious charges about the "evils, the failings, the incompetence of psychiatry" to quote the sect's news sheet, without any mention of psychiatry's countless successes, including the work of lay people — the mental health associations in our communities — is a grave disservice.

For example Scientology claims that psychiatry "kills," and it cites a dozen or more cases of alleged failures of psychiatric treatment, including Charles Manson (the Sharon Tate murders), and the alleged killer of 21 migrant workers in California recently. So what can anyone, let alone the psychiatrist, do for people such as these who are basically unstable? He can only probe into the person's background, advise, explain, prescribe drugs, therapy of one recognized kind or another. As in any other field there are successes as well as failures. But this the Scientologists fail to recognize.

A Dying and Unruly Parliament Running Its Course

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You can tell time is running out for this Parliament just by listening to the sound of it.

The count-down to its dissolution for the next election — be it now by political accident in winter, by increasingly likely next spring, or just possibly as late as autumn 1972 — began when the Honorable Members returned to the Capital September 7.

This session, which of the pressing necessity of urgent and impossible — to — finish-quickly business will telescope into the sitting after the New Year, is the last chance to gas up politically for the campaign.

Last Chance Parliaments all make the same sounds.

You can hear the Honorable Members saying who is going to run again — most are, many for the money — which now, at $18,000 plus $8,000 tax-free expenses making it worth an easy $30,000 or better, is pretty tempting.

And you can hear those who are not — some of the veteran members of the Diefenbaker Old Guard among them — busy making their plans to head out to political pasture.

They do not like saying so publicly yet, because they want to keep their clout until they can make it count for the last time in swinging nominations in their constituencies to their successors-designate.

But the real fall-safe sound of a Parliament slowly dying of old age in its allotted five-year time span is the rising density of the din.

Words sharpen.

Rudeness roughens.

Uproar more and more becomes the routine order — more accurately, disorder — of the parliamentary day.

Like the other day when Supply and Services Minister James Richardson took a turn in the Government's trenches in the Great Grain War — and wished he had not.

Now James Richardson — yes, he comes from THAT Winnipeg family of storied wealth — is such a quietly unassuming and unobtrusive Member of Parliament that the appearance of his name in Hansard is almost an event in itself.

Most of the time, in fact just about all the time, the Opposition ignores him, asking him no questions, just letting him sit there in lonely, neglected silence.

It is assumed, even by the Liberals, that he is one Member of Cabinet — Agriculture Minister Bud Olson of Medicine Hat and Wheat Board Minister Otto Lang of Saskatoon-Humboldt being the others, and all of them from the Prairies — who will not be coming back after the next election.

So why did he stick his neck out.

Might have been that he figured he had nothing to lose.

So, recklessly, into the fray he charged.

And in 20 minutes of tortured struggling to have his say in the Great Grain War of Words, he was interrupted 24 times.

In the peppery exchange, he managed to squeeze in only 85 times.

It was cruel the way they skewered him. But that is the almost these days of a dying Parliament. Savage.

On the Liberal side of the House there is a gifted minister who, each time Conservative Leader Stanfield asks a question, gets in there first with a sound imitation that caricatures the Nova Scotian's voice. Devastatingly funny. But destructive, too.

And there is a band of Liberal cutups who do their best to give former Conservative Trade Minister George Hees a hard time, as he in turn makes a specialty of trying to shaft the Prime Minister of "Pierre," as he insists on addressing him.

"Way to go George Boy!" they roar, drowning him out in a verbal cartooning of his attempts to make himself heard.

Amid the bedlam George shrugs, Pierre shrugs, and it ends up as a who - shrugs - last - is - the - winner - contest.

One of the finer practitioners of the art of disrupting a political enemy is the Conservative MP Robert Coates, a gifted verbal batchetman from Nova Scotia who knows, a soft throat for slicing when he sees one.

As happened the other night when he was interrupted, but only for a split second and two words by C. David Gibson, Liberal MP for Hamilton - Wentworth, scion of one of Ontario's oldest families, son of former Chief Justice Colin Gibson, distinguished, dignified as they come, and together the very pepper gentleman.

C. David Gibson - reddened, straightened, sank in his seat with embarrassment almost out of sight and was not heard from again.

But such is a Parliament as its life runs out.

"Yeah, well if he's normal why isn't he turning into a hippie, rebelling against society, using drugs, dropping out or something?"

Elections, Political Parties, And the Average Canadian

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Will you please let me comment on a letter by Mr. Thrush.

He claims that a statement by Mr. Deacon of the NDP to the extent that the Conservatives do care about the underdog is merely a "political ploy".

He goes on to say that the PC party is a party that caters to the average man.

With this he contradicts himself. Catering to the average man leaves the underdog by the wayside and that is what Mr. Deacon meant.

Mr. Thrush should realize that the NDP has about one-twentieth or merely 5 percent of the campaign money the Conservatives have. It is therefor traditional that they have to skimp and squeeze every dollar to get all the mileage to the last little inch. "Making ends meet" is what the NDP is all about . . . and isn't that true for every "average" Canadian . . . especially the underdog.

Only the PC Party can afford to give away political plums, they are in power, they have the money.

Let us quote the Globe and Mail of Monday, Oct. 4, 1971, about the Sandbanks Provincial Park in Picton. Three Sandbanks are supposed to be saved for the Canadian average man! Quote: "They've taken out more sand in the past month than they removed during all of the previous year" Unquote. Negotiations should drag on for years after the election."

Let Mr. Thrush ask the PC Party what the conversion will cost of the Queens Motel to a hospital. On what hypothesis is that research to be done in this Hospital based?

Some time ago a unit for total bed patients was added to Hastings Manor. This was (and is) in direct competition with private nursing homes. The new hospital will be in direct competition with private nursing homes too. The ambiguity and hypocrisy of the PCs is clearly shown.

They claim to believe in private enterprise while at the same time spending money on political plums to compete with private enterprise.

In the same time they are do ing what the CCF and later the NDP has advocated for 50 or more years.

With other words Mr. Thrush, the only way the PCs can get the vote is by copying the NDP.

Rights of Minorities Must Always Be Guarded

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

May I protest in the strongest possible terms your rejection of aid to the separate schools of Ontario.

Human needs simply ought not to be at the mercy of economical efficiency or political expediency. To encourage freedom of choice with one hand and to discourage that freedom with the other by financial strangulation is duplicity of the most treacherous nature.

In freedom there surely can be no argument against a broad concept of education with emphasis on diversity — a form of education in which each child has a right to pursue his educational goals depending on his needs. I would be truly ashamed of our concept of freedom if we were to try to turn all our students out of some sort of a master mold, and I would be frightened of the results of such a uniform philosophy on the character and country.

Ontario is already far behind other provinces, less wealthy than ours in the support of educational freedom. Alas we are right up there in the foreground with countries like Russia and China but they at least have had the courage to honestly forbid the existence of such a freedom.

Let us cease to excuse our hypocritical actions with oblique words like fragmentation — division and give Christian thought to the rights and needs of the minorities.

If allowance for differences of opinion both political and religious is the bastion of democracy, how can you support the opposite stand? You knew full well the deep Orange Hall feeling in much of Ontario and counted on this to polarize the good Protestant vote of Ontario.

What an opportunity we are giving our young people to further reject our values as shallow, bigoted and hypocritical. Views that may be Protestant but they certainly are not Christian.

As a parent with four children who are asking some very important questions, this is what I am doing to try to answer some of them: I am no longer a Tory.

NDP's Auto Insurance Plan Could Cost More Not Less

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The consensus appears to be that the Conservative Government under Bill Davis will be returned to power on Oct. 21 and that the NDP will form the official opposition. In view of this, I think that the public should be aware of the no fault universal auto insurance plan advocated by the NDP. If the NDP candidate for Prince Edward — Lennox has referred to the Manitoba Auto Insurance Plan (Autopac) as illustrating NDP success. Such success would flow from their plan.

It is interesting to note the comment by Susan Mesbehen writing for the Winnipeg Free Press in the Oct. 2, 1971 issue. She compares last years privately administered insurance plan with the present government plan and states, "To achieve a saving over last year's rate the driver insured with Autopac should be under 25 years old, male, single, have no tickets in the last few years and drive a very expensive car."

"Here are some examples of drivers of fairly ordinary cars — certainly not in the luxury class — who will be paying higher rates under the Autopac system. In all cases, the drivers are accident-free and are comparing the identical coverage for both years. Some have included the cost of the licence fee, some have not.

A school teacher who takes her 1969 Datsun to work was paying $78 and is now to pay $101.

A high school teacher who drives his new Volkswagon station wagon to work paid $91 last year and $135 under Autopac.

A civil servant who drives his 1969 Chevrolet Biscayne to work paid $93 last year and his bill jumps to $121 under Autopac.

A professional woman driving a 1969 Chevrolet to and from work paid $89 last year and her Autopac bill is $130.

Then there is the driver whose 1961 Ford Ranchwagon worth $500 was put, under Autopac, in the same classification as a 1970 Ford Fairlane 500 worth $3,500. When he pointed out the mistake to an Autopac official he was told that the classification could be changed if complicated for the computer to handle and that adjustments up to 1964 have been promised into a higher class in the same way.

"All the rates are locked in to the computer and there is nothing we can do to change it," the official said.

Letter in The Globe and Mail

So we're 18. Two or three months ago we were just plain dumb teen agers. Now we're all the prodigal sons for daughters) and all we want is to know why? Because now we can vote! Everybody wants us on their side.

Pamphlets keep pouring in. Vote Liberal. We're on your side!

Vote the NDP are for youth." (By the way, what's an NDP?)

Vote Conservative, don't forget, we're on your side.

So, just to prove my intelligence I want to hear what they all had to say. From what I can figure out, the NDP want to give us free everything — which is okay if you can do it — the Liberals want to do something they don't understand, are immediately all for it, and the Conservatives when they don't understand something, let it ride.

None of this makes too much sense to me. Whatever happened to the good old days when the King said jump and everyone asked how high? Politics, huh. Who needs 'em?

Hees PC Rally Speaker

Only a Conservative government can cope with the pressing economic problems facing Ontario and Canada in the next few years, George Hees said last night.

The federal minister of parliament spoke briefly at a Conservative social evening at the Legion Hall, Belleville, where voters were invited to play cards, dance to a five-piece orchestra and munch mounds of sandwiches and Quinte district cheese.

About 500 people heard Mr. Hees say that the only person "who can meet this problem head on" is Prime Minister William Davis, supported by his cabinet.

"The speeches of Liberal candidates reveal that they have no basic understanding of the needs of the economy of this country," said Mr. Hees. "On any issue, you can find Mr. Nixon with his feet firmly planted in mid-air. The Liberals will do badly because of lack of leadership."

Mr. Hees described the "pressures" facing governments in Canada during the next few years. One is the 10 per cent surtax on dutiable imports to the United States, "which they don't intend to remove until after the next presidential election because Nixon is determined he'll get in again".

"Another pressure is the moving of American subsidiaries back to the United States.

"These companies cannot afford not to move their factories back to the States and manufacture there for export to Canada," said Mr. Hees.

He predicted a bright future for Dr. R. T. Potter, Conservative candidate for Quinte riding and minister without portfolio in the Ontario government.

The outspoken member's proposals were not popular years ago when he first went to Queen's Park, said Mr. Hees, "but they are accepting his ideas now; that is why he is a member of this cabinet. After this election he will be a minister of department; he will be one of our top cabinet ministers before very long."

Ontario, said the federal MP, is a place people from other parts of Canada admire and want to live in.

Both Mr. Hees and Dr. Potter answered the question of their opponents: "Have you had enough?"

"We never have enough of the good things in life," said Dr. Potter. "We have had our share from this government, but we want more."

Mr. Hees remarked on the changed format of electioneering in Ontario.

Instead of long political harangues, he said, the format now consists of a few short speeches and an opportunity for candidates to circulate among the crowds and meet the people.

And this is what Dr. Potter and Mr. Hees did for the remainder of the evening, shaking hands with most of those present at the last big Conservative gathering of the 1971 election campaign in Belleville.

Election Countdown

Entering the home stretch of his election campaign Dr. R. T. Potter (centre) MPP for Quinte riding and Conservative candidate, attended a PC social night at the Legion Hall in Belleville. With him was Mrs. Potter and guest speaker George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings.

Adults Making Use Of School Facilities

PICTON (Staff) — School days have been revived for a handful of Prince Edward County residents now furthering their educations with day classes at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Paul Burd, principal of PECI, said last week that approximately 10 persons, including three housewives, are taking one or more classes each day through this adult education program.

Although Mr Burd did not feel the response to the day class program was "overwhelming" he is well pleased with the progress of PECI's older students.

He explained that it might have been possible for 25 or 30 persons to have enrolled in day classes, depending on the subjects they wanted to study.

The principal noted the day classes, advertised through the local newspaper for the first time this year, provide adult students with daily 45-minute exposures to their courses.

Night school classes provide a much longer exposure once a week and seldom offer credit courses.

Mr. Burd commented that interest courses are popular at night school but credit courses are organized infrequently because of lack of requests for them. By attending one or more day classes it is possible for adult students to obtain credits.

Albert College May Make History

Women's Lib has an opportunity of gaining a foothold in an educational association hitherto reserved for boys' schools.

A news release from Albert College says that the independent school in the west end of the city is being considered for membership in The Canadian Headmasters' Association and if accepted will be the only co-educational school in the associations' membership.

Recently, two members of the association, Patrick Johnson headmaster of Upper Canada College, Toronto, and William A. Joyce, headmaster of Ashbury College, Ottawa, spent a day at Albert College with Headmaster Lorne L. Shewfelt and members of the teaching staff inspecting facilities.

"Albert College is receiving special consideration for membership in this organization and would be the only co-educational member," said Mr. Shewfelt. "All other member schools are boys' schools."

A change in the organization's policy makes membership of a co-educational school possible.

Mr. Shewfelt said the general impression obtained was that the program of studies at Albert is superior and that the facilities, while differing in age, are considered to be on a par or above those of companion schools.

Start Made Toward True Friendship - Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Alexei Kosygin and Prime Minister Trudeau exchanged champagne toasts to Soviet-Canadian friendship Monday night at a glittering banquet capping Mr. Kosygin's first, event-filled day in Canada's capital.

The dinner was attended by about 200 persons in the ornate Confederation Room of Parliament Hill's West Block, where Mr. Trudeau commended "the advantages to be gained from a constructive working relationship" between Canada and the Soviet Union.

Only about 10 hours after an assailant manhandled Mr. Kosygin on Parliament Hill, Mr. Trudeau drew attention to Canada's cultural diversity and said Canada supports minority groups in the preservation of their cultures.

"During the course of your visit here you may see evidence of the strongly-held views of some minorities," said Mr. Trudeau in a possible reference to the Hungarian-Canadian arrested in connection with the assault on Mr. Kosygin.

"As a government we support the right of all persons to express their opinions, but as a government and as a people we emphasize the transcending importance of courtesy, civility and genuine hospitality toward our guests."

Canada and the Soviet Union have made an "extremely promising start along the road to increased co-operation," said the prime minister in proposing a toast.

He mentioned an agreement on science and technology signed by the two countries early this year, a protocol on consultations signed when Mr. Trudeau visited the Soviet Union in May, and a cultural exchanges agreement scheduled to be signed by the two heads.

Both countries were aware that true friendship, when once attained and if soundly based, "is strong enough to endure temporary differences and to emerge stronger for having been tested."

"Canada's long relationship with its oldest friends is proof to us that however uncertain may be the consequences from time to time of short-term events, the long run consists of a climate of understanding and co-operation."

At the same time, it was necessary to recognize that policy differences still persist between the Soviet Union and Canada.

Mr. Kosygin, who was nearly an hour late arriving for the dinner, replied that "relations proper to good neighbors are becoming established between our states."

Noting that Soviet-Canadian co-operation now encompasses scientific, technical, cultural and other spheres, Mr. Kosygin said:

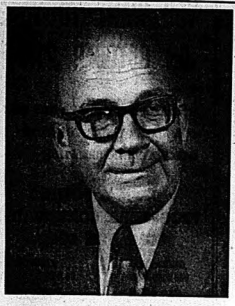
"The efforts of both sides are now directed towards lending this co-operation a firm, stable character . . . making it wider and more versatile."

Collaboration between the two countries was not directed against anyone.

"It merely serves . . . the cause of international peace. We have no hidden motives.

"If, however, countries conduct their external policies with the design of undermining the positions of others, of infringing on their legitimate rights and interests, such a course can only aggravate present world tensions, make it more difficult to settle burning issues, and produce new focuses of crisis and conflict.

"No matter what words are used to cloak such a policy, its bankruptcy and the dangers it holds even for those countries which might attempt to implement it, will be revealed."



Despite the hour—it was nearly midnight—a handful of demonstrators waited near the side door of the West Block as Mr. Kosygin emerged to return to his hotel.

ELECT
LIBERAL
The Man for "ALL" Quinte

Above is our Liberal Candidate, Gerald A. Weaver. He has had wide spread business activities throughout the area for many years, as an automobile dealer, an appliance dealer and real estate activities, including of recent date extensive home building. He served on the Board of Trenton Memorial Hospital for 10 years and as a Trenton Councillor for 11 years. He thinks that in government today there are far too many dreamers who lack practical experience. Gerald Weaver thinks his common sense approach offers more to Quinte than the other candidates.

Gerald Weaver and his wife, the former Aileen Sutcliffe. Both Aileen and Gerald were born in Trenton and attended Trenton Public and High Schools through Grade 13.

This is a recent picture of the Weaver family and their dog, Buttons. Gerry, aged 20, is a 4th year student at Trent University; Martha, aged 16, is in Grade 12, and Stephen, age 18, is in his 2nd year at Trent University.

Highway Construction ??
Should a 4 lane highway between Trenton and Belleville require more than 12 years to complete? Obviously the answer is YES, when activity only commences at election time.
LET'S GET SOME ACTION. VOTE LIBERAL — VOTE WEAVER

Pollution Control ??

This week, we have a magnificent opportunity to sweep out the old, the weary and the shop-worn; a tired and cynical government with which Ontario has been cluttered for 28 long years.

Yes, the party's over. It's time for a thorough house-cleaning. We sense that is how you feel too. (Even though we don't have expensive American pollsters to confirm it.)

Robert Nixon and the Liberal Party will govern with an honest, purposeful, single-minded concern for all our citizens, not just some of them.

We will listen. We will hear. We will act.

Don't Be Afraid to Ask For Head Waiter's Advice

TORONTO (CP) — Don't be shy if you really want to enjoy a dinner out. If you aren't sure what's in something, ask before you order it. If you're uncertain about which wines to choose, ask.

That's the word from Tony Roldan, executive chef at the Westbury Hotle. He says the head waiter or chef is at a good restaurant will be glad to recommend a choice if you want them to, based on what you tell them you enjoy eating.

"If people ask, they will enjoy dining out, instead of getting something they don't like."

Mr. Roldan has been in Canada for 15 years, and he says Canadians during that time have learned to be expert eaters.

"The people are getting to be connoisseurs in food and wines. They are really beginning to know what they are eating and drinking".

Mr. Roldan is a member of the exclusive Chaine des Rotisseurs, an international association of knowledgeable food lovers. He says the rules they use when they dine together would help anyone to enjoy a good dinner.

"You shouldn't drink heavy liquor before a meal. Have a nice aperitif and drink with brandy, which is based on wine. Then the things you drink are all the same.

"A lot of people smoke during a meal, which is wrong. I feel sorry when I see them do it. It doesn't matter if you give them a good meal or a bad meal, they can't taste it. Even the wine is spoiled.

Mr. Roldan says people don't ordinarily order too much food in a restaurant, but he has a rule of thumb to help order a balanced meal.

"Start with something light, then a little heavier, then heavy again and finish light. Or if you want a heavy dessert, have a light meal, fish or chicken or veal."

If you want to order something special for dinner, or something different, he suggests talking to the chef ahead of time.

"I don't know the guest. I want to know if he wants special hors d'ourves, heavy sauces or light, does he like garlic. That's very important. A lot of people are on a diet, they may want a meal without sauces. Most sauces have a quarter of a pound of butter in them.

Harpell – Kimmett

Deseronto United Church was the setting for a double wedding recently when Mary Margaret Kimmett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kimmett, Deseronto became the bride of George Frederick Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Potter; and Dorothy Faye Kimmett, another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kimmett became the bride of Douglas Christopher Harpell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Harpell. The triple ceremony was conducted by Rev. William Hendry while music was provided by Mrs. Frances Wadge, organist and Mrs. Vaughan Godfrey, soloist.

Both brides were given in marriage by their father. Mary wore a gown of pure silk peluna with rows of fine ing lace on the bodice and and collar. The long full sleeves with tight cuffs were also decorated with roses. The A-line skirt featured a chapel train and self-cummerbund. The matching headdress held in place a cathedral veil with small lace roses enhancing the edge.

Dorothy's gown was of crystal peau de soie with an empire waistline and wedding ring collar of imported Alencon lace with rows of matching ace on the bodice and long full sleeves. The skirt featured appliques of lace daisies and a watteau chapel train. Each bride carried a bouquet of white carnations and yellow roses with green streamers.

Mary's matron of honor was Mrs. Lorna Astley and her bridesmaid was Miss Linda Potter. For Dorothy, Mrs. Suzanne Kells acted as matron of honor and Mrs. Valerie Collen was bridesmaid. All four attendants were identical empire style floor-length gowns of jade green velvet with long sheer sleeves and mint green bodices. Each carried a bouquet of bronze and gold 'mums with matching flowers in her hair.

Ushers were Dan Forenica and Duane McCutcheon.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Deseronto Legion Hall. Receiving guests was the bride's mother in a silk brocade dress and ensemble of matching cornflower blue and white with navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Assisting her were the mothers of the two brides grooms, Mrs. Potter and Mrs. Harpell. Mrs. Potter was dressed in a cream crimplene dress with a matching lace coat, and black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Mrs. Harpell wore a gold crimplene dress and matching sleeveless coat, navy accessories and a corsage of white and tinted green 'mums.

After the reception and dance that followed, the two couples left on their wedding trips. Mary wore a gold and grey pant suit with black accessories and a corsage of gold 'mums. Dorothy's pant suit was white with burgundy accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Harpell are livitte in Napanee and Mr. and Mrs. Potter in Oshawa.

Fancy Foods To Die Out?

NEW YORK (AP) — Cooking experts and fancy food fans are predictably piqued at a nutritionist's suggestion that the menu of the future may be founded on such things as peanut butter and plums.

"Deplorable," said one cooking teacher; "purgatory," said another. "A rash statement," commented a gourmet shop manager; "impossible," sneered a restaurant owner.

The suggestion came from Dr. George G. Graham of Johns Hopkins University. He predicted that modern technology would enable women to spend less time in the kitchen and to serve nutritional diets composed of "hand foods"—sandwiches, pizzas, rolls and pastries.

The forerunners of the future, Graham contended, are hamburgers and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

"What a deplorable, miserable situation to live in—peanut butter sandwiches and pizzas. Cooking is a creative art and people, particularly young people, are beginning to find it out.

Maurice Moore-Betty, a Briton who runs a cooking school in New York and who recently wrote a cookbook, said of the suggestion: "My reaction is that I don't see why if fine cooking should die out any more than people should give up painting or music."

What does he think of a diet of peanut butter and pizza? "It would be purgatory," said Moore-Betty. "I can't imagine anything worse."

One of the few exceptions to the general dismay was Graham Kerr, the ballooning "Galloping Gourmet" television chef with the casual approach to complicated recipes.

In a telephone interview from his home in Seattle, Kerr said of the new food, "It's got to happen. If we don't take some sort of rational approach to in-depth agriculture, only the very, very rich will be able to eat natural food. What is considered good food today is going to be prohibitively expensive.

Besides, he said, "I predict that within 25 years 80 per cent of the people will be living on pills and a milky substance obtained from rods."

Bare Backs to Return

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring dresses will expose the shoulders and back.

"I know some real shoulder freaks," said a model as she slipped out of a bare-shouldered Bill Blass spring evening dress, following his show Thursday.

"Bones, honey," another model said. But she worries that stumpers makes her hide bones stick out too much.

Some of Blass' bare, halter styles have large notch collars or circles of white flowers or high ruffles.

Blass showed lots of navy and black taffeta, a rather prim fabric. Some, particularly those with stiff ruffles and full skirts, looked fine and uncomfortable as dinosaur costumes, but they were pretty.

Everyone keeps saying that the chic thing, especially for after six, is just below the knee, but some of the dressier ensembles were above the knee.

FEMALE FORESTER — Carrying out a forest inventory is generally regarded as a man't jlob, but Marlene Johnson, a forestry student at the University of Toronto, has proved a woman can do it. She's spent her summer as part of a timber survey crew in north-western Ontario and hopes to make forestry a full-time career when finished university. (CP Photo)

Gourds Are Decorative But Rot Soon

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gourds, those colorful inedible members of the squash family, make beautiful fall and winter decorative items, but drying of the ornamental varieties can be a risky business, said Orialee Rudd, home design specialist for the Manitoba agriculture department.

Because they are composted largely of water, they bruise easily and often develop rot before they dry thoroughly, she said.

"To be on the safe side, gourds should be picked before the first frost. But if the weather will permit, let them ripen on the vine."

Miss Rudd said they should be picked when the stems are brown and dry, keeping about one inch of stem.

Wash them—carefully—in lukewarm water, rinse in clear water and dry, she said. The use of a mild disinfectant solution will help discourage rot and mould.

Piercing both ends with a darning needle will help encourage drying.

The gourds should be placed on racks in a dark, cool, well-ventilated place with a space between them to encourage good air circulation and help prevent rot, she said.

Check them every week or so, washing off any mould with disinfectant solution. Soft spots should be discarded.

Woman Forester Is On Timber Survey Job

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — With honey-blonde hair flowing out from under her hard hat, Marlene Johnson has spent a summer proving she can pack a canoe, climb a rock face or work through a balsam thicket with the best of male foresters.

As one of 11 people carrying out a forest inventory in the Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co.'s 7,000-square-mile tract of timber in north-western Ontario, Marlene has had to do all these things. Her male co-workers say she's as tough and as woods-conscious as any of them.

A second-year forestry student at the University of Toronto, Marlene, 20, asked the company for a summer job and was placed on a timber survey crew.

"At first it was rough," said Marlene while still on the job, "getting up at 5.30 a.m., wearing bush boots, hard hat and carrying a 30-pound pack . . . but I'm sure toughened up now."

The job is hard, even for a big man. It involves going into relatively inaccessible forest areas to measure every tree for its merchantable timber, check for disease and damage and write the information on computer cards.

Club Activities

ALBERT COLLEGE GUILD

Miss Daisy Young presented a Thanksgiving message, stressing that while there are things for which we are especially thankful at Thanksgiving time, we should be thankful at all seasons.

"Sometimes we only see beauty and goodness when it has passed away. We are so concerned with our petty worries that we don't recognize the blessings or there is an arrogance that makes us ignore them. We want instant Utopia, instead of feeling grateful for small blessings. There is something wrong with the person who feels no thankfulness especially on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Young introduced Mrs. Fleming, who has just returned from a camera safari to East Africa, visiting Rhodesia, Kenya and Tanganyika.

In her talk she mentioned that their hotels were good and stressed the cleanliness of the countries visited.

At no time either in the areas or along the roadside did she see any rubbish or signs of pollution. After a "safride picnic, their driver would pick up every crumb before moving on.

She showed many interesting pictures of birds and animals native to the areas and suggested that the tourists were in the stages as they were not allowed to get out of their cars in view of the animals at closer range. She showed one picture of a termite hill three times the size of an elephant to stand on.

Mrs. C. W. Smith expressed the thanks of the audience for the pleasure of sharing the safari.

SENIOR CITIZENS' Club

ss. 91

The Belleville Senior Citizens met for their regular meeting at the recreation centre. The president Mrs. Kathleen Adams presided and Mrs. Lulu Adams was pianist.

After the opening ceremony, a moment's silence was observed for Mrs. Mary Haslip and Jack Mason who had passed away since the last meeting.

The birthday song was sung for those having a birthday in October. It was decided to have a party each month for those having a birthday in that month. A suggested date was the third Thursday of each month.

Mrs. Keitha Bowers read the minutes of the last regular and the executive meetings. Mrs. Elsie Jackson reported the financial standing. Mrs. Vickers gave a report on the euchres and Mrs. Adams expressed thanks.

Mrs. Gist reported on those who had been remembered by the Club and Mrs. Mabel Brooks and Mrs. Nora Shoebridge were reported in hospital.

Correspondence, bills and accounts were dealt with.

Mr. Williams and Mrs. Summers took charge for the election of officers and the following were elected: president, Mrs. Kathleen Adams; vice-president, Harold Thurston; 2nd vice - president, Mrs. Lulu Langhurst; treasurer, Mrs. Elsie Jackson; recording secretary, Mrs. Keitha Bowers. These officers will be installed in January.

A trip to the Gatineau Hills was planned. The draw was won by Mrs. Madeline Beggs.

After the meeting closed Mrs. Bedell introduced the 'Harmony Two' — Tibor Cassar and Ted Elmers whose music was very much enjoyed.

Mrs. Bedell and Mrs. Adams expressed thanks.

On Thursday, October 7, a very successful bazaar was held by the Ladis at Christ Church. The winner of the beautiful quilt was Mr. John W. Gibson, 324 Glendale Road.

NO EVIDENCE

MONTREAL (CP) — Agnes Higgins, director of the Montreal Diet Dispensary, says "there is no sign of any evidence that the dairy industry realizes the importance of milk in nutrition." The least the government can do, she says, is force dairies to add vitamin D — a rickets fighter — to whole milk, leaving some free for those who don't want it.

80th Birthday Celebrated

MADOC — A happy reunion took place at the Orange Hall at Hazzard's Corners in Madoc Township on October 10 when approximately 60 descendants of Richard Kerner and Winnifred Hayton met to mark the 80th birthday of Miss Alma Keene. Miss Keene, a resident of Hastings Manor in Belleville, is the last remaining member of the family.

A lovely fall day got off to a start with a sumptuous buffet - style dinner when everyone sat down to the tables attractively decorated with fall leaves, pumpkins and apples.

Following the meal, a number of the visitors crossed the road to Hazzard's United Church, where family pictures were taken. Many went inside, where much reminiscing was enjoyed, as old times were recalled.

Returning to the hall later, Allen Rockwell called the gathering to order and members of the family spoke, briefly telling reminiscences of their younger years.

Coming all the way from Edmonton, Alberta, were six members of the family of the late Lillian Keene Bacon (Mrs. George Bacon) and Alma Keene's sister's family. They were, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bacon, Mr and Mrs. Ross Bacon and Mrs. John MacIntyre and daughter, Mrs. Garry MacLean.

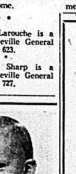
SOCIAL and PERSONAL



Prior to her recent wedding Mrs. Doug Harpell (nee Dorothy Kimmett) was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Suzanne Kells and Mrs. Beverley McNevin at the home of Mrs. Jo Bardell, Deseronto. Mrs. Rick Potter (nee Mary Kimmett) was honored before her marriage at a shower given by Mrs. Lois Potter and Miss Linda Potter. Her pupils at Port Hope High School held a shower in her honor and a presentation was made by the staff. Mrs. Ralph Aylesworth and Mrs. Don England were hostesses for a double shower in honor of both the brides-to-be at Mrs. Aylesworth's home.

Ann Landers

Young Girl Feels Trapped in Violent, Gun-Toting World

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl, 16. Last year one of my best friends was raped. In June my eight-year-old sister was approached by a child molester. Last month one of my older sister's friends was beaten up while walking home from work in broad daylight. And so on.

I want to take guitar lessons which would require a 12-block walk. We live in a good part of town but my parents say no. They don't want me walking anywhere alone after dark. So OK, I won't take guitar lessons. I can't walk 24 lousy blocks for something I've waited three years for.

Thank you, World Somewhere there is love and peace and beauty and truth. Somewhere people live simple, decent lives. Somewhere people don't have guns in the house—they don't even lock their doors. Somewhere a person can walk down the street at night and not be scared to death that he will be hit over the head. Or shot. Perhaps Love and Truth is too much to ask. But is safety? Someone must be reached. Please help me. I don't understand—A Girl In Kansas

Dear Girl: Somewhere, you say? I'd like to know where that place is. It used to be that the small towns were safe. But no more. What can we do? There are no easy answers, but I can make one suggestion which is closely related to the problems you listed. We can demand that our legislators pass tougher gun laws. Today almost every nut and his cousin has a gun. If the laws had been changed ten years ago I can think of some great Americans who might be alive today.

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a complainer, and I have a fairly good relationship with almost everyone I know, but this one girl who works in our office drives me loony. She is a lively person, talks a lot, laughs a lot, and always has a story to tell—complete with gestures.

Whenever she talks to me she always manages to give me a hard sock and I am sick of it. I've told her a dozen times to keep her hands to herself but it doesn't do any good. Every time she relates an incident she hits me—or she'll give me a jab in the ribs with her elbow and ask, "Get it?"

I am desperate for some advice on how to put an end to her galling habit. Please help me—Black and Blue In Canada.

Dear B and B: Hit her back. I'm not kidding. The best way to break her of this unconscious habit is to let her know immediately that you don't care to be jarred, jabbed, or otherwise assaulted in return (a tap; not a haymaker) she'll cut it out.

Dear Ann Landers: Would you have believed that a great love affair could be ruined by a toothpick? I had three dates with a charming and (I thought) cultured man. I'm sure I would have married him But on the fourth date he pulled a toothpick out of his pocket and proceeded to work for a full three minutes. All my feelings of admiration and love disappeared in those three minutes. Please print this. I didn't have the nerve to tell him why—Cooled Off

Dear Off: A romance that could be killed by a toothpick wasn't much to begin with. You should have told him, dummy.

Children Don't Need 'Constructive' Criticism

By DORIS CLARK

Dr. Haim Ginott, expert in child psychology, suggests there is no such thing as constructive criticism — not with children. They have no defence against a dull judgments.

What they need is honest guidance with generous amounts of understanding and love thrown in. If Johnny annoys you by persistently tapping his pencil you don't shout "Stop!" What you do is point out how much he has done, explaining to him "That is helpful, Johnny."

Even so, Johnny may need to do a few more taps just to save face. Then he makes his own decision to stop, by taking your feelings into consideration.

If we are trying to grow self-governing adults, we do it by teaching them to make their own decisions all along the way.little ones first, then bigger ones. Then we respect those decisions.

Dear Doris: Just before we were married (one year ago) my arthritic mother-in-law was widowed and my husband and I were obliged to live with her for four months. It was hard adjusting to one another as man and wife. She dotes on her son and our intimate life was not our own.

Her recent visit to us brought things to a worse state. She found things to pick away at — my hair wash the way I spend money. Told me what to cook. Finally I told her to mind her own business and my husband took my part.

We go up to see his mother every few weeks and no one has been more patient with her than my husband and myself. We talk with her, old friends and entertain them. She expects this and gives nothing but trouble. Now how boring it is for me to listen to a 70-year-old man about his machinery! I've done it again and again for her sake. — Disheartened

Dear Disheartened: Look: Your husband takes your side sees the whole problem, and you are in the driver's seat. You can't change his mother but you can be kind to her.

Arthritis is a painful ailment which could make her grouch out of even the nicest person. Give yourself time, and try to laugh a little over the pettiness. It takes rare maturity to make lifelong friends of in-laws, but family solidarity and friendship are worth a lot.

Dear Doris: You have been so much help to me in the past that perhaps you could help me again.

Yesterday I phoned several different places to get the forms — Petition for Divorce and Notice of Petition of Divorce — and there seems to be no place to obtain these in my city except perhaps through a lawyer, and then they want to handle the whole thing.

I would really be pleased if you could tell me where I might get these forms, or if you could obtain them for me. — Seeking Divorce

Dear Seeking: Look in your Yellow Pages under "Legal Forms" for a stationer who sells them. I'll also send you the address of a Toronto firm to which you might write for them.

If there are no complications (dispute over custody of children or amount of settlement) it is possible to get a divorce without help. Personally, I'd rather depend on a lawyer.

To know all is to forgive all. Let Doris help you to understand and live happily with those you care about.

Minerva Chapter Installs New Slate of Officers

On Friday evening, the ceremony of installation of officers of Minerva Chapter No. 138, Order of the Eastern Star, took place in the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue, Belleville.

The retiring Matron, Mrs. Rita Henning and retiring Patron, Mr. William Calvert extended a warm welcome to the many members and visitors present.

Among the distinguished guests were, Mr. Earl McKeever, Past Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario and Honorary member of Minerva Chapter, Mrs. Edna Dobbs, Grand conductress of the Grand Chapter of Ontario and member of Minerva Chapter and Mrs. Pauline Clare, District Deputy Grand Matron of district No. 12 and also a member of Minerva Chapter. Many Past District Deputy Grand Matrons as well as a large number of Presiding Matrons and Patrons of both the Radiant and Laurel Years were warmly welcomed by the Worthy Matron.

After a short business session, the retiring Matron and Patron thanked their officers and members for the wonderful support and cooperation they had received throughout their year in the East and which had done so much to make this year a memorable one for them.

The Laurel year officers were installed in a most impressive ceremony conducted by Mrs. Viola Greatrix, PM and Mr. Edison Sine PP and her installing board.

Mr. Reginald Bishop PP of Wellington Chapter sang appropriate solos during the ceremony.

New officers installed were as follows: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Dorothy Steadman; Worthy Patron, Mr. Jack Steadman; Associate Matron, Mrs. Lillian Waters; Associate Patron, Mr. Fred Foster; Chaplain, Mrs. Joyce Reynolds-Marshall, Mrs. Kay Probert; Secretary, Mrs. Winnifred Gunsolus; Treasurer, Mrs. Arlene Anthony; Adah, Mrs. Helen Ray; Ruth, Mrs. Shirley Bongard; Esther, Mrs. Arleen Shaw; Martha, Mrs. Viola Rowe; Electa, Mrs. Ellen Calvert; Warden, Mrs. Bea Rees and Sentinel, Mr. Welly Reynolds.

In her acceptance speech, Mrs. Dorothy Steadman thanked the chapter for the high honor conferred upon her and promised to do her best to be worthy of the position. Mr. Jack Steadman, Worthy Patron thanked the chapter for allowing him to share this honor with his wife and pledged his support and all times.

Following the closing of the chapter, the new Worthy Matron and Patron introduced their daughter Janis and their son John to the assembly.

Trevertons Mark 25th Wedding Anniversary

PLAINFIELD — The family, relatives and friends of Earle and June Treverton met in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary at Gilead Community Hall on Saturday evening, October 9.

The family, Percy and wife Edith, Fred, Jane, and Marie (all at home), Mrs. Walter Treverton (mother of the groom), Mr. and Mrs. Frank Erault (mother and step-father of the bride) were all present. The only sister of the "bridal couple", Mrs. Olive Weese was also present.

There was an interesting program in which the guests took an active part Participants were Master Carl Hoffman, Mrs. Dorothy Howes, Mrs. Olive Clare, Mr. George Clare, Mrs. Ruth Ross, Mrs. Clare Ward and Mrs. Edith Treverton. The master of ceremonies was Mr. Earle Ross.

Festivities commenced with an introduction of the wedding party and finished with the presentation of two recliner chairs from the immediate families and children. Other gifts were received from groups and individuals. All gifts were received with much appreciation. The evening closed with a buffet luncheon at which Mrs. Olive Clare and Mrs. Emma Easton poured tea. The evening was much enjoyed by all present.

Swimsuits Dedicated To Actress

LOS ANGELES (AP)—With Merle Oberon sitting serenely in the shadows, designer Lois Esteves turned the spotlight on a striking new swimsuit collection dedicated to the dark-eyed actress.

"I dedicate these to Merle Oberon," Esteves said, "because I spent five years of high style very much. She's not a teeny-bopper but she can wear any bikini I design."

Miss Oberon, tanned and radiant in a simple turquoise dress, was the surprise guest at Esteves' late afternoon show Monday. She spends much time at her villa in Acapulco, Mexico.

Esteves' second collection for the Sea Darlings company was a show-stopper in a day of swim and sportswear showings which featured bikinis hidden away under caftans, long dresses and skirts.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

Is it foolish to yearn for the past?

Answer: Worse that that, it is regressive to plan for "the good old days."This, of course, has no bearing on most of those people who are caught up in the current media for nostalgia. Vital and eager, many of these devotees and students of bygone eras can enjoy the present more because of their concern for the past. Their knowledge and experience of "the way it used to be" enables them to cope better with life as they live it today.

Do newlyweds repeat the troubles of their parents?

Answer: They probably do. Nevertheless, when the bride and groom settle down to the routine of being married, they often try to avoid the troubles that they saw in their folks. Yet, despite all their efforts, the newlyweds will find themselves beset by the same problems. If they have known their parents to survive their difficulties, though, the youngsters may believe they can handle their own troubles.

Should a quiet child be urged to act more lively?

Answer: No. If, a child who is healthy in body and mind prefers to go at a more quiet pace than his contemporaries, parents and other concerned adults need not continually urge him to be more active than he is. He probably does not feel that he is under pressure to reassure himself or how he stands with his parents since he is quietly confident of his love for his parents and theirs for him.

Black Rebels Follow Whites' Example

TORONTO (CP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury said Monday that while persons should not be shocked when black leaders advocate violent revolution because they are only following the example of oppressed whites in the Western world,

Dr. Michael Ramsey said racial strife is becoming worse each year and it "isn't surprising when the black races aren't willing to go on following white supremacy."

The archbishop told a joint meeting of the Canadian and Empire clubs that violent revolution has been a popular means of overthrowing tyrants and cited the French Revolution as an example.

Others, he said, are the great extremes of affluence and poverty, pollution, the risks of war, and morality.

The archbishop arrived in Toronto Friday for an eight-day visit. He was invited by Trinity College, the University of Toronto, to deliver the Larkin-Stuart memorial lectures Monday through Wednesday nights.

Friday, he will visit Ottawa to mark the 75th anniversary of that diocese. He will be the first Anglican archbishop to preach in the Roman Catholic basilica, He returns to London Oct. 22, from Montreal.

Ontario Tax Cut Proposal to Be Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial finance and treasury department officials are expected to meet this week to discuss implications of last week's mini-budget, presented in the Commons by Finance Minister E. J. Benson.

One of the subjects to be discussed will be ways in which federal-provincial tax collection agreements can be modified to permit a promised three-per-cent reduction in Ontario's income tax levy.

A federal finance department source said it was decided Monday that federal and provincial representatives should meet, probably to pave the way for a full-scale meeting of finance ministers and provincial treasurers next month.

Mr. Benson's budget statement Thursday announced a three-per-cent cut in basic federal income taxes, retroactive to July 1.

Newfoundland Voters Will Get Wide Choice

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Many of Newfoundland's 265,600 registered voters will have a wider choice of candidates for the Oct. 28 provincial election than in any election since Confederation with Canada in 1949.

A record 106 contestants were officially nominated Monday, including full slates of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives in each of the 40 single-member districts and in Harbour Main, which has two seats in the legislature.

The Conservatives under their new leader, Frank Moores, fielded a full complement of candidates for the first time as they aimed to unseat Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government, in power for 22 years.

The New Democratic Party, which has never elected a member in Newfoundland, has 17 candidates and the New Labrador party, created by former Liberal Tom Burgess, has candidates in the three districts that cover the province's 110,000-square-mile mainland territory.

There are three independent Liberals and one Independent.

There were no acclamations, unusual for this province, and three districts—Labrador West, St. John's Centre and White Bay South—have four candidates each.

Abortion Centres Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A Winnipeg doctor suggested Monday there should be special centres in Canada where a woman contemplating an abortion can be admitted in confidence for either counselling or medical treatment.

Dr. T. M. Roulston, head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Manitoba, said the centres could be set up in hospitals or as separate units and should be staffed by social workers, nurses and other medical specialists.

Addressing the Ontario Chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada, Dr. Roulston said that because society has apparently decided therapeutic abortion is here to stay it is necessary to look into the problems associated with it.

Feud Halted

ANKARA (AP) — The Queen's state visit to Turkey seems to have brought a temporary halt to political feuding among the country's leaders.

Premier Nihat Erim told reporters after the Queen arrived Monday that feuding factions had "frozen" the political crisis until she leaves Oct. 25.

After the British royal party leaves, he said, "either we will reach a compromise or I will resign."

Forgotten Corner

OTTAWA (CP) — It's sort of like the old game of button, button, who's got the button. But here, it's corner, corner, who's got the corner.

The downtown intersection of Elgin and Nepean streets might be in one provincial constituency, perhaps in another. Or a third.

A call to Conservative headquarters in Ottawa yields the information that the corner is in Carleton riding. A call to riding headquarters results in the answer that it's probably in Ottawa East.

The voice in the committee room in Ottawa East says the corner is in Ottawa Centre, and sure enough, Ottawa Centre claims it.

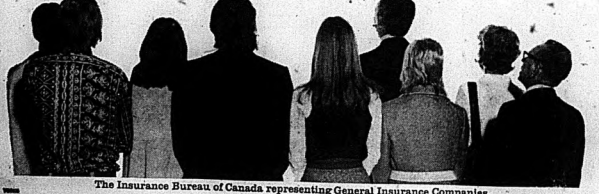
But somehow or other, the people on the corner didn't get enumerated.

What some Manitobans think about their brand of NDP government auto insurance. Does it really cost less?

WE DON'T THINK SO.

Facts show that thousands of motorists in Manitoba will end up paying more for their auto insurance under the NDP government plan which goes into effect on November 1st. The NDP party in Ontario are proposing a similar plan should they be elected. And, just like they did in Manitoba, they are promising premium reductions of up to 20%. That's a promise. Here are some facts. The Insurance Bureau of Canada, representing General Insurance Companies.

DENNIS RINGSTROM, LAWYER
"I have checked on the new rates and I find that my premium has increased by just over 18%, with the government plan. I also dislike having to deal with three people whereas before I only had to deal with one."



BOB SNOWBALL, POSTAL CLERK
"I own two cars and one trailer my rates with Autopac (Government Plan) are going to $264. for the year and with private insurance they were $236. which is a difference of $34 a year."

ROBIN McCOMB, UNIVERSITY STUDENT
"I will be paying $68 for my motorcycle insurance under the government plan, whereas last year I paid $28. So under Autopac I will be paying $68 for insurance on my motorcycle which is only worth $70."

RAY RITCHIE, HEAD ACCOUNTANT
"I have paid an increase in my premiums this year which was not supposed to happen under the Government plan, and also I can now only get $50 deductible and with private insurance I got $25 deductible."

EVELYN CROYDON, HOUSEWIFE
"I find I have to pay more, $19 more with less coverage, and I'm far from satisfied with what I get."

GUS BISCHOFF, CARPENTER
"Last year my insurance was $121 for $25 deductible. With the Government my insurance will be $132 for $50 deductible.

Oceans' Death Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Predicting the death of the world's oceans early in the next century, Jacques-Yves Cousteau called Monday for major nations to give one per cent of their combined military budgets for health-marine research.

Cousteau, 61, the world's foremost underwater explorer, said the destruction of the oceans from pollution and other causes is already 20 to 30 per cent total.

The complete cost of cleansing them would run from five to six per cent of the gross national product of all the world's developed nations with at least $50 billion coming from the United States alone, Cousteau said.

"The water must remain alive if we are to remain alive," he said.

'Jubilation' Carried Too Far

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The big World Series victory demonstration was a "jubilant celebration that got a little out of hand," the city's top police official says. The mayor calls it "an over-exuberant celebration."

—Hospital treatment for 128 persons.

—Arrests of 98 persons.

—Vandalizing of downtown shops.

—A fire engine stripped of equipment.

—A hotel forced to close temporarily.

—Tons of debris left in the streets.

Police Supt. Robert E. Colville called a news conference Monday to "set the record straight" about what happened. Mayor Peter Flaherty said "the national news media" blew things out of proportion.

Colville said stories about rapes and criminal assaults on downtown streets were fabricated by reporters. During the celebration Sunday night a police desk sergeant reported a dozen rapes.

Prisoner Sues Four

Knight, who was among a number of prisoners later transferred to Millhaven Correctional Institute, also named Paul Fagoy, commissioner of the federal penitentiary service, Arthur Jarvis, warden of Kingston Penitentiary and John Clark, Millhaven warden.

The statement of claim said those named "did knowingly authorize, assist and encourage . . . arbitrary, oppressive, high-handed and malicious assaults and batteries" against Knight.

Fischer Wins Sixth Game

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Bobby Fischer of the United States won the sixth game of his 12-game chess series with Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union Monday.

Fischer gained his victory after 56 moves and eight hours of play that saw Petrosian, former world's champion, put up tremendous resistance.

The victory gave Fischer a one-point lead in the series that will decide who will meet world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union next spring for the title.

Fischer now has 3½ points and Petrosian 2½ points. Three games ended in draws that gave each player a half point. A total of 6½ points is needed to win the match.

NEED AID TOO

TORONTO (CP) — Any change in government aid to separate schools will also include Jewish and Protestant parochial schools, Rabbi S. E. Rosenberg said. He added that he backs the provision announced by officials of the separate school system and expects provincial government consideration of 5,000 Jewish students attending day schools in Ontario.

A Man For Ontario

TEN REASONS WHY A VOTE FOR POTTER IS THE RIGHT VOTE

THE GLOBE AND MAIL:
". . . he is precisely the sort of man they ought to be listening to now . . . ."

THE OSHAWA TIMES:
"The good doctor's thinking will appeal to a lot of people."

DONALD NEWMAN, GLOBE MAGAZINE:
(On the role of backbenchers) "Few play a major role in shaping the course of events in Ontario. There are exceptions . . . Dr. Richard Thomas Potter, the member from Quinte has been the most notable . . . ."

THE OAKVILLE JOURNAL RECORD:
"What Dr. Potter is prescribing . . . is the politics of truth as against a lot of partisan fervor and political double talk."

GORD McNULTY, THE WINDSOR STAR
"A confident, hyper-active gentleman who calls the shots as he sees them . . . Potter is a man to be reckoned with."

THE KITCHENER-WATERLOO RECORD:
"This quixotic campaign (Dr. Potter's January, pre-convention Ontario tour) is entirely in keeping with Dr. Potter's legislative reputation as a severe critic of his own party . . . ."

THE TORONTO STAR:
"It might be very helpful if an equivalent to Dr. Potter should arise in the ranks of the Liberals and the NDP."

HAROLD GREER, THE BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR:
"He genuinely believes that public policy should be decided by the elected representatives of the people . . . ."

THE OTTAWA JOURNAL:
". . . the most significant appointment (to the cabinet) Davis made was that of Dr. Richard T. Potter from Quinte to minister without portfolio . . . ."

THE GLOBE AND MAIL:

Tax Cut $12 for $6,000 Income

OTTAWA (CP) — Last week's federal tax cut means a $12.13 tax saving this year for single taxpayers earning $6,000 a year or a married man earning $10,000 a year, with no children and no taxable income earned by his wife, the deduction is $22.18. For a married man with two children and an annual income of $12,000 a year, the cut is $29.40.

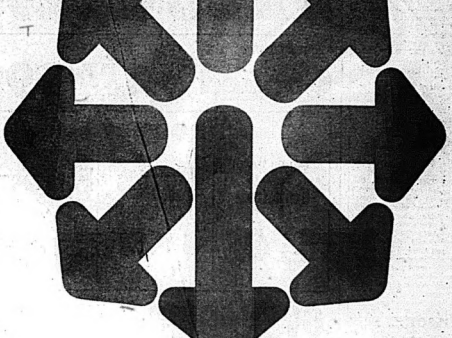
These figures were confirmed for the Canadian Press Monday by the finance department in the absence of new tax rate tables. The department said it does not intend at this stage to release sample tax levies by income classes as it usually does when a major change is made in tax rates.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson last Thursday announced a three-per-cent federal tax reduction. It applies from last July 1 to the so-called basic tax computed on personal income in accordance with existing graduated tax scales. It extends to Dec. 31, 1972. New tax tables will be issued for 1972.

A single taxpayer with no dependents and an income of $6,000 a year can claim standard exemptions of $1,100 and pay tax on $4,900. The basic tax on that amount of taxable income is $668.

The tax cut of $12.12 this year is three per cent of the $668 basic tax for half the year 1971.

However, this basic tax calculation does not take into account other taxes that must be paid. These are the four-per-cent old-age security tax up to a maximum of $240 a year and the two-per-cent social development tax up to a maximum of $120 a year.



A three-per-cent surtax on basic income tax in excess of $300 was lifted in Finance Minister Benson's June 18 budget, effective last July 1. To accomplish this mid-year tax cut, the surtax is simply levied at a rate of 1.5 per cent for the whole year.

The single $6,000-a-year taxpayer will therefore pay $1,068.88 in taxes for 1971, by provinces which levy no more provincial income tax than a standard 30-per-cent abatement allowed by Ottawa. Only Nova Scotia, Ontario and British Columbia now apply a 29-per-cent provincial tax. All other provinces charge higher rates, up to 38 per cent in New Brunswick and 39 per cent in Manitoba. Ontario will act

Premier William Davis of Ontario, campaigning for Thursday's provincial election, said last week he will cut the provincial tax take by three per cent if the manoeuvre can be worked out under federal-provincial tax collection arrangements.

Ottawa's tax cut is the last half of 1971 in an across-the-board slice off the basic tax. At the lowest end of the taxable income scale, it means a saving of 48 cents for the single person with no dependents and an income of $1,800 a year.

Enigma of New Youth Vote Intrigues Candidates

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Almost every election has its dark-horse element. And the direction it rides polling day is the spur of many a campaign.

Thursday's Ontario election is no different — although the unknown-quantity is not exactly a shadowy presence.

It's composed of the thousands and thousands of teenagers and people under 21 who are voting for the first time in an Ontario general election.

What primarily must concern the politicians — now in the homestretch of their campaigns — is how the young people vote. Thursday night may reveal the results in many a riding. Returns may also refute the image many a taxpayer has of all teenagers as capricious and in perpetual conflict with social establishments.

In Quinte constituency, both the numbers and politics of those who will vote are intangibles. But one thing seems certain, say a majority of spokesmen in touch with this newly-emerged political bloc: A goodly proportion of young people seem certain to respond to the appeal of a political system that once seemed only oriented to an older generation.

This sums up the reaction of high school Bellevillians who lead their student parliaments. It's also the response of some candidates.

"Lowering the voting age did arouse a sudden interest in government and kids are learning a lot within the last two months", says Dennis Quinte Secondary School parliament.

"I find most of them are Tuck, prime minister of about it", agreed one of the political campaigners.

In Quinte there likely will be about 10,000 voters after judicial revision of the voters' list, estimates returning officer Gerald Deacon. This is almost 10,000 new voters.

How many of these are the new majorities (the provincial percentage is estimated by one source around eight per cent) is hard to say, says the returning officer. When he queried his enumerators they seemed to think many of the additional votes came from new families in the constituency. Also the riding traditionally is believed to lose a certain percentage of its school graduates seeking work in more highly - industrialized centres.

Numbers aside there seems no doubt in the minds of most that those who vote are not taking the task lightly.

"I think all these young people that voting have given this pretty serious though," says Dr. Richard Potter, the incumbent Conservative candidate and, as a chairman of the provincial government's Inter - Department Committee on Youth.

"I think they've accepted the challenge to youth as being responsible people and they are seriously looking into it," agrees Alex Dodson, the high school teacher who is Dr. Potter's New Democratic Party challenger. "They're being responsible about it rather than being just blind about it."

His experience has been that such young voters also are breaking the tradition of following parental voting patterns. Even those who vote in the family tradition will do so from personal conviction.

And as of kids I've seen talk, to down here have been quite seriously going around and listening to each of the three candidates in our particular riding and asking questions and wanting answers. And, however they decide, it'll be based on their searching for what they feel is the right party for them — or the right candidate, or a combination of both."

Dr. Deacon believes the under-21s who vote will "definitely" be in the majority.

"I've met a very few — including in my own school — who have even indicated that they wouldn't vote. Inevitably, you get a few — including adults — who say the system is full of crap anyway so I'm not going to vote. But the majority of youth are both concerned and going to exercise their option . . . I believes Mr. Deacon.

Dr. Potter says his experience with younger people are divided into a small percentage of radicals "the disgainder are fairly evenly divided: Those who'll participate in public life and vote and those who want to keep their emphasis on their education.

"I think we will probably wind up with about 40 per cent of the youth voting," he says.

Liberal candidate Gerald Weaver expects the newly-franchised youth to make a big impact at the polls.

"I think there'll be a big turnout," he says.

It also will be a new kind of voter.

"Unswerving party loyalty — which he describes as "flurry! Hurry! What did he say?" — won't wash with the new generation of voting ideologies.

"They are thinking things through politically a lot more than a generation ago," believes Mr. Weaver.

Quinte Rundown: 18-year-old Moira Secondary School student Gerald Deacon thinks the age of majority should have been lowered 20 years ago — "I'm disgusted it didn't even. If we'd waited another five years it would have been too late." He doesn't believe there will be a 60-percent majority of the adult-19 voting.

Some don't understand the political system; others don't feel there is sufficient party political distinction.

Yet, the electorate will find a "fairly sizeable" bloc of young voters on Thursday.

"Some of the older generation fear that, because of the franchised electorate there's going to be a big upheaval within the political structure," he says. "Myself, I don't think I think it's not going to find the old standing parties still around."

He agrees a few of the new voters won't "deliberately" vote, but "because they don't really care. But, that's a very, very small number. A lot of people don't believe that the kids are responsible enough. But I have faith in them that they are," says Steven, who turned 18 just in time — in June.

Up at Centennial Secondary School, prime minister Dennis Fralick, 19 estimates there'll be a sizable turnout of the youth vote.

There likely will be a few who deliberately won't vote: "There's a few in the older class, and there's probably a few in the teenagers."

While political systems are part of school curricula, personal appearances by vote-hopeful politicans helped emphasize differing party attitudes within the system.

Lowering the age of majority was not just a political gimmick, but showed politicians are now seriously interested in young people, he agreed.

. . . Most of them I feel are taking a rather mature attitude toward it (the election)", says student prime Minister Randy Rostite, of his friends at Belleville Collegiate.

Some younger people have not realized the full responsibility that goes with lowering the age of majority. But to most it means more than just being able to order a beer.

"But I think most of the kids will vote and most of them will do responsibly", says Randy, who also just turned 18 a couple of months ago.

Agrees QSS's Dennis Tuck: "Oh, yes. I think quite a few of them are going to vote."

"Quite a bit of interest" was shown the political candidates when they came calling on the students.

"Now that the age has been lowered, the group between 18 and 30 sort of makes an interest that would otherwise have been left stagnant until they were 21 or so. . . . Kids are really learning a lot. With-in the past two months or so I've learned quite a bit about it."

It was "about time" to lower the age of majority because "kids around 18 or 19 do have a certain amount of responsibility nowadays. . . . I do feel we have a responsibility to make decisions like that."

Customary political attitudes also are being changed through younger people.

It seems that the past active response to government comes from "age 18 maybe up to 25. After that there is a fair bit of apathy toward it because people are forming their homes, and working for a living and having a go young to support themselves."

"I think the tradition of voting will be eliminated. It will come into (a matter of) a more individual decision . . . because younger people actually are seriously thinking about what is going on, whereas the people who are working for a living feel they don't have time to worry about it, let the politicians worry about it."

However, there are some younger people who've told him they've mulled over a voting choice but fought none of them good enough" so won't vote — a situation which if carried to its ultimate conclusion results only in "complete anarchy".

"They won't vote — and they won't do anything about it either. So you sort of feel sorry for those people," says Deacon.

No Shadowy Element

Ontario youth are an unknown quantity but no shadowy element in Thursday's election. But how they'll vote in the majority is not known but in Quinte riding they're expected to make their presence felt with a good turnout at the polls since being granted majority at 18 years this year.

400 Liberals Attend Social Night for Munro

For at least Ian Munro, Liberal candidate for Hastings, the night life examples for the upcoming provincial election ended last night in the Club Cedars with a social night.

Little time was devoted during the evening to speech making, but when the time came for Mr. Munro to say a few words, "we were surprised to see the change in format that he used for his approach," said party spokesmen.

"Mr. Munro is fired up over what he reads to be the lack of concern of the Conservative party in Hastings-Frontenac," said another campaign spokesman.

In the past few weeks of campaigning Mr. Munro has been using this fact as a weapon against the Tories and particularly Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings.

In past speeches made by the Hastings Grit, Mr. Rollins had been referred to as a Little Hoffa and a bully who had people of the riding "running scared the YMCA's a number of favors he has delivered".

"As I have said before, it is not just a fight with a man nor a party, but with Queen's Park and the machinery of the government," said Mr. Munro. "There is at least one man I would like to get rid of."

Robert Nixon, Liberal leader, expected to be attending the social night, called earlier yesterday afternoon to say that a rally in Toronto made it impossible for him to attend. He passed along the information that five ministers took time in Hastings Riding and looked forward to having Ian on the Nixon bandwagon."

During the speech given by Mr. Munro he apologized for saying that the opposition supporters were afraid to come out of the woodwork.

Mr. Munro said and on numerous occasions "Liberals have a touchy life up here (in Hastings) when it comes around to election time. Through the number of favors done by Mr. Rollins, most are afraid to be openly Liberal."

Mr. Munro said at the close of the address night, he gathered in the Club Cedars, "It is time we got our faces out of the muddy pit the PC party has created and we'd better bring our neighbors out of it as well. I need your help."

Booze, Yes Beer, No Thursday

There should be no shortage of liquid refreshments for post-election celebrations Thursday night.

Traditionally, election days in Canada have been dry, with all liquor outlets closed for the day.

But this year things will be different.

All liquor stores will be open for an hour after the polls close at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Hotel beverage rooms, bars and licensed clubs will open at 8 p.m., as usual.

But beer drinkers who fail to get their supply in by Wednesday night will be out of luck.

Brewers' Retail stores will be closed all day Thursday.

Salvation Army Plans Big Belleville Weekend

The Salvation Army has organized a big weekend in Belleville this week — with its Canadian commander as the chief guest and a full-stage musical as the centrepiece.

Scene of the events will be Centennial Secondary School where the army will stage a congress for Salvationists across East-central Ontario.

Heading the congress will be Commissioner Clarence D. Wiseman, first Canadian to hold the post of commander of the Army in Canada and Bermuda.

Following World War II, in which he directed Salvation Army welfare services on various fighting fronts, the commissioner served in Canada, Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. For five years he was principal of the Army's International Training College in London, England.

Mr. Wiseman is director of Salvation Army Women's Services in Canada and has served as vice - president of the Canadian Inter-Church Council.

The stage musical being presented Saturday is Hosea, first presented in London, England in 1969. It made its Toronto debut last May with its Salvationist performers playing to capacity audiences. Since then it has been engaging to enthusiastic audiences in both Waterloo and Montreal and been transformed into a stereo recording.

Tickets are available by phoning 968-7294 or 968-6834.

Peace Park Attracts More

The Lester B. Pearson Peace Park on Highway 7 west of Actinolite was twice as popular this year from the tourist point of view.

Roy Cadwell, chairman of the Peace Park, says that nearly twice as many tourists signed their book at the park as in former years and, in view of the fact that fewer tourists passed through the area, feels this indicates the interest in the park as a tourist attraction.

The Peace Park with its pagoda type structure atop a roadside promontrew between Actinolite and Madoc is open daily from June 1 to October 1. No admission is charged.

Each year the committee administering the park holds a work bee to help maintain and improve the park. This year's appeal raised $718.

Plans are now under way for a children's picnic park north of the site of the Mother's Shrine, which was dedicated this year.

Park Said 'Adequate'

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's board of parks management said it sees "no reason" in statements made by west end parents that Hanna Park is unsafe for children.

Criticism that the park is used by undesirables and hippies was voiced at the Ontario Municipal Board hearing on the Klemencic highrise this summer. The argument was voiced by objectors to the building proposal who argued that the highrise would burden an already unsatisfactory parks system.

In a report to council, the board states it has received no complaints from parents of children using Hanna Park.

It is the opinion of the board that the present facilities are more than adequate to cover the proposed plan," the report continues.

Council had asked the parks board to prepare a report on the condition of parks in west Trenton as part of a case it is preparing to have the OMB reconsider the highrise question.

The ministry of transport is preparing a detailed traffic study of the Dundas Street-Front Road-Fraser estate where the building is to be located, Flaws were found in earlier traffic counts presented as evidence at the OMB hearing.

Public works commissioner Eric Hoornweg told council last night he has received no word as when this study may be finished but expects it will take several weeks.

Seepage Protested

TRENTON (Staff)—A West Street storekeeper said in a letter read to council last night raw sewage seeps in and floods the basement of his shop following heavy storms here.

Audrie Bellamy explained that at times sewage has climbed to the level of the sink in the basement of Bellamy's Carload Food Store at 127 West Street.

He said the kitchen is used to prepare meals and he does not feel the situation is sanitary.

Council will investigate the case.

Church to Mark Its Anniversary

The Tabernacle United Church in Belleville will add an ecumenical touch to its anniversary celebrations this year.

Rev. Gerald Ireland took the pulpit of the congregation, the guest speaker for the morning service will be Rev. Canon J. J. Sullivan of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel.

For the evening service at 7:30 p.m., the Belleville Choristers will present a special evening of worship and song. The choir will sing the 45 to 50 members and is directed by Murray Irwin and accompanied by S. Alec Gordon.

Tabernacle services are vague, but the Tabernacle congregation was part of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the denomination that founded Belleville Seminary, now Albert College.

The present church building was completed in 1877 at a cost of $20,000. During recent years it has undergone renovation and repair program that has brought the building into an excellent state of beauty.

Candidates' Calendar — One More Day to Go

Candidates for the provincial riding of Quinte will be touring the Belleville and Trenton districts at the following times and places:

DR. R. T. POTTER, Progressive Conservative MPP for Quinte, will be touring Provincial Secretary for Justice Dr. Stephenson's Dundas Street starting at 11:30 a.m., he will meet with residents of Trent Valley Village, Frankford and Tweed, he will be electioneering in Bellville.

ALAN DEACON, NDP candidate, spends much of his time with Quinte Secondary School teaching duties but he will continue with his program of door-to-door canvassing this afternoon.

On Wednesday, Mr. Deacon will work on this same basis in Trenton's Poll 87.

Bond plant in Belleville from 12:30 p.m. today, after which he is scheduled to arrive at CFB Trenton for a 2.15 p.m. coffee party at Middleton Park.

At 3.15 p.m., he will meet workers at the Fabricon Plant in Trenton. Mr. Weaver will be dining with the Belleville Sales and Ad Club at the Royal Canadian Legion Club on Pinnacle Street.

Thursday, starting at 11:30 a.m., he will meet with residents of Trent Valley Village, Peck the rest of Wednesday, he will be electioneering in Belleville.

ALAN DEACON, NDP candidate, spends much of his time with Quinte Secondary School teaching duties but he will continue with his program of door-to-door canvassing this afternoon.

On Wednesday, Mr. Deacon will work on this same basis in Trenton's Poll 87.

Hallowe'en Candies Good Source of Funds

Competition has been hot and heavy in the Hallowe'en candy business this year with at least four local organizations vying for rights to the kiddies' palates.

As usual, the Kinsmen Club of Belleville managed the biggest drive. Thirty members combed the city for three nights last week selling $1 packages of bubble gum in an effort to raise money for a new filtration system which the club hopes to install in the swimming pool on Dundas St. East.

Also on the market, however, were delectables from the OGIT group in Bayridge junior United Church, Prince Charles Public School and the Edith Cavell School of Nursing.

The CGIT girls confined themselves to the East Hill on the first Saturday of October and produced $50 to help support their organization. Now in their sixth year of selling hallowe'en goodies, the fare this year was penny candies and chocolate squares.

More than 140 grade five and six youngsters took part in Prince Charles' program to raise money for special projects. They confined themselves largely to an area near the school but by concentrating on friends, relatives and neighbors, were able to generate a profit of about $300.

The effort is part of a continuing drive by the school to provide funds for extra - curricular activities for the students. An example was the two Royal Ethiopian lions which were brought in from Ganaraska game farm between Peterborough last week. The cost was $138 but children will be able to see members of one of the world's rarest species of animals.

The school also devotes the funds to bus trips. Last year's destination was a play at the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto. A project this year will be a trip to the waterfront in behalf on Zwick's Island in December.

The nursing school, now in its second year, is raising money toward publication of its yearbook, the Halo. The 100 girls in the school sold 125 dozen bags of toffee to their families and friends as well as to residents in the hospital area.

They were out on three weeks, accumulating $500 of the $2,000 that will be needed for the yearbook. A fashion show early next year is expected to raise the rest of the funds.

The Kinsmen need approximately $15,000 to replace the filtration system in their 24-year-old pool near Ann St. The present system would be adequate if spare parts were available but it has become dated and parts are scarce.

Kinsmen club president Bill MacLeod estimates that more than 25,000 persons of all ages have learned to swim in the pool since it opened in 1947. Working with the recreation and welfare committees, the club gives instruction lessons to 400 beginners each summer and with a constantly growing waiting membership, the pool is rarely empty during the summer months. Repairs in the past have been on the order of $1,200 per year.

The Kinsmen also expect to raise funds through their weekly bingo sessions. The Grey Cup and Stanley Cup draws and a new lottery which carries close to $250,000 in prizes.

YMCA Regional Convention Here

Between 160 and 200 persons will gather at the Four Seasons Motor Hotel this Friday and Saturday for the annual regional convention of senior service club officials and members.

Representatives from 28 clubs in Eastern Ontario and Quebec will attend the three-day meeting which gets under way Friday afternoon.

Well known speaker Joe Connell of Kitchener-Waterloo the club's executive secretary, will be a featured guest. Also expected to speak is Del Kinney, an associate professor of sociology at George Williams University in New York State.

Punts Tell Ticat Tale

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Joe Zuger has had his problems leaving the Hamilton Tiger-Cat offence against opposing Canadian Football League teams this season, and it's showing in his punting statistics.

Zuger has had to kick the ball away 136 times in 12 games this year, a record second only in the league to Billy-Van Burkleo of Calgary Stampeders, who has punted 133 times in 13 games.

But Zuger is the leader among regular punt men in the league with a 43.8 average, and if he can maintain that pace, he'll set another season record.

Zuger set the previous boot season punting average of 42.4 in 1966 and managed a 42.2 average in 1969. Before that, Dave Mann's 43.5 average with Toronto Argonauts in 1961 was the top mark.

In total yards gained by punting, Zuger already has passed his previous total of 6,249 in 1968 with 6,360 this season, but he's still a long way behind the record of 7,222 yards punted by former Hamilton kicker Cam Fraser in 1957.

Among punters, however, Zuger ranks only third in the Eastern Conference behind Sonny Wade of Montreal Alouettes and leader Joe Theismann of Toronto Argonauts.

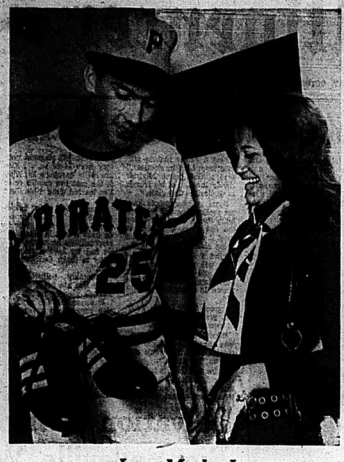
Theismann has gained 2,062 yards on 135 passes completed, Wade 1,964 yards on 137 completions and Zuger 1,467 yards on 118 throws.

The CFL weekly statistics show Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers still leading the Western Conference passers with 3,865 yards gained on 239 completions, followed by Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders, 2,228 yards from Keeling, 1,572 yards on 130.

The WFC now has two ball carriers in the 1,000-yard club —George Reed of Saskatchewan and Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions.

Evenson gained 1,158 yards in 227 carries and Reed 1,072 in 199 runs.

This is the seventh season Reed has gained 1,000 or more yards rushing and brings his career total to 10,800 yards, just 29 short of league record set by Johnny Bright in 13 seasons with Calgary and Edmonton Eskimos.



Toronto's Leo McQuay still holds the EFC rushing lead with 969 yards despite having missed three games with a knee injury, returning last Sunday as a flanker instead of a running back.

McQuay could still reach the 1,000-yard club in Argos' remaining game if coach Leo Cahill allows him to return to the backfield.

Dennis Duncan of Ottawa Rough Riders, with two games remaining, is well back of McQuay with 727 yards in 142 carries.

Jonas of the Blue Bombers appears to have the Western Conference and league scoring championships clinched with a 32-point lead over Saskatchewan's Jack Abendschan.

Just Made It

Bruce Kison, star 21-year-old relief pitcher for Pittsburgh Pirates, is shown with bride-to-be Anna Mae Oriando, 19, prior to Sunday's final World Series game won by the Pirates 2-1. Less than four hours after Pittsburgh beat Baltimore Orioles, Kison and his bride were married in Pittsburgh, thanks to a special helicopter flight arranged by a Pirates' broadcaster.

Baseball Briefs

Murtaugh May Quit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Will Danny Murtaugh return as manager of baseball's world champion Pittsburgh Pirates next year? "I'll decide in the next month or so if I'll return," the 56-year-old manager had said during the World Series. Murtaugh, looking pale and tired after the final game Sunday when the Pirates defeated Baltimore Orioles 2-1, says a decision would be made only because of his health. Murtaugh resigned four years after the Pirates won the world championship in 1960 because of a heart ailment. But he has returned twice since —in 1967, only for one year because of a second heart attack, and last year when he led the Pirates to a division championship. "Even if I don't return," Murtaugh said, "I won't say it will be permanent, like I did the last two times."

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Williams of Oakland Athletics, fired two years ago by Boston Red Sox, was named Monday as The Associated Press' Manager of the Year in the American League Williams, 42, who in his first year as manager of the Athletics guided them to a runaway 16-game margin in the American League West Division with a 101-60 record, received 107 votes in nationwide balloting by sports writers and sportscasters. Bob Lemon of Kansas City Royals finished second with 66 votes with Earl Weaver of Baltimore Orioles third with 59. It was the third straight year Weaver, whose Orioles have won three consecutive AL pennants, failed to win the award. Ted Williams of Washington won in 1969 and Ralph Houk of New York Yankees won it last year.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Maybe next year we ought to have Bat Day at the World Series," one pundit remarked last weekend as he viewed the row of empty seats in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium during the final two games of baseball's autumn showcase. "If we gave away free hats or helmets, maybe we could fill the joint." Although the seven-game Series between the world champion Baltimore Orioles and Pittsburgh Pirates provided one of the most dramatic climaxes in sports history, the finishing games Saturday and Sunday proved disappointments at the gate. On Saturday, with Pittsburgh leading the Series three games to two, only 44,174 turned out at Memorial Stadium, leaving 7,963 seats unoccupied. On Sunday, after a nerve jabbing triumph by the Orioles in the sixth game that tied the series at 3-3, a crowd of 47,291 showed up for the big showdown that ended in a 2-1 victory for the Pirates. Earl Weaver, manager of the Orioles, was surprised at the empty seats but had his own private explanation. "They were afraid we were going to lose," he said. "Even my neighbors stayed home. Nobody likes to pay $10 to attend a funeral."

Harris Can Go Two Ways

MONTREAL (CP) — For the third consecutive season, linebacker Wayne Harris of Calgary Stampeders, was announced Monday as one of the nine candidates for most valuable player in the Canadian Football League.

Three players from each CFL team are nominated by sports-writers and sportscasters from across Canada in three categories—most outstanding player, Canadian player of the year and most valuable lineman.

Harris, a perennial all-star, has been lineman of the year three times in the last six seasons. He is one of three linemen nominated this season as the league's most valuable player.

No lineman has ever received the award, won last season by Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Harris was also nominated as his team's representative for the most valuable lineman.

Mark Kosmos of Montreal Alouettes and Marshall Shirk of Ottawa Rough Riders were also voted to represent their teams in the top lineman and most valuable player categories.

Dupuis was named to represent the Eskimos in the most valuable player and Canadian player of the year while Danychuk was named in the top lineman and player of the year categories.

Second - round balloting will reduce the nominees to six, three from the west and three from the east. Results of the voting will be announced Nov. 2.

The six finalists will be in Vancouver during Grey Cup week and the final selections will be announced Nov. 23.

Following is the complete list of nominees:

Canadian player of the year —Jim Young, B.C.; Dick Dupuis, Edmonton; Wayne Shaw, Calgary; Bob Larose, Winnipeg; Mike Eben, Toronto; Bill Danychuk, Hamilton; Wayne Giardino, Ottawa; Terry Evanshen, Montreal.

Dawson Tosses Appear Healthy

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Len Dawson of Kansas City Chiefs should have a sore arm more often.

The 36-year-old Chiefs' quarterback claimed all last week he had a sore elbow. Then he went out Monday and bombed Pittsburgh Steelers 38-16 in their American Football Conference game.

Dawson had bountiful help from receiver Otis Taylor and the Chiefs' vaunted defence which ignited Kansas City's sagging offence by setting up two touchdowns and scoring another on Emmitt Thomas' 32-yard pass interception return in the closing moments.

One of Dawson's bombs was an 82-yarder during Kansas in the second period. It didn't score, but set up a 27-yard touchdown pass to Taylor that just about put the game out of reach of the young Steelers. Roy Gerela's three field goals.

Dawson also hurled touchdown passes of 27 yards to Taylor and five yards to rookie scored the fourth touchdown on a one-yard run.

After that the Chiefs never were able to do much against the young Steelers, except for an 11-yard field goal on the first play of the final quarter by Jan Stenerud, who converted after all five touchdowns and Thomas' theft.

The Steelers didn't score again until the fourth quarter, when John Fuqua bolted over from the one-yard line, ending a 17-yard drive that took five plays.

Jim Harrison Settles Down as Maple Leafs' New Number 7

Gone are the flashy sports car and the paunch, thickened by soft drinks and rich food.

Now it's a house and maturity and a self-imposed restriction on food.

"I knew my job was in jeopardy," said the Bonnyville, Alta., native. "I didn't really expect to be with the Leafs this season because I heard during the summer that I was involved in a lot of trade talk."

"In training camp (this season) I was up to 205 some days and other days I'd drop right down to 190. Then at training camp they told me that they were unhappy with my lack of stamina.

"They sent me for a complete series of tests and found there was nothing wrong with me and more or less told me to try losing some weight. Now I'm 187 before a practice and it really makes a difference."

There were two other reasons behind Harrison's motivation. One was the recent birth of his son, Justin; the other was the acquisition of scouter No. 7, once worn by former Leaf great Max Bentley.

"Actually them calling me Max is kind of a joke. The reason is my stickhandling. Like, it was so brutal, and Max Bentley's was so good, that they started calling me Max. I needed a single number to be identified by so as to kind of carry the Max thing further."

Harrison's second goal of the year came last Sunday when the Leafs tied the Bruins at Boston, his play in that contest served him the praise of Leaf coach John McLellan.

"Harrison has really impressed me with his work," McLellan said. "He's settled down and has that certain poise. I think he's one player who has been helped by scoring."

"He's got a man, size and he realizes that with the responsibilities it means a lot to do well."

Junior Waits Day in Court

QUEBEC (CP) — The trial of hockey player Mike Bloom of St. Catharines Black Hawks, charged with striking a policeman after a game last spring, was postponed Monday to Oct. Bloom, who was charged after a playoff game against Quebec Remparts in the eastern Canada junior title May 8, was scheduled to appear in Sessions The court appearance was postponed because the defence had not received a copy of the judgment of Superior Court Justice Frederic Dorion, who was asked by Guy Bertrand, Bloom's lawyer, to refer the case to a higher court.

Mr. Bertrand asked Mr. Justice Dorion last week to issue a writ of certiorari agai at Sessions Court Judge Yvon Sirois, contending the judge exceeded his authority in the case.

The lawyer had asked Judge Sirois last June to drop the charges against Bloom because the summons issued against him was in French and lacked details, but the judge refused the request and ordered the translation of the summons.

Judge Dorion rejected Mr. Bertrand's contention, and said judge Sirois did not exceed his authority and acted wisely.

Mr. Bertrand said he will probably appeal the judgment, if his client agreed to continue.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of the accused, but it will not take effect until the end of the month.

Hutchins Man of Hour

BRANTFORD (CP) — Bob Hutchins scored two goals, including the tie-breaker, to lead Detroit Junior Red Wings to a 6-4 win Monday over Brantford Majors in a Southern ONTARIO Hockey Association Junior A game.

The victory moved Detroit into a tie for firstplace with St. Thomas Elgins.

Hutchins scored the winning goal at 17:35 of the final period when he poked the puck in from a wild scramble in front of the Brantford net. Dobek scored the insurance goal at 19:23 of the period into an open net.

Long Time Between Ranger Scoring Titles

MONTREAL (CP) — Right winger Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers, off to the fastest start of his 10-season career, has picked up 11 points in his club's first five games to lead the National Hockey League scoring race today.

Gilbert's performance marked the first time in nine seasons a New York player has led the scoring parade. His 11-point output includes a league-leading eight assists.

Andy Bathgate, former Ranger right winger, was the last Ranger to lead the scoring list —on Jan 17, 1963—but he finished second to Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings that season.

In fact, the Rangers have not had an Art Ross Trophy winner yet, and the last New York player to win the scoring title was Bryan Hextall Jr. in 1941-42. The Art Ross Trophy, awarded annually to the NHL's top points finisher, was presentde to the league to honor the scoring champion for the first time in 1947-48.

Among the eight points Gilbert picked up last week in three games were his 300th regular-season assis and 500th point. Gilbert urrently holds a three-point lead over defending champion Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

All three players have seven points, and Sheehan and teammate Norm Ferguson each scored three goals in one game last week.

New York, which won the Vezina Trophy last season when netminders Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure wound up with the best goals-against average for the first time in 31 Ranger seasons, is the highest scoring team so far this season with 32 goals.

ROD GILBERT

Half of the New York goals have been scored by the Gilbert, Hadfield and Ratelle line, which has 25 points.

Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens and Sheehan share the lead in goals with five each. They are small men by NHL standards, bothpossessing five feet, seven inches.

Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks, Vezina Trophy winner two seasons ago, is all alone in the goaltending department. He has allowed only five goals in the same number of games and recorded a pair of shutouts in the process for a 1.00 goals-against average.

Only one game was scheduled for tonight when Vancouver Canucks travelled to St. Louis for a game against the Blues.

Says Stop Draft Trades

MONTREAL (CP) — Brian O'Neill, executive director of the National Hockey League, said Monday that the problem of parity between expansion teams and established teams in the league can only be solved by the NHL governors.

"Two essential steps must be taken to reach our goal of parity," O'Neill said in a speech to Executive Secretaries Council of The Canadian Real Estate Association.

"The are the elimination of the exchange of draft choices and the reductions in the number of players protected in the intra-league draft which is the draft in which clubs can strengthen their own rosters by claiming players from the rosters of their partners.

"It is not an easy thing to convince clubs that they should take these steps and some of them can support their positions by pointing to the investment they have put into their farm systems."

Day Jumps Judges

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — An angry Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., put the Canadian equestrian team in first place at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show Monday night, but complained that a judge's ruling cost Canada four points.

Day and team-mate Barbara Simpson of Calgary scored perfect rides in identical times of 49 seconds over the initial 11 jumps. However, an international equestrian board of judges ruled there should be a jumpoff

"There should have been no jumpoff," Day exclaimed at first. "They should have declared it a tie and given each of us 10 points.

As it was, Day and Miss Simpson flipped a coin by prior arrangement. Day won the toss and got 10 points, while Miss Simpson, who withdrew from the jumpoff, took second place and six points.

In last Saturday night's opening round, a tie resulted for the first place and each rider got 10 points. This involved a tie between Moffat Dunlap of Toronto and Joseph Fargis of Vienna, Va.

"It was the luck of the draw that I went last in the first round Monday night," said Day, who was a member of the 1968 Olympic gold-medal-winning jumping team.

"That way I knew what Barbie had and what I had to beat. I wasn't necessarily trying to beat her, but I wanted to make sure I got no worse than second."

Day, a 25-year-old car salesman, had made a faultless ride with the eight-year-old Chestnut gelding Scorpio in what became his one-man jumpoff.

Neal Shapiro, of Glen Head, N.Y., also turned in a faultless ride in the opening round but required 53.1 seconds to do it. He finished third aboard Silver Sox while Dunlap was in fourth, riding Intrepid.

Argentina's Argentino Molinerve was fifth on quanta Blance and Ian Millar of Alymer, Que., was sixth on War Machine.

Canada took over the team lead from the United Stated, 38 points to 34, Argentina, the only other team in the international jumping, has yet to score a point. Dunlap and Fargis are tied for the individual lead with 10 points each and Day is third with 10

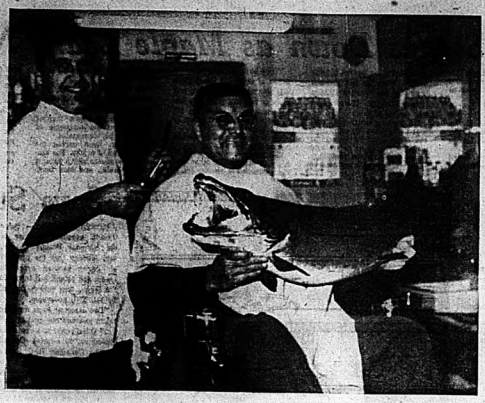
Muskie Angler Batting Two-for-Three

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

There's fisherman's luck, and well, there's fisherman's LUCK. Jim Stalker phrases it slightly differently. "There's good luck and then there's bad luck," notes the Belleville bitcher.

Certainly Stalker isn't about to complain about his fishing fortunes since joining up with Garnet Lewis. In one of their first excursions he boated a 30-pound muskellunge, only the second of the elusive game fish that he'd managed to land in his years of fishing.



Despite his success it's unlikely that Stalker or any other veteran lunge fisherman who ever wet a line could help but be a little awestruck at the partner's trout record. This weekend, only the third time they'd had a fished for the species, Lewis hooked and landed a muskie, fishing Jim under 30 pounds with a surface lure. That means that in only three attempts the Shannonville angler had bested best over 60 pounds of fighting fish.

"It was one of those three-footnide fish," said Ontario at his prize catch, explaining that three minutes was the approximate amount of time it had taken to land both his and Stalker's trophies. The pair came close to losing the latest lunker when it attempted to flop over the side of the boat before being dispatched with a hammer.

A third member of the latest fishing party was 5½ year old Bobby Stalker, who weighs in at 45-pounds, not much in excess of the fish that Lewis managed to land.

The fish was hoisted in the same area as their first trophy catch, somewhere in the Moira River, but like most of their fishing counterparts the pair aren't about to reveal the exact location. Figured at about 20-years of age, Lewis' muskie proved to be somewhat the worse for wear with a healed wound, possibly from a spear in one side and a hole in the upper jaw where it had been hooked by a previous angler.

The only slightly sour note for Lewis in the whole experience might be that it will be pretty hard to improve on his .666 lunge fishing average.

If you didn't shop Dominion last week you probably paid too much.

If you select your supermarket on the basis of the items and prices they advertise each week, you may be lulled into believing you're getting the most for your food dollar. On your total order. But, it is obvious that you select, by far the biggest part of your weekly order from the thousands of non-advertised items. Right?

Think about it. Have you been paying more than you should for the non-advertised items you buy regularly at some other store? A good question. And until now, maybe hard for you to answer. What with all the supermarket claims. Confusing statements. And no real way to find out for yourself.

Now, we're going to make it easier for you. Easier to compare prices on hundreds and hundreds of items you need and buy regularly. Items which are rarely advertised by most supermarkets.

So, if you are not now a Dominion shopper. And if you think you're getting a square deal on your "total" food order, at some other supermarket we say: If you didn't shop Dominion last week you probably paid too much.

Nixon Asks Gordon To Head Review Board

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Monday night that he has asked former federal finance minister Walter Gordon to head his proposed foreign investment review board if his party forms the Ontario government after Thursday's election.

Simonette One Target

Nixon Promises He Will Fire 'Political Hacks'

LONDON O.nt. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon vowed Monday to fire "political hacks" who work for the civil service in redundant jobs if he comes to power in Thursday's provincial election.

He told a news conference the cleanup would affect those appointed to the government's various boards and commissions for political rewards and not on merit.

Many of these appointments were created to give these persons a comfortable, redundant jobs, he said. He gave no figures on the number of such jobs, but emphasized there would be no mass firings among the province's 60,000 civil servants.

Under the Liberals, the size of the civil service would remain basically the same, he said.

Mr. Nixon also said many of those performing duties that would no longer be necessary under a more efficient Liberal administration would be fitted elsewhere in the government service.

"I commit myself here and now to recognizing the independence and high qualities of those in the civil service."

The only threat he was issuing for outright dismissal was to strictly political appointees who "are going to have to go back and work for a living."

Mr. Nixon said the policy is aimed specifically at people like Allister Johnston and John Simonett who were appointed to the top posts in the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission.

Mr. Johnston, 62, has represented Parry Sound for 23 years and was named chairman of the ONTC in 1964. Mr. Simonette, 60, gave up the public works portfolio last year to become ONTC vice-chairman. He has represented Frontenac-Addington for 12 years.

Mr. Nixon's other major reform in administration, stressed several times in the campaign, would be to reduce the cabinet to 15 from 24 members.

However, Mr. Nixon announced for the first time that the parliamentary secretary, selected from among government backbenchers, would be paid more than the $34,000 stipend earned by cabinet ministers.

He said the extra stipend might amount to $2,000 a year.

Answering other questions, he agreed that the election of a minority government was a possibility, but cautioned that this should not be regarded with dismay.

"As a politician I would enjoy a minority position in the legislature," he said, reminding reporters that Ontario has had a majority government rule for the last 28 years.

Earlier at a news conference in Hamilton, Mr. Nixon said Premier William Davis' decision to create a cabinet policy group was a recognition that the Liberal policy of small cabinets was the right one.

However, he said, Mr. Davis was only concentrating government power "in the hands of six of his close friends."

Mr. Nixon also made a brief stop at Windsor where he told a news conference that United States economic policies have forced Canda to cut the apron strings with the U.S.

He said there was a special advantage to this development because Canadians now will have to make their own decisions on whether they will choose continentalism or a Canadian-first policy.

At a Toronto rally Monday night, Mr. Nixon said that Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, may have been right, for once, in stating that foreign control of the economy is the major issue of the Ontario election campaign.

In a speech to more than 1,500 supporters, Mr. Nixon blasted the Conservative government for not even knowing how much foreign investment there is in the province.

Mr. Nixon said that although the NDP apparently recognizes the seriousness of the problem, it is "hopelessly and publicly divided on this issue."

NDP Repeats Call for Report

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, challenged the federal government for the second consecutive night Monday to release the Gray report on foreign ownership in Canada and outlined three recommendations he predicted would be in the report.

"If the Gray report were made public there would be at least three recommendations of intense public interest," he told a capacity crowd of close to 1,300 at the Cleary Auditorium.

He said the report will recommend:

—A screening process which would block direct investment not in accordance with Canadian industrial priorities or when Canada had its own capacities.

—Mandatory Canadian shareholding of 50 to 51 per cent in all firms of "economic significance."

—The blocking of foreign investment wherever its impact does not transmit net economic benefits to Canada.

The Gray report, named for Herbert Gray, federal minister of revenue and member for Windsor West, went to the cabinet in May and has not been made public.

Mr. Lewis said earlier in the day in an interview that he has not seen a copy of the Gray report, nor have his researchers at Queen's Park. He said he did not know whether federal NDP researchers had seen the report.

In his speech Monday night he gave as the sources of his information and figures, NDP researchers who had consulted "groups, department offices and libraries in Ottawa."

In Windsor, he said he had "every reason to believe that if the contents of the Gray report were made public" a breakdown on non-resident control of the manufacturing sector in Canada would show that non-Canadians control up to 99.4 per cent of some sectors of Canadian industry.

Davis Says Opponents Lacking in Leadership

HAMILTON (CP) — Premier William Davis renewed his attacks on the leaders of the opposition parties Monday and said there is a dearth of leadership from Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

He said of the NDP: "They don't offer the economic opportunities and the kind of leadership this province can accept." He was speaking at a rally in Dundas Park before a crowd of 400, some carrying NDP signs and most under the voting age of 18.

Mr. Davis told the NDP supporters they probably did not know whether they were part of the Waffle or non-Waffle wing of the party.

"You probably don't know because you don't recognize your own party's suggestions in economic terms."

He said the NDP also did not offer the economic opportunities or opportunities for individual expression which the voters of the province could accept.

Mr. Davis accused Liberal Leader Robert Nixon of acting "in a spirit of desperation" during the last few days.

He said the Liberal party is in trouble, in part because it couldn't develop any consistency of policy.

He said the party is "compromising basic principles to try and satisfy everybody."

Referring to the Spadina Expressway issue, Mr. Davis said the York-Forest Hill Liberal candidate, Phil Givens, who has been promised the urban affairs cabinet post by Mr. Nixon, has been quoted as saying: "Leaders come and leaders go."

Mr. Davis told the crowd: "That's the kind of unity they have in that party.

Mr. Davis denied doublished reports that he is spending $2 million to $6 million on his campaign.

He said that it was less than $5 million but didn't know what the exact amount was.

Mr. Davis campaigns today in Parry Sound, Bracebridge, Orillia, Lindsay and Richmond Hill.

Good Fortune Predicted

HAMILTON (CP) — Premier William Davis had his palm read Monday and the palm reader had good news for the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Davis was mainstreeting in downtown Hamilton when Bashir Khar, a student at the University of Waterloo, offered to read his palm.

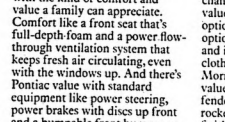
Mr. Khar, a native Pakistani, said he had studied palm reading at the University of Karachi.

He looked at the premier's pam and said that he had a "66 to 70 per cent chance" of getting a majority in Thursday's provincial election.

Mr. Davis just chuckled.

FAVOR ABORTION

Forty-six per cent of all West Germans over the age of 16 believe abortion should be legalized, says a survey published in Bonn.



Comment Declined

However, the premier promised a statement on the situation later today.

Mr. Kosygin visits Toronto later this week, but Mr. Davis declined comment on the Toronto situation until he has a briefing from his aides.

Four different sizes of Pontiac for four different kinds of drivers. One should be just what you've been looking for.

Take the full-size Pontiacs. They're big, for people who like or need a big car. They're loaded with the kind of comfort and value a family can appreciate. Comfort like a front seat that's full-depth foam and a power flow-through ventilation system that keeps fresh air circulating, even with the windows up. And there's Pontiac value with standard equipment like power steering, power brakes with discs up front and a bumpable front bumper on all models. Order a V8 and the automatic transmission's standard, too. From the smart Laurentian to the plush Grand Ville, you've got seven full-size series to choose from.

Looking for Pontiac value at a trim-size price? Then take a look at the 1972 trim-size Pontiacs. There's a brand new Luxury LeMans series. It's built to give you all the luxury you want without having to buy more car than you need. There are eight trim-size Pontiacs, including two station wagons. And there's a new trim-priced GTO option.

Next up, the Pontiac for the young man or woman who's just getting off to a great start. It's called Ventura II. And it's a pocket-size Pontiac with a pocket-size price. But it doesn't short change you on the things you value. There's a choice of Six or optional V8 power, a manual or optional automatic transmission and interiors of Morrokide-and-cloth or you can order all-Morrokide. And there's Pontiac value with features like inner-fender construction, flush-and-dry rocker panels and Magic Mirror finish that will help keep your Ventura II looking new for a long, long time.

But no Pontiac story would be complete without giving Firebird its fair share of the laurels. It's the sports car for people who like traveling first class. There are four Firebirds, including the exciting Trans Am.

And there's a personal luxury Pontiac, too. It's called Grand Prix. Once you've seen and driven it you'll know where the Grand came from.

So no matter what your taste, or what your kind of driving calls for, size-up the 72s at your Pontiac dealer's.

Isn't this what you've been looking for?

Firebird Esprit, Ventura II Coupe,
Luxury LeMans Hardtop Coupe, Laurentian Hardtop Coupe.

Some of the equipment illustrated or described is optional at extra cost.

Clean, bracing, fresh air...how precious it is. And so worth preserving for us all. That's the way the people at General Motors feel and have felt for a long time. Over the years, General Motors has been searching for new means to make cars and factories run cleaner. And progress is being made. In the past decade, GM has reduced by at least 80% the amount of unburned hydrocarbons emitted by a car's engine. And has cut the amount of carbon monoxide by nearly two-thirds. Both amounts compared to cars without pollution controls. That's a lot of progress. But we can't leave it entirely to the engineers and scientists. You, too, can help by keeping your car's engine properly tuned and regularly serviced. After all, we are working towards the same goal. Clean, pollution-free air. And we will achieve it. GM's 1972 cars and trucks are on the right road.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

B O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Western oils suffered sharp declines, as prices in all sectors of the Toronto stock market moved lower for the second consecutive session in slow mid-morning trading today.

The western oil index was off 1.06 to 214.46, industrials .53 to 152.83, golds .017 to 146.54 and base metals .15 to 73.14.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 356,000 shares, compared with 322,000 at the same time Monday.

Declines outnumbered advances 112 to 60, with 176 issues unchanged. Eleven of the industrial index's 17 sub-groups moved lower.

Pacific Pete dropped ¼ to $3¼, Gulf Oil ¼ to $25¾, Bell ¼ to $43½, Bank of Montreal ¼ to $15¾ and Sherritt ½ to $31¾.

Ranger was off ⅛ to $11¼, Seagrams ¼ to $53⅜, Canadian Breweries ¼ to $6⅝, Consumers' Gas ¼ to $19¾ and Montreal Trust ¼ to $15¾.

Falconbridge was up ⅛ to $19¼, Lake Dufault ¼ to $11¼, Steinberg's A ⅛ to $18¾, Du Pont ⅛ to $71¼, Koffler ¼ to $14¼ and Supertest ordinary 1 to $52.

The market was the slowest in 15 months Monday.

Auto Insurance Reform Promised By Beazer

PICTON (Staff) — If the New Democratic Party forms the government following the Oct. 21 provincial election, auto insurance reforms will be one of the first items on the major policies.

Bryan Beazer, NDP candidate for the Prince Edward-Lennox riding last week told a meeting in Picton that the Ontario Municipal Board is blocked, and has been for years by one third.

He said there would be a 15 to 20 per cent reduction for the average person under a universal no-fault auto insurance plan.

Health care, another major concern of the NDP party would be improved through combination of medical and hospital premiums and a single premium costing $10 a month per family.

Single persons would be required to pay $5, monthly premiums.

The NDP health program would be put through a six per cent provincial income tax increase and a 2 per cent corporation tax.

The NDP candidate called property tax a regressive policy indicative of the individual's wealth in the days of Upper Canada Village.

The question of guaranteed annual income was discussed by Mr. Beazer who said an NDP government would strive to abolish the concept of welfare. Persons receiving a guaranteed annual income would receive a minimum wage of $1.50 an hour.

Jobs will be created by the NDP party and the economy doubts expressed by some that a guaranteed annual income would discourage people from working. Mr. Beazer predicted probably more jobs would be created under his party's plan, than ever before in Canada's history.

Invitation Extended

OTTAWA — At a reception held Friday evening by the Province of Nova Scotia at the National Arts Centre, to open the English theatre season, Fred Charles, president of the Quinte Arts Council handed over an invitation from Mayor Russell Scott to the Neptune Theatre company to visit Belleville. Robert Sherrin, artistic director of the company accepted the invitation on behalf of Neptune Theatre.

The company, which is one of the leading professional drama groups, includes members of Stratford, Shaw and Charlottetown festivals, such as Tony Van Bridge and Douglas Chamberlain. It will present The Servant of Two Masters at Centennial Secondary School on November 2 and 3. The show will start at 8.30 p.m. on both days.

The play is described as a rollicking comedy for students and adults and will also be presented in a matinee show for students at Centennial Secondary on November 3. The matinee, however, is for students only.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes
This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids
One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for sufferer suffering the day and especially aggravating at night.
If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.
In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these same cases, a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions were eased of long standing.
This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a well-renowned research institution. The substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Communications Chief Roasts TV Industry

CHICAGO (AP) — Federal Communications Commissioner Nicholas Johnson says commercial television in the United States is a "$ billion attention-getting device" with little concern for the quality of its programming.

The commissioner said Monday that members of the television industry "have a shock in store" when they discover the "depth of hostility" of the American public toward what is presented on television.

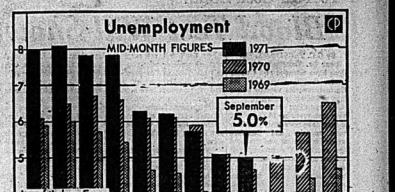
Citizens are responding to "many corporate uses of our society" and television is no exception, he said.

"This industry is going to be shaken to its foundations unless there is some kind of response from the business and if the industry" to public concern over the quality of television programming and commercials, Johnson said

"The television industry is not even concerned about programming," he said.



"It is not in the business of selling programs to viewers; it is in the business of selling viewers to advertisers."

The commissioner said his criticisms were not aimed at everyone within the television industry. "There are at least some talented and frustrated souls in television who have glimpsed the medium's potential — and responsibility — and are desperately trying to improve its response."

Rejecting television industry profits by eliminating commercials from children's programs might be one way of getting the attention of television businessmen, Johnson said.

"The networks can afford a cut in revenues—as can a great many other industries," he said. Television business men "are not investing as much revenue in quality programming as they could—or should."

Johnson added: "Perhaps, rather than encouraging commercial broadcasting to do more and better children's programming, we ought to recognize the inherent conflict between merchandising and children's entertainment and forbid the networks to do any children's programming."

Unemployment Down

Statistics Canada reported Thursday, Oct. 14, that the number of jobless declined to an estimated 434,000 in September from 455,000 in August. The number of unemployed last month was five per cent of the labor force of 8.62 million, down from 5.1 per cent in August. However, on seasonally adjusted basis, unemployment rate shot up to 7.1 per cent, the highest since 1961.

Entertainment Roundup

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Singer Tony Bennett has been socked for $82,500 a year alimony.

A divorce settlement reached Monday in Superior Court also gave Bennett's wife Patricia, 29, the couple's $150,000 home in Englewood and custody of their two sons, Dandrea, 17, and Daniel, 16.

Mrs. Bennett had charged Bennett with desertion and adultery. Judge August Heckman set aside the adultery charge.

The Bennetts were married Feb. 12, 1952.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Loretta Lynn was named in a $5 million lawsuit filed Monday charging she has breached a 10-year contract.

Lawyer Charles M. Warfield filed the suit on behalf of the Wil-Helm Agency.

The suit charges that Miss Lynn has broken a contract signed in 1966, which provides that the agency receive 15 per cent of her gross earnings.

Judge Neil Lentz ordered the singer to appear Oct. 29 to show cause why the contract should not be kept.

One attraction is an offer by three movie theatres here advertised on a recent every Monday after 5 p.m. to those identifying themselves as "football widows."

George Watson, local representative of a theatre chain making the same offer throughout Texas, said it will last for the entire football season.

Madoc Well Said Safe

MADOC (Special) — This village's newly dug well, contaminated by gasoline from service stations, will be rehabilitated.

Council decided to continue using the well and to attempt to clean up the gasoline leaks after meeting with representatives of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the consulting engineer.

M J. Wade, the engineer, said the water was tested before use, when it was certified as good quality. Later, when the well was put to use as a source of water for the village a gasoline taste appeared.

Roy MacArthur of O W R C told of finding gasoline leaks at various service stations in the village that results in a low concentration of gasoline in the water. The concentration is so low it does not show up in tests.

The O W R C said gasoline in water is not a hazard to human health, as contaminated water becomes esthetically objectionable at a concentration far below the chronic toxicity level. There is no danger of lead poisoning from gasoline water.

Although other locations for well drilling have been studied council decided to continue to try to clear up the contamination in the new well before proceeding with new drillings.

Price Index Down

The consumer price index went down last month to 134.7 from 135.0 in August, mainly reflecting lower food prices, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday, Oct. 13. The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, was 130.2 in September last year.

Audience-builder New TV Gimmick

NEW YORK (AP) — There may be a remarkable lack of originality in this season's television fare, but there certain is plenty of effort to build audiences by patching shows together in off-beat ways.

The most popular method now is to start a story on one series and finish it on another. Inside has worked on a number that was cleaned up on Sarge which followed immediately. Adam 12 is up in the same trick in league with The D.A. Tonight Marcus Welby, M.D. will accept a case that will wind up in the offices of Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law Thursday night.

Two-part — even three-part programs proliferate. The F.B.I. is in the middle of a two-parter, and lots more series have one or two on the fire.

This sort of cliff-hanging is supposed to get the viewer so interested in the plot on one series that he tunes in the other to catch the denouement, thus becoming a regular viewer of the second series as well.

However, TV executives forget that some viewers are not caught up with the problems of Dr. Welby's patient become annoyed when they must tune in again Thursday to get the full story. He bowls Thursday and she visits her mother. The result is that both viewers may take their business to another doctor show.

Meanwhile, with CBS's prime time schedule continuing to lead comfortably in the average popularity ratings, the Nielsens for the week of Oct. 4 show the usual programs still out front. ABC's Marcus Welby M.D. was first again, followed by ABC's Movie of the Week; NBC's Flip Wilson Show was third, followed by CBS's All in the Family and NBC's Mystery movie, one of the Peter Falk episodes and the only new entry on top.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Dodge, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Taylor for the past two months, left last week for Naples, Italy, where they will spend the next three years. Prior to coming to Madoc, Mr. and Mrs. Dodge lived for two years in Japan.

Blood Test Will Show If Child Is Immune to German Measles

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My children have allergies and I would prefer that they not have the German measles vaccine unless it is absolutely necessary.

My question: Isn't there a skin test available to determine if they have previously had German measles and therefore would be immune and not need the vaccine? I've brought this subject up to both a pediatrician and an allergist, but haven't been satisfied with their answers.

The children were allergic to eggs at one time but now can eat them.—Mrs. J.W.H.

You don't tell me what the answers were or why you weren't satisfied, so I'm somewhat in the dark. But perhaps you'll find your answers here anyway.

I can, of course, understand your concern. Information distributed with vials of the rubella (German measles) vaccine lists precautions that should be observed.

Rubella vaccines are cultured usually in duck or chicken media, so the vaccine should not be given to individuals sensitive to duck, chicken, or the eggs of these fowl.

Since your children were sensitive to eggs but can now tolerate them, a skin test with egg albumen would be in order, as I discuss that with the allergist. It may be that they have developed sufficient tolerance so they could safely have the vaccine.

The source of the culture—duck or chicken—is specified on the literature with each vial. Sensitivity to the antibiotic neomycin also is mentioned.

As to testing to see whether a person already has immunity, in which case vaccination is not needed, there is no skin test—but there is a blood test, called the HI (hemagglutination inhibition), that will provide the answer.

It is important to have the children vaccinated if possible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is white petroleum jelly safe to use as a relief of hemorrhoids?—L.A.

It's safe enough, as far as that goes—but it won't do anything to correct the problem or to keep it from getting worse. Anyone than you can help varicose veins by rubbing petroleum jelly on them.

Do you understand what hemorrhoids are? They are a form of varicose veins, but in a specific location.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our 18-year-old daughter has severe claustrophobia of the spine. Her right shoulder blade protrudes to a very noticeable degree and her right breast is depressed.

What can be done for her back and breast, and who would be the best person to contact? Fortunately we have money and time available regardless of amount and duration.—L.D.H.

I can't evaluate the situation without knowing a lot more about it—but at 18 your daughter should get treatment with all possible speed. As the days pass, such conditions usually become more difficult to manage.

Go to your regular physician and ask him to refer you to an orthopedist, or can examine your daughter, and tell you what can be done, and possibly what degree of success is expected.

Proctor House May Be Restored

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Demolition of a landmark house here has been deferred for three months while a group of local volunteers prepares a restoration program.

The decision to keep the Proctor house standing until at least March 1, 1972 was made at an executive meeting of the Lower Trent Conservation Authority held in Brighton Friday night.

The old homestead on a 75-acre site at the north end of the village had been donated to the authority and has been selected as the location for new LTRCA offices. However, controversy has grown over whether to restore the Proctor house for the purpose or build a new structure on the site.

Although the house itself was temporarily saved Friday from demolition, use of the Brighton land holding as a site for offices moved into jeopardy yesterday with the authority resolving to reevaluate a site selection committee to suggest alternative headquarters locations.

One of the issues troubling the conservation body is that the provincial grants will be readily available for construction of a modern new office block but not for restoration of the Proctor home. The authority does not want to lose this assistance.

With the possibility that this financial concern may result in the building being razed and a modern structure being built over its foundations, save - the - house advocates moved into action here. A six-member steering committee of the citizens' group was formed Thursday to prepare a study.

"The immediate concern," says committee member Mrs. John Pope, "is that the house will not be demolished until we try our best to develop a program for having it saved." The committee comprises representatives of Brighton town and township councils, the local Lions Club and three other concerned Brightonians.

The LTRCA resolved earlier in the year that if the authority rejected the old home for its offices, new ones would be built where the Proctor house stands. It is situated on the crest of a hill with a commanding view of Brighton Bay and Lake Ontario.

In its appeal to the authority last night, the citizens' commuite suggested that both a restored Proctor house and a new office block elsewhere on the land parcel is an appropriate solution.

Although not rejecting this, the committee is not enthusiastic about the idea and still prefers the either - or program of restoring or replacing the house, if the Proctor property is to be used at all.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♥	1♠	Pass
2♣	Pass	3♠	Pass
4NT	Pass	5♦	Pass

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

Let's say you're in six clubs and West, who overcalled with a heart, leads the queen of that suit. Certainly the prospects of making the slam look good, but when you win the heart with the ace, cash the A-K of clubs, and play the K-A of spades, West unexpectedly shows out.

This is a bitter blow, for had the spades been divided 3-3 you would have made all he tricks, while if they had been divided 4-2 you would have made any of twelve tricks by ruffing one of dummy's spades.

But West having shown up with only one spade, you must try to overcome this development. You can exert a great deal of pressure on him by playing all your trumps and forcing him to make a crucial discard on the last one.

In line with this, you cash the queen of spades and a six, discarding a heart. You lead three more rounds of trumps to produce this position:

	North
	♠ K5
	♦ 64

West		East
♥ J10		Immaterial
♦ AQ
	♣ 7
	South
	♠ 7
	♥ K8

Now you lead the deuce of clubs, and West, who cannot spare a heart, must part with the queen of diamonds.

The nine of hearts having served its purpose, you discard it from dummy. Then you play the five of diamonds, which West is forced to win with the ace, and the effect of having applied this re-morseless pressure upon West is that you make the slam.

Tomorrow: Trump management.

Debate Single Clause A Day

Meetings of party House leaders aimed at finding some way of allocating debating time so that the bill would not be bogged for months were started before the weekend. Its provisions are supposed to be in effect Jan. 1.

But no progress was apparent, and a source said that no arrangement could be reached because of the absence Monday of Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial critic.

Although the bill is supposed to be at the detailed clause-by-clause stage of discussion, debate ranged widely Monday because that opening clause has 257 parts.

The opposition h'a m m e r e d once again at the way the bill would treat family farmers, co-operatives, the wage-earner, the small businessman—all topics of discussion since the legislation was unveiled last June 30.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Pat Mahoney (L—Calgary South), his parliamentary secretary, sat throughout the debate without offering anything more than the occasional interjection or jibe.

The bill would raise basic personal tax exemptions: to $1,500 a year from $1,000 for single persons and to $2,850 from $2,000 for a married couple.

But it also would classify as income—and tax for the first time—such things as unemployment insurance benefits and company contributions to health plans on behalf of employees.

It also introduces a tax on capital gains.

Separate Trials Are Sought

KINGSTON (CP) — Judgment was reserved Monday n motions from three defence lawyers to have separate trials for their clients charged with non-capital murder in the deaths of two prisoners last April in the riot at Kingston penitentiary.

Mr. Justice William Henderson of the Supreme Court of Ontario reserved judgment until Oct. 25 on the motions presented to the court on behalf of convicts Harold St. Armour, 39, James Oag, 24, and Brian Dodge, 27.

The three are charged jointly with 10 other prisoners in the deaths of Brian Enson, 26, and Bertrand Robert, 34.

The defence lawyer making the motions were Elmer Sopha, Robert Armstrong and Clayton Ruby

The three argued that evidence given at a joint trial could prejudice the case against their clients.

Selection of a jury and the start of the trial is scheduled for next Monday after Mr. Justice Henderson rules on the three motions.

Chief Back In House

OTTAWA (CP) — Six weeks after being stricken with a serious ulcer attack, John Diefenbaker returned to the Commons Monday and the warm welcome "almost made me choke."

The 76-year-old former prime minister looked, as Speaker Lucien Lamoureux put it, dangerously well. MPs from all sides of the house flocked to his desk to welcome Mr. Diefenbaker back. And when the Speaker noted his return, there was desk-thumping applause.

Prime Minis' " " shook hands with the old warrior and said he hoped Mr. Diefenbaker w a s returning full of charity.

"Faith, hope and charity," replied the Prince Albert MP, quoting the Bible. "But the greatest of these is charity."

"Nothing can take the place of the feeling you get in the House of Commons. It's the greatest reward of the House of Commons to be considered a House of Commons man."

U.S. Economic Policy Assailed by Kosygin

Vatican Group Hits U. S. Move

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Vatican commission attacked the U.S. government today for its recent unilateral changes in the monetary system and voiced support for those who refuse to fight for the United States in Vietnam.

The Pontifical Commission on Justice and Peace, in a document submitted to the World Synod of Roman Catholic Bishops, urged the synod to deplore recent "monetary decisions taken by some rich countries to bear arms."

Although neither clause mentioned the United States by name, its intent was clear.

The message also condemned colonialism and neo-colonialism, racial discrimination, particularly in South Africa, and increasing armaments and nationalism.

The outline of recommended policy positions was submitted to the assembly of 209 bishops as they took up the second major topic in their month-long meeting, social justice.

During the first two weeks of the synod the bishops discussed problems of the priesthood, recording massive opposition to the ordination of married men but strong support for acceptance of priests who marry as laymen in good standing.

Kissinger In Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — U.S. special envoy Henry Kissinger arrived in Peking today for a secret, directed visit to fix a date for President Nixon's own journey to China.

Chinese authorities have thrown a complete wall of silence around the Kissinger mission, which will make "concrete arrangements" for the U.S. president's talks with China's leadership.

Nixon has said he plans to visit Peking before next May, which involves the well-being and the development of two billion persons" in poor countries.

The 64-point message also called on the synod to support those who "refuse to participate in certain wars or certain acts of war, such as the bombardment of civil populations." It called for "understanding" for those who, in the name of their faith or their conscience, refuse "Yugoslavia, China now Russia! So what's wrong with Yellow Horse Falls?"

Congress Speeds Job On Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is speeding consideration of President Nixon's Phase Two economic measure, but is under pressure to get some limit on future authority to freeze wages and prices.

Nixon sent his proposal to the Capitol Tuesday, including an extension of control powers until April 30, 1973, legislative underpinning for the proposed pay board and price commission, standby authority to control interest and dividends and a temporary special court of appeals.

Chairman Wright Patman said his House of Representatives banking committee will open hearings Thursday and will want to explore carefully some of the proposals. One question, he said, is whether Congress will grant a full year's extension of control powers, or set a time limit that would permit earlier review.

Brandt Wins Peace Prize

The 57-year-old Socialist head of the Bonn government receives the equivalent of 188,000 from funds endowed by Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite. The peace prize is awarded annually by the Norwegian parliament.

'Stable Footing' Key to Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has firmly denounced the special United States economic measures and blamed the Vietnam war for creating the conditions which brought them about.

It was one of the heaviest broadsides ever aimed at the policies of a third country by a head-of-government or head-of-state visiting Canada.

Mr. Kosygin, now on an eight-day Canadian tour, discussed the American 10-per-cent import surtax and U.S. pressures for expanding Canadian Soviet co-operation.

Economic, scientific and technical exchanges can be developed between Canada and the Soviet Union "with regard for the international division of labor and the position which both countries occupy correspondingly in world systems," Mr. Kosygin said.

"At the same time, both the Soviet Union and Canada, like any other nation engaged in international trade, are naturally concerned that this trade should be on a stable footing and that it should expand as the economies of the countries involved grow.

"This means of course that it must be based on a stable system of foreign exchange rates, on a system which does not compel some countries to pay for it by slowing down their economic development, by curtailing their commercial operations, by increasing unemployment on account of the economic miscalculations of others.

"This is all the more unacceptable when these miscalculations are not due to chance circumstances, but are in fact rendered inevitable by the pursuit of policies connected with tension and conflict in various parts of the world.

"Those who pursue such policies still maintain that an end to the arms race and limitation of military expenditures will create even greater difficulties for the economies of the Western countries.

"But to accept this argument is to accept the fatal inevitability of unceasing growth of military expenditure and arms production in the world and, hence, the constantly growing danger of war."

The times of colonial usurpations are past, he said, adding a tribute to what he called the heroic epic of the Vietnamese people and "the struggle for freedom and independence waged by patriots of other countries of Indochina."

He also commended the struggle of Arab peoples "for the liberation of Arab territories occupied by Israel."

Danes Plan Surcharge On Imports

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Most of the Danish press reacted critically today to the government's plan to impose a 10-per-cent import surcharge to protect the country's staggering economy and right its balance-of-payments deficit.

Only Aktuelt, the sole newspaper loyal to the minority Social Democratic government of Premier Jens Otto Krag, seemed to expect positive results.

The government proposed the surcharge Tuesday in parliament, but opposition parties joined forces and put off two other required readings until today to give the Danish people time to be informed of the measure.

The surcharge would affect all goods except raw materials needed by Danish industry and minor food imports. It is to remain in effect until April 1972, gradually being reduced to four per cent as the terminal date approaches.

The conservative Berlingske Tidende conceded the surcharge will help reduce the balance-of-payments deficit, but warned the measure might weaken Danish industry by handicapping competing foreign companies.

Politiken said it was "a bad idea to try to save the Danish economy by protecting our industries against foreign competition."

Like other papers, Politiken warned the surcharge would lead to higher costs of living and stimulate inflation.

Making New Friends

It's hard to tell who's enjoying this meeting more — the visitors or the host. The children are kindergarten pupils at Prince Charles Public School and the contented-looking donkey is Cissero, a full-time resident of the Quinte Humane Society. Superintendent Harry Brown is encouraging student visits to the animal shelter as a means of teaching humane education to persons of all ages.

Maoists Are Noisy But Jews Orderly

OTTAWA (CP) — As the RCMP decoyed yelling Maoists at the main entrance Tuesday night, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was whisked into the National Arts Centre through a subterranean entrance a block away.

This is the way it's going to be until the 67-year-old visitor leaves for Moscow Oct. 25 after an eight-day, five-city Canadian tour that has turned into a test of security strength.

The Kosygin motorcade now moves swiftly to pick up the premier and rooms away silently. Motorcycles that surveillance his movements to protesters are used discreetly.

A Jewish demonstration was organized in Strathcona Park, near the Soviet Embassy in the city's east end. More than 110 buses from Montreal, Toronto and other points brought demonstrators to the scene.

Police ringed the block containing the embassy, but as promised, the protestors make no move toward it.

Instead they marched in a line nine blocks long through the downtown part of the city, along a route that never took them closer than five blocks to the Rideau Club, where Mr. Kosygin was eating.

In contrast, a small group of noisy Maoists at the arts centre chanted "Death to the new Tsars" and "Down with the Canadian compradores." There, however, were unable to say what a compradore is and another volunteered the definition: "Sell-out."

Inside, Mr. Kosygin received his warmest welcome of the visit from an audience of about 2,000 for a gala performance by the two-year-old centre's celebrated orchestra.

World-wide Slump Grows

NEW YORK (AP) — A world-wide recession, spreading and getting worse, is stremtmering the United States' bargaining position on foreign trade. From West Germany to Tokyo, jobless rolls are growing, national production is off and stock markets are falling.

CBC to Cover Kosygin Parley

TORONTO (CP) — CBC radio and television will provide live coverage of a news conference at 4 p.m. today with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin at the Government Conference Centre in Ottawa.

The coverage will be transmitted by satellite to Eastern Europe, Networks in the United States will also pick up the CBC signal.

Chairman of the news conference will be Pierre O'Neil of Montreal La Presse, president of the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Fifteen Die in Fire at Nursing Home

HONESDALE, Pa. (AP) — Fifteen elderly persons, many of them bedridden, died in a smoky fire that swept through a private nursing home near this tiny northeastern Pennsylvania community.

Most of the victims, trapped in their rooms on either side of a corridor, died Tuesday night of smoke inhalation, Robert Jennings, Wayne County coroner, said. Those closest to the fire's origin appeared to have died of burns, he added.

Only a licensed practical nurse, on duty alone at the time, escaped the blaze as it filled the residential wing of the Geiger Nursing Home with thick smoke.

It was the worst nursing-home fire in North America since 17 persons died at the Foyer Ste. Bernadette home in Pointe-aux-Trembles, Que., Nov. 5, 1918.

Jennings said the fire was believed to have started shortly before 8 p.m. in a laundry room at the rear of the residential wing of the L-shaped, one-storey frame structure.

The fire was discovered by the nurse, Vitaline Lyon, 41.

She was taken to hospital suffering from burns. Her condition was listed as satisfactory.

The owners, Harvey and Joyce Geiger, were not when the fire began. They had operated the home, a converted 13-room wood-frame farm house, for 15 years and were licensed to house 18 patients.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Apart from some shallow fog patches at a few localities near the lower lakes regions, skies were mainly clear over most of southern and central Ontario this morning. In the North a disturbance moving across the upper Great Lakes is giving considerable cloudiness and some light rain or drizzle into the region north of Lake Superior. Some clearing will take place in Northern Ontario by this afternoon as the system moves to the east. The prospects for Thursday are for mainly sunny skies throughout the province.

Unemployment Grips Pakistan

KARACHI (AP) — The Pakistani army has clamped a lid on a boiling unemployment problem in West Pakistan that threatens to explode and affect its fight to keep a grip on rebellious East Pakistan.

Because guerrilla war in the East has strangled the economy there, trade unions in the West say 75 government and private enterprises here and in Hyderabad, 90 miles northeast, have fired or laid off nearly 10,000 workers, mostly since August.

23 Outdoor Rinks Planned This Year

The Belleville Recreation and Arena Facilities Committee is to operate a total of 23 outdoor skating rinks this coming winter.

This is the number approved by committee members at their monthly meeting yesterday, although actual operation of the various rinks is still subject to approval by private or public school property owners.

Nearly one-half of the rink sites will be lighted for night-time activities.

And with the co-operation of the former Oddfellows Lodge, which has its clubrooms at the former Vogden Mills location, the new rink location could prove popular.

Recreation director Lorne Williams told committee members that there had been many requests for an outdoor rink in the area. The Oddfellows had offered to allow part of their building for a change room.

Proposed locations for outdoor rinks this winter are Avondale School, Ben Bleeckner Auditorium, Firemen's Park, Haig Road, Harbor, Hillcrest, Haig Road School Site, Harry J. Clarke school, Park Dale Park, Park Dale School, Prince of Wales School; Queen Elizabeth School; Queen Victoria School; Sir Winston Churchill School; Sanctuary Development; Trenton Street; West Park Village; Bayview Park and Quinte Skating and Tennis Club.

Enjoying the Fruits of Homecoming

William J. Mayne is back in the Quinte district after nearly three-quarters of a century, and restfully tackles an Ontario apple. After most of a lifetime in western Canada, they're still his favorite fruit and sister, Mrs. Percy (Lena) Akey had plenty of them on hand for their reunion at Per Cannifton home.

Pilgrimage Pays Off In Ripe Ontario Apples

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

CANNIFTON — William J. Mayne hasn't been back home from out west for 71 years.

Since then there have been more changes than leaves on trees — some good, some maybe not so good.

But one thing remains unchanged for Mr. Mayne: Ontario apples. And after nearly three-quarters of a century they still taste as good as ever.

Now visiting Ontario for the first time since he entrained for the west as a teenager, the 89-year-old still has an undiminished zest for apples grown in Ontario — not easily found in Alberta.

"Ontario apples have altogether a different flavor," agrees his wife Anna, who is with him on his one - week visit to his sister—Mrs. Percy (Lena) Akey here.

William went west from Actinolite (then Bridgewater) with his maternal grandparents. Actually, the whole Mayne family, including nine children, were supposed to go he recalls. But when they arrived at the station in Tweed, the Mayne grandparents met them and pleaded for a change of mind. William remained aboard the westbound, went to Alberta and tried his hands at several jobs — including driving and well-drilling.

In Leduc, some years later, he met and married his wife. She was the first baby born in the Leduc settlement — years later to be the scene of a dramatic oil strike.

Now retired, the Maynes live summers on their farm near Lethbridge, and plan to winter in Victoria where the climate is milder.

Their decision to take a quick flight to Ontario this summer drew excited response from Mrs. Akey.

"Well, you know," he explains, "the time goes by.

"I wanted to come before, but I kept putting it off and putting it off."

The landscape of Ontario — and the Quinte district — has changed mightily since he left it almost a youngster, he admits, although he hardly singles out any one big transformation.

For one thing, he has few memories to use as comparison.

One thing he has noticed — there are fewer apple trees around than when he was a young man.

"I miss the orchards now," he says. "They seem to be all disappearing."

However, there are still enough of them around to satisfy his appetite for Ontario apples, says William as he eyes another ripe, red McIntosh.

Obituaries and Funerals

ROGER GERALD SINE
Foxboro

Roger Gerald Sine, RR1, Foxboro, died in Kingston General Hospital Thursday, Oct. 14, as a result of an automobile accident three weeks before. He was 20.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sine who reside in Foxboro, he was born in Belleville and had attended Foxboro Public School and Centennial Secondary School.

His sister, Mrs. Ronald (Kathy) Reid, RR2, Stirling, survives him. He also leaves his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carman Frost and Mrs. Alfred Westlake, all of Frankford.

A member of Emmanuel United Church in Foxboro, he was past president of the HI-C group there.

The funeral was held Saturday from Jones-Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, with Rev. Abel Parsons of Emmanuel Church officiating. Interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

Senior Citizens To Picnic Here

Belleville will be the host city next year for the district senior citizens' picnic tentatively scheduled to be held at Zwick's Island.

The city Recreation and Arena Committee yesterday approved of the annual picnic being held here although attendance of the parks board for use of Zwick's Island still has to be given. Ben Bleeckner Auditorium will be reserved in case of rainout at the island.

In past years, the senior citizens picnic, sponsored by the East Central Recreation Directors' Association, has been held at Cobourg with an attendance of approximately 800.

In the future, however, the picnic site will be rotated to provide more community involvement and a greater variety for the participants.

Also at yesterday's meeting members gave their approval to proposed plans for the establishment of an elderly persons centre in Belleville.

Under the provisions of the Elderly Persons Centres Act, passed in 1966, the province will give financial assistance for capital, operation, construction and program costs of an authorized centre.

Only capital grant for accommodation is also available.

A draft bylaw prepared by the Department of Social and Family Services to establish a centre in Belleville, was tabled at yesterday's meeting and will now go on to city council for approval, before being returned to Toronto for departmental approval.

Recreation Director Lorne Williams told yesterday's meeting that Belleville senior citizens were badly in need of proper accommodation for get-togethers.

He said the present accommodation on Pinnacle Street was "bulging at the seams" with up to 50 persons attending twice-a-month meetings.

Dr. Potter Hopes Not Enough Yet

TRENTON (Staff) — In a brief address to the Consumility Gardens here last night, minister without portfolio Dr. R. T. Potter commented on the current province - wide advertising campaign of the Liberal Party.

The Quinte riding candidate told the rally organized by the Trenton Conservative Association Liberals are using an interesting catch - phrase as the theme of their political advertisements.

"They are asking the people if they have had enough," he said, adding "I hope they have not had enough because they are going to be here and want to do for this riding".

The get - together was an essentially social event affording Trentonians an opportunity to spend an evening with the candidate and his wife, Enid. For the Potters, like many of the other couples in attendance, it was an opportunity to hit the dance floor.

As a prelude to the rally, the Trenton Citizens' Band led a parade of antique cars and floats through the town from the market square to the gardens.

Candidates' Calendar

CANDIDATES ma indent en

Candidates for the provincial riding of Quinte will not be continuing with their extensive campaign programs as election day draws closer, but will be present at the following times and places:

DR. R. T. POTTER, Progressive Conservative MPP for Quinte, will meet with campaign executives today, after which he will visit fulltime Trenton industries and continue with his mainstreet election campaign.

On Thursday, Dr. Potter won't be electioneering, but will be present at polls in Quinte Riding.

Liberal Candidate GERALD WEAVER will go from his meeting with residents at Trent Valley Lodge in the morning, to Belleville electioneering.

On Thursday, Mr. Weaver will continue his meet-the-people program at polls throughout Quinte Riding.

ALAN DEACON, NDP candidate, will be speaking to students at Trenton High School at 3.30 p.m. after which he will continue his door-to-door electioneering program in east Belleville and in the Park Lake area.

On Thursday, Mr. Deacon will be teaching during the day. In the evening, he will attend classes at Centennial Secondary School commencing at 7 p.m., after which he will be present at his campaign headquarters, 411 Dundas Street West, Belleville.

Dogs Set Free

Someone obviously likes either mischief, or dogs, an Ontario Humane Society, Quinte Branch spokesman said this morning.

Roundup time followed, as Humane Society officers chased the escapees.

However, when a headcount was made, one collie dog and hound-cross pup were missing.

Separate School Board Refuses Request of Teachers

Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board turned thumbs down last night on release of any breakdown of its expenditures and estimates to anyone except the department of education.

The trustees' decision came after a request from the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association for detailed breakdowns of expenditures for 1970 and estimates for the year ending Dec. 31, 1971.

The board had sent the 1970 financial statement, prepared by the auditors and already published in newspapers as required by law, to the OECTA.

But OECTA made a further request for more detailed expenditure and estimate breakdowns that indicate how much was spent on each item such as salaries, supplies and transportation.

"I don't think this should be public information," said superintendent E. J. Neville in discussing his recommendation to the board that the requested breakdown not be made available.

"This shouldn't go into the hands of everyone who wants it. I don't know what use they would make of it.

Mr. Neville made it clear that he would make the same recommendation on a similar request from any individual or group.

"The law says anyone can look at the minutes of a board and make a transcript at 25 cents a page, but we are not required to provide financial breakdowns," he told trustees.

In reply to a question from John Granville, chairman Ben Kroeze said the requested information would be made available only to the department of education.

E. J. Paquet, business administrator, said the cost of supplying the breakdown "wouldn't be that great".

Miss Mary C. Babcock, executive director of OECTA said by telephone from Toronto this morning that the response from separate school boards to her request "has not been very good".

But she added, the response from public school boards across Ontario "has been better".

The information is needed, she said, to make an in-depth study of educational financing in general and of separate school financing in particular.

"If we know in detail how much it costs to finance all aspects of education, we will be in a better position to negotiate intelligently," she told The Intelligencer.

Miss Babcock added that the Ontario Teachers' Federation has sent a request to the minister of education asking that all boards' financial breakdowns be tabled in the Ontario legislature and thus become public knowledge.

Since the inception, Hastings county board of education has supplied press and public with detailed financial breakdowns of estimates and actual expenditures, on all budget items.

The latest was released Sept. 8 and gave a comparative summary of budget estimates and actual expenditures up to that date. The amounts spent were expressed in both dollars and percentages of total estimates for each item.

Many Votes Lost

Disappointed proxy voters who failed to have their certificates verified by the returning officer are expected to pose something of a problem at polling booths on election day tomorrow.

Gerald W. Joyce, returning officer for Quinte riding said today that only about one per cent of the approximately 2,500 proxy applications taken out had been returned for the verification necessary.

The deadline for verification of proxy certificates was Monday at 5 p.m., but Mr. Joyce says he is still receiving telephone calls about the procedure of proxy voting.

"I can envision dozens of proxy certificates in the purses of wives who failed to realize that they had to be certified," said Mr. Joyce.

Under this year's election regulations, four categories of residents are allowed to vote by proxy if they were unable to get to the po's on election day.

These categories were students, members of the armed services, sick people and workers in the transportation services.

But in view of the approximately 10,000 more eligible voters in tomorrow's election, the percentage drop in the number of advance voters was considerable.

However, Mr. Joyce doesn't feel the reduced number of advance voters is any indication of less interest on the part of the electorate.

Rather, the returning officer expects that the available proxy system of voting may have influenced some people not to take advantage of the advance polls.

But in view of the low percentage of proxy certificates verified, Mr. Joyce feels there is bound to be a lot of disappointed voters.

Sydney Subdivision Slated

Final agreement is expected to be reached some time next month on a proposed new subdivision in Sidney Township.

Quinte Heights, to be constructed at the end of Burnt Rd. north of Highway 2, will contain approximately 60 single family dwellings. To be built on township lot 20, concession one, the community will encompass an area of 25 acres and should take about a year to complete.

Noramco Ltd., a Toronto subdividing firm, made a presentation before a special session of Sidney council Monday night. Both sides reached agreement on lighting procedures and the application of double-surface roads.

Construction of water lines has already begun and the building of roads and hydro facilities await only Noramco's legal agreement, expected in November.

SEVEN YOUNG CANADIANS

In September 1971, seven young Canadians entered Second Year of University having qualified for the first of three C.S.T. cash Scholarships. They are all in their late teens and are the first of many to qualify. This is the result of their own hard work and their parents' foresight in enrolling them in the C.S.T. Foundation's Canadian Scholarship Trust Plan in 1961. Their parents are naturally proud of their children and are pleased that they are on their way—with the help of the Canadian Scholarship Trust Plan, 797 Don Mills Road, Don Mills, Ontario.

Practising Catholics Only Hired by Board

"Since it devolves upon the teacher whether our system is to thrive or falter" the Hastings — Prince Edward separate school board policy is to hire only practising Catholics as teachers.

A report on hiring procedures was received by trustees last night from superintendent E. J. Neville, outlining the steps to be followed in hiring new personnel for the schools.

Applicants' training, years of experience and grade levels taught are checked first, and those considered satisfactory are invited to a personal interview.

At the interview, the applicants' personality and special interests, such as music, special education and sports, are checked and "special attention is given to a person's religious education background.

The persons who now seem most suitable are checked through their pastors as to their probable suitability as teachers in a Roman Catholic system," says the report.

Mr. Neville noted that in a recent survey by the Ontario Separate School Trustees Association, five out of 26 people replying rejected the attendance at Sunday Mass as being a point of interest in the hiring of teachers.

"However, the policy of our board is to hire practising Catholics only," said Mr. Neville. "This would seem to indicate that there should be some assurance of regular attendance at Sunday Mass and reception of the Sacraments."

Reeve Requests Welfare Control

PICTON (Staff) — A tight rein is needed on welfare assistance in Prince Edward and it should be monitored on a month - by - month basis instead of for a 12-month period.

These were the observations of Picton reeve Albert Pirolli as county councillors Tuesday discussed an overexpenditure of $45,000 in the welfare budget.

He added if council is making the appropriate overtures to Queen's Park in this matter and noted he did not think a county should be expected to budget for welfare at the beginning of each year and "hit it on the nose".

Mrs. N. LaGroix, welfare administrator for Prince Edward County, explained most of the current over-expenditure was incurred in March, April, May and June of this year before she was appointed to her present job.

Although she could do nothing to prevent the problem, she did go to Queen's Park to discuss Prince Edward as a depressed area. She said this designation would increase assistance from 80 per cent to 95 per cent.

"Welfare is not going to go down but when we budget next year I hope we can keep a little closer to the budget," she remarked.

Ottawa Incident

Soviet Premier Kosygin's escape from an assailant in Ottawa the other day was fortuitous. The man could have been armed and thus things could have been so much worse.

The incident does illustrate however the perils of being leader of a nation conceived in bloodshed and anarchy and imperialism in design, and to consist so a country where many of the people who have suffered from Soviet expansionism now make their homes.

Incidents of this nature in Ottawa, unhappily, will never grow out of fashion. Not so long as man's nature and the overall political fragmentation of our universe exists. Still, it would have been a very grave hour indeed if any serious harm had befallen Mr. Kosygin

We may not agree with everything his country represents but nevertheless a guest in Canada Mr. Kosygin is entitled to the respect accorded any visiting statesman. It is a mark of Mr. Kosygin's personal stature that he made light of the incident while the Soviet press attributed it to the work of a "hooligan," a word which, ironically, they have borrowed from our own western slang terminology, specifically from Ireland where the word applies with singular appropriateness today.

Having said that, we are not overlooking the symbolism of the incident, in that it was perpetrated by a native of Hungary whose people have suffered greatly from Russian domination. At the same time personal retaliation of this nature, against a head of state, while not uncommon, is to be deplored.

The Movie Scene

Like most people we enjoy the odd evening out at the movies and we are fairly adept at picking and choosing what we trust is going to be a good show. Indeed, in a fairly lengthy career of attending movies going back to Noel Coward's Cavalcade in the early thirties we can recall only one that was so bad that we left early.

That was perhaps six or seven years ago and the movie was a re-run of Doris Day in The Pajama Game which cast us as being boring, only rarely tuneful, and dated.

Now we can add a second piece Myra Breckinridge, a sleezy piece of film making seen recently at an area drive-in. The movie, with Raquel Welch as Myra and the incredible Mae West in a comeback performance as a Hollywood theatrical agent, had to do with that area of the acting profession which surfaces only when some performer appears in court on a morals charge. It would not have been so bad if there had been some continuity to the thing, some dialogue or thread of a story that would compel one's attention. But no, there was only this long series of disjointed scenes, including flash backs of old movies, barely intelligible discourse,— and vulgar at that —and strictly unbeautiful people, unless we except Raquel Welch's classic good looks. So there it was, a story of human perversion, the gay life, sex changes and all that, with a bit thrown in before we left about the witch hunt in the movie industry some years ago, and a hint that the type of theme the movie typifies was all part of a communist plot, as drug pushing in the western world is said to be today.

The movie industry has changed. So too have the performers — the actors, the directors, producers, scores writers and all the rest of them, and not forgetting the new breed of writers from whom some of today's movie themes come — like this one we have been discussing which is by Gore Vidal.

Two other movies seen here recently were much more attractive and absorbing: Ryan's Daughter and Summer of 42. There was vulgar discourse enough in the latter, among the teenage principals, but it was eminently believable and mellowed by rich, good humor. Myra, by contrast, had little even of that.

Winter Tourism

Retiring president Roy Holtzhauer of the Land O'Lakes Tourist Association has a good point when he says groups such as his should try and expand winter business in the tourist sphere and that they should do it themselves without relying entirely on government agencies. Winter is a period to be enjoyed by residents and visitors alike and if our resort areas can be organized for increased winter recreational activities so much the better.

One Parliamentary Secretary Too Many

Departmental Name Game and A Goof by P.M.'s Office

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is planning further changes to the names of departments and agencies besides that of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, now Statistics Canada.

The department of industry, trade and commerce is scheduled to become Commerce Canada and the tourist bureau Tourism Canada.

The ministry of transport is said balking, however, at the proposed change to Transport Canada on the grounds it could be mistaken for a furniture-moving firm.

The MP most likely to become next cabinet minister is Pat Mahoney, 42, member for Calgary South and now parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister E. J. Benson.

[illegible] may make the cabinet before the year is [illegible] goof by Prime Minister Trudeau's office that created 28 parliamentary secretaries when only 27 are allowed by law.

Mr. Trudeau had to ask Ian Watson, Liberal MP for Lapraire, to surrender his appointment as parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Herb Gray after holding the post only six hours.

Mr. Trudeau wants to make it up to Mr. Watson, informants say, and will re-appoint Mr. Watson at the earliest opportunity.

This will mean creating a vacancy among parliamentary secretaries. Sources say this may be done by making Mr. Mahoney a minister of state with special responsibility in the finance department.

Mr. Mahoney has been helping Mr. Benson with legislation for changes in the income tax system and with the government's current economic difficulties.

The cabinet now numbers 30.

The barnyard epithet has returned to the Commons after a brief respite.

Clifford Downey, Conservative MP for Battle River, described a statement by Manpower Minister Otto Lang as "pure bull."

In line with the more permissive climate toward such earthy language, the phrase was printed in Hansard, record of Commons debate.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin has told the Commons that one of the issues in Canada-U.S. trading relations is the small consumption in this country of bourbon, the self-styled American national alcoholic beverage.

The U.S. is annoyed that Canada earned $165 million last year selling rye whisky in the U.S. while the U.S. picked up only $1.2 million selling bourbon to Canadians. This is a long-standing complaint by American distillers.

Puckish Melvin McQuaid, Conservative MP for the Prince-Edward Island riding of Cardigan, wanted to know about a $20,000 government contract for hearing aids.

Had they been purchased for cabinet ministers?

Supply Minister James Richardson said they are for use in veterans hospitals.

Mr. McQuaid also was informed that Mr. Richardson's department recently placed an order for 7,200 wicker waste baskets for use in government offices. Cost $10,653.12 or $1.39 each.

Relatives Sought By Resident of Napanee

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I am an old man now with bad arthritis and living alone. I want to find the address of my deceased sister's three boys who were born in Belleville and went to school there. They were later in the army together but only one went overseas. Two of them were in Toronto a long time ago, I was told, and I understand one married a girl near Belleville.

The youngest, I think was Kenneth Fry and I believe he married a girl from overseas while he was in the army. The oldest was Harry Fry and the [illegible] Ernie as he was called, I last heard [illegible] find out their whereabouts.

Anyone answering please write to me:

Organizer Refutes Report

That Dance in Tweed—Only One Balloon Contained Water!

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

My name is Terry Pigden and I am the person who organized the young people's dance in Tweed on Friday last for the PCs of Hastings.

Having just read the Dancers Doused article in the Monday's Intelligencer, I am quite angered but not at all surprised. This article, except for its title, is erroneous.

First of all, only one balloon in the decoration contained water. This was installed by me by mistake two days prior to the dance. When I discovered it, and it stuck out like a sore thumb, it proved rather difficult to attempt to remove. I personally inspected the balloons immediately prior to the dance and saw only one water mark on the floor after. Therefore this was the only one present.

Most important, all the people contacted by me to assist were made aware in advance of the fact that no pay would be involved. These people were joined by a group of young people from Tweed and Madoc who came to the arena on their own and after watching the proceedings, offered to help. All decorating was done in an informal and rather party-like atmosphere. The helpers came and left at will all evening Wednesday and Thursday. The only people paid for this event were the band who are all members of the musician's union. As it turned out the water was evident of little annoyance as the cheers re-

School Aid Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The NDP and the Liberal parties have decided to give more aid to the separate schools from the public treasury.

This is fine as far as it goes, but how about some aid to Protestant schools such as Albert College or a little badly-needed aid to any of the private christian schools?

CURIOUS TO KNOW.

Democracy Vietnam-Style

Ottawa Journal

President Nguyen Van Thieu, re-elected Sunday, would not agree. He claims to have obtained 91.5 per cent of the popular vote. His election would be more impressive were it not for the fact it was a one-man race: the president's tough election law had jockeyed out of the running his two rivals for office. His opponents are crying fake, following a voting day punctuated by riots, tear gas and bullets.

Democracy, though revered, is more often social myth than one-party elections in which hoe candidates win as high as 97 per cent of the vote. There are also "people's democracies" of Eastern Europe, and some Latin American democracies which are a facade for the rule of a wealthy elite and the army.

It might be said that democracy's early roots look bold in England when, in the 17th century, Roundhead and Cavalier swarded of killing one another, and took their battles to Parliament. After that, a losing party in an election learned to defer the gratifications of power until the next vote, contested by ballots rather than bullets.

Such a system may work in a nation where it is hallowed by long tradition, and some operational success. But can it function — or is it necessarily the best system — where democracy is an imported theory, grafted on political and social institutions which never knew it? The evidence of today's world gives no ground for immediate optimism.

Washington was a victim of its own myths in the South Vietnam election. It proclaimed it was fighting for democracy in Southeast Asia, among reasons for intervention there. Thus it prompted the Saigon politicians and generals to stage an election, in a country where democracy was alien. They did so, and the results were pure charade.

Voting Demands A Degree of Cynicism

By DON O'HEARN

From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — When you go to vote on Thursday you probably will know who you are voting for and perhaps pretty well why.

But if your opinion has been set through something one of the party leaders said you might give it a second thought before your final decision.

For there is some chance you could be being pulled just slightly by a brass ring.

One doesn't want to say that our political leaders lie, or distort or even tell half-truths.

And the reluctance has really not anything much to do with whether they are guilty of such things.

You simply just don't say that about our political leaders. They are men of eminence, dedicated to public service and not to be slandered (As long as they are in office. Later assessments are a bit more frank.)

So we will simply say that political leaders follow a calling in which the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth is not so important as being elected and the wise voter listens through his fingers to political statements.

One thing about this leadership habit is that it is generally well universal and if you decide not to believe at least you don't have to worry about picking sides.

In this election, for example, a good many people have been convinced by Premier Davis when he has said that aid was extended to separate secondary schools in the 1920's, not in the 60's, as the Liberals have claimed.

And really the point isn't this anyway, but that separate school rights were provided for at Confederation, which was in 1867, and long before either the 20's or the 30's.

Then there is NDP Leader Stephen Lewis talking about the government's policy of tax concessions to industry to stimulate employment.

Mr. Lewis says this is a $125 million program to provide jobs.

And where are the jobs?

Well it is a longer-term program. The concessions are essentially given for purchase of new machinery and other improvements which will increase productivity.

It was only announced in this year's budget. And its impact can hardly be felt for a year and this, of course, Mr. Lewis knows.

It seems very doubtful if his practical terms he could do many of the things he says he would do.

In other words unless it is your mother or your brother talking (and you happen to trust them) politics is usually just as well to be a bit cynical about what you hear.

California's Golden Girls

Joyce Carter in
The Globe and Mail

LOS ANGELES — It seems a shame to waste the California Fashion Creation House on a bunch of women. Here we sit, fashion writers from all over North America, watching beautiful blond Angelenos swishing off the runway. And all we see are the clothes.

I can think of fellows you wouldn't have to beg to come here, particularly if you told them in advance that most of the suits hide under some sort of coverup and the girls wriggling out of them in the free photographers here unable to find the buttons on their earrings.

They can't be blamed. The girls are simply stunning: golden goddesses in bikinis and bottoms, and waistlines a 10-year-old would envy. And whoever they look healthy, vitaminfed and vigorous. Eight years away from the sad sacks Nova New York calls models.

There's a relevent connection between the California girl and the clothes on the runway. Unlike New York, you don't get the uneasy feeling that freakiness has become a way of life for too many. California's natural bounty, its sunshine, its outdoor lifestyle, its emphasis on sports and fitness. They play sports with a keenness and dedication that have no time for sportatoothes that won't work.

So always follows function, a concept that is surely as valid for clothing as it is for architecture.

Near Sellout Enjoys Ballet

By EUGENE LANG

Two decades of professional ballet in Belleville Yes it's hard to realise that the National Ballet of Canada has been appearing here that long but last evening marked the 20th anniversary of Canada's most famous ballet organization visiting our environs. To mark the event of an even score of showings here, local and area fans of the dance turned out en masse, all but filling the auditorium of Centennial Secondary School.

The program was listed as a Concert Performance, thus no props decorated the stage, our imagination having to fill in the visual void. The usual expected orchestra was lacking, the accompaniments being all in the very capable hands of pianist Mary McDonald who turned in an engrossing performance in the six items that digested two and a half hours of our life span so quickly and entertainingly.

The opening three offerings were all from the school of 19th century classic ballet from the tried and true scores of Adolphe Adam and Tschaikowsky. The Peasant Pas de Deux from Adam's most famous work for the dance — Giselle — was portrayed by dancers Colleen Cool and Time Spain with coquettish flippancy in opening, progressing to a lilhesome lilt in solos that followed. Slight imbalances were noticed in the cadential placements by the male dancer.

The greatest of all ballet composers was undeniably Tschaikowsky, and here our viewers were not disappointed as two excerpts from a pair of his masterpieces were included. A set of dances from The Sleeping Beauty were convincingly set forth by ballerinas Nadia Potts, Linda Maybarduk and Andrea Davidson abetted by Tomas Schramek. Here as unflagging spirit and rapport to the buoyant beat of the music was exhibited by the young quartet. Karen Kain and Sergiu Stefanschi evinced dignified poise and meaningful mobility in their recreation of the familiar Black Swan Pas de Deux from Swan Lake. Flexibility in movement and fluency in style were the hall marks by the participants.

A revival of the music of Padre Antonio Soler, an 18th century Spanish monk and composer has taken place in recent years, his works being practically unknown beforehand. Fandango was the production that utilized the talents of five female dancers in their colorful handling of this type of Spanish dance that inexorably pursues its course with ever pulsating impetus. The incessant drive of this music seems to mesmerize the ears while the gyrations of the quintet captivated the eyes. The sudden ending chopped the frenzied dance with guillotine brutality.

The veiled mistiness of Debussy's piano works (selected here from various sources) provided the tonal background for Autumn Song that Brought eight members of the troup on stage, Pagan pallors suffused the atmosphere as dancers slowly gathered momentum to vent uninhibited expression of suggested orgiastic desires. Rumbling of piano bass and sudden flashing of light brought emotional storm to unheard cries of the players in this dancing drama. The depictions by Karen Kain and Sergiu Stefanschi were intensely wrought with idyllic tenderness concluding in poignant utterances in a denouement of desolation. The audience showed their approval by outbursts of applause. At intermission following a one were heard to query the final piece — yes, it was Clair de Lune.

The final number was a tongue - in - cheek farce set up to musical witticisms of Francois Poulenc. The entire ensemble was before the footlights as supports to the principals in this light - hearted, one-act ballet soap opera. Costuming was indeed colorful and realisation in keeping with abracadabra absurdities. A fitting conclusion to a really enjoyable evening.

Pianist Mary McDonald had a difficult task in her fingertips, and she carried this through with attributable skill in every selection. The dancers in general were good, a certain stiffness discernible in one or two instances, but this did not detract from the final sum in total. And so, 20 years have gone by in the annals of the National Ballet of Canada, two decades from modest beginnings to international acclaim. What will the next 20 bring? Only the year 2011 will tell. Congratulations on your 20th birthday, though.

Andrea Davidson, Nadia Potts and Linda Maybarduk of the National Ballet of Canada do a dance from Sleeping Beauty at the concert held on Tuesday evening at Centennial Secondary School. The Belleville visit was part of the company's 20th anniversary tour and drew a full house.

Bus Costs Well Below Average

Separate school pupils in Hastings and Prince Edward counties are being bused to school at a cost considerably lower than the provincial average.

Trustees learned last night that its transportation system is costing 39 per cet less than the average across Ontario.

The board pays 40 cents a pupil a day to get the young sters to school and home again. The provincial average is 49 cents a pupil a day.

The daily bus cost for the school year of 1971-72 is $798 and the annual cost to the board is $139,748.

Since the board gets a provincial grant to cover 95 percent of transportation costs, ratepayers in the two counties are paying about $7,987 a year for transportation.

"It is obvious, therefore, that we have an extremely efficient and low cost transportation system at an important saving to the taxpayer," said transportation officer B. J. Casey.

Mr. Casey had more statistic for the board.

The separate schools operate 48 routes integrated with public school routes, and 25 that are exclusively for separate school pupils.

By operating new routes, the separate schools have picked up about 200 pupils they would not otherwise have enrolled.

And finally, transportation costs this year will be well under the estimated expenditure ceiling.

New Schools In Forecast

Three new schools and two additions are forecast for the separate school system here some time within the next five years.

The possibilities were submitted to the department of education to reserve capital funds for future needs from the Ontario Education Capital Aid Corporation.

But the construction forecast is tentative, and could be abandoned as school populations fluctuate.

Last year the separate school board forecast the possibility of a new school being required in Trenton and on both the east and west sides of Belleville.

This year it added the possibility of new additions at Marysville and at Whitney, at an estimated cost of $775,000 each. Neither addition will be needed before 1991 or 1975, administration stated.

Restoration Cost Raises Question

PICTON (Staff) — Sophiasburg reeve George Foster last night questioned the $11,310 account for restoration of the Old St. Mary Magdalene Church, demanding, "Is this the last one?"

Reeve Foster said he has been trying for the past three months to ascertain the total amount to be spent on the church now being preserved as a county museum.

He suggested members of the property and supply committee quibble over a request from the arena "for a little money" and asked how much council is now overbudget on the church restoration project.

"Is this is the last bill?" he questioned again, referring to the $4,319 statement. "I hope so," replied Roy Brooks, chairman of the property and supply committee.

Now—the truth about Government Auto Insurance

IT COSTS MORE

In this Ontario election campaign the socialists say an NDP government would take over automobile insurance and it would cost you less. We who understand insurance have attempted to point out the many fallacies underlying this claim. But the advocates of government insurance said, "Wait until the socialist Government of Manitoba brings in its plan — then you'll see savings of 15 per cent." Over the past few weeks, motorists in Manitoba have been receiving their first Autopac (government) insurance coverage. Many have been getting a few surprises too. Government auto insurance is costing them more. Following is an article from the October 2, 1971 issue of the Winnipeg Free Press, printed in its entirety. If your vote on October 21 is to be influenced by promises about auto insurance, we think you should read it.

Autopac Dotted With Loopholes

By SUSAN HOESCHEN

As the Autopac packages filter through the mails and into the hands of the insured, the facts begin to emerge on which drivers will be paying more insurance and which will save money for the new plan.

A sampling from those who have received their Autopac rates leaves a lot of questions unanswered about the equity of the system.

Manitoba resorted to a government-run car insurance system because it was felt a government could save money, streamline the system and offer insurance for less money than the inefficient and costly privately run system.

But an individual had no idea how much he would pay, in his particular category, with his model and type of car, He had to wait for the cards which started to arrive in Manitoba homes last week.

Autopac does streamline the plan but, in doing so, necessarily leaves out some of the complexity of the plans worked out over the years by the insurance industry.

And, in the simplification of the rate structures and categories, many are saying that loopholes were left open. Some were never intended. Some other items regarded as "special" under the old system are simply not covered under Autopac.

To achieve a great saving over last year's rate the driver insured with Autopac would be under 25 years of age, have had a couple of accidents in the last few years and drive a very expensive car.

One example is a male under 25 who drives a Pontiac $12 and has had two major accidents in the last three years. He lives in rural Manitoba. Last year, under the private insurance plan he was charged $1,200. Under Autopac, he will pay $350 annually for identical coverage(s).

In order for some categories of drivers to be saving money under Autopac, some have to be paying more.

Now that these categories are beginning to define themselves, people are quizzing with Fairness of the Question.

Some of the categories which will pay more under Autopac are young drivers under 25, drivers who have had one or more claims in the last few years and persons in business cars owned or operated by a business. Why were these particular classifications singled out?

Some of the categories which will pay more under Autopac are young drivers under 25, drivers who have had one or more claims in the last few years and persons in business cars owned or operated by a business. Why were these particular classifications singled out?

Let's take the groups that will save money under the new government system. First the young. Under 25 drivers will benefit by a certain point, but makes no such more accidents. Age is the probability for simplification reasons.

Drivers with claims on their policies were usually penalized in their rates under the old system. Sometimes a company would let an accident go if the many would let an accident go if the damage was under a certain amount but, generally, rates were higher for drivers with any claims on record.

Under Autopac, those drivers will be penalized by the state. That is, the penalty established by the insurance industry will be wiped out under Autopac and the driver who has no claims for three years will be given accident-free rates. Drivers will be penalized for traffic offences but not on the claims made.

Insurance for a company which owned a 1970 Pontiac Parisienne in the classification will be $1292 last year. Under Autopac, the same driver pays only $155, including $15 saving in the same coverage. This saving is probably not intentional in the Autopac plan but results from the simplification of classifications under the government plan.

Under the private system, insurance companies had as many as 18 classifications for a vehicle, based on age of the driver and use of the car. Autopac has two classifications — all-purpose and preferred.

In the simplification, the plan has not included a category for cars owned by business and, therefore, these cars are getting away under the new scheme.

C. G. Tries, president of Wawanesa Mutual Insurance Co., admits that the rating classifications under the old system were extremely complex. It was too complex, he said, but in response it complicated but we did it in response to public demand, to give the right class the right rate," he said.

Using two names, he said, is almost like having two companies. "There should be a happy medium."

The thrifting which has gone on in the insurance industry began in the thirties with two classifications — business and pleasure use. As one company began to give discounts for certain classifications, others followed suit and differential rate structures emerged.

Autopac has wiped out the complication but has created new complications.

The premiums which will pay more under Autopac are asking why.

Under the private system, a company with a fleet of over five vehicles was eligible for a discount.

Autopac has also has retroactive rating which will give a certain percentage discount to every driver who has been with the company if there had been a two-year period of accidents. The company insured paying more for its insurance.

Council of Insurance Clients, of Winnipeg, with its large fleet of trucks and the intricate rating system, was paying private industry system, was paying $250 per vehicle per year under the old system.

Under Autopac, the charges will be $320 to $400 per vehicle for the same coverage than provided under the old system.

Altona Freightways Ltd., of Altona, will be paying $2700 under Autopac for less coverage in its six vehicles than it did $1532 under a private plan last year.

Metro had its fleet of buses insured last year with catastrophe coverage under an American plan. Total insurance cost for the corporation last year was $35,000.

Under Autopac, Metro will pay over $500 per vehicle for $500 deductible collision coverage. The total comes to over a quarter of a million dollars.

A Metro official says that about 90 per cent of claims for the fleet are under $200 for which the coverage under Autopac would be useless.

Twocar families used to get a discount of between 10 and 20 per cent for the second car's insurance under the old system but that saving has disappeared.

Accident-free drivers who enjoyed a lower rate from their private insurance company will be penalized under the new system. In nearly all cases, their rates will go up.

Those who are paying more are subsidizing those who are paying less for identical coverage.

In some cases the change may have been deliberate to try to make the system reflect more accurately the risks. But mistakes may have been made.

Here are some examples of drivers of fairly ordinary cars — neither in the luxury class — who will pay more in higher rates under the Autopac system. In all cases, the drivers are male, single and are considered the identical coverage. Insurance includes collision coverage for both years. Some have not had the benefit of the licence for the whole year. The school teacher who takes her 1969 Datsun 1600 to work, was paying $78 and is now to pay $101.

A housewife driving a 1960 Volkswagen for pleasure only paid $33 last year but will pay $76 this year.

The high school teacher who drives his 1968 Volkswagen to work, under private ownership was paying $138 under $91 last year and $183 under Autopac.

Then there is the driver whose 1961 Ford Ranchwagon with 200 cubic inch engine, in the same classification as a 1970 Ford Fairlane 500 worth $2500, has been pointed out the mistake to an Autopac official he was told that the stationwagon case is too complicated for the computer to handle and that all cars now paying a higher class in the same bumped into a lower.

"All the rates are locked into the computer and there is nothing we can do to change it," the official said.

Result May Be Decided In Thirty Close Seats

TORONTO (CP) — A shift against the Progressive Conservatives in nine ridings won by fewer than 1,000 votes in 1967 and failure to compensate elsewhere would bring Ontario to the brink of a minority government in Thursday's election.

Premier William Davis's Conservatives held 88 seats at dissolution of the 117-member legislature. A loss of nine seats and failure to win any of the 21 seats held by the opposition parties with low pluralities would mean re-election of the Davis government with 59 seats—a majority of one member.

On paper, it wouldn't take much to boot all nine Tory ridings into the arms of the opposition parties. But by the same criterion, shifts of comparable size against the Liberals or New Democrats would prove equally as disastrous to opposition hopes.

Potentially, the Liberals have the most to lose in the 30 key ridings. Pluralities of less than 1,000 votes won the Liberals 12 of the 27 ridings they held at dissolution.

The NDP elected eight of its 21 members with pluralities of less than 1,000 votes.

Nixon Repeats Charge Of Political Bribery

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon used his last major rally of the campaign for Thursday's provincial election to repeat his charges that the Conservatives are using "political bribery" to win votes.

Mr. Nixon told a crowd of 1,200 in Lakehead Exhibition Auditorium Tuesday that the government's policy of mailing out tax rebates to farmers and old-age pensioners on the eve of the election was "the epitome of political opportunism."

He also repeated his prediction of a Liberal victory, saying that he believes the tide turned in favor of his party after a television debate among the three leaders which showed Premier William Davis was "just common dull."

Earlier Tuesday, Mr. Nixon was forced to cancel a visit to Sudbury because his departure from Toronto was delayed by fog.

He flew straight to Sault Ste. Marie, where he bumped into David Lewis, federal New Democratic Party leader and father of Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, at a television studio.

"Now I know why I'm here," said Mr. Nixon.

Jobs Given Top Rating

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis spent a low-key day campaigning Tuesday as the campaign which he hopes will return him as the head of a Progressive Conservative government entered its closing stages.

And, he stressed, the big issue is jobs.

Mr. Davis, who began his day with a pancake breakfast at Parry Sound, told a crowd of 250 at a rally in Orillia:

"Jobs are the priority. Jobs for the people of Ontario. That has to be the priority.

He said campaign promises would cost the province's taxpayers money and, considering the state of the economy, taxes must be reduced rather than increased.

"They've promised large-expenditure programs and now is the time to decrease taxes," Mr. Davis told his audience.

Questionnaire Made in Detroit

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis released Tuesday a questionnaire to Ontario voters by a Detroit marketing firm he identified as the one hired by the Progressive Conservative party.

The New Democratic Party leader described some of the 17 questions as "irrelevant and offensive" and said it shows the Americanization of Ontario politics.

Insurance Ads False States Stephen Lewis

HAMILTON (CP) — Newspaper advertisements in Ontario dailies Tuesday saying that Manitoba's public auto-insurance costs more than private plans are "misleading and false," Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Tuesday night.

The ads in question were paid for by members of the Ontario Insurance Agents Association. Howard Pawley, Manitoba's minister of municipal affairs and chairman of the public automobile insurance corporation, told Mr. Lewis' office Tuesday afternoon by telephone that the ads contain "misrepresentations and distortions and untruths."

He read the Manitoba Auto-Lewis read the Manitoba Autopac rates for each of six examples used in the advertisement and said in each case they dropped appreciably rather than rose as the ad said.

Belfast Students Won't Give Up IRA Official

"Oh Bob, did I get your steak too rare again?"

BELFAST (Reuter) — Troops and police withdrew today from Queen's University in Belfast following a seven-hour siege to flush out an IRA official.

They moved away from the college just before daybreak after students refused to hand over Tomas MacGiolla, 45, political leader of the official wing of the Irish Republican Army.

The student barricades went up before midnight Tuesday night when detectives tried to arrest MacGiolla, who was addressing a meeting on the Dunmon Market.

An announcement from police headquarters said the operation at the university has been called off and people are free to come and go as they please."

The students refused to remove their barricades until they received an assurance that MacGiolla could move off safely without fear of being detained.

No reason was given for the backdown of security forces but observers suggested that if the building had been stormed the subsequent public outcry would have had extensive political repercussions.

MacGiolla is a citizen of the Irish Republic and is considered more of a socialist than an active revolutionary.

In other areas of Belfast, three explosions, within minutes of each other, damaged two shops and a government office near the British Army's headquarters at Lisburn on the outskirts of the city. One man was injured.

Four explosions also were reported in Londonderry during the night.

A policeman was shot in the leg at Dungannon, when he tried to stop the driver of a stolen car.

In London, government sources disclosed that British Army intelligence and Scotland Yard are investigating reports that West Germany, Belgian and American mercenaries are operating in Belfast.

The sources said for some months harbors and airports have been watched for known foreign mercenaries trying to enter Northern Ireland.

Immigrant Says Not Hiding

TORONTO (CP) — A man who says he once fought in the Ukrainian resistance movement has written to Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin protesting what he alleges are Russian attempts to harass him for war crimes.

Dmytro Kuplak, 51, asks in the letter that the Soviet premier visit him at his restaurant "to see for yourself whether or not I am hiding from the retribution of your almighty state police."

A report from Belfast said hundreds of up to 8170 were being offered to hired assassins for every policeman or soldier killed in Ulster.

In the Ulster Parliament, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner said he had no information about the report "but that's the kind of depravity in which the terrorists deal."

The premier added that in the last five weeks British Army marksmen had shot down at least 30 guerrillas.

In another development, police of the Irish Republic began questioning two passengers from the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 after a cache of illegal arms and ammunition were found in suitcases in a Cork Harbor customs shed.

Six pieces of luggage containing 7,000 rounds of machine-gun ammunition, 70 hand grenades, two pistols, nine rifles and telescopic sights were brought ashore together with the disembarking passengers as the liner stood off Cork.

Police speculated the IRA may have planned to raid the customs shed during the night to pick up the cargo.

Cadet Corps Supported

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday he will try to build up cadet forces and military colleges in Canada—contrary to recommendations on government youth policy.

Government and opposition MPs thumped their Commons desks in applause when Mr. Macdonald made the statement.

A government-appointed committee on youth recommended last summer that cadet military training be dropped. Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) asked for the minister's reaction.

"I can confirm statements that I made outside the House . . . that the recommendation of the committee on youth in this regard will not be accepted," Mr. Macdonald said.

Mr. Kuplak said publicly in 1965 that he probably was the man the Soviet Union was seeking to extradite from Canada for war crimes between 1941 and 1945.

In his letter to the premier, Mr. Kuplak refers to a story in the Soviet magazine Krokodil which he says accused him of "mass, savage murders of 300 people in the Lviw district" of the Ukraine.

"In this article, I am falsely accused of war crimes and treason against the fatherland," Mr. Kuplak says in the letter. "Your empire was never my fatherland. When your armed forces occupied Western Ukraine in 1939 I did not swear allegiance to your regime and never accepted it."

Kosygin's Concert Visit Moves Along Smoothly

OTTAWA (CP) — An expectent hush was followed by standing applause at the National Arts Centre Tuesday as Prime Minister Trudeau and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin arrived for a concert in the premier's honor.

All smiles, they clapped back from their first-balcony box near the stage. Mrs. Trudeau and the premier's daughter, Mrs. Lyudmilla Gvishiani, joined in.

Moments later, everyone stood silent for the Soviet and Canadian anthems—except a man near the stage who remained seated for the Soviet anthem, but stood for O Canada.

He would not give his name but said he emigrated from the Ukraine after the Second World War and "to me that anthem means the sacrifice of many lives." He said he had not known the anthem would be played and had not come purposely to protest.

But for this small incident and a group of about 100 demonstrators of varied opinions circling outside shouting "Down with Soviet socialist imperialism," or "Long live the Soviet people," the event moved along smoothly.

The demonstrators hardly got a glimpse of Mr. Kosygin as his cavalcade swept into the underground garage connected to the main foyer of the arts centre by an escalator.

The visiting party was met inside the centre by Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau.

Mrs. Gvishiani wore a long gown of shimmering gold lame with a full-sleeved blue blouse trimmed with gold at the cuffs.

Mrs. Trudeau, who is expecting a baby in December, wore a pale blue full-sleeved blouse and long printed skirt under a sleeveless black velvet jacket.

The 2,300-seat opera hall, almost filled, had the first balcony and row of boxes decorated with bouquets of yellow and white chrysanthemums and garlands of ferns.

Even the red-and-white programs were in Russian as well as French and English.

While the concert was in progress, plain-clothes security men ringed the hall, uniformed RCMP kept watch outside and security men in the cellar looked down from a ceiling catwalk.

Over 1,000 Police To Guard Kosygin

TORONTO (CP) — Police officials, fearing another attack on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, held meetings Tuesday to tighten security for his visit here Sunday and Monday.

Leaves for these two days were cancelled for policemen, and officials expect to have a contingent of about 1,000 men from the provincial police, Metropolitan Toronto police and the RCMP cover Mr. Kosygin's visit.

Chief Insp. Albert Duguid of the OPP's special services branch said the attack on Mr. Kosygin in Monday in Ottawa gives other people ideas and "doesn't help our cause."

The 1,000 police officers assigned to the premier's visit are double the number originally planned for duties at Toronto International Airport, the inn on the Park where the premier will stay, and the Ontario Science Centre which he is to visit.

Mr. Kosygin will also visit the a relatively small reception room nearby.

They returned there after the two-hour concert for a lavish buffet dinner with more than 100 guests including cabinet ministers, members of Parliament and senators.

During the supper, Premier Kosygin asked to know the results of a chess game between U.S. Grand Master Bobby Fischer and former world's champion Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union. Fischer won the seventh game of a 12-game tournament.

He Doesn't 'Goo' Over Young

Prince Philip Believes in Raising Children by Committee

NEW YORK (AP) — Prince Philip believes in raising children by "committee," leaves day-to-day bottom spanking to palace nannies and doesn't "goo" over the children, says the author of his official biography in a special chapter published here this week.

Basil Boothroyd, a former writer for the British humor magazine Punch, said he discussed Prince Philip's child-raising theories last April after he had completed the British version of his best seller, Prince Philip, An Informal Biography.

Boothroyd said Philip is not a sentimentalist but does not live up to his image of stern disciplinarian who lays down the law for the children.

He checked school reports for Prince Charles, now 22, and Princess Anne, 21, and still does for the two younger boys, Andrew 11, and Edward, 7, but he doesn't worry unless they hit bottom.

"I say, 'Look, I'm only going to bother if you're permanently on bottom.'" Philip is quoted as saying. "I really don't [illegible] what you are. Just stay in the middle, that's all I ask."

Boothroyd said that once the children are old enough to have "sensible" views they are raised on a committee basis, with the children getting a vote.

"It's not good saying do this, do that, don't do that, don't do this," said Philip. "You can warn them about certain things. That's about the most you can do, or you can say: 'This is the situation you're in. These are the choices. On balance it looks as if this is the sensible one. Go away and come back and let me know what you think.'"

The author said punishments were handled in the nursery but that palace employees said the greatest discipline was simple disapproval by Philip, which the author suggested could have an edge "like an ice axe" because the children always wanted to please their parents.

Boothroyd said Philip never appeared sentimental over the children but was proud of them. He had nothing but admiration for the way Charles handled himself at his investiture as Prince of Wales.

Give him a few minutes of your time tomorrow.

Tomorrow, you have an important decision to make.

You will be choosing the party, and the man, who will lead Ontario in the years ahead.

The choice of a leader has never been so important as now. The years ahead will be years of change. Ontario needs a leader who can anticipate new concerns and offer new directions; who can act, rather than merely react.

The Davis Government has proved its ability to act decisively and constructively, for the good of the people of Ontario.

It has shown a deep commitment to expanding our economy and providing better opportunities for our people.

It has enlarged its concern for the well-being of every Ontario citizen, from young children in day-care centres, to people 65 and over, who will now receive free medicare.

The Davis Government has acted vigorously to deal with the problems of pollution in our environment.

It has acted to strengthen our cultural heritage, and our basic civil rights.

The Davis Government is acting now to ease the effect of outside economic pressures on the Province, and has prepared realistic proposals for the upcoming federal-provincial conference.

The Spadina proposals demonstrate how the Davis Government faces up to future challenge—positively and creatively.

Bill Davis has made a lot of decisions in the past seven months.

Think about them when you make your decision tomorrow.

Tomorrow, do something for Ontario.

Building Officials' Wives Enjoy Program

As is the case at most conventions, an interesting program has been arranged for the women guests attending the Ontario Building Officials Association conference now in progress at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, Belleville.

On Monday evening upon arrival, the delegates and guests were entertained at a get-acquainted reception held in the motel. Opening ceremonies for both men and women were held Tuesday morning after which the women left on a tour of the Brooke Bond Foods Ltd. followed by luncheon at the Sun Luck Gardens.

At a luncheon, following introduction by Mrs. A. Stickle of the women's program committee, Alderman Robin Jeffrey brought greetings on behalf of the City of Belleville followed by a brief message from Alderman Jean Smith. Guests were then taken on a most enjoyable tour of the Thomasburg and O'Hara Mills conservation areas with commentaries of the areas given by Mr. Waite and Mr. Bell.

Other activities planned for the conference which ends with a dinner and president's ball on Thursday evening, is a tour of the OSD Wednesday morning with luncheon at the Bata Footwear Plant cafeteria with a tour of the plant in the afternoon. On the Thursday morning the group will visit the Hastings County Museum and following a luncheon back at the Sun Luck Gardens will be free to shop or keep hairdressing appointments in preparation for the closing event of the 1971 convention.

Mrs. Allison Stickle, chairman of the women's program committee; Mrs. Helen Mitchell, wife of the president of the Ontario Building Officials' Association, Alderman Mrs. Jean Smith, Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey and Mrs. Mary Purcell, committee member enjoy a pleasant chat before lunch at the Sun Luck Gardens on Tuesday afternoon. The luncheon was one of the events planned for the wives of building officials attending the four-day convention at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Hat Trick

Hats provide the finishing touch was the fall fashion highlight portrayed at St. Colomba Presbyterian Women's show of coats and sportswear from Woodleys. The models from the left: Mrs. Iris Stotesbury, Mrs. Dolly Reed, Mrs. June Woodley, Mrs. Marie Macpherson and Janet Kerr in the fast moving show appeared in colorful knickers, expensive furs, and a full range of cloth coats, each complemented by accessories to perfection and concluded with the latest in lounge wear and lingerie. Mr. Douglas Woodley was commentator for the event with lunch served by convenors Mrs. Jack Burke, Mrs. Grant Devolin and Mrs. Beverly McKerracher.

Rebekahs Install New Officers

Sister Ruby Tompkins sang while the officers of Laurel Rebekah Lodge 211 entered the IOOF Lodge Hall, Stirling, on Tuesday Oct. 12, where a number of members and visitors met for the annual installation of officers. The Noble Grand, Sister Kathleen McMullen, welcomed all present.

Sister Eileen Woodcox, of PNG introduced Sister Ruth Jardine, District Deputy President of District 56. She was escorted through a guard of honor, composed of Lillian Johnson PNG, Ada Keating, Hilda Rose PNG, Isobel Good PNG, Bessie Patterson, Verna Woodbock PNG, each carrying a large pink or green tinted mum, while Sister Ruby Tompkins sang May You Always.

After a special welcome from the Noble Grand the flowers were presented to the District Deputy President and she was given the seat of honor. Sister Madaline Walker, Vice Grand, reported cards and plants had been sent to the sick and submitted her initial report.

Sister Marion Heath PNG reported regarding preparations for the Masonic banquet — and sister Muriel Sharpe reported that the Mount Pleasant UCW would be catering to Laurel's birthday party in November.

The installing staff were district deputy president Ruth Jardine; Marshal — Jean Deshane; organist — Marion Tucker; soloist, Ruth Owen; deputy warden Stella Woods; deputy secretary Mabel Foster; Finabcial Secretary Blanche Countryman; treasurer — Lois Elliott; inside guardian — Dorothy Fisher; outside guardian, Ruth Masters; chaplain Grace Perrit;

The Guard of Honor, in pretty plum colored dresses and carrying silver wands with a small white dove perched on it, assisted the Marshal in escorting the District Deputy President, Ruth Jardine, and her installing staff into the hall, while the soloist, Sister Ruth Owen sang "It is no Secret.

The District Deputy, Ruth Jardine, thanked the Lodge for the 'mums and wished success to Laurel for the coming year. Sisters Ruby Tompkins and Martha Pitchett presented the District Deputy President with a gift from the Lodge and complimented her on such an interesting Ceremony of Installation — It was an inspiration. Brother Charles Carter PNG presented the new Noble Grand Madaline Walker with a gift from her husband and family.

Sister Kathleen McMullen Jr. PNG expressed her thanks to all for the support she had received during her term of office as Noble Grand and also to the Lodge for her jewel. Sister Madaline Walker, Noble Grand, appointed her committees and expressed her thanks for the honor conferred upon her and that she would do her best with the cooperation of the Lodge members. She also congratulated the District Deputy President Ruth Jardine and her staff for the capable way in which they exemplified the Installation.

The members and guests adjourned to the banquet hall where Sister Edna Fox PNG and her committee had tables set for a sumptuous banquet.

Sister Olive Whitehead PDDP and Sister Ruth Jardine DDP moved a hearty vote of thanks to Sister Edna and her Committee. Thus starts another era in the History of Laurel Rebekah Lodge

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rogor Simpson, Belleville, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Judith Ann to Mr. Daniel Thomas Coxon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roy Coxon, Gamilton. The marriage will take place December 4, at 8 p.m. in Christ Church, Belleville.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

Are unexplained crying spells a cause for concern?

Answer: Well, they are worth bringing to the attention of a doctor or therapist, especially if the unexplained crying spells have suddenly come on a person who never had them before. Yet, the spells themselves should not cause unnecessary concern. Usually, the one who has them is about due for a checkup anyway, and They may be the result of simply feeling overwhelmed and in need of the comfort of consultation.

Is too much fuss made over 'sweet 16' parties?

Answer: No, although some parents go overboard in throwing parties for a daughter's reaching her 16th birthday (the same criticism may be made against too elaborate Bar Mitzvahs, First Communions, etc.). Parties when girls or boys reach a certain milestone are important to youngsters; not so much that they have managed to attain a certain age, but that they are entering new phases of development and beginning another.

Should you tell someone what's bugging you?

Answer: That would be the first impulse; and often it is best to tell a person what is irritating you. Sometimes, though, you may be letting yourself in for extra misery, if you "level" with someone who is not equipped to respond as a mature person. Say, he irritates you by some habitual actions; if may be just immature enough to derive satisfaction from knowing the he causes you to boil with anger.

Ann Landers

Unwelcome Visitor Was Not Discouraged By Locked Door

Dear Ann Landers: I took you advice and it stank. For years I have been bothered with a pesky neighbor who used to come over in the morning and follow me around from room to room—gabbing and interfering with my housework. Then I read in your column about another woman who had the same problem. You told her to keep her door locked and not answer the bell. It sounded like a sensible approach so I tried it last Monday.

Do you know what my neighbor did? She broke open my basement window with a hammer and a crowbar and came upstairs. I was shocked when I saw her. Her first words were: "Thank God you're all right. I thought something terrible had happened to you when you didn't answer the bell."

So, you see, when a person has neighbors like mine she is defenceless. Any more suggestions?—Ellen Dusk

Dear Ducky: Yes. Tell your neighbor you appreciate her concern but when you don't answer the bell it means one of two things. 1. You are not at home or 2. You are at home and too busy for company—so will she please get take it unon herself to break and enter.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high schooler (a non-smoker, by the way) who did not agree with your advice against setting up smoking rooms in high schools for kids who smoke. There's another side to the story which you obviously don't know.

The break between classes is about four minutes. A person barely has time to use the bathroom. The student who needs the bathroom can't get in because all the stalls are filled with kids who are grabbing a cigaret. Another problem is that the kids who smoke have wrecked our school bathrooms. There are cigarette burns on the toilet seats, the floors, the walls, on the towel racks, and once someone accidentally set fire to the place.

I envy the students whose school has a smoking room. It's better not only for the smokers, but for the non-smokers, too. I know you will print this letter because you are fair about presenting both sides.—Burned Is Schenectady

Dear Burned: Your letter does indeed, present some valid arguments in favor of smoking rooms in high schools. I have received several other thoughtful rebuttals—an especially good one from Arthur N. Pierce, Superintendent of Schools, Hanover, New Hampshire. However, I am still against the idea.

Cigaret smoking has been proved unquestionably harmful to health. Facilities for smokers, in my opinion, condone and encourage smoking. As an alternative, I suggest monitors in the bathrooms at class-break time, with penalties for those who break the rules. The notion that you have to permit students to smoke is nonsense. Nicotine addicts can work on their lung cancers before 9 a.m. and after 3 p.m.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married nine years. When we were going together he used to tell a few lies but since we've been married he's been a lot better at that sort of thing.

Last week he called me Rose in his sleep. I thought I was imagining things because it was sort of a mumble. Last night I heard him plainly say, Move over, Rose, he said. This morning I asked what it was all about. He said Rose is the nickname of a fellow he works with—Rosenbein is his real name. I have heard him talk about this guy before. Should I phone up the personnel director? Would it get back to him if I did? Please advise.—No Rose

Dear No: Don't start poking around your husband's place of employment. Trus him. If he's playing around you'll smell something sooner or later and it won't be a rose.

The Experts Say

Good Equipment Is Essential

TORONTO (CP) — If you want to be your own couturier, it does help to have talent. But, good equipment and a willingness to take pains can also take you a long way, says Rodolphe.

Rodolphe is a Toronto couturier who has started a fashion and fabric club to offer advice and teach cutting, fitting and sewing techniques to women who like to sew or like high style but not high prices.

He says patience, space and the best equipment you can afford are all important if you want to sew well.

"You cannot work in a hurry. A lining put in badly can pull a dress all out of shape, bad button holes can ruin it.

"You must have space, you cannot work in cramped quarters. You must have a big work surface, preferably a table. If you work on your dining room table, be sure the light is good.

"Get good scissors. If you pay two or five dollars more for scissors, it pays in the long run.

"You should have a ruler, a marker, and you should have a T-bar. Then you can use a basic pattern and change it to many things, if you have the imagination. Not everyone has that.

"If you want to change a pocket, you have to re-draft a pattern, that's what you use the T-bar for. A pattern is real drafting. If your pattern is not exact, if you try to cheat, you may have two different pockets. There are no short cuts.

"When you prepare to sew, always have your work table clean. If you have little ends you have cut off the pattern or the fabric, clean them right off. Don't leave them on the table.

"You also have to have a judy. No one can fit herself. Always buy the more expensive one if you can. You cannot work with cheap equipment.

"If you change your figure, be sure to change your judy. If you're really precise, you have to pad it and put canvas over it to match your figure.

"What sewing machine you buy depends on the sewer. If you buy the most sophisticated machine, you may get confused by all the gadgets."

Hand work takes loving care. Most people would do best to buy a button-hole maker. You can get things like machine embroidery done for you.

"Try to find a good store to buy fabric in, a store that will tell you if a fabric won't suit a pattern or if it won't wear well enough for what you have in mind or if the fabric pulls easily so you shouldn't wear a charm bracelet with it."

Rodolphe says you should always ask if a fabric should be cleaned or washed and make sure you choose a lining that takes the same treatment.

He says a dressmaker's supply store can sometimes be the best place to get linings and buttons and trim. They often have the widest choice.

He says you should also consider accessories for the finished dress when you buy patterns and fabric.

Start the Season Off with These Unusual Breads

By ALICE DENHOFF

Into the kitchen for a bit of baking and start the season off with something special, something different for our friends who enjoy preparing and serving unusual breads. Take a yeast loaf with pork cracklings for example. It takes a bit of doing, but, it's good.

BLACK PEPPER CRACKLING BREAD

2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm water
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup hot milk
1-3 cup shortening
1 tablespoon sugar
3 teaspoons salt
1 large egg
About 6 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon black pepper
Cracklings

Combine first 3 ingredients. Let stand 5 minutes to soften.

Stir in next 3 ingredients plus 2 cups of the flour. Beat batter until it falls in a sheet from the spoon. Gradually add remaining flour, kneading it in. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead until dough is smooth and satiny.

Place dough in a greased bowl, turn to grease on all sides. Cover with a towel and let rise in a warm place (80 to 85 F.) until double in size, about an hour. Punch down dough; form into 2 balls of equal size. Cover and let rest 10 minutes.

Roll each ball of dough ¼ inch thick in a 9x14-inch rectangle. Brush surface with melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle each with ½ teaspoon ground black pepper and 1½ cups cracklings. Roll up jelly-roll fashion. Place in greased 5x9x3-inch loaf pan. Brush top with melted butter; Cover and let rise in warm place (80 to 85 F.) until double in size. Bake at 375 F. for 40 minutes or until bread has browned.

Cracklings: Cut 3 pounds salt pork (fat back) into thin slices. Place in a large baking pan and cook in 450 F. oven 5 minutes; reduce heat to 350 F. and cook 25 minutes or until pork is crisp and brown.

Folks who balk at meat loaf will enjoy this excellent:

QUICK PEPPER LOAF

2 pounds ground chuck
1 cup fine- dry bread crumbs
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1½ cups finely diced tomatoes
2-3 cup sweet pepper flakes
1-3 cup instant minced onion
½ cup parsley flakes
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes

Thoroughly mix together all ingredients, except mashed potatoes. Pack firmly into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan or into 1-quart mold. Bake for 1¼ hours at 350 F. Turn out onto serving platter. Decorate edge and top of loaf with hot mashed potatoes. Serves 8 to 10 a good buffet supper item.

SPICED BLACK PEPPER COOKIES

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 cup sugar
1-3 cup molasses
1 large egg
1 tablespoon milk
Raisins

Sift together first 3 ingredients; set aside. Mix together next 5 ingredients, into which gradually blend sugar and molasses. Beat in egg and milk. Mix in dry ingredients. Drop a rounded teaspoon dough at a time onto lightly greased cooky sheets and top each with a raisin. Bake at 350 F. 15 minutes or until browned around the edges. Cool on wire racks. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 3 dozen large or 5 dozen 1-inch jobs. Good in any size and something different.

BLACK pepper moves away from companion salt to pep up Crackling Bread, meat loaf, and yes, great spicy cookies.

District Church Groups

WMS, MARMORA FREE METHODIST CHURCH

The Women's Missionary Society of Marmora and Beaver Creek Free Methodist Church met on Tuesday, Oct. 12 at 8 p.m. with president Mrs Alex McFaul in the chair.

The opening number was this year's theme song followed by a scripture reading from Timothy by the president.

The missionaries in India and Egypt were named and remembered in prayer led by Mrs. W. A. McMillan and Mrs. Rayburn Johnston.

The minutes of the September meeting were read and the roll called with each member mentioning something in particular for which she could thank God.

Along with the regular offering a special thank-offering was taken up by Verna Kempt.

Last year's secret prayer partners were disclosed and plans made to pick new ones at the November meeting.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Everett Derry.

One of the study books for this year — Last Days on the Nile — was reviewed by the Pastor. A hymn was sung as a duet by Mrs. Walter Potts and Mrs. Derry.

A very interesting skit called "Know-Do-Tell" portrayed an exasperated Mrs. U.A.R. (United Arab Republic) trying to interest a very disinterested Mrs. Average WMS'er in her country while the narrator Mrs. G. W. Kemp read off facts and figures from a scroll.

The forming of new prayer cells was encouraged by the president, Mrs. McFaul, who then led in the dismissal prayer.

Survey Shows Increase in Number of Schools Teaching Sex Education

By JEAN SHARP
Of Women's Editor

"Nancy is going to have babies."

"How do you know?"

"She met Charlie in the hall."

This mother-daughter exchange about the rabbits in two Grade 3 Toronto classrooms was one child's eye view of the beginnings of sex education at her school.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates a steady increase during the last three or four years in the number of schools teaching sex education. But many do not.

A report published in April by the Vanier Institute of the Family says 31 per cent of the schools in its survey offered some family life education, and 68 per cent did not offer it at all. The report says it is likelier to be taught in urban than in rural or small-town schools.

Only New Brunswick has province-wide compulsory sex education, taught in the health course in Grades 7 to 9.

Nova Scotia and Newfoundland have no official course, though it is taught in some classes. In Prince Edward Island the topic is under discussion by the education department's curriculum board.

Where such courses are being added, it is often at the request of the public. Home and school groups in Ontario have been encouraging school boards to extend classes. A North Vancouver school board questionnaire indicated 70 per cent of parents favor a program in the schools.

The medical society in East Kootenay, B.C., and the Fernie and Cranbrook school boards in British Columbia are considering birth control courses in schools because of concern at the number of unwanted pregnancies.

Where sex education is taught, there is a wide variation in what is included. Some school boards have comprehensive instruction that begins in the lower grades and continues through high school. Between that and no course at all are courses restricted to a few grade levels, and those comprising one or two talks on the subject.

In most cases it is taught as part of a health course, in guidance or in home economics classes. It is rarely called sex education, a fact emphasized by several educationists.

A full course is usually called family life education or some variation on the same. At its most extensive it goes beyond the biology of sex and deals in sociology, in relationships, responsibilities and stresses in the family and community.

Such names are also used as euphemisms, however, because although they are rare, controversies do occur over sex education classes.

One of the liveliest has been going on in Calgary for several years. The public school board has had to offer its course on an extra-curricular basis. Now the board has a family life specialist, Rev. Dale Berg, who says a curriculum program has been approved, to be developed "upon request from students, parents and teachers. It is definitely optional."

Toronto has had controversy, and has a school trustee who says sex education is atheistic and anti-Christian.

G. M. MacMartin, assistant superintendent of curriculum in the Ontario department of education, says a little diplomacy is necessary in "emotionally sensitive areas." He says difficulties usually occur if parents aren't told about courses and their content.

Many schools deal with the possibility of controversy by making the course optional. Saskatchewan teaches family life education in Grades 7, 8 and 9, but anyone who wants to keep a child out of the classes may do so.

In some cases, parents are invited to see what the children will learn. In Edmonton separate school board had a program for parents and curriculum director Robert Westbury says the board is having trouble keeping up with the demand for family life education.

But MacMartin says Ontario has involved teachers and parents in curriculum committees representing several schools. To help decide what will actually be taught.

The Vanier report says the educationists' full public opinion was not their primary problem. Finding room on the curriculum and training teachers were larger concerns.

Teacher training has most often been done in in-service programs. Teachers in the French-language Catholic school commission in Quebec City have been receiving a 30-hour course. The English Catholic school commission has an institution for its teachers.

Some Canadian universities now offer courses in sex education techniques for teachers. The University of Manitoba has one.

The Universities of Alberta and Calgary have programs, and have had a number of courses. Lakehead University in Thunder Bay has had a course for some time.

In some schools, outside experts handle all the teaching.

The Protestant school board of Greater Montreal has two physicians on staff who work in high schools. The women, Margaret Cates and Eleanor Findlay, approached the board with the plan. They had worked with unwed mothers, and felt sex education is needed. This year they are training high-school teachers.

"They tell you how babies are brought about and about adolescence and all that. A lot of it is discussed between teacher and students. It's a discussion, not a teacher standing up there for half an hour talking. I don't feel shy about it."

On the other hand, a student group in another part of Toronto did a survey that found the students considered their course inadequate, and the Ontario government's select committee on youth described most courses as "so circumspect as to be valueless."

Deal Gently But Firmly With Children Who Act Up To Get Attention

By DORIS CLARK

Bobby was the youngest. At the age of four, he was a creature of moods — full of the joy of living one minute, in tears the next. It isn't always very fond of the centre of the stage.

This night as he sat at the dinner table he looked at the plate, which had been set before him and said, "I not eat my dinner." Folded his arms and looked around.

His mother said, "O.K., then you can go to bed. It is either the one or the other." His response was a somewhat deflated, "Oh!"

Dinner proceeded, conversation was general and Bobby was ignored. Presently the arms came unfolded and one hand sneaked toward his again but drew a blank — if he was hoping for attention.

He spooned one mouthful into his mouth, chewed it, swallowed it, and the flavor was too much to resist. He set to in earnest and emptied his spoon. He glanced around plate before anyone else did.

Dear Doris: I am 68. I had a perforated ulcer and due to neglect from the doctor, I had peritonitis, then the ulcer was removed a year later, and I can't say I feel any better.

My husband isn't at all sympathetic and I do need a few conveniences in my later years. He refuses to put out any effort to get them. For the last 10 years I have wanted a small room put on to provide for a deep freeze. Also, we do not have water on tap. We live on a farm and he is 73 years old and won't giv up, although he can't do the work it takes to run a farm.

Don't say talk it over with your counsellor, or your minister or the doctor. We don't go to church as I can't drive the car, there isn't a counsellor I know of and the doctor is too busy to look after sickness, let alone counsel.

— Mrs. Puzzled

Dear Mrs. Puzzled: Have you seen the steel storage sheds advertised in store catalogues? One of these could easily be erected beside your home to hold your freezer. There is sure to be an order office not too far away. Your nearest lumber yard is bound to have some sort of prefabricated shed or garage which could be erected for you. No use asking your husband to use energy he hasn't got to do it.

I'm sorry about the too-busy doctor. If you would like to talk things over with someone, you could find out who by getting in touch with your Regional Welfare Office. Say you would like to discuss a family problem.

It is important — probably essential — for you to have extra help to keep your home going, when your energy is limited.

• • •

Dear Doris: I am desperate to lose weight, at least 100 pounds. My will power is practically nil. What I would like to know is does it cost much to join the Weight Watchers Club? How often do you attend and exactly how do they help a person with such low will power? I am 24, and would like to wear the young fashions to please my husband.

A fat person may be happy on the outside but constantly weeps inside. — Unhappy and Ugly

Dear Unhappy: It costs $7, to join Weight Watchers, and $3 a week thereafter. Seems like a lot? You'll save in the long run by substituting cheaper low-calorie foods for the expensive goodies in your diet.

Weekly meetings include lectures which clue you in about what foods are good for you and not too calorie-laden.

Members provide moral support and encouragement. There's never any ridicule of backsliders, and the whole thing really works.

Bruin Ban Bucked

BOSTON (AP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association has protested Boston Bruins' management's ban on outside activities for Boston players, it was reported Tuesday.

The Boston Globe said the protest was confirmed Monday by R. Alex Eagleson of Toronto, executive director of the players' association.

"We have mailed the notice of protest to Charles W. Mulcahy in his capacity as chairman of the owners' group in the owner-player council—and not in his capacity as an official of the Bruins," Eagleson said.

"Our office took this action at the instigation of player representatives on a unanimous basis from other teams, and the Bruins," Eagleson said. "The fact is that not one of the Bruins players so much as lifted a phone to call me with a complaint in this matter."

GETTING BACK IN SHAPE—Veteran Boston Bruins' defenceman Teddy Green, sidelined with a pulled groin muscle since the pre-season schedule, works out on a "skating machine" of his own design in the Bruins' clubrooms at Boston Garden. Detroit Taking on Ascending Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Howe was Howe. Ned Harkness said Tuesday night as his Detroit Red Wings prepared to meet the Bruins at Boston in one of six scheduled National Hockey League games tonight.

"And you don't replace such stars very easily," the Detroit general manager added, reflecting upon the 25-years Howe toiled at right wing for the Red Wings.

Howe retired before training camp opened this fall after establishing NHL records of 786 goals and 1,023 assists in his 25-year span with Detroit.

"But the time comes when everybody must end a career and the team has to carry on without him," Harkness said.

Harkness probably wishes Howe was back in a Detroit uniform for tonight's encounter with the Bruins, who show signs of rekindling the flame that forced the NHL to rewrite its record book last season.

In other action tonight, California Golden Seals play host to Montreal Canadiens, Buffalo Sabres meet Maple Leafs in Toronto, Chicago Black Hawks tangle with the Rangers in New York, Vancouver Canucks travel to Minnesota to meet the North Stars and Pittsburgh Penguins are at home to Los Angeles Kings.

Bruins coach Tom Johnson expects Detroit to use the same tactics the Leafs used at Boston Sunday in gaining a 2-2 tie.

"With four men on the blueline," Johnson said, it's tough to work the puck in the other end. The only thing to do is to shoot it in and be there first to get it."

"We have to get a couple of quick goals too, to make the other team open up. We did get two quick ones Sunday night but Toronto stuck to its tight defence. Other clubs might not do that, especially at home."

The Bruins, who had a poor pre-season record after winning the East Division title last year, have two wins, one loss and one tie this season. Detroit has one win and two losses and no ties.

At St. Louis, the Canucks counted once in first period and twice in the second before Gene Carr, St. Louis' No. 1 draft choice, broke Dunc Wilson's shutout bid at 8:59 of the final period.

NHL Won't Subsidize Rival League

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday he will "treat the World Hockey Association as legitimate operators coming into the hockey field."

"And I say God bless them if they can be successful," Campbell said in an interview.

"We will take a normal competitive position with respect to the acquisition of talent and we will not take an obstructive position in any way."

He said there will be no NHL moves to block WHA radio or television coverage and he thought the WHA would be able to play on NHL rinks.

"If they want to play on our rinks and we have the dates open, I am quite sure that they will be welcome," he said.

"I don't know anybody who wants to turn down a reasonable rent.

"But whether we subsidize the opposition is another matter."

Three owners of franchises in the Western Canada Hockey League—Bill Hunter of Edmonton Oil Kings, Scotty Munro of Calgary Centennials and Benny Hatskin of Winnipeg Jets—have a good chance of being awarded WHA franchises.

The league organizers plan to award franchises at a meeting in New York in November.

Currently the NHL gives about $10,000 annually to teams in the WCHL and there has been some speculation that the NHL would be indirectly subsidizing the WHA if the three WCHL owners get franchises.

"The NHL makes its half-yearly payments to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Dec. 1 and the situation should be clarified by then," Campbell said.

"It may be that as professional franchise holders, these clubs will not be allowed to operate junior teams but that's a matter to be settled in due course.

"But if these three teams become franchise holders in the other league (WHA) then we will be under no compulsion to subsidize them."

Profit Wins Russell Trophy

HAMILTON (CP) — Mel Profit, rangy tight end with Toronto Argonauts, was named winner Tuesday of the Jeff Russell Memorial Trophy.

MEL PROFIT

The 6-foot-4 230-pounder from New York City succeeds teammate Bill Symons as winner of the award which goes to the Eastern Football Conference player exhibiting highest quality of courage, fair play and sportsmanship.

The award honors a former Montreal player killed in an electrical storm in 1958.

Running back Jim Foley of Montreal Alouettes, an Ottawa native who climaxed a brilliant career at the University of Prince Edward Island by being named Canada's top college player two years ago, was named the EFC's outstanding rookie of the 1971 season.

Both winners were announced by EFC secretary Frank Gibson. Nominees for the two honors were selected by players of their respective teams and voted on by the EFC's officiating staff.

Profit, 30, is second in conference pass receptions with 38 catches for 682 yards and five touchdowns.

Foley, 23 and used principally as a slotback, has caught 19 passes. He ranks fourth in punt returns and third in kickoff return.

Queen's Golden Gaels Packing 1-2 Punch on Paper

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If you go strictly by what's on paper, Queen's University Golden Gaels have a 1-2 rushing and scoring punch that should take them to the Ontario Universities Athletic Association football title.

Halfbacks Brian Warrender and Gord McLellan already have led the Gaels to the Eastern Section's Capital Division title with a record of six wins in seven games.

Warrender, 22, a third-year medical student, and McLellan, 23, in arts, share the lead with 66 points each, made up of 11 touchdowns.

Warrender has gained 717 yards rushing in 115 carries and McLellan 697 in 78 carries to lead the Eastern Section. The West's leader is Gerry Blacker of Waterloo Lutheran with 556 yards in 83 tries followed by Dave Kerr of Western with 483

Cahill Gets Kiss of Death

EDMONTON (CP) — Leo Cahill, controversial coach of the free-spending Toronto Argonauts, was named Canadian Football League coach-of-the-year Tuesday night.

Cahill, 43, who inherited the team when Bob Shaw defected to New Orleans Saints of the National Football League in 1967, is the first Argonaut coach to receive the award since its inception in 1961.

With the honor Cahill takes what has become known as the curse of the coaches. Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders is the only coach to receive the award and guide his team to a Grey Cup victory.

Clair was coach-of-the-year in 1969 when the Riders downed Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-11 in the final.

The award was made at the annual Edmonton Eskimo alumni association $100-a-plate dinner. It was accepted on Cahill's behalf by a representative of the Argonaut club.

Cahill, one of the less popular coaches in the league, has guided the Argos to 46 wins and 30 losses in five seasons, but his hopes for a Grey Cup game always have been thwarted.

Rough Riders have e[illegible] Toronto from the Eastern Football Conference finals twice in the last three seasons. Montreal Alouettes knocked them out of the semi-final in 1970.

Argos now lead the EFC with 10 wins and three losses, four games ahead of second - place Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Cahill's success this year has been attributed to vast sums of money which the club poured out to attract good players from the United States, among them quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton and linebacker Jim Stillwagon.

Cahill was lured to the Alouettes in 1969 by former Illinois team-mate Perry Moss. He worked there under Jim Trimble in 1963 and for five games in 1964 and then quit to enter public relations work.

In April 1965 he was tipped to the head coaching job with the Rifles, applied and was accepted.

When he took over the Argos, he instituted the famous "Argo airlift" in which many Toronto rejects ultimately developed into stars with the other eight CFL clubs.

In 1969, he signed a four-year contract worth an estimated $100,000.

Expo Farm Club Rumored on Move

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — While the mayor of this city and the general manager of the parent club said there are no plans to transfer minor-league baseball's Winnipeg Whips to Albany, there remained some room for speculation Tuesday.

Mayor Erastus Corning II said it would cost as much as $300,000 to provide the International League Whips a suitable place to play. But, he added, that is a matter for the Common Council to consider.

Jim Fanning, general manager of the Montreal Expos, the parent club, said Albany is one of the cities being considered as a new home but doesn't at present have suitable facilities.

"For the moment, he said, there are no plans to transfer the franchise to the capital from Winnipeg, despite the financial bite it suffers as the western-most IL team.

Corning said it would cost between $85,000 and $100,000 to spruce up Albany's Bleecker Stadium, plus $175,000 to $200,000 to build a parking lot for 900 cars.

Corning said there would not be any increase in the stadium's 2,500-seat capacity. He said the estimates cover a "slight movement" of the field, new fencing, new lights, new rest room facilities and aluminum rather than the present concrete seats.

Corning said Expos' representatives from Montreal visited Albany Friday to look over the stadium.

Meanwhile, Robert Bottorff, general manager of the Richmond Braves, another IL team, said the franchise shift is both impending and logical. He said the transfer hinges solely on improvement of the stadium.

Bottorff said such a transfer from Winnipeg—1,000 miles from the geographical centre of the league—would tie in with the IL's generally north-south alignment and minimize travel costs.

On the other hand, an Expos spokesman in Montreal said the parent team is not even "lukewarm" toward Albany as a new home.

George H. Sisler Jr. of Rochester, International League president, professed no knowledge of a franchise switch

U.S. Riders Lead Team Competition

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The veteran anchorman of the United States equestrian team, Frank Chapot and Billy Steinkraus, finished first and second in the international puissance event Tuesday night to put the Americans on top in the team competition at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show.

Chapot, 37, a Wallpack, N.J., leather goods dealer, won the event aboard San Lucas after Steinkraus, 44, of Norton, Conn., withdrew from the final jumpoff and was placed second.

The 16 points won by the United States gave it a 36-34 lead over Canada in the team competition. Argentina, the only other team in the competition, has failed to score a point.

Chapot leads the individual riders with 14 points followed by Day, Moffat Dunlap of Toronto and Joe Fargis of Vienna, Va., with 12 points each

Belvedere Target for Quinte League Entries

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Three Quinte Hockey League entries hope to have their eyes on black, rather than black eyes, when the regular season gets under way tomorrow night.

Central Taxi, Stinson Construction and Reid's Dairy will all be intent upon unseating the black-and-gold uniformed Belvedere Hotelmen from their position of prominence in the four - team loop. The Hotelmen have been league champions, for the past two seasons, winning 42 of 50 league and play-off matches.

Despite improvements by the three challengers, Belvedere once again promises to be the team to beat. Coach Bill Vesterfelt's club will return all but four players from last season.

In addition, the league champions will be bolstered by the acquisition of former Belleville Senior "A" performer John "Shaker" Baker at left wing. Other newcomers include wingers Bob Harrison and Paul Macklin along with defenseman Lorne Miller.

The league's top goaltending duo of Frank Carr and Dave Hicks will be between the pipes after sporting a combined goals - against average of 1.86 last season. While Jack and Gene Francis, who placed one - two in the league scoring race last season will lead the attack. Jack counted 74 goals and 16 assists to cop the scoring title.

Chief opposition could come from Central Taxi, finalists from last season. The Taximen, extended Belvedere to six games in the final series administering three of the four defeats suffered by the Hotelmen last season.

Wayne "Wiener" Brown Sr. is expected to handle the coaching duties this season, while former McFarland and Mo-Hawk performer Ed Marineau has attended some of the team's workouts.

Defenceman Paul Fleming promises to provide added support in front of goalie Ken Genereaux, while top - scoring forwards include Grant Hagerman, Andy Prudden and Kevin Allen.

Last year's third - place finishers, Stinson Construction, will return about ten starters from last season's entry. Included among the returnees will be netminder Larry DiPietro, who captured the league's Most Valuable Player award last season. DiPietro had performed on Belvedere's league championtions the previous season. Other newcomers include Vaughan Cunningham and former Junior "B" performer Jim Rutherford, along with Rick Rosebush and Ted Waite who played Intermediate hockey with Wellington last year.

Last year's doormats, DCA Transfer have come up with a new name and, hopefully, a new game. Playing under the sponsorship of Reid's Dairy they will hope to escape the league basement and return to the form which saw them make the league finals two seasons ago.

Playing-coach Paul Zakos, who returns to the position after a one-year absence feels that, "We're a lot better organized this season and I think the guys are pretty enthusiastic about playing, which should make a difference."

Also back after a year's leave is winger Bill McGuire who was one of the league's top performers two seasons back. In goal Reid's have former Quinte League performer Bob Cook and newcomer John Ganter who was a member of the Queen's University varsity hockey team last year. Among the other returning players are Ron Post, Bill Rushlow, Ron Pointer, Errol Johnston, Jim McKay, Don Robson and Don Goodfellow.

The league begins action this Thursday at the Memorial Arena with Central Taxi meeting Reid's in an 8.15 game and Stinson's tackling Belvedere at 9.45 p.m.

Fearsome Foursome

While they may not have quite the stature of the Los Angeles Rams' famed defensive wall, a quartet of Reid's Dairy hockey defenders show they are capable of manning a solid goalmouth wall. Defenceman Bill Barberstock heads for a loose puck ,while goalie Bob Cooke scrambles to the open side of the net as winger Bill Rushlow and rearguard Wayne Woods prepare to lend support. Reid's finished a final tune-up last night for the opening of the Quinte Hockey League season, which will take place Thursday night.

Football Dangerous But Not Too Deadly

by
Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

FOOTBALL INJURY statistics are constantly being dragged out by critics as reasons why the sport deserves less attention at the high school level.

To keep the alarmists happy, we should note that there are 3.9 deaths annually in the United States for each 100,000 participants in football.

But Baltimore neurosurgeon Dr. Charles Henderson hastens to point out that represents only one football fatality annually for every three million man-hours of participation.

Dr. Henderson's latest statistics, for 1964, revealed that the death rate per 100,000 participants in other global sports that year was 16.7 for power boat racing, 129 for auto racing, a surprising 133.3 for horse racing, and a not so unpredictable 278.6 for motorcycling.

"Football seems almost sedentary when comparing deaths on the gridiron with those in other sports," said Dr. Henderson. "The hazards or ordinary driving of an automobile are nine times greater for young men from the 15 to 22 years of age than participation in football."

WHILE DEATH, the ultimate malady, does not seem to be the football threat it is cracked up to be, ordinary injuries are.

"No team sport anywhere in the world has an incidence of injury more frequent than American football," Dr. Henderson reveals in his study, noting that the average high school football player goes into a season with a 20 per cent chance of being injured, with an eight per cent possibility of serious physical harm.

The good doctor suggests helmet refinements would do much to alleviate the problem. We suggest there are too many people playing high school football who shouldn't be, that are there only because it's the thing to do, representing the old alma mater and all that fuddle-duddle.

GREATER CHOICE being offered high school students in their physical education programs is to be applauded. The day when you tried out for football, basketball, track, or were considered some sort of an inferior physical specimen are gone.

In addition to the usual team sports, city schools, for instance, have been offering instruction in everything from golf to skiing.

Lou Lefaive, head of the federal government's Fitness and Amateur Sports Directorate, is a firm believer in school sport being the breeding ground for any future national champions.

"I'm firmly convinced that if Canada is to go anywhere in sports, it will happen only when sports become a meaningful part of the school system. Some schools don't yet recognize sport as being part of the total education . . . it still seems to be a fringe activity."

Lefaive notes wryly that most schools still tend to overemphasize team sports like football "which is why our girls did well and our boys didn't at the Pan American Games at Cali".

THE KEY, as Lefaive sees it, "is trying to introduce sports in the school system that are more international, like tennis and badminton".

We might add, they're also more individual. Teamwork is a wonderful thing, but there is a lot to be said for the mental self-discipline that can be imparted through individually - oriented activities like weightlifting, gymnastics, or wrestling. These are also pastimes that do not automatically terminate with one's education as do many others.

North America has a fixation about body contact sport. Broadcaster Tony Kubek enthuses: "Football is the perfect spectator sport for the type of world we live in. It's a violent sport. It's fun, it's exciting, it's something with which we can become emotionally involved."

Mr. Kubek, we all recall, earned his daily bread as a professional baseball player with the once-mighty New York Yankees.

AIR CONDITIONING, of all things, has been fingered as a potential danger to those who do take delight in chasing the pigskin.

The American Medical Association feels athletes should get away from the artificial coolers occasionally in the sweltering summer months to give their sweating mechanisms time to adapt.

"Every fall, particularly since air conditioning became popular, there have been cases of serious illnesses — and even some deaths — from heat illness in athletes," an AMA report notes.

Complete disregard for the body's natural desire to perspire can lead to heat fatigue — a depletion of salt and water from the body that dulls an athlete's alertness, thereby increasing his susceptibility to injury, the more serious heat exhaustion, and the often deadly heat stroke.

SALT TABLETS, far from being the salvation that many think, can irritate the stomach, the AMA warns. Just a teaspoonfull of salt in six quarts of drinking water can restore the body's lost fluids.

Also shot down are rubberlined suits, used by many athletes to "sweat down."

The study suggests that workouts should be scheduled for cooler parts of the day, with intermittent rest periods and water consumption at least once hourly by participants.

Best precaution of all, the AMA report says, is a sound year - round conditioning program. Don't try and cram a year's physical exertion into two months of scrimmages.

Picton Steps Gently

The Picton seniors slipped past Centre Hastings by a 14-13 count to tie BCI for second place in the eastern division standings. They have a 2-1 record, while the senior Collegians are 2-2. BCI will be awarded a play-off spot in the event of a tie, however, because of their 19-17 opening game win over Picton.

In the junior bout, Centre Hastings broke their winless streak of four games with a 19-6 victory. Their Picton counterparts remain winless in five outings this season.

Flyers Share Second Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls grabbed sole possession of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Tuesday night by playing to a 4-4 tie with first-place Oshawa Generals in Niagara Falls.

In the only other league game, St. Catharines Black Hawks defeated Hamilton Red Wings 7-5 in Hamilton to move into a fourth-place tie with Ottawa 67s.

Jim Schoenfeld, with two goals for Niagara Falls, scored the tying goal with less than two minutes left in the game. Don Lever scored the other goals for the Flyers.

Alston Best Pilot

NEW YORK (AP) — Venerable Walt Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers, who says "I can't think of anything I'd rather do than manage," was named today as the Associated Press' manager of the year in the National League for the fifth time.

The 59-year-old Alston, in his 18th season as manager of the Dodgers, piloted Los Angeles to a second-place finish in the NL's West Division. Los Angeles wound up one game behind San Francisco after trailing the Giants by eight games going into the final month of the season.

WALT ALSTON

Charlie Dee, in his first full season as San Francisco manager, was a close second with 65 votes. Danny Murtaugh, the 1970 manager of the year who led Pittsburgh Pirates to this year's World Series champions, was third with 57 votes. The voting was based only on regular season performances.

The affable Alston, however, paid tribute to Murtaugh's effort. "That guy in Pittsburgh did quite a job," said Alston from his home in Dartrown, Ohio.

Alston was named NL manager of the year in 1955, 1959, 1965 and 1966, all seasons in which he guided the Dodgers to the league championship. He also took them to the NL title in 1956 and 1963.

Dick Williams of Oakland Athletics was named earlier in the week as American League manager of the year.

Flood Fight Still On

WASHINGTON (CP) — Curt Flood's two-year fight to make baseball subject to anti-trust laws may be settled finally in the middle of next season by the U.S. Supreme Court.

For the first time since 1953 the high court agreed Tuesday to hear arguments on a legal attack on the structure of professional baseball.

In 1922 the court decided baseball is essentially a sport and not a business. In 1953 the court said any change in baseball's status should be up to Congress.

Flood's case may be delayed by two court vacancies, but a final decision is expected by June Former Justice Arthur J. Goldberg will argue for the one-time all-star centrefielder at a hearing tentatively set for mid-January.

Flood filed suit after St. Louis Cardinals traded him in 1969 to Philadelphia Phillies. He refused to report and sat out the 1970 season while years' federal courts rejected his claim.

He played briefly with the Washington Senators last spring but left the team at mid-season and is believed to be living in Majorca, Spain.

Off-track Betting 'Fastest Growing Business'

NEW YORK (AP) — Off-track betting is "the fastest growing business in America" despite some of its shortcomings, Howard Samuels, chairman of the New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., said Tuesday.

In a six-page report to Mayor John V. Lindsay on the first six months of the part-mutuel betting, Samuels said OTB ranks as the 80th largest business in the city and the 221st in the country.

Samuels conceded that the system was "not free of problems and disappointments."

Its computer betting system a[illegible] experienced "occasional breakdowns and bugs," but the service had improved.

Samuels, at a city hall news conference, said that the total handle since off-track betting began April 8 totaled $60,132,018 as of last Saturday, with an average daily handle of $700,000.

Samuels said that the betting is keeping pace with the projection made by Lindsay of a 25-million profit to the city in the fiscal year ending next July 1.

In an effort to show that the racing industry and off-track betting should be partners, Samuels said he plans to ask the state legislature "to grant greater protection" to harness and flat-track operators.

Under the present law, the racetracks get one per cent of the off-track betting handle and one per cent of the OTB handle.

Samuels said he hopes to persuade the legislature to grant "a more equitable share" of OTB profits to the industry.

Lakers Add Coaching Star

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Lakers have not won a National Basketball Association championship since moving to the West Coast from Minneapolis in 1961, although they have three of the league's all-time superstars in Elgin Baylor, Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West.

Now they have added a fourth star, who may make the Lakers shine more than ever: Coach Bill Sharman, who guided Utah Stars to last season's American Basketball Association championship.

Sharman, a former star player with Boston Celtics, has seen the Lakers produce three glittering performances in their first three games. The latest was a 123-106 romp over Buffalo Braves Tuesday night.

In other NBA games, Milwaukee blitzed Cleveland 116-82, Seattle edged Cincinnati 101-100, New York downed Golden State 93-84, Boston trounced Baltimore 134-114 and Detroit nipped Portland 101-99.

TORONTO (CP) — Teams from Argentina and the United States will compete against Canada in Royal Horse Show jumping competition here Nov. 12-20, officials of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair announced Tuesday. The Royal is the final event on the annual North American fall jumping circuit.

EARL WEAVER

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver, who was bypassed this week for American League Manager of the Year honors, has signed his 1972 contract, the Orioles announced Tuesday. Under the 41-year-old pilot, the Orioles have won three AL pennants and one World Series and have a 366-198 won-lost record.

Laguna, 28, will enter Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami for treatment, according to the source.

He apparently had been afflicted with the disease when he fought Scotland's Ken Buchanan for the title at Madison Square Garden last month.

* * *

LONDON (AP) — Light-heavyweight Chris Finnegan, 170, the Commonwealth champion, outpointed Hal Carroll, 173½, of Syracuse, N.Y., in a 10-round bout Tuesday night and earned himself a shot at world champion Bob Foster. Finnegan, the Olympic gold medalist at Mexico City in 1968, outboxed his opponent despite receiving a slight cut at the start of the fifth round.

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuter) — Heavy rain halted the opening foursomes matches today only two hours after the start of the Commonwealth amateur golf tournament on the Middlemore Course here.

With at least two greens waterlogged, it was not immediately known when play would resume in the foursomes though tournament officials decided to reschedule today's singles for Friday.

When rain drove the players off the course, Britain and Canada were each ahead in one match and level in the third. New Zealand was leading in all three foursomes against Australia.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — A five-man crew from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club leaves today for Vancouver to take up a challenge issued by the Royal Vancouver acht Club in a race series beginning Friday.

The best-of-three series will see the Toronto crew matching sailing skills against a Vancouver crew in equally-matched Spencer 31s.

The 31-f-o-o-t cruising-sailing sloops, provided for this first challenge series by the RVYC, were designed by John Brandlmeyer of Vancouver and built there by Spencer Boat Works.

COLOGNE (AP) — West Germany's 1 F. C. Cologne defeated Dundee of Scotland 2-1 in a match for the UEFA soccer cup here Tuesday. Paul Scheermann put Cologne in the lead with a goal in the 30th minute but Kinnimouth tied it 1 1 24 minutes later. Hannes Loehr scored the winning goal shortly before the end of play.

SEVEN STEPS TO SUCCESS IN FREEZING MEATS:

PREPARE meats quickly and carefully for the freezer.

PACKAGE in odorless, tasteless, moisture-vapor resistant freezer wrap or containers to prevent meat from drying out and protect it from absorbing flavors.

FREEZE at zero degrees fahrenheit as soon as possible after packaging.

STORE frozen meats at zero degrees fahrenheit or lower with as little variation in temperature as possible.

WORKING PEOPLE: LIFE IN A DOWNTOWN CITY NEIGHBORHOOD — By James Lorimer and Myfanwy Phillips

Here is a world which many Canadians know only from newspaper reports and government statistics — the world of a downtown low - income neighborhood. For three years James Lorimer and Myfanwy Phillips lived on Minster Lane in central Toronto. They got to know their neighbors and took part in many of the activities of the area. They kept a journal and Miss Phillips took photographs of people she saw in parks and in the streets. Together they give a portrait of a way of life.

THE PAPER TYRANT: JOHN ROSS ROBERTSON OF THE TORONTO TELEGRAM — by Ron Poulton

It is interesting, in the light of the Toronto Telegram's ceasing to publish, to find a book about that paper's founder, John Ross Robertson emerges from this biography as a dynamic and enigmatic man who contributed immensely to Canadian life. In addition to publishing the Telegram until his death in 1918, Robertson used his fortune to further the welfare of children, including the Hospital for Sick Children. He served in the House of Commons for four years, promoted amateur hockey and wrote a history of Freemasonry in Canada. The Paper Tyrant is a record of a fascinating man and a fascinating age.

FORCED GROWTH — by Philip Mathias

This book scrutinizes a new area of Canadian economic policy. It looks at how and why provincial governments seek new industries and the jobs they create, the pitfalls that lie in wait for governments, and the steps that would guarantee that the taxpayer is not taken for a ride. There is the inside story of how unknown European promoters got $92 million from successive Manitoba governments to build a pulp and paper complex at The Pas — a complex which has recently been called into receivership by the Sterling Government. Other projects analyzed are the heavy water plant fiasco at Glace Bay, Nova Scotia; a fish plant complex in PEI; Saskatchewan's two pulp mills built with heavy public involvement and controlled by a New York-based firm, and Brinco's huge and successful Churchill Falls hydro project. Written by an assistant editor of the Financial Post and intended for the general reader, this is an enlightening look at government sponsorship of industry.

THE CANADIAN POLITICAL PROCESS — edited by Orest M. Kruhlak, Richard Schultz, Sidney I. Probshtchy

The editors state that these articles on Canadian politics have been selected for their depth, pleasing style, information and quality of analysis. The book opens with a discussion of value differences between the United States and Canada and goes on to deal with definitions of Canadian society, the way in which parties and pressure groups act as intermediaries between the citizen and government, how decision - making takes place, and an analysis of who does the decision-making.

THE REVOLUTION SCRIPT — By Brian Moore

In October 1970, British Trade Commissioner James Cross was kidnapped from his home in Montreal. Brian Moore, author of seven novels has re-created, through the minds and actions of the kidnappers themselves, the events of the crisis from the kidnapping of Cross, through the abduction and murder of Pierre Laporte to the final flight to Cuba. There has been much written on the political aspect of the affair, but Mr. Moore conveys the suspense of the drama and an understanding of the motives of the four men and the girl involved.

There are 60 thousand smokers of marijuana and seven thousand hard drug addicts in the Philippines, narcotics experts say.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: When does Disneyland open near Orlando Florida?

ANSWER: The first phase of the 27,500 acre project, new concept in resorts, will be inaugurated this month with the opening of Walt Disney World's "Vacation Kingdom". The habitat phase covers 2,500 acres and represents an outlay of approximately 200 million dollars. Located 15 miles southwest of Orlando, bounded by U.S. 27, Interstate 4, and Florida's Turnpike, this attraction will adjoin the newly incorporated city of Lake Buena Vista, the host community. The entrance is located 4 miles west of Lake Buena Vista on U.S. 192, 1½ miles off I-4.

The gates will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. daily. There will be three different types of admission to Walt Disney World. General admission including unlimited use for one day of the Walt Disney World transportation system, admission to Magic Kingdom Theme Park, and all free shows, exhibits and entertainment, will be $3.50 for adults; $2.50 for juniors, ages 12-17 and $1 for children ages 3-11. The general admission fee will not include the cost of rides. The seven ride ticket book, which will include general admission, plus seven attractions of the bokker's choice will be $4.75 for adults; $4.25 for juniors, ages 12-17 and $3.75 for children ages 3-11. The eleven ride ticket book, which will also include general admission, plus 11 attractions of the visitor's choice will be $5.75 for adults; $5.25 for juniors, ages 12-17 and $4.75 for children ages 3-11. Prices and hours will be subject to change without notice.

Walt Disney World combines Magic Kingdom Theme Park, similar to California's Disneyland plus many new adventures and entertainment features, with theme resort hotels, water sports and every kind of outdoor recreation, all connected by a varied network of transportation. Twin monorail beams provide both local and express service, traveling a six mile circuit.

In the centre of the vacation kingdom is the 650-acre waterway with 4½ miles of white sand beaches providing opportunities for swimming, water skiing, fishing, and sailing. Nearby are two 18 hole championship golf courses with a club house, practice greens, and driving range. Other facilities include nature trails, picnic grounds, bicycling, and camp sites in Fort Wilderness. From the entrance gate, visitors drive a 5 mile boulevard to a 12,000 car parking area (parking fee 50 cents). Trams will take guests from their cars to the main entrance complex on the south shore of the lagoon. Here pets may be checked into Kid Kan Kennel Complex a "pet motel". For the trip across or around the lagoon, visitors may begin the first of many journeys by boarding evocation trains pulled by steam-engines for a complete circuit of the 100 acre Park, past Adventureland, Frontierland, Liberty Square, Fantasyland, Tomorrowland and back to Main Street, U.S.A., of 76 years ago where they may stroll about or choose double decker omnibuses, horsecars fire engines, or horseless carriages.

Adventureland takes guests "on safari" along a river to a sanctuary for island castaways. The Island Treehouse, which rises more than 60 feet above the crocodile infested waters, includes the Swiss Family Robinson's living quarters and a secret lookout with a view of all adventureland.

Frontierland brings visitors into the frontier America of cowhands, Indians, and lodge pole theatres of more than 100 years past. Guests board canoes or keel boats and travel up the Rivers of America, past Tom Sawyer Island, the trapper's cabin, and buffalo hunters' camps.

In Liberty Square, land of the Colonies, a giant oak tree supports the signal lanterns of the Minutemen scouts. The silver lantern music hall has a comedy, dancing and songs.

Entered through Cinderella's Castle, Fantasyland is at the apex of the Magic Kingdom. Here It's a Small World has doll-like children of many lands singing and dancing during a water-borne musical. Guests may choose an aerial journey with Dumbo, the Flying Elephant, or join the gang on Peter Pan's flight to Never Never Land.

Fantasyland visitors may shirt away in a teacup at the Mad Tea Party or take the overhead skyway on a high journey to Tomorrowland.

Tomorrowland visitors may select a jet-speeded visual trip across America the Beautiful as seen in the spectacular circle-vision 360 motion-picture theatre, a flight to the moon aboard a mammoth space ship of the future or a Grand Prix Raceway.

Pepin Fears Free Trade

FREDERICTON (CP) — Free trade arrangements with the United States might give Canada great economic benefits but would entail sacrificing Canadian sovereignty, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Tuesday night.

Rejecting such a move, the minister said in a speech to the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council:

"We, in Canada, want to retain our identity. We think of ourselves in Canada as 'different' and we intend to remain so. We have a healthy respect for diversity."

A free trade arrangement with the US., with Canadian access to markets there secured by treaty, has been suggested as a possible solution to Canada's current trade problems, sparked in part by U.S. protectionist moves, Mr. Pepin said.

But there would be a tendency for all decision-making to move vulnerability to U.S. influences be adoption of "continental politics" which would erode Canadian sovereignty.

Canada preferred to "maintain a broad multilateral approach to international trade" and improve trade flow by dismantling barriers.

Treasury Experts Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial treasury experts will meet federal finance department officials in Montreal today and Thursday to discuss tax law changes and Finance Minister E. J. Benson's mini-budget.

High on the agenda, officials here said, are discussions about federal-provincial tax collecting arrangements which will need to be amended if Ontario is to be able to make a three-per-cent reduction in its personal income tax for this year.

The federal-provincial meeting is being held in Montreal because of a crowded hotel and conference accommodation situation in Ottawa, brought on by the state visit of Premier Alexei Kosygin of Russia.

A federal-provincial meeting of finance ministers and provincial treasurers is likely to be held early next month. Today's meeting of officials is in preparation for it. It is a closed meeting and no announcements are expected before the finance ministers meet.

Mr. Benson cut basic personal income taxes at the federal level by three per cent in his mini-budget Oct. 14. This is being done by adjusting the 1971 income tax returns, to be filed by next April 30.

People who have paid taxes by payroll deduction or instalments during the year at the old rate will be entitled to a refund when they file their returns next spring.

Premier William Davis, campaigning for re-election in Thursday's Ontario election, has said he will cut Ontario's provincial tax by three per cent if arrangements can be made under the tax collection agreement with Ottawa. Officials here said this probably can be worked out, though it will require an amendment to the agreement.

Frost Sees Davis Sweep

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Leslie Frost, former premier of Ontario, greeted Premier William Davis at a rally Tuesday night and confidently predicted the Progressive Conservative party will win 75 seats in Thursday's election.

But he said sadly: "The days of the great political meetings are over."

Noting today's high-pressure campaigns with balloons and bands and extensive media advertising, Mr. Frost, who retired in 1961, said he liked the old way better.

He said you couldn't beat the style of shaking hands and patting a man on the shoulder.

And he demonstrated it in the Lindsay armories as he greeted old friends, calling most of them by their first names.

One reporter asked how old he was.

As he made his way smiling through the crowd, an elderly woman watched him and sighed:

"I wish he was young enough to run again."

Uruguay To Vote Next Month

Whether the lights stay on in guerrilla-troubled Uruguay could well depend on what happens next month, when the country has its general elections.

Once envied in Latin America for its prosperity and political stability, Uruguay now has to live with the notoriety of the Tupamaros guerrillas, left-wing activists who have set a pattern for the hemisphere with kidnappings and political embarrassment.

When British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson left here for home Sept. 10 after being held eight months and a day by the Tupamaros, he said he still loved Uruguay and would return.

In the last five years, an estimated 200,000 have emigrated to Argentina, Brazil, or, if they had the right qualifications, to Canada, the United States and Australia.

On Nov. 28, general election day, those left behind will have a chance to indicate how they feel about a situation which has allowed the Tupamaros to emerge in this once-prosperous little country which is a buffer state on the Rio de la Plata estuary between Argentina and Brazil.

The guerrillas' campaign against President Jorge Pacheco Areco has been aimed at discrediting both him personally and the country's long-established democratic system, which the Tupamaros argue has become a fraud.

There has been no evidence that guerrilla leaders seek political power for themselves at present. They have not announced any alternative government.

They have apparently been out to destroy the system, to create a climate in which politics become polarized and the masses militant.

Fischer Wins Again

Petrosian resigned on the 34th move after nearly four hours of play.

The game was in Fischer's favor all the way through but not by a large margin. At the end he was able to get both his rooks on the seventh rank and start a mating attack. Petrosian had no defence.

The victory gave Fischer a commanding lead in the series. He now has 4½ points to 2½ for Petrosian. The first player to reach 6½ points wins the series and the right to play Boris Spassky of Russia for the world championship.

Spending, Reorganization Are Basic Liberal Themes

PICTON (Staff) — Government reorganization and government spending provide the two basic themes of the Liberal party's election campaign.

This statement was made by Barry Young, Liberal candidate for the Prince Edward — Lennox riding during a meeting of the Picton Liberal Association at Queen Elizabeth school last night.

Mr. Young referred to "the increasing insensitivity" of government and suggested most persons have been frustrated on at least one occasion by red tape.

He stressed his party supports a streamlining of the cabinet in Ontario, reducing the number of government departments from 28 to 12. One cabinet minister would be placed in charge to formulate policy with other ministers.

Mr. Young said administration, consequently, suffers and suggested his party would establish and appoint legislative deputies to implement policies "with fairness and justice."

The Liberal candidate said the concept of a streamlined cabinet seemed "good enough to steal" in the eyes of today's Ontario government.

Mr. Young told members of the Liberal Association the party will appoint an ombudsman to police the government making it impossible for problems to be concealed in the civil service or in a department.

Riding offices also would be opened in each riding regardless of its political persuasion if the Liberals win the provincial election.

This step would provide all persons with an ear for their problems.

Mr. Young said a streamlined cabinet coupled with an ombudsman's services and riding offices would "go a long way toward making the government responsible."

The speaker discussed government spending with reference to the education budget, which he claimed is "the biggest issue in this campaign."

Ratepayers, teachers and students have indicated to him that they feel education costs and programs are out of hand and there is a lack of follow-up in the system.

Mr. Young said three or four highly expensive experimental programs have not been followed up and suggested the goal seems to be merely their implementation.

If the Liberals win in Thursday's election, 80 per cent of education costs will be transferred away from municipal land assessments to be paid from provincial revenues.

Mr. Young commented his party does not say this plan will cost any less or any more but it does insist it represents a fairer way to raise the needed funds.

Local control of education will be maintained through the 20 per cent cost balance.

"We will experiment only with new uses for our school systems," declared the candidate.

He added the trimester system will be introduced in universities located in areas where persons are willing to try it.

An effort will be made to combine public libraries with high school libraries as a cost reducing step.

A victorious Liberal government also will introduce a 30 year development plan for the province of Ontario with the Prince Edward - Lennox riding designated as a growth area.

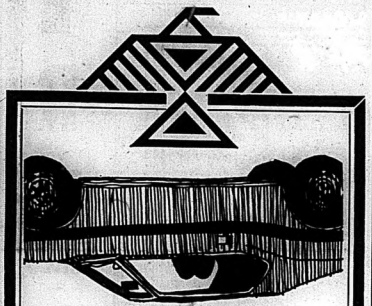
Mr. Young claimed the Lennox Generating Station can be used "as a shot in the arm" for this area.

Tourism in Prince Edward will be promoted and efforts will be encouraged to harmoniously couple heavy industry with other types.

County to Bail Out Arena

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County councillors have agreed to extend financial aid to the arena commission although there are no funds now available in the budget for this rescue project.

County warden Allan Anderson said a large group of representatives from the arena commission met with the finance and personnel committee this month to discuss the need for a $3,000 grant to continue operations.



"We have to keep them going, I guess," he observed.

Warden Anderson termed the arena in Picton "one of the places where our young people develop and grow up," and added recreation seems to be the theme of modern education.

Council decided to review the arena commission's request for a grant before February 1972, thus giving the commission the power to borrow the needed funds.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

Assume West starts out with K-A of hearts, which South ruffs. Declarer plays the ace of spades followed by a spade to the king. West showing out.

If declarer were now to make the mistake of drawing East's remaining trumps, he would at the same time run himself out of them and find the contract unmanageable.

South therefore delays th extraction of trumps in order to first force out the ace of clubs.

But when he plays the four from dummy, on which East follows with the eight and South the queen, West must duck the queen to defeat the contract. If h fails to do this, South makes the hand regardless of what West plays next.

After West ducks the queen, declarer can do no better than play another club. This time West wins with the ace and, having noted his partner's high-low to show a doubleton, plays a third round of clubs. East ruffs and later gets a diamond to put the contract down one.

However, South can make the hand if, at the start, he anticipates the possibility of a 4-1 trump division. Instead of ruffing the ace of hearts at trick two, he should discard a diamond — which is a loser in any case — and in that way maintain control over trumps.

Once South does this, he is on Easy Street. West cannot shorten declarer in trumps with a third round of hearts, because South would ruff it in dummy, and any other lead West can make would permit South to safely draw trumps and then force out the ace of clubs.

Tic Douloureux Explained

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about tic doulooureux or facial neuralgia? Does it start gradually or suddenly? Can you tell me something about its cause and treatment? I don't seem to get much encouragement.—M.P.H.

Tic douloureux is one of the commonest varieties of neuralgia, meaning pain along a nerve. In this case it is the trigeminal nerve, a three-branched one in the face. One branch goes to the forehead and eye area, a second to the cheek, the third to the jaw.

Attacks are sudden, stabbing pains in the face. The area may vary depending on which branches of the nerve are affected. While the attacks don't last long they are intensely painful, and may occur several times a day or may come only occasionally.

The cause is not known—probably there is no single cause. Malocclusion of the teeth seems tombe one; a tumor of the nerve is another; compression of the nerve in its bony canal still another.

Since the ailment is so painful, there have been vigorous efforts to find effective remedies. Success varies with the case. Injections of hot water or alcohol (to deaden sensation in the nerve) are used less often now than heretofore because relief is only temporary. Repeated injections may last for shorter periods.

Medicinally, inhalation of trichlorethylene or Dilantin, or more recently a drug called Tegretol, have all been used, the most favorable results being reported on the last one. It is taken by mouth three or four times a day and gives prompt relief, but it must be watched carefully because it can affect blood cells.

When a patient does not tolerate the medicine well, or does not respond to it, permanent relief can be achieved by surgery —cutting the nerve. This also has the effect of leaving the side of the face feeling numb. (Not paralyzed, however.)

Attacks of the tic may subside spontaneously, but more often they tend to become more frequent as time passes, unless treatment can stop them.

One pitfall to guard against is that when medication stops the attacks patients sometimes think their troubles are over, stop the medication, then have the attacks resume.

Dr. Thosteson: I have had a most uncomfortable sore in my nose for about a month now. I clean it every morning but it soon forms a scab again. It also has a most unpleasant odor. About five years ago I came across something like it in a medical book but do not recall what the term was.—J.B.

Maybe an ulcer of some sort; maybe something more serious. You recall one of the danger signs of cancer, don't you: "A sore that does not heal?" So by all means see a doctor for diagnosis, and treatment if necessary.

Dr. Thosteson: Is there a cure for angina (heart pain)? My doctor recommended niacin. Is there anything else?—Mrs. P.A.

Agina frequently can be helped by medicines that dilate the arteries. Niacin is one of them, but there are others. The classical one is a tablet of nitroglycerin placed under the tongue. Variations of drugs of the nitrite type also are used.

Frequently, a program of graduated exercise lessens the need for medication, but such an exercise program should be undertaken only under your doctor's general supervision. Overdoing it can be harmful, of course.

MEET IN TORONTO

TORONTO (CP) — Student engineering teams from universities throughout Canada and the United States are to meet at the University of Toronto in August to discuss plans for a competition aimed at designing the best possible urban vehicle. The Urban Vehicle Design Competition, the successor to last year's transcontinental Clean Air Car Race, will pit student teams from more than 40 universities against each other in an effort to develop prototype vehicles specifically designed to overcome urban driving problems.

Malton Flights Back to Normal

TORONTO (CP) — Airline traffic returned to normal at Toronto International Airport Tuesday morning when a dense fog that had disrupted flights since Monday night lifted.

Delays in flights began about 6 p.m. Monday night, and by early Tuesday all traffic was grounded. The fog lifted about 8 a.m. to allow the resumption of some traffic, before it settled down again.

But by 10 a.m., it lifted again and traffic returned to normal.

The weather bureau said an "air inversion" caused heavy fog conditions over a vast area from Michigan to central southern Ontario.

The inversion kept pollution index figures high in Toronto and Hamilton—24 and 32 respectively at 7 a.. by noon. Toronto had a reading f 21 and Hamilton 31.

The provine's air management branchasked major industrial polluters in the Hamilton area to curtail some operations for the rest of the day.

The weather bureau says an air inversion occurs when a mass of warm air is trapped over an area and blocks the normal rising air currents that carry off fog and pollutants.

What The Stars Say

General guide—Temper can flare this morning when folks refuse to budge an inch. A lack of major lunar aspects follows for the rest of the day, adding to the confusion. The combination of obstinacy and believing that everything is just dandy can set quite a few up for a fall.

Aries (March 21-April 19). You'll be able to cope more successfully with monetary limitations by talking things over with experts. Find out what you've been doing wrong.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). If fate, you'll find people more anxious to point out just how lucky you really are. Pollyannas are everywhere today.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Even if you can't publicly own up to your mistakes, at least admit them to yourself. Ignoring your own guilt will just invite a repetition of the same errors.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Sometimes relationships that are formed to help us learn a few of the harder lessons in character building and maturity are destroyed in the process.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Upheavals in personal affairs, notably family matters, are best handled quickly and without further postponements. It's time you burned your bridges.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Optimism should not be bottled up. If you have reason to feel hopeful, don't hesitate to express your enthusiasm. Folks around you need to know things can get better.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Don't continue to hide your talents or save your best efforts until you're adequately compensated. Do your best, even if you're only paid to be average.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). The best medicine for all your ills is an occasional defeat. When everybody tells you something is impossible, that's when your powers of genius are activated.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You're making a martyr of yourself over a few flaws of character that are no worse than anyone else's secret shortcomings. Stop punishing yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It may help (or ease the hurt you've suffered through a misplaced loyalty by telling the offender just where he can get off. Don't bottle up your anger.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Just sitting and thinking about improvements won't bring better conditions. If a job change is indicated, get out and start canvassing the field.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Unless you call a halt to unwelcome meddling by parents and home folks, you'll keep getting the same interference. Let them know your mind is made up.

Today's birthday—Your financial status this year is nobody's business but your own. By allowing partners to have a hand in managing funds, you could sustain serious losses. Ignore expert opinions and follow your intuition.

Special Was Amusing

The circus was shot in Copenhagen and concentrated on activity in a rather small ring. There was the usual assortment of acrobats, juggiecs, trapeze and wire artists. There were also dog and horse acts, but since Danish law forbids wild animal acts, the producers sent a camera crew to Italy for shots of a tamer and his tigers.

There was the usual brassy music and drum rolls. And Ed McMahon was strrrrolling some language translations. Almost anybody with average English could have done the job since Big Ed was disguised in a clown outfit.

Sesame Street Strikes Again

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sesame Street people have done it again. Now comes a new show that makes reading interesting and fun.

The ZZetric Company, which has its premiere Monday on 300 public television stations and 12 commercial stations in the United States, seems certain to do for reading what Sesame Street did for the alphabet and numbers among pre-school-age children.

Subtle humor, outrageous puns and skits performed by a repertory company—among them Bill Cosby, Rita Moreno, Judy Graubert, Morgan Freeman, and Skip Hinnant—are used to coax viewers to read words, phrases and sentences flashed onto the screen. The show has its own rock group, the Short Circus.

The half-hour daily program is aimed at school children 7 to 9 years old, and particularly those with a reading problem.

"It's almost a contradiction to use television to teach reading," said David D. Connell, executive producer for the Children's Television Workshop.

"But the general agreement was that it was worth trying. And it was agreed that we should use the cafeteria system of using elements from a number of different reading methods.

"This show stretches the technical capabilities of television. It's an extremely difficult show to write. It's tough enough to write a comedy sketch, but one that teaches the 'th' consonant blend, for instance, is really tough."

The $7-million budget for 130 shows was put up by the United States office of education, Ford Foundation, Carnegie Corp. for Public Broadcasting, and Mobil Oil Corp.

Seen in preview, The Electric Company looks like an educational offspring of Laugh-In. It is fast-paced electronically oriented, and packed with original songs that point up the lessons.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E
B I N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MPs Bicker and Dicker Over Federal Tax Reform Legislation

A time limit decision could come today—the 16th day the massive bill revising income-tax regulations has been on the Commons debating agenda. The government wants the bill in force for the tax year starting next Jan. 1.

Allan MacEachen, government House leader, has been conducting quiet, behind-the-scenes negotiations with other party representatives, hoping to find a mutually-satisfactory way to control debate on the 707-page bill, augmented now by 95 government-proposed amendments.

Gerald W. Baldwin said Tuesday his party is considering Mr. MacEachen's proposal to divide the bill into sections, handling them in sequence with a time limit on each that was expected to be placed before his party's caucus meeting today.

But Mr. Baldwin said in an interview the bill didn't lend itself to study by numbered sections. Dotted through it were items that would have an effect on various fields—small business, mineral exploration or the individual taxpayer.

Mr. Baldwin said his party would like the government to make explanations of all clauses affecting each of such fields. Then they could be discussed.

New Democratic Party and Social Credit representatives have also said they are ready to discuss a debating timetable for the bill.

Complicating the picture is the fact that only about 40 sitting days remain before the usual Christmas recess. The government in the same period needs parliamentary approval of other proposals, including tax measures outlined June 18 and last Thursday.

A main provision of the tax bill is to raise the basic personal income tax exemption—to $1,000 from $1,000 for a single person and to $2,850 from $2,000 for a married couple. This means some 750,000 Canadians who pay taxes now would not pay them next year.

No opposition party wants to be blamed for delaying the bill.

Prime Minister Trudeau has indicated that an early election call is not contemplated by the government, but opposition MPs think a stall on the tax bill might change the picture and give the government an issue.

In the Commons Tuesday, the bill remained stalled at its first clause—containing 237 parts—on the third day of clause-by-clause study.

And some broadsides were levelled at those basic personal exemptions which the government has stressed ever since it unveiled the bill last June.

Adrien Lambert, (SC—Bellechasse) said the exemptions should be $3,000 for a single person and $5,000 for a married couple. The Consumer prices had risen by about 75 per cent since 1949 when the exemptions were last changed. The new exemptions didn't go nearly far enough to reflect that jump.

Melvin McQuaid (QC—Cardigan) cited the Economic Council of Canada saying that any married couple with less than $3,000 annual income is living in poverty.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) complained the bill would continue the tax holiday treatment of extraction industries which piled up profits on the country's non-renewable resources and provided few jobs in return.

Community Works Program Elastic

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal officials say the government intends to be generous and elastic in doling out $100 million for local community works projects designed to create jobs this winter.

The program is part of a $500 million acceleration of federal make-work and job-training plans announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson in last week's mini-budget.

The over-all program breaks down this way:

—$100 million in loans for job-creating capital works projects to be undertaken quickly by the provinces and, through them, the municipalities.

—$113 million in mortgage lending by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. for public housing, home-owner houses, student housing, sewage treatment plants, and housing project land assembly, originally earmarked for 1972 but now to be made before the end of 1971.

—$100 million in grants for labor-intensive projects that will "create jobs without delay" for community improvements, half of the $100 million earmarked for municipal governments and half for voluntary community groups or private organizations.

—$99 million for federal public works, including $10 million for grants to exhibition authorities or similar bodies to build new multi-purpose exhibition buildings that might be used as community centres.

—$35 million in grants or tax relief for job training programs, including on-the-job training to be offered by employers preparing for expansion with special emphasis given to unemployed young people.

Officials are enthusiastic about the $100 million program for community works projects which are to grow from local initiatives. They liken it to last summer's $25 million Opportunities for Youth program in which young people dreamed up their own ideas and submitted projects for federal subsidy.

OMB Approves Belleville Motel as Extended Care Hospital

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Municipal Board has given the green light for the extended care hospital facility proposed for the Queen's Motor Hotel in the city's east end.

Notification of OMB approval of the zoning change required to allow operation of the hospital facility was received this morning by Dr. R. T. Potter, minister without portfolio and the Progressive Conservative candidate for Quinte riding in today's provincial election.

There was no objection to the requested zoning change presented to the OMB.

With the green light now given by the Ontario Municipal Board, Dr. Potter said every effort would be made to have the extended care hospital facility in operation by Nov. 1 or as soon as possible thereafter.

"We have already been held up for several months, and want to get the facility in operation as soon as possible," Dr. Potter said.

Although expressing pleasure that the extended care hospital facility could now proceed, Dr. Potter was nevertheless critical of what he termed as definite efforts on the part of certain people to mislead the public on the hospital question.

He referred specifically to a letter to the editor appearing in The Intelligencer which the writer "didn't have the guts to sign" and also to misleading statements regarding the financial details of the extended care unit.

Dr. Potter said an incorrect rental figure had been indicated.

And contrary to inferences given, the 50-room motor hotel was being leased fully equipped, furnished and staffed.

The Ontario Hospital Services will provide nursing

Heavy Vote Likely In Ontario Today

Thirty Ridings May Hold Key

TORONTO (CP) — Six of the eight provincial governments which have called elections since the mid-1950s have been overturned.

How now, Ontario?

That question will be answered tonight after the voters —4.4 million are eligible—cast their ballots for or against the Progressive Conservative government that has been in office for 28 years.

A heavy advance poll and warm, sunny skies were expected to ensure a good turnout at voting stations which opened at 9 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Premier William Davis conducted what his opponents called a Trudeau-style campaign during most of the six weeks since the election was called. It was a personality-oriented, no-promises approach for the most part.

His strategists were counting on Mr. Davis's strong identification with his predecessors in the premiership: the traditional picture of the staunch Tory anchor in a time of unease and confusion.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and New Democrat Stephen Lewis were hoping that the winds of change still are blowing in Canada and that voter concern over high unemployment and the threat of American economic domination would aid their issue-oriented campaigns.

Speculation about a minority government is being considered, especially by Liberals and New Democrats. The Conservatives appear to lose at least 10 of their seats for a minority government to be a possibility.

At dissolution of the legislature, the Conservatives held 68 of the 117 seats, followed by the Liberals with 27 and the New Democrats with 21. There was also an Independent, who is not seeking re-election.

The key to election victory may rest in 30 ridings that were won in 1967 with pluralities of less than 1,000 votes.

Thirteen of the seats the Liberals held at dissolution fall into this category, as do nine Tory and eight NDP seats.

The three leaders ended the 36-day campaign Wednesday repeating statements made earlier as they criss-crossed the province by air, bus and rail.

Today all three leaders are in their home ridings to await tonight's result. Mr. Davis is at his home in Brampton in Peel North; Mr. Dixon is at his farm home in the riding of Brant and Mr. Lewis is at his home in the Toronto riding of Scarborough Centre. He is a candidate in Scarborough West.

All three major parties ran full slates of candidates in the 117 ridings. There were also five Social Crediters, five Communists and 20 Independents for a total of 383 candidates.

Near East Decision Remote

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has called 1971 "the year of decision" on the Middle East crisis, but as the year's end approaches, the Arab world is wondering whether the fateful choice is that close after all.

Most observers in Beirut are inclined to believe that a decision on a peaceful settlement or war seems more remote now than it looked this past summer.

They base their assessment largely on the outcome of President Sadat's October visit to Moscow—when Soviet leaders continued to stress efforts for a political settlement—and on the announcement that President Nixon will meet Soviet leaders in Moscow next May.

They also see no signs in Egypt or elsewhere in the Arab world to indicate that preparations for war are under way as the deadline draws near.

Calling for a UN Security Council meeting over a Cairo radio last Sept. 16, President Sadat declared: "We have waited long enough, 1971 is the year of decision."

Observers point out that the Arab states have no illusions about the seriousness of a resumption of war. They know Israel cannot be easily broken.

Council Asked to Resign

U.S. Official Intimates Surtax Stays for Year

SAN FRANCISCO (CP-AP) — While U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally was telling American bankers Wednesday that the 10-per-cent U.S. surcharge on imports may continue for more than a year, Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux warned American businessmen that 150 Canadian businesses are in danger of going under if the surcharge lasts a year.

Connally told the American Bankers' Association convention here Wednesday that the surcharge is going to stay on for a while because frankly it's to our economic interest."

"It will come off when this nation has some assurance that our balance-of-payments deficit will be rectified. And we know we can't do it in a year. . . ."

But he insisted the surcharge is a "temporary" measure.

In Dallas, Tex., Cadieux told the Dallas Chamber of Commerce that the basic question in the wake of the surcharge "is whether Canada can continue to depend on trading access to the U.S. on mutually acceptable terms."

"If we cannot, then we must reconsider our whole industrial and commercial policies."

Cadieux vividly illustrated the interdependence of Canadian-American trade and economics by saying:

Today's Chuckle

Any man who says he can see through women is missing a lot.

"Like the earth and the moon, the economic gravity pulls in both directions." However, "the bigger body exerts the bigger pull and you are 10 times as big as we are.

"When we make an economic move it affects the United States; but when you make one it affects us 10 times over."

The Aug. 15 announcement of the additional levy on dutiable imports has a "profound impact on Canada," Cadieux said.

He cited a recent survey of 1,300 Canadian firms that suggests that if the surcharge continues for a year, 150 companies would be in danger of going under.

"The survey suggests that 40,000 jobs would be lost in three months, 70,000 in six, 90,000 in a year.

"Ninety thousand—or 40,000—is a lot of jobs," particularly since Canada's unemployment rate is higher than that of the U.S.

"In Quebec, the unemployment rate is between nine and 10 per cent. This severe economic fact makes the resolution of delicate issues involving the unity and identity of Canada much more difficult.

He concluded:

"To be frank, Canadians feel there seems no justification for the application of the surcharge to Canada.

"We could not avoid it by conforming to President Nixon's standards for we already conformed."

Four Shots Fired At Soviet Mission

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Police were scrutinizing a semi-automatic rifle today which they believe was used in a shooting attack on the Soviet mission to the United Nations, located in Manhattan's upper East Side.

Four shots were fired through windows at the mission Wednesday night, but missed four children and two adults in the 11th-floor office. Damage was slight, police said.

"It was very unusual that uniformed officers and a technical unit were allowed into the mission," said a police spokesman. From the angle of the bullet holes, the police team estimated that the shots had been fired from the roof of Hunter College, one street away.

Police found a Remington 241-calibre semi-automatic rifle with a telescopic sight abandoned in a 11th-floor airshaft at the college. Two live bullets and a cello case were also found in the shaft. Four spent rounds were found on a 14th-floor parapet.

Police have no suspects yet in the case.

Canadians Will Always Have Friend in North Says Kosygin

OTTAWA (CP) — Three days after his sober-faced arrival in Canada and following a few unwelcome incidents, Premier Alexei Kosygin's swarthy face softened into smiles Wednesday and he assured Canadians they will "always have a friend in the North."

It was his last full day in Ottawa, and clearly his most relaxed, as the normally unexpressive Russian premier pondered, punched and played his way through two question-and-answer sessions, attended a sitting of Parliament, lunched with Prime Minister Trudeau and glazed his day with a glittering evening reception.

At a nationally-televised 90-minute news conference, the 67-year-old premier assured his hosts that development of improved Canada-Russia relations will not be set back by the actions of "certain riff-raff."

When he appeared before the Commons external affairs committee, and later at his news conference, Mr. Kosygin was ready for questions about the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. And in both cases, the questions came early.

Pulling a reference sheet from his pocket, he said the 1.2 million Jews in Russia are as enthusiastic as any other group about building socialism and communism. Nine times more Jews had higher education than Russians.

In the last eight months, 4,450 Jews had emigrated to Israel, and this would continue. But it was true there were some restrictions —particularly for those just completing their higher education, and those with military training. Russia didn't want to supply Israel with soldiers.

Obviously prepared for all types of questions, Mr. Kosygin didn't feel as shy when asked about the 1956 invasion of Hungary and the 1968 military thrust into Czechoslovakia. These countries had asked for help, he said.

There were no indirect attacks on other countries, and he said Canada-Russia trade and friendship in the North would not be at the expense of existing friendships.

Among other things, he said:

—There should be a European security conference which would include all European states, along with Canada and the United States;

—A scientific and cultural exchange agreement signed earlier in the day will "enable Canadians to get to know the Soviet Union better and the Soviet Union to get to know Canada better;"

—Trade between the two countries will grow considerably, but major increases couldn't be expected immediately;

—He wanted to receive President Nixon in Moscow next spring just as much as President Nixon wanted to go. "It is reciprocal;"

—He favored pollution and navigation controls in the North, but it was a matter for the countries directly involved to consider, as opposed to an international convention.

—He had no interest in joining the International Monetary Fund, and he chuckled quietly as he said the ruble as you know has not been devalued;

—While Russia was doing everything it could to achieve "normalization of relations" with China; he said there has been no great progress so far.

Throughout the news conference he made repeated references to the warmth of his welcome in Canada and the efforts being made to improve Russian-Canadian friendships. In an apparent reference to the United States, he said this friendship should threaten no one "either in the south or any other direction."

Limiting Land-use Bylaw Stirs Stormy Session at Maynooth

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

MAYNOOTH — Charges of organized crime pulling the strings of local and provincial government were followed by such almost unanimous vote calling for the resignation of the tri-township council of Bangor, Wicklow and Hastings-Clure.

"Organized crime . . . I believe we're looking at this right in the face," ratepayer Henry T. Hoare said last night, followed by roars of applause from more than 150 local residents who attended a meeting of the ratepayers committee to voice objection to township bylaw 11-71.

Ratepayers charged that the township council brought in "illegal procedures" and then "foisted them on the people of the township".

They said situations were completely out of hand when residents have to resort to court action to rescind a vote which was passed without consulting the people of the three townships.

Mrs. Sybil Saylor, a cottage owner on Pagineau Lake, said such laws were probably created to "suit somebody in Toronto" rather than local residents.

When Reeve Delmont Card told the gathering that the council "had no choice" but to pass the law before presenting it to residents for their appeals, one ratepayer cried "how far are you blowing, Delmont?"

This statement, accompanied by thunderous applause, was followed by a recommendation from ratepayers' committee member Felix Brown:

"Council has taken it upon themselves to make decisions without consulting the people," he charged.

"On these grounds, I still insist this council resign."

Resident Jack Scott, who early in the meeting officially resigned from the township's committee of adjustment, tabled a motion for council to resign which, when seconded, brought a vote of all but five persons in attendance in favor of council resignation.

Mr. Hoar suggested that a loss of a $25 severance fee was also illegal. According to the committee, this fee is paid when a land-split application is made to the severance committee. Whether the motion passes or fails, the $25 is not refunded.

"This vote of confidence is very unfortunate, and I feel sorry for the reeve; I believe he's been duped.

"These matters are too big for councillors. I know them and I voted for them.

"I don't know whether it was Belleville or who it was trying to make scapegoats out of them," he added, shortly before leaving the assembly.

This control is a restricted area bylaw passed by the tri-township council, under existing planning legislation. All development is restricted to existing uses.

Both county clerk-treasurer Carl Bateman and Reeve Card have stated this freezing is a preventive measure, designed to prevent what planners refer to as "urban sprawl" — a haphazard development of land.

They also emphasized that residents could file an application for rezoning which could be taken up with the OMB while bylaw 11-71 was in effect.

This temporary freezing measure would be in force until such time as consultants can prepare an over-all, official plan for the county of Hastings. Estimates are required for this is two to three years.

But the ratepayers are hopping mad.

Edward Simmons, ratepayers committee chairman from nearby Maple Leaf, raised a message of assurance from Hon. Dalton Bales, minister of municipal affairs, an "ambiguous" statement.

"It doesn't say anything; it's just a lot of words," he told Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings, who delivered the minister's message.

Mr. Rollins repeated the assurance; "the minister of municipal affairs has given me his assurance that the bylaw pertaining to the plan would not be approved until all ratepayers have the opportunity to discuss it and make necessary adjustments."

"That's not good enough," several residents yelled.

Mr. Rollins flatly refused to become involved in lengthy discussion.

"I do not intend to get involved in a political discussion tonight. It is now an indication to me that it is more of a political issue.

"If this group wants me to withdraw (the minister's assurance) I would only be too happy to," he said.

"I'm only indicating to you that the minister would not give approval that the bylaw would get through, without appeals. I came here in good faith."

Reeve Card notified the gathering that more than 200 appeals have already been tabled before council, but half of these were for a blanket rezoning on the snow within municipality.

These will be received until Dec. 31, 1971.

One ratepayer said Hastings county planners advised the committee that council couldn't change the bylaw drafted by the county consultants.

However, the reeve said, "this is wrong; council can change it, but ony toning has to, by legislation, go before the OMB. There are a lot of changes in the bylaw now," he added.

Although the original recommendation called for 25 acres covering the construction of a dwelling, council has asked for a reduction of this to five acres.

The ratepayers aren't happy.

"Why five; why not one acre like we asked for," one resident queried?

Mr. Bateman emphasized that the restrictive zoning bylaw would save residents from having undesirable industry locate on land which could be developed for residential acreage.

This doesn't put a firm clamp on this at all. It gives the township council authorization to say where and when development can happen."

He cited a theoretical situation using a car wrecking yard as an example of an undesirable element.

Let a wrecking yard west into the area and asked township council to pass an amendment, township council is required to notify people living within 400 yards of this land so they can register any objections before council can send it to the OMB.

"It affords people now in residential zones protection from unwanted uses; and it gives township council the discretion of saying where and where they wont it," he concluded.

Apparently the situation in the tri-townships of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure began in 1969 when council hired the Cobourg consulting firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki to produce a land-use study.

Before the study was concluded, Hastings county formed its planning board in 1970 and hired the same firm to continue with this study, plus a bylaw and plan for the entire county.

To be completed by chapters, this official plan is not expected to be entirely completed for between two a and three years.

Reeve Card said such freezing would prevent pollution conditions in the northern lakes from developing any further. "Over the study is done, you should be able to put cottages on the lakes," he assured residents last night.

The ratepayers were still not convinced.

Mr. Simmons referred to present problems in Metro Toronto. He said "Metro is hamstrung for road development while waiting for OMB approval".

The committee chairman said all OMB approval hinges on an over-all provincial plan, a situation a second resident referred to as "regional government" controls.

Mr. Card expressed disappointment that the people wanted council to resign, but stressed such a vote would bring no result.

"In no way can council resign. There has to be a quorum left in council. This is a municipal law," he said.

"I'm sorry you feel this way. We have worked for you for a good number of years and we have advanced further than any other township in the county of Hastings."

He also told the gathering such mass sessions would produce few good results.

"If the people would come in and discuss this, one at a time," council would be able to deal with requests.

He told The Intelligencer, following the meeting, "this bylaw will be flexible, subject to approval from the municipal government."

Mr. Simmons, referring to the acreage limitations, said, "we are not foolish enough to think people should be allowed to build a shack haphazardly. These laws are very fine for areas that are going to be built up but when you come up here, these aren't going to apply. Twenty-five acres is to small to build a farm and too big to cut the grass."

He said "common sense" should be applied to northern development.

"We are looking for development. Industries and families want to come in, but won't because of the 25-acre restriction."

His closing remark was, "the committee is going to check into legal action on the question of township council's resignation".

Quinte Ballots Unique

Quinte riding got involved in a unique election day problem this morning — the only riding in the province so affected.

It involved printers' ink — specifically the kind used to print the ballots for today's provincial elections.

By noon it was apparent that when the deputy returning officers at the polls folded the ballots in thirds and initialed them, as required by law, the ink on the new black ballots acted as carbon paper and left the DRO's initials in the circle opposite Dr. R. T. Potter's name.

An emergency telephone call went out from Quinte riding returning officer Gerald Joyce to Roderick Lewis in Toronto, the province's chief electoral officer.

Mr. Lewis is sending a telegram to Quinte returning office, instructing all DROs to ignore the accidental mark.

Mr. Joyce, in turn, issued instructions to all 154 deputy returning officers to initial the ballots while they are unfolded.

Fog Slows Vote

Polls opened on time this morning throughout Quinte riding for 1971's provincial election.

Reports on voting varied from "very good" to "light" at 11 a.m., but all party spokesman agreed it was too early to predict voter turnout.

Heavy fog that blanketed the area early this morning was believed responsible for the preliminary light turnout, but voting is expected to pick up about 4 p.m. as factory workers leave their jobs. Another surge is expected again between 6 and 7 p.m. in the post-supper hour.

About 8 to 10 poll clerks failed to show up this morning and "we had to bustle around and pull people off the streets to do the jobs," said returning officer Joyce. Not all polls were fully manned by 10:30 a.m.

Some confusion arose at the polls due to printing errors on the voters' lists. Six enumerators who had been properly enumerated arrived at the polls to find their names omitted from the lists.

The remedy is simple, said Mr. Joyce.

Any one denied a ballot at the polls because of a printer's error can take his enumerators slip, the one left at his door a few weeks ago, to the returning officer at 381 Front St., have it certified by Mr. Joyce, and return it to the poll in exchange for a ballot.

ject. In filling the three positions will be employed by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, Belleville General Hospital and the research department.

Asked if the $35,000 figure stated in Liberal election literature was the salary to be received by the extended care facility administrator, Dr. Potter admitted that the amount would be approximately correct.

He said however, that he had no personal knowledge of the amount of the administrator's salary.

The future of the proposed extended care facility at the motor hotel property is has been uncertain since the project was first announced late in June.

The hope of OHSC was that the facility could be in operation by Sept. 1, but the necessary rezoning of part of the motel property was held up as the result of possible objection by area residents.

A public hearing was held at city hall by the city council's subordinate planning advisory committee, but while there were a few questions asked there was no actual opposition to the proposal.

Then after the required 14 day waiting period, the zoning change application was forwarded to the OMB, resulting in the approval announced today.

Changes in City Water Service Outlined to Water Association

SMITHS FALLS (Staff) — The history of Belleville's water systems, present charges for fire fighting facilities and watermain contract procedures was presented at the fifth annual conference of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Water Association here Wednesday by Belleville Utilities Commission secretary - manager, E. L. Burnham.

In his panel speech, Mr. Burnham remarked that Belleville's water works system began in the year 1887, with steam-driven pumps drawing raw water from the Bay of Quinte without treatment, to the 16½ miles of mains originally laid.

"Nothing was added and nothing was taken out of the water; it was pumped in its raw state from the Bay."

In his report, the PUC manager relates that it was not until 1919, 32 years later, that a chlorinator was installed. In 1931, rapids and filters were added.

"Algae conditions gradually got worse in the Bay of Quinte until in the late '50s filter clogging got to the point in the late summer each year that filter runs were reduced to three hours and we were using almost as much water for backwashing as we were filtering. In 1958 four microstrainers were put into service. These mechanical filters remove about 80 per cent of the algae from the raw water.

Within the past year, these same filters were modified to increase capacity by 50 per cent.

Mr. Burnham explained the largest problem at present, facing the city, is "a high taste and odors level which reaches a peak in the summer. The high taste and odor is a difficult and expensive problem to overcome and a lot of research has been carried out at our water treatment plant to discover practical ways to get rid of it."

"The problem can be overcome but the cost is high," he added.

However, Mr. Burnham assured his fellow utility panelists that Belleville has "no shortage of water." When seasonal rainfall is slew, the Bay of Quinte level drops a foot or so below normal, but this does not present a water problem, he said.

The solution to Belleville's problem, as explained at the conference here, is a cleanup of the Bay of Quinte, which Mr. Burnham said he expects to be done "as quickly as possible". Under provincial control, the Trent and Moira River water systems which feed the bay, are being gradually faced with pollution measures.

With formation of the Area Water and Sewer Board by the OWRC, a decision was reached to attempt a tap of water resources in Lake Ontario.

Although cost of one plant to service the over-all area would be less, water costs to both Belleville and Trenton would be initially more expensive.

This water source, if approved, would be connected by means of a water pipe across Prince Edward County.

At this time, factions involved in determining the future of the Lake Ontario program, are arguing that improved water quality may not be worth the expense. Official sanction has not yet been received.

Fire fighting facilities in Belleville are served directly from the PUC water lines through their city hydrants. These service costs are at present met by the water users in the community who purchase water.

Mr. Burnham expressed the Belleville PUC's feeling that "we should be deriving a good percentage of our costs on the basis of the value of the property protected and not the cost of the water used.

"Some utilities obtain revenue based on the property assessment, but this is not necessarily the fairest basis either because the building may be more costly because of fire resistive construction, a sprinkler system or some other such provision. There appears to be no uniformity among water utilities in the way fire protection costs are collected."

This proposal comes in light of the fact that fire underwriters' require fire fighting facilities in the form of adequate water, to be on hand at all times. In other words, capital is invested, which is not needed to supply domestic water.

The water used in fighting fires is treated and pumped, but it is not charged for as such. It does, however, cost money to supply," he added.

Mr. Burnham suggests the Belleville PUC could follow several different steps to collect additional revenue for providing fire-fighting water.

These include charges for supplying fire sprinkler services, a situation which met with what the PUC manager described as "opposition". One solution to such problems, he said, would be uniform rules for the entire province.

Belleville's practice concerning the letting of contracts for watermains has been to let the contract for the work or have the PUC do the installation, using their own workmen.

"It appears now that they can . . . in fact, decide to lay a watermain to a subdivision or industry without the concurrence of the commission," he added.

Mr. Burnham concluded by urging fellow utility members and managers to determine exactly where Ontario Public Utility Commissions are headed and whether the customer would suffer with such treatment.

Define Building Inspector's Role

A panel of expert building consultants answers questions from municipal inspectors during the Ontario Building Officials' Association convention at the Sun Valley Motor Inn Wednesday. Change will be necessary if the modernday building inspector is to keep up with constantly expanding technology, according to panel chairman Bob Hamilton who is also building commissioner for the borough of York.

Prison Reform

Today's comment by Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson tells a lot about Canada's increasingly permissive society, especially as it applies to prison "reform" spearheaded by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer and Parole Commissioner G. T. Street.

There is one incredible passage, from Hansard — the official parliamentary record, the verbatim account of everything that is said in the Commons — where Goyer is quoted as saying: "We have decided from now on to stress the rehabilitation of prisoners rather than the protection of society."

All right then, do we just make polite noises and say that will never do, or will we, the public, support those MPs, among them Frontenac-Lennox and Addington's Douglas Alkenbrack, who have been calling for restoration of the death penalty?

Those of us who are concerned about this matter should write to their MPs, as well as to the Prime Minister not to mention the arrogant Mr. Goyer.

Meanwhile consider the latest evidence of foolhardiness on the part of the prison "reformers." There was the killing of three Du Pont officials in Montreal, allegedly by a young former employee with a prison record. Then came the slaying of a Ste. Therese policeman, allegedly by a man on leave from a federal psychiatric prison; he had been permitted to leave the prison each day to go to a full-time sales job in a furniture store. This arrangement had the approval of the penitentiary authorities and the parole board.

The man's behavior, in and out of the institution, was reported as perfectly satisfactory — that is, until something snapped and he went off on some escapade with a gun.

Certainly there have been successes with this pilot rehabilitation program, 90 persons having been discharged without incident, but its medical director nevertheless describes it as a "calculated risk."

It would be a much more satisfactory arrangement, we believe, rather than releasing persons who have been jailed for serious offences (in this case the man had been given a 15-year sentence in 1964), if rehabilitation facilities were confined to within the prison walls. For it is becoming increasingly clear that the abolition of capital punishment allied to a much freer rein for prisoners is adding to the difficulties of the police, leading, as in this case, to fatalities, and jeopardizing the lives of members of the public.

We cannot afford to have men in Ottawa, the present holder of the post of Solicitor-General for one, who hold the public interest so lightly that he can say the rehabilitation of criminals must come before the protection of society. There will be another federal election before long and the public will have an opportunity then, if not before, of properly expressing its displeasure in this regard.

School Uniforms

We mentioned the other day that two South African girls, high school students from Natal, will be coming here in January under a Rotary Club exchange. Although no longer a member of the Commonwealth South African schools still preserve the traditions of Commonwealth schools: the wearing of uniforms, for instance, which is the exception rather than the rule here.

The August issue of South African Panorama has on its cover members of a choir, one of a number from all over the country, taking part in celebrations in Cape Town. It is, predominantly a girl's choir and they are seen wearing striped blazers with white blouses and even ties which might seem like the only unfeminine thing about them. All, however, look uniformly tidy, well-scrubbed and wholesome.

Autumn Peak

Autumn is approaching its peak, this coming weekend traditionally being the period when it reaches its prime glory. The city is brilliant in these Indian summer days, with the fall colors richer perhaps than for many years. There has been little wind this time and overall not too much rain which combined, often rob the leafy scene prematurely of its full, indescribable beauty. Here is the fabled, ageless scene.

Solicitor-General's Permissive Philosophy

Rehabilitation Has Priority Over Safety of Society

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Solicitor General Jean - Pierre Goyer's timing for his prison reform announcement was as wildly out of whack the other day as Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky's proclamation last year that everyone must make do with seven percent federal guideline pay raises.

Just after laying down the economic law, the Governor stood unmasked and embarrassed as the recipient of a 50 percent pay raise, from what most people might consider an entirely adequate $50,000 to a more munificent $75,000.

Terrible timing, what!

But perhaps, in the profession of politics, there is no timing that is capable of foolproofing in advance.

Not for Jean-Pierre Goyer, so far, anyway.

First his "secret" civilian security force — a sort of "Private Eye" Government agency under the direction of the Solicitor General, apart from the RCMP — went sour in the timing of its announcement.

Then, even as Jean - Pierre Goyer was telling the Commons about prison reform and a calculated Government decision, in his own words, to "stress the rehabilitation of prisoners rather than the protection of society," the police were holding a supposedly rehabilitated youth in the Kingston death of three senior industrial executives.

They had been his corporate superiors, and had died in blasts of gunfire the day after he had been dismissed.

It triggered again, an immediate demand in Parliament for restoration of the death penalty.

Warren Allmand, Liberal MP for the Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-de-Grace, urged reconsideration of Parliament's five-year trial suspension of the death penalty engineered by former Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

Mr. Allmand is like Ontario Conservative MP Douglas Alkenbrack of Frontenac-Lennox-Addington, who had made a similar motion for the return of the death penalty, was not willing to wait another year.

The way Mr. Allmand saw it, at least many innocent people would die at the hands of criminals in the next 14 months to permit any further delay.

What had alarmed the Montreal MP, were the murder statistics, 40 people gunned down in Montreal alone so far this year, with 78 killings in Western Quebec.

A new record for the Canadian crime capital.

But Jean-Pierre Goyer was not at all impressed.

Obviously his thinking, the way Douglas Alkenbrack figures it, has been made "captive" of Parole Commissioner G. T. Street — the bureaucrat both cops and criminals know as "Easy" Street — and the hell-bent - for - prison - reform members of his Board.

Among the reforms proclaimed by Goyer, unilaterally and with only casual after-the-fact reference to Parliament — are the hair for prison inmates who want to feed trendy, leisure-time clothes instead of numbered uniforms, even miniature golf.

There were plenty of other reforms, perhaps long overdue and possibly all to the ultimate good, but all brought about by the magic wand of bureaucratic proclamation rather than the more tedious, if searching way of legislation.

Of no importance how it is done, you say, as long as it is accomplished. If it results, as its initiators claim it will, in reform not only of the prison but of the prisoner.

Perhaps, concedes Douglas Alkenbrack, adding cautiously, "but that is no small 'if' — made all the more iffy' by the statistics of violent death which indicate a threatening crisis of crime."

What bothers Douglas Alkenbrack and other Conservative parliamentarians including Marlene MP Robert Muir, Ontario MP Wallace Nesbitt and Alberta MP Jack Bigg, and perhaps Warren Allmand, too, is the philosophy of Jean-Pierre Goyer and George Street that "rehabilitation of criminals" comes first and the "protection of society" second.

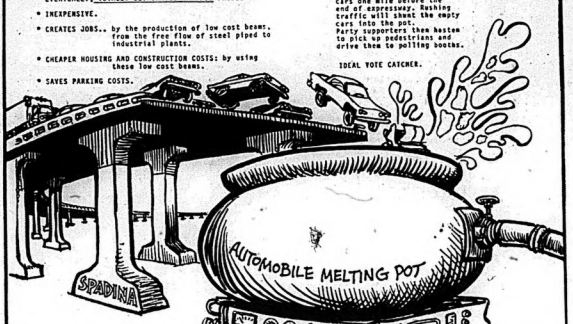
Jean - Pierre Goyer has put that strange priority into the writing and on the record in Hansard.

There it is, for all to read, at the foot of column two on page 8503 of the parliamentary record, reading: "We have decided from now on to stress the rehabilitation of prisoners rather than the protection of society."

How did that shape up the morning after the Montreal slaughter of three allegedly by a rehabilitated prisoner, Jean-Pierre Goyer was asked.

And did events not dramatically underline the danger of his perilous priorities as the day's big headline proclaimed them?

Not at all, he protested.



"The young man that they are holding, the suspect the police are accusing," he explained, patiently, as if to a backward child, "is a product of your Society."

What Society?

"Contemporary society," he said, "that believes punishment of the criminal comes before rehabilitation."

Was Jean-Pierre Goyer serious, he was asked, and did he really believe that?

"Of course," he snapped, "doesn't everyone?"

Praise For Students' Effort In Moira River Clean-Up

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I feel I must voice my protest on your paper's pathetic reporting of the Moira River Clean Up by over 600 students last Saturday. Yes, they did get a slight mention, but the actions of a handful of brainless idiots at the dance, during the evening, took full precedence and complete coverage.

What a great story you missed! And where was your photographer when so many willing and cheerful hands were hauling the filth and rubble from the river?

Personally I was thrilled and proud of the great bunch of kids who turned out and worked their hearts out trying to do something for Belleville and the whole community. And proud of their leaders who planned, directed and worked right along to make it a success.

The kids asked for no reward, but how much more encouraging it would have been to read an appreciative account in the paper on behalf of the Belleville citizens, rather than the stupid accolade of the ever present few who would never co-operate if their lives depended on it.

To all the kids who participated I would like to say — you can take it from me kids, there are still a vast number of us older folk left who are right behind you and thank you most sincerely for a job well done.

Requiem For Funnies

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It's a grownups world! There was never very much in your paper for us (kids) and now you've taken away our comic section, too.

Goodbye to Hi and Lois, Mr. Tweedy, Peanuts, Archie and other comic friends I liked to read. When a friend moves away, we don't visit at an empty house. So, goodbye to you too, Intelligencer!

LAUREL ANDREWS,
Carrying Place.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The final straw has descended! Yesterday, The Intelligencer delivered the crushing blow of the "uncalled for" changeover to new ownership by the Thomson Empire.

Are we to be denied the pleasures of old friends' company? It seems we are! No longer will Peanuts, B.C., L'il Abner, Archie, Beetle Bailey and Co. appear on the Intell's Comic Page!

Why?

Isn't it about time that consideration for the readers' preference was shown? Surely to goodness the old adage "when you've got a winner, why change?" still applies?

Why must we be subjected to utter trash? A super tabloid poll of my family, and discussion of the change showed immediate reaction — total boos in favor with the change by the Intell.

Come on, Intell readers, stand up and be counted! Write the Editor. Bring back our Comic Page!

T. GERSPA

EDITOR'S NOTE: Is there going to be a referendum by poll on the comics? They may be in the minority, but there are a lot of them who do not read the funnies at all.

The Rape of the Sandbanks

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Many people are concerned about the Sandbanks and well they should be, because the largest and most picturesque dunes are already gone and the remaining ones are being handled away at a shocking rate.

The powers that be have too long been successfully satisfying the queries by saying they are not quarrying in the park dunes. I might accept this valid sounding answer if I didn't live beside them. But it make a difference where the dunes are? The 15 acres in question means like a pittance, but it is a priceless wonder of the world and nothing can justify the ruthless Sandbanks being turned into commercial cement. It is crown land and belongs to all of us. There are hundreds of sandy acres in the park area that could be used without being offensive to anyone. This has been a blatant example of trying to make a right out of two wrongs.

Time is running out and more people will have to bring more pressure to bear to stop this mutilation of a rare legacy. The cement plant won't close. It can only mean more jobs, as any normal source of material will be less pure and would not be available so economically. It cost the cement plant $1 per year for millions of tons of pure clean sand. Certainly it will mean less profit for the company or subsidizing by the government, but can we get away with squandering the Sandbanks in a few short years that have been there for untold generations. If you don't think it is deplorable, come and see the swamp that was 30 and 90 foot dunes only a short time ago.

JEAN BARRETT,
Picton.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 21, 1971

A contract between the government of Canada and the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. was signed 91 years ago today—in 1880. When British Columbia joined the Confederation in 1872 it demanded a railway joining the nation because of fear of American aggression in the northwest and the need for eastern markets. The line was completed to the Pacific Coast with the driving of the last spike at Craigellachie, B.C., Nov. 7, 1885.

1900—The business district of Sydney, N.S., was swept by a fire which caused $250,000 worth of damage.

Is Canada Out in the Cold Among the Trading Nations?

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

Japanese, Chinese, Russian and American goods are all over the place. There's an astonishing trickle of goods and people — notably trade delegations — into and out of Western Europe from every country of this earth. Thus, the Air France depot at Orly announces planes from Paris to Osaka via Hamburg, to Lima via Madrid, to Tokyo via London, to San Francisco via New York. Thus, the plane I took from Paris to Athens went on from there to Cairo, Karachi, Rangoon and Shanghai, bearing a trade delegation of some 25 fine-uniformed Chinese.

But Canada doesn't get in there, we're out of this world, and no more sense than in the purely economic. So far as Western Europe is concerned, Canada is another Asia and Africa and Latin America and Australasia), Canada hardly exists — as Neville Cumberlain once said of Czechoslovakia, "a faraway country of which we know nothing".

One looks in vain for any mention of Canada in the newspapers of Europe, even the "good" British ones like the Times and the Daily Telegraph. The Canadian in London feels as first unnoticed, but then he thinks, "Why should the British people or papers pay any attention to this distant country with a relatively small British population — a country whose complete disappearance would make little difference to them?" When you're in Toronto or Ottawa, Canada is the centre of the world, but to the British, and making comparisons on a population base, it's just another Afghanistan, another Argentina, another Burma or Ethiopia, another Romania.

Canada was very important to Britain and Western Europe once — during and immediately after the Second World War. We emerged from the war (believe it or not) as the "good" British industrial presence in the world, exceeded only by the U.S., the U.K. and the Soviet Union. But that was a long time ago, we can't live on that today, so what are we going to do? We're out in the cold, only the Americans are in and — as has been made abundantly clear in the last few weeks — they will only throw us crumbs. Industrially, we're in trouble, and we're not going to get out of it either this year or next year, by dropping little bits of paper into it.

Convalescent Hospital: Some Facts

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Last Saturday while shopping in the downtown area I had placed in my car a brochure produced by the local Liberal candidate. The item concerning the Queen's Motor Hotel (new convalescent hospital) listed the salary of the Medical Director as well as the assessed value of the motel and an approximate rental fee.

I sincerely hope that the figure quoted as assessed value is not done in an attempt to lead people to believe that is the real value of the property. We all know what our own homes are assessed for and I am sure none of us are prepared to sell our own property at "assessed value" which is in many cases less than one-third of market value.

The rental figure of $250,000 a year looks large but is in fact at cost of $13.70 per room per day. The rental fee covers complete maintenance and upkeep of the property, cleaning of rooms, making of beds, heating and upkeep of grounds and land as well as staffing of the kitchen and dining room; furnishing the beds of a new medical nature. It is estimated that the cost per patient per day can be kept below $25 a day which is a tremendous saving over the cost of $35 per day in the Belleville General Hospital.

In the matter of Dr. Reg Anderson's salary I checked with my family doctor to find out the work that he would be performing. Dr. Anderson will be in charge of tests, (only one is mentioned in the brochure).

He will be medical administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, director of the pilot project Queen's Motel Convalescent Hospital, director of the extended care program of the Belleville General Hospital and medical director reporting to the Department of Health on Convalescent Hospital Projects.

Since the Belleville General Hospital will soon have over 450 beds I feel Dr. Anderson will be a very busy man. His experience as Director of PSI will be of great value to our community as we expand our total medical facilities.

The dispensing of information is vital to the voters and candidates at an election. Every attempt should be made to see that it is factual and complete and not a half truth to create a slanted point of view.

The annual warden's banquet is being held this year at St. Carlo Hall at Tweed, when county councillors and officials will be guests of Warden Henry M. Conller, crewe of Hungerford township.

"Radio Night at the Sales and Ad Club dinner meeting in the Hotel Quinte featured an address by W. N. Hawkins, radio station manager of Owen Sound.

At a rousing nomination meeting at which the favored candidate nearly got left at the wire, Roscoe Robson, present representative of the riding at Queen's Park, was named Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings East.

20 YEARS AGO

Large congregations attended the 68th anniversary services at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday, with Rev. N. S. McKenzie, DD, of Port Hope, a former rector of the local church, preaching at the morning and evening services.

Before a large group of self-styling employees, civic and political heads and a cross-section of the city's business and industrial life, the cornerstone of the handsome Deacon Brothers, Ltd. new premises on Dundas St. was laid. In an aperture in the stone was placed a sturdy copper box which contained a stroll on which was inscribed the signatures of 281 employees, several newspapers, a large envelope containing the history of the firm since its inception 40 years ago, coins of the realm and tokens of the City of Belleville.

Mrs. A. Jenkins, Mrs. William Schuster, Mrs. B. L. Hyman and Miss Jenkins have left on a motor trip to Lower York City.

At the annual meeting of the Women's Christian Association, the medical staff of the hospital requested that an up-to-date x-ray machine be installed, and also that an electro-magnet be purchased.

Mrs. Wilmot and Miss Wilmot will depart shortly on a visit to Scotland.

Family YMCA Expanding Services for Residents of Belleville

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The YMCA in the past has been criticized on the grounds that its location is bad for participation of residents of the west end of the city, that it is too expensive and that it does not provide enough service. But still it remains, under the wing of both the city and the United Community Services, servicing thousands of Belleville and area residents annually.

Open every day of the week, sponsoring scores of activities (both recreational and business) the staff of the Y is on the job teaching people to swim, enjoy themselves safely in such fields as handicrafts, gymnastics, citizenship, "and the list is endless," said James Cleveland, physical education coordinator for the Y.

Where Y activities end, other organizations come in and use the surrounding land for the conventional sanitary land - fill operation where garbage is dumped, compacted by bulldozer, and then covered.

Since the closing of the City dump along the Bay Bridge Road, city garbage is trucked to a site in Sidney township where, under contract with a private firm, it is handled in a land - fill operation.

The city's contract with the firm still has something like three and a half years to run.

Committee to Check Garbage Pulverizing

Should the city of Belleville consider mechanical pulverization of wastes as the answer to garbage disposal?

Alderman Jean Smith, chairman of the city council solid waste disposal committee, admits she doesn't have the answer but feels the idea is at least worth investigating.

Accordingly, members of her committee will make a trip to Hamilton to visit a plant where the pulverizing equipment is manufactured and will go on to St. Catharines to see the equipment in operation.

"We are not spending any money — just investigating," the alderman said.

According to equipment manufacturers, pulverized garbage takes only a small fraction of the disposal space necessary for the conventional sanitary land - fill operation where garbage is dumped, compacted by bulldozer, and then covered.

Central Bargaining Unit Proposed for Construction Industry

"If we as contractors, intend to do anything about curbing inflationary wages, we must band together in a union - like system, treat labor on an equal basis to ourselves," said Peter Allens at a meeting of the Quinte Construction Association last night.

Mr. Allens, as executive vice - president on Ontario Federation of Construction Associations, met with 20 members of the Belleville chapter, and after outlining the general business of the organization, headed into the meat of his topic, which he referred to as CEFO (construction employers federation of Ontario).

"In the past couple of years, management took a real beating in the negotiation ring," he said. "The reason we took such a beating was because we didn't all stick together and make our stand felt right across the board. What CEFO is suggesting is that we have a union that is designed to handle management problems in the same way the labor unions operate."

In 1969 when the last major trade negotiations were held, GFCA had tried to handle the bargaining by bringing representatives of "" trades under the same roof on a voluntary basis to sort out the problem.

"While everyone was saying what great intentions they had at the business table, they were going home and signing these ridiculous contracts with the unions and ruining all the work of the council," said Mr. Allens. "Our plan last time was a complete failure."

If CEFO is acceptable to the contractors across the province, then it will be refined and put into practice. In 1973 it will have its opportunity to make it or break it when Mr. Allen says "90 per cent of the big union trades contracts will be up."

Designed after a similar program that is working effectively in British Columbia with the forest workers, CEFO calls for a council of representatives gathering contractors of all the trades from across the province who will elect a board of directors which will also be comprised of all the trades. This board will be responsible to the staff of the organization who will do all the work in labor relations.

"I suggest that local construction associations throughout the province get right out of the relations area of the business and leave it up to a central bargaining committee who would have the support of all the contractors," said Mr. Allens.

Mr. Allens, representing the provincial body, invited all members of all associations to read the literature on the proposed "bargaining vehicle" and where necessary, submit modifications or agreement with the scheme.

"Nov. 10 is the deadline for a decision," he said.

When asked if this new organization could eliminate strikes, Mr. Allens replied, "to eliminate strikes, we need trust between labor and management. This trust does not exist today."

Mr. Allens closed by saying "'71 will be a dandy, and if we don't have some kind of machine to use in the negotiations, absurd wage increases will happen again possibly to the tune of 40 per cent, as in the case of sheet metal workers, and inflation will receive another shot in the arm".

Citizens Invited To Air Conference

An Air Day Conference will be held in Pembroke Nov. 6 on the theme of the role of the individual citizen in combatting air pollution.

Fre bus transportation to the one-day conference will be supplied by the Hastings-Prince Edward Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

The bus will leave Hotel Quinte at 8 a.m. and the conference will end about 4 p.m.

Keynote speaker will be British Columbia and chairman of the bill committee for the Federal Clean Air Act. The important aspect of this act will be reviewed with particular emphasis given to the role of the citizen in implementing it.

Tiny Bennett, former outdoor editor of the Toronto Telegram, will be chairman of a panel on medical and non-medical effects of air pollution, legal actions available to individuals to control pollution and air management in Ontario.

Panelists will be Dr. Cameron C. Gray, executive medical director of the Ontario Thoracic Society; a Laurentian University researcher; a representative of the Ontario department of the environment; a member of the Canadian Labor Congress; two federal members of parliament and a representative from industry.

For further information on air daiy, those interested are asked to telephone 962-2186.

Four-year-olds Among Loyalist Freshmen

They are members of the small group of preschool children enrolled in a pilot project at Loyalist College in preschool enrichment.

The new project operates over and above the regular Loyalist nursery school operation as a free service to the community. It is an extension of the Belleville Volunteer Bureau program of preschool enrichment, now established in four city schools.

The Tuesday and Thursday afternoon nursery school serves a double purpose — it provides a "living lab." for Loyalist students enrolled in the early childhood education course at the college.

"We are meeting an expressed need of the community— this is one of the ways the college can be a real community college," said William Buckley, senior supervisor of arts.

The children attending the preschool enrichment program are bused to the college by Alvin Parkhurst, who also drives the bus for the school for retarded children.

Loyalist's early childhood education students are moving out into the community — into 17 classes for preschoolers in Belleville, Trenton, Stirling and Brighton. In Belleville, three students work with two experienced volunteers in the four preschool enrichment programs serving about 100 children.

The two-year course, the most popular at the college, prepares graduates to work with young children and gives them the preliminary training necessary for certification as a nursery school teacher.

Soon, the students will move into another experimental field at Ontario School for the Deaf.

Under the direction of the head of the early childhood education department, Mrs. Betty Exelby, they will set up a nursery school at OSD for both hearing and deaf preschool children.

"The handicapped and the normal can work together and grow together," said Mrs. Exelby. In fact, she indicated, each acts to spur the other on to greater accomplishments.

The OSD class will be limited to 15 children, nine hearing and six deaf. It gets under way next Monday with three deaf children and the hearing youngsters will be introduced gradually.

Children from three to five will be enrolled and the deaf youngsters will be given help by OSD speech therapists in addition to the regular nursery school program.

There is still room for a few more children in the OSD class.

Home And School News

The first meeting of the school year was held on October 12.

Before the meeting parents were invited to the classrooms to meet the teachers and hear an outline of the year's plans.

The meeting, with about 50 members in attendance, was opened by Mr. G. Botting, president. Mr. D. Wishart, the new principal said how pleased he was to be at the school and introduced the staff.

The speaker, Mr. D. Smith, co-ordinator of community school programs was introduced by Mrs. V. Patterson. Mr. Smith talked about how individuals and groups could become more involved in the community. He stressed that what happens in our community depends on the people of the community, their needs and what they have to give and share with others.

All those present filled in a questionnaire about their interest and skills as a beginning to finding out about the community and this led to a group discussion. This lively, informal meeting was enjoyed by all.

MR. AND MRS. HARVEY REED

Reed – Hart

Patricia Dorothy Ellen Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart became the bride of Harvey Francis Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reed, on October 16 at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel. Father Ken Sitt conducted the ceremony, while Dorothy Grant played the organ and Michael Reed, the bridegroom's brother sang the solos.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a floor length gown of crystal peau with an empire waistline, maedarin collar and short sleeves trimmed with chalk beads and seed pearls. A chapel train fell gently from the shoulder. Her veil was held in place by a large mohair bow with small organza flowers cascading down from the crown. She carried a cascade of pink sweetheart roses and white shasta daisies.

The matron of honor Mrs. Penny Hart the bride's sister wore a floor length high waisted dress of blue and delicate pink flowered polyester crepe with elbow lenght puff sleeves and a matching bow in her hair. She carried a white basket of assorted blue, pink and white shasta daisies.

The bridesmaids Bonnie and Betty Hart, sisters of the bride and Christine and Cathy Reed sisters of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the matron of honor and carried identical flowers.

The best man was Gerald Hart, brother-in-law of the bride while the ushers were Terry Law, Dave Chapman, Rod Law and Larry Reed brother of the bridegroom.

At the reception held at St. John's Parish Hall, Point Anne, guests were greeted by the bride's mother in an appliqued beige and brown crimplene ensemble with a matching hat, brown accessories and a corsage of Woburn Abbey roses.

Assisting her the bridegroom's mother wore an A-line polyester crepe dress in autumn colors accented by a ruffle round the neck and down the front. She wore a beige hat brown accessories and a corsage of Woburn Abbey roses.

Upon return the couple will live in Belleville.

XI ALPHA MU CHAPTER

The regular meeting of Beta Sigma Phi, Xi Alpha Mu Chapter was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Owen. Following the opening ritual minutes from the previous meeting were read and the proposed budget presented. Plans were made to attend the Neptune Theatre, to be followed by a wine and cheese party at the home of Mrs. A. Quickert. Plans were also made for the Christmas party to be held on December 17. Reports were given from the standing committees.

The program for the evening, Hinduism, was presented by Mrs. Frances Shiel.

She was thanked for her most informative talk on this religion by Mrs. Marilyn Quickert.

Following the closing ritual, refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess for the evening, Mrs. Faith Smith.

Shorey – Dainard

College Hill United Church was the setting for the October 9 wedding of Judith Marie Dainard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dainard, and of Robert Terry Shorey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shorey, Rev. Roy Veney conducted the ceremony while organ music was provided by Alec Donaldson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of imported silk with a high neckline and full length sleeves. The front of the bodice was enhanced with an overlay of re-embroidered Swiss lace. A flowing circle train extending from the gathered waistline was also trimmed with the same lace. Her head piece of organza petals was trimmed with seed pearls and held in place a four tiered silk illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of roses and carnations.

The bridesmaids Mrs. Donna Vanslyke, Mrs. Sharon White and Mrs. Sandra Dainard were dressed identically to the matron of honor and carried pink and white carnations.

The flower girl Miss Lisa Radford was also identically dressed. She carried a basket of pink and white carnations.

The best man was Gary White while the ushers were Carl Vanslyke, Peter McNaught and Carl Shorey.

The reception was held at College Hill United Church hall followed by a dance at Elk Lodge. The bride's mother wore a turquoise blue crimplene dress with black and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The bridegroom's mother was in a purple chiffon dress with mauve and white accessories and a corsage of yellow and white carnations.

For the wedding trip to points East and the U.S., the bride donned a red chiffon dress with white polka dots with black and white accessories. Her corsage was of white feathered carnations.

Upon return the couple will reside in Belleville.

Fashion Cues

RIVER VALLEY — On Friday, October 8, a short course on the subject "Fashion Cues for you" was held at River Valley Institute Centre with Mrs. M. Mulligan of the Home Economic's Board, Ontario, department of clothing and textiles in charge. Ten members of the River Valley WI and six from Uxbridge WI were in attendance.

The leader stressed that each lady should have an individual look, never try to copy someone else.

Clothes should add to your personality and appearance.

A series of charts showing sizes and colors were shown.

At noon the group enjoyed their own box lunch in the kitchen. The afternoon message centred around patterns and materials.

Mrs. Mulligan gave a very informative message on the subject of fashions and the group in charge expressed thanks.

During the day those in attendance viewed a large assortment of lovely hats and a large array of fashions.

Successful Living

Three Generations Can Live Happily Together

By DORIS CLARK

Another word or two in favor of the three-generation household.

Grandma is more mellow, less demanding, than busy, harassed mother. If mother is working, who will babysit? Grandma! If mother loses patience because she is tired, who will comfort? Grandma!

Grandma washes the dishes. Grandma is there to be talked to, and in some ways bridges the gap across three generations more easily than mother across two.

Living with the family is not the solution for all old people, but it should be considered because of a notion we seem to have here in Canada that the generations should be completely independent.

If she does live in the same house she needs a purpose, a job to do, a role to fill. We can all benefit from the wisdom our grandmothers and grandfathers pass on to us.

Dear Doris: I've been separated from my wife and family for three years. I had sold out my business and started to drink. My wife went back to work after 13 years, and I was ashamed. We separated and I really got worse for a while. I spent five weeks in hospital and she came to see me every day.

But I started to drink again and ended in a very unpleasant incarceration for four months. Later my wife told me she didn't want to see me and that there was no feeling left for me in her. I still love her.

With the help of a psychiatrist I have given up booze and I am now attending a school to give me a start in engineering. I can't believe after 20 years, and six children, two people could stop loving each other. I feel all I can give to her and the children but can't be with them. I have hoped that somehow we could talk things over.

I find it so hard to concentrate even at school. I never knew how love could hurt. — Alone.

Dear Alone: John Barleycorn — with complications — has done it again!

Yet you can win in the end. You can determine to keep sober, learn the new work, and show yourself worthy of a woman's love. It is going to take some proving.

Before love to her again, get your feet on solid ground. Build up your health and with the help of Al-Anon — which can be priceless — learn some self-respect. Then when you do go to her to express your love for her and children, she may have reason to hope you are really on the mend — for life.

• • •

Dear Doris: After the death of my son, if his wife remarries does she still be my daughter-in-law, or is there no relationship with his family?

If the children of above-said are adopted by the new husband, is the relationship altered? — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: While you no longer have any legal tie with the girl who marries another person's son, you may have a strong bond of friendship with her — something precious and worth keeping.

— Especially if there are grandchildren. Whether or not any little ones are adopted by the new husband, they are still your blood relations and entitled to your loving interest.

You can still share them with new grandparents.

Let a Canadian social worker in on your difficulty. Doris may be able to save the day for you!

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

Why will a wife cling to a no-good husband?

Answer: Even if a wife has no more mental problems than the rest of us, there could be any one of a hundred reasons why she won't kick out a husband who has proved himself to be no good for her. She may think she loves him, for one thing; although it is more likely that she is afraid to face the real reason. She just doesn't want to admit to herself that she could have been so wrong in selecting her husband in the first place.

Should children produce children's TV shows?

Answer: That might be worth a try, or at least children could serve as technical advisers for the television fare that is presented for the young viewers. Perhaps adults, since they are adults, no longer have the magic that it takes to capture a child's imagination on a medium such as TV. Something that appeals to adults, even young adults, may strike out with the kids because they do not identify with it.

Is a 'new scene' best for retired people?

Answer: That depends on their attitude. If retired people had looked forward to the time when they didn't have to go to a job and would enjoy their home, they could be happy "staying put" when they quit working. On the other hand, if they had felt that they were only living for the opportunity to go off to some place that appealed to them more, then they could enjoy their new locale only so long as they retire.

Ann Landers

A Suggestion for Man in Vietnam

Dear Ann Landers: I am an officer in the United States Army who has a suggestion for that young bride whose husband is in Vietnam and whose mother is dying of cancer. I hope she will advise her husband to apply for a compassionate assignment so that he can be permitted home. This would enable her to be with her mother as long as possible—and to help with the younger sister and brothers. She could also get her father the emotional support he needs at this difficult time in his life.

If her soldier husband runs into resistance when he makes this request, he should ask his chaplain to intervene. He should also request help from his two senators and his congressman. What I'm saying is he should not give up. He should try until he gets the assignment.

I speak with authority because I made the mistake of not being persistent in a similar hardship situation and I have regretted it ever since. Good luck to him.—1st Infantry, Fresno, California

Dear 1st: Thank you for the suggestion. I received a great many letters from readers who felt I had given the wrong advice—but you were the only one who came up with a practical alternative. Thank you very much.

Dear Ann Landers: Me writing to you. I can't believe it, but here I am—ashamed because I can't handle this problem myself.

My mother came to live with us over a year ago. She was very sick and needed care. In June she had surgery, made a remarkable recovery and now looks and feels better than I do. Mother is 85 years old, financially independent, owns two lovely homes and has many friends—2,000 miles away.

Since she has regained her health I feel like a prisoner in my own home. She includes herself in all our social activities, but assumes she is invited. Wherever we go, she goes. Every day she says: "I'm so happy here. I'll never live alone again."

Mother may be happy but I am miserable. I used to look forward to her visits and we even enjoyed taking her on vacations, but to have her with me 24 hours a day is driving me crazy. I find myself hiding in my room.

I'd never ask her to move. I don't want to hurt her, yet I feel guiltless for not being able to free myself. Am I a bad daughter because I can't open-handedly share my home with my mother? I am boxed in on all sides. You are my only hope. She reads your column every day. Maybe she'll recognize herself.—Anonymous, Of Course

Dear Ann: She won't recognize herself. She'll think she's the exception—and there are exceptions, but they are as scarce as hen's teeth. Instead of hiding in your room, go sit with a counselor for an hour a day, twice a week. You need to ventilate your hostility and your frustration. Perhaps in the process of ventilation you'll open some doors to self-understanding and learn to tolerate your mother—or find the strength to free yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: You are a fake. I have written to you about the same problem three times and you refuse to print it. My problem is a lot more serious than most of the junk you publish. I think you make up letters so you can use some of the smart-aleck remarks you read in the john or book. Here's one you won't print.—Fed Up In Topeka

Dear Fed: I'm well aware that you have written to me with the same problem three times I didn't print it because I don't believe you want advice. You want only to embarrass your sister-in-law. This column is not a billboard to get even with relatives. Sorry.

Couple Mark Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cummings, RR 4, Stirling were recently honored at the Hillcrest Community Centre by friends and relatives on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Cummings, Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Minake of Denbigh and Douglas, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Cummings of Point Anne were married August 12, 1946 at Vimy Memorial Chapel, Barrie-field, Ont., by Rev. Philip Silcox.

The couple have six children, Wayne of Peterborough; Mrs. Douglas Nicholson (Muriel) RR 5, Stirling; Ronald, Douglas Jr., Blaine, Clark at home, and four grandchildren.

The table was centred by an anniversary cake, made and decorated by their neighbour, Mrs. Ralph Bebee. They received many lovely gifts, for which they both expressed their thanks.

The bridesmaid at their wedding, Mrs. Inon Graham, sister of the bride and the best man, Mr. Herbert Armstrong, nephew of the bridegroom were also present at the attending.

Following an evening of dancing, a buffet lunch was served.

Hastings Manor Handicrafts

Mrs. W. H. Alexander removes a Christmas wreath from the wall for a customer at the Hastings Manor tea and bazaar held on Wednesday afternoon. An incredible variety of crafts made by the manor residents were sold at the bazaar.

Choosing Christmas Cards

Mrs. J. M. Parrott surveys the large number of cards on the greeting cards table convened by Gladys Sheffield at the autumn boutique tea and bazaar held by the Belleville Chapter 55 of the OES on Wednesday afternoon at the Masonic Temple. The fall decor highlighted the tea and bazaar.

Fall Decor at OES Bazaar and Tea

The spirit of autumn was captured by the decor in the Masonic Temple on Wednesday afternoon when the Belleville chapter 55 of the OES held their "autumn boutique" tea and bazaar. Brightly colored paper cut-outs in green, gold and sunset pink hung from the ceiling, representing autumn leaves drifting through the air. The hall was festooned with olive green, peach and gold streamers while, separating the bazaar section from the tea area were a number of lamp posts entwined with ivy and supporting realistic - looking street lights made by Keith Elliott.

On one wall, a huge mural with a water color effect featured a pastel background — pale green and delicate pink— with huge leaves standing out in bold relief. The leaves gave the impression of slowly fluttering down to the ground.

In charge of decorations was Marjorie Gray, general convener of the tea and bazaar who was assisted by her co-conveners Pearl Johnson and Margaret Finnigan.

In the bazaar section, each table represented a boutique and was aptly decorated in the fall theme. In charge of the business girls' table which featured a large number of greeting cards among other things were Ivy Lovelace and Gladys Sheffield. The stitch and knit table was convened by Helen Hay.

The wares on the men's table included a variety of fall fruits and vegetables and was presided over by Robert Jones. Nancy Whitehead was in charge of the candy table while the ever-popular home baking table was convened by Hazel Barazer.

Crafts Impressive at Manor

Alice in Wonderland, not to mention hordes of Christmas shoppers who are hard pressed for ideas for attractive and unusual gifts would have had a heyday at the Hastings Manor tea and bazaar held on Wednesday afternoon. In the bazaar section, a profusion of attractive, novel, and fanciful articles made with amazing ingenuity and imagination by the Manor residents vied for attention on the various tables.

Handicrafts of every description were displayed ranging from the novel and the whimsical such as a group of witches made of felt with sinister-looking black cloaks and hoods clustered around a metal frame to the more practical such as knitted slippers and embroidered aprons. All the articles however had one thing in common—they were visually pleasing and guaranteed to draw cries of delight and admiration from the viewers.

Some of the articles for sale were a number of floor mops made of knotted wool in bright, cheerful colors, several cotton wool snowmen with jaunty black top hats, a variety of aprons, giant paper flowers and a large number of cellophane Christmas wreaths.

Bottles of many different shapes decorated with macaroni and sprayed gold and silver were displayed as were cone-shaped Christmas trees and candles in attractive holders. Every type of hand work was represented — knitting, sewing, rug hooking, crocheting and embroidery.

Outstandingly eyecatching were a number of wall hangings with backgrounds of mint green, gold and burnt orange on which appliqued bunches of flowers, fruit or trees. A variety of cushions ranging from those with up-to-the-minute designs to those adorned with embroidery were also offered for sale.

A wall plaque made of kernels of corn painted in bright colors and glued together in the shape of a butterfly was noticeable, also a number of lampshades and some black stuffed seals wearing goggles and hats!

The tea room was adorned with bronze, gold and orange streamers and in one corner, the top of a piano was turned into a tiny autumn garden, with a mass of foliage and fall fruits. Baskets of fall flowers were placed at vantage points and the main tea table was centred with a boat shaped boat holding red, gold, and brown flowers.

The tea and bazaar convener was Mrs. H. Locklin.

The other conveners were Mrs. J. Harley (tea room), Mrs. H. Hall (tea room convener), Mrs. R. McDonald (bake sale) Mrs. Donna Yates and Mrs. C. Yates (crafts). Tea was poured by Mrs. K. Yorke, Mrs. A. Bongard, Mrs. E. Forsyth, Mrs. K. Smith, Mrs. C. Bateman, Mrs. L. Grills and Mrs. R. Potter.

Tea room hostesses were Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. G. Bertrand, Mrs. N. Nobes and Mrs. H. Ketcheson. The multitude of guests were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. K. Yorke, and Mrs. D. MacLean auxiliary president.

Opposition Stonewalls Tax Bill Study

OTTAWA (CP) — Political philosophy, rather than the nuts and bolts of government tax legislation, prevailed in the Commons Wednesday while MPs awaited some agreement on a debate time limit for the 707-page tax bill.

Some speakers were up for their second or third times as the opposition stonewalled detailed study of the bill at its first clause while backstage negotiations went on to find a formula that would get the bill passed by Christmas. The government wants it in effect by the new tax year starting Jan. 1.

More than 50 speeches have been made on the first clause since the bill went to the detailed-study stage last week. Allan MacEachen, government House leader, started negotiations with other party representatives before the weekend to find an acceptable method of limiting debate.

The Conservative caucus discussed Wednesday the MacEachen proposal for time limits on each segment of the bill.

But the Conservatives want the bill discussed not in sequential order but by categories. For example, all clauses dealing with mineral exploitation or individual taxpayers would be explained by the government and debated.

In the Commons, differences in party philosophy led to a charge by Conservative Eldon Woolliams (Calgary North) that Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) was trying to get in some licks on the eve of the Ontario election.

Mr. Howard said he came to the Commons in 1957 and unemployment since that time had been between five and six per cent of the labor force —under both Liberal and Conservative governments.

The reason was because both the old-line parties were "married gleefully and happily" to an economic system that gave kid-glove treatment to business while socking the tax burden to the worker, the farmer and the fisherman.

"Greed and profit come first."

He said tax cuts announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson last week—three per cent for individuals and seven per cent for corporations—would mean a tax reduction of about $5 for the average Canadian wage earner.

He contrasted this with a corporate shuffle planned by Atlantic Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. which he said would save the company $2,300,000 in taxes.

Atlantic Sugar has a wholly-owned and money-losing subsidiary called Acadian Pulp and Paper Ltd., the NDP member said. Through a share transfer, it planned to write off profits of the sugar operation against the paper company's losses and bilk the country of that $2,300,000. "That's robbery."

Mr. Woolliams said the NDP would be the first body to complain if Atlantic Sugar had just closed its money-losing paper operation, putting perhaps 1,000 persons out of work.

The New Democrats were always trying to have it both ways. The Howard speech was pure electioneering for the Ontario election.

Higher tax cuts had been given corporations so they could continue to compete in export trade. This was the kind of action that kept the economy healthy, engendering higher employment, better working conditions and higher wages, Mr. Woolliams said.

Among these are a boost in basic personal exemptions, with which opposition parties agree, while complaining the changes do not go far enough, and provisions for a tax on capital gains and on such things as employer contributions to medical care plans and on unemployment insurance benefits.

Visits House

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Trudeau finally came to the House of Commons Wednesday to see her husband working, but hardly anybody paid attention at first.

Niagara Falls is the backdrop to one of the world's great vineyards.

There are about 20 variations of soil type which can produce "great" vineyards. Six of these are found in a narrow band of highly productive land bounded on the north by Lake Ontario and the Niagara escarpment on the south.

In a tremendous program of viticultural improvement begun in 1934 we scoured the world for the finest grape varieties available. Over the years we propagated them in experimental plots. Today some of the greatest wine grapes in the world now grow in the Niagara Peninsula—grapes never before grown here in commercial quantities.

Dump Leafs 7-2

Sabres Match Gardens' Feat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

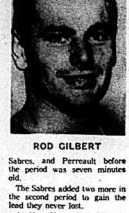
"I wouldn't have believed it myself," Punch Imlach said Wednesday night after his Buffalo Sabres dumped Toronto Maple Leafs 7-2 in the first National Hockey League meeting between the clubs this season.

"Imagine," said the Buffalo general manager-coach, "the same scores. I never would have guessed it."

Punch had reason to be pleased and surprised.

When Imlach, who was replaced as Toronto general manager-coach at the end of the 1968-69 season, took his expansionist Sabres into Maple Leaf Gardens for the first time last year, the score was the same—in Buffalo's favor.

In other games Wednesday, New York Rangers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 3-1, Minnesota North Stars blanked Vancouver Canucks 7-0, Boston Bruins edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3, Pittsburgh Penguins walloped Los Angeles Kings 8-1 and Montreal Canadiens nipped California Golden Seals 4-2.



The win was Buffalo's second in six starts and left them in a fifth-place tie in the East Division with the Leafs, two points back of Montreal and Vancouver who have six points each. New York leads the division with seven points, one more than the Bruins.

A bubbling Imlach heaped praise on Richard Martin, his No. 1 draft pick who starred with Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last year.

"Martin got his thing goal," said Imlach, "He keeps this up, he could be chasing (Gil) Perreault's record for the most goals by a rookie. If he gets close he'll do it."

ROD GILBERT

Sabres, and Perreault before the period was seven minutes old.

The Sabres added two more in the second period to gain the lead they never lost.

At New York, Rod Gilbert's fourth goal this season at the 26-second mark of the opening period led the way for Chicago's first loss in six games.

At Minneapolis, the North Stars twice used a two-man advantage and twice used power plays to account for four of their goals.

Cesare Maniago posted his 12th NHL shutout, turning back 23 shots.

The Bruins jumped on the Red Wings for three first-period goals at Boston, then hung on for the win. Defenceman Bobby Orr paced the Bruins with one goal and two assists.

Brian Hextall scored twice as the surprising Penguins moved into a first-place tie with the Hawks in the West Division, each with five wins and 10 points.

The North Stars held down second spot with seven points, followed by Philadelphia and St. Louis Blues, each with four. Los Angeles with three and California with two.

Frank Mahovlich scored his fifth and sixth goals while younger brother Peter got his first of the season as the Canadiens handed the Seals their fourth loss. California also has two ties.

Knight Makes Move

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reg Thomass of London Knights has moved into the scoring lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series by picking up five goals and three assists last week.

League statistics released Wednesday show that Thomas now has eight goals and 11 assists for 19 points, one more than team-mate Dennis Ververgaert.

Ververgaert has seven goals and 11 assists.

Glen Seperich of Kitchener Rangers has the best goals-against average of league goaltenders, 2.50 in four games.

Armstrong Announces Fifth Retirement

TORONTO (CP) — George Armstrong looks on his new career in the front office of Toronto Maple Leafs with the same matter-of-fact manner he approached his playing career in the National Hockey League.

"It took them 20 years to find out I can't play hockey," he told a news conference announcing his retirement Wednesday. "If it takes them 20 years to find I can't do the work upstairs, I'll at least have had a lifetime with them (the Leaf organization)."

Armstrong, after 19 playing season with Toronto, announced his retirement for the fifth time in as many years. But this time there was a permanency.

"This is the first time I've had any help," said the 41-year-old native of Bowmanville, Ont., whose herky-jerky strides along the right wing have been a trademark of his career, including his 11-year tenure as captain—longest a Toronto player has ever held the title.

"Other times it's been my idea," he added of his earlier retirements prior to the 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1970 seasons. Each previous occasion, however, Toronto management prevailed upon him to return.

General manager Jim Gregory said Armstrong, who had been practising with the team until Tuesday but had yet to get into a game this season, would go on Leafs' reserve list. This manoeuvre would enable them to reactivate him if the Leafs run into a rash of injuries.

In announcing Armstrong's retirement, Gregory said his front-office duties "have not been completely defined, but he'll be available to (chief scout) Bob Davidson and help coach McLellan."

"He'll also be working with (vice-president King) Clancy and me to learn about the hockey business," added Gregory.

Armstrong, asked whether he had considered a coaching job, admitted he was dubious about taking on responsibilities of this nature while he was playing but "I think . . . some day. . . ."

Reserve Clause Out for WHA

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Hockey Association, which plans to operate next year with 12 teams, announced Wednesday that it will do so without a reserve clause.

The reserve clause, long a controversial issue in professional sport, has reached the United States Supreme Court which agreed Tuesday to step into Curt Flood's anti-trust suit against organized baseball.

Flood has a $3.1-million damage suit pending challenging the reserve system of organized baseball. Two federal courts in New York City previously ruled against Flood, former St. Louis Cardinal and Washington Senator star outfielder. The courts said that a 1922 Supreme Court decision exempting baseball from anti-trust law could be overturned only by the Supreme Court itself.

Gary L. Davidson, WHA president, said the league plans to operate without a reserve clause or any substitute for it, such as an option clause, in its player contracts.

Ballard New Leaf Boss

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, 63, former executive vice-president, was chosen president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. Wednesday, one week after the death of previous president Stafford Smythe.

The company owns and operates Maple Leaf Gardens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

First Monday For Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings will meet here Nov. 1 in the first National Hockey League game to be played at Maple Leaf Gardens on a Monday night.

The game was rescheduled from Oct. 13 after Leafs' home opener of the 1971-72 season was postponed following the death of Gardens' president Stafford Smythe.

"We, Detroit and the league decided, after a great deal of discussion, that this would be the best date for both clubs," Jim Gregory, Toronto's general manager, told a news conference Wednesday.

He said it will be the third game in as many nights for both teams.

No Laughing At WHA Now

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

WHAT STARTED as somewhat of a joke — the so-called World Hockey Association — isn't quite so funny anymore.

The WHA will officially come into being November 1, when president Gary Davidson of New. York formally announces the 12 cities that will each post a $1.2 million bond for the privilege of competing against the National Hockey League. Actual ice activity begins next fall.

Eleven options for franchise, including, of all places, Miami, have already been granted, with six other centres, including of all places, Hackensack, New Jersey, vying for the remaining opening.

Interestingly enough, only three of the 12 participating cities are Canadian — Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg — each of which is basing their new big-league operation on existing Western Canada Junior League franchises.

But that still gives Canada a better numerical edge in the WHA than it presently enjoys in the National Hockey League, where only three of 14 members are based north of the 49th parallel.

PLAYERS for the new league will be selected in a mammoth draft, and presumably self-appointed president Davidson has generously made it known that his league will not attempt to sign NHL players until the end of the current season. That's very kind of Mr. Davidson and his cohorts, since Bobby Orr is probably just itching to tear up his million - dollar contract with Boston Bruins and head out to Hackensack.

Despite statements apparently to the contrary, the NHL does not intend to reciprocate Mr. Davidson's generosity.

"God bless them if they can be successful," NHL president Clarence Campbell said this week. And scant days before the late Stafford Smythe said any WHA entries would be welcome to rent his Toronto arena anytime.

MR. CAMPBELL said the NHL would make no organized move to block WHA radio or television coverage and he thought the fledgling rival league would be able to play on NHL rinks. That may turn out to be the case in at least three locales — Chicago, New York, and Los Angeles — practically cinches to be among the 12 franchises.

But the niceties will likely end December 1 for the three Canadian - based WHA entries, whose junior base of operations are subsidized by the NHL via the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to the annual tune of $10,000 each.

The NHL makes its half-yearly payments to the CAHA Dec. 1, and the grant situation should be clarified by then." Mr. Campbell innocently remarked. That's clarified spelled C-A-N-C-E-L-L-E-D.

As unpurtured as they have thus far tried to appear, NHL clan members couldn't help but perk up their ears with the latest WHA announcement, namely that they intended to operate the first North American professional sports league without the reserve or option clause.

THE RESERVE clause, for those of you who think the Curt Flood Case was a-natural disaster, binds a professional player to his team as long as he plays that professional sport.

United States pro football has the modified option arrangement, under which all a player has to do to gain his freedom from athletic slavery is take about a 20 per cent salary cut for one year.

This is fine, assuming of course, that team owners do not stoop to such heinous practices as blackballing. During one of his famous contract confrontations with Chicago Black Hawk management, Bobby Hull told this reporter that was the eventuality he might face for daring to sass hockey's brass.

RESERVE CLAUSE advocates claim that without it, the richest teams would buy themselves championships in perpetuity. The aforementioned Black Hawks, one of hockey's wealthier organizations, managed to finish last 11 times in one 12-year span despite Bp Jim Norris' balky bankroll.

World Series winning Pittsburgh Pirates are far from being the best-heeled baseball club nor are the hockey's Montreal Canadiens.

But justified or not, professional sport teams prefer to maintain the privilege of owning players like you or I might own a car, wheeling or dealing 'E' at whim.

If the World Hockey Association accomplishes anything, it may be to force existing hockey controllers to reconsider the reserve clause, or lose some players for the sin of stubbornness.

MANY A BORDERLINE NHLer could probably pull down a comparable salary in the new league, and not even the wealthiest of the NHL entries could afford to maintain a roster composed of the remaining high-priced superstars.

No matter how you cut it, the World Hockey Association can't look much worse than the National League's famous 1967-expansion additions.

It remains to be seen whether such NHL stalwarts as the California Golden Seals can withstand the competition of the Hackensack Whatnots.

Napanee Srs. Latest Headache

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Gord Smith is a fellow who shouldn't have too many gridiron problems at this time of year. After all, the Bayside Secondary School coach has his junior football team entrenched in the playoffs in their very first season of operation.

It's Gord's position of Bay of Quinte COSSA convener that's provoking the headaches, and some dandies at that.

Smith had been faced with the responsibility of breaking a three-way tie for first place in the western section of the senior football league with Trenton, Quinte and Centennial, all sporting 3-1 records. With each team facing supposedly weaker opponents this week it appeared as though there would be a tie for the two playoff positions in the western division.

The league convener was understandably relieved when Napanee seniors stunned Centennial Wednesday night with a 16-0 victory to all but eliminate chances of a three-way tie in the west. Both Trenton and Quinte would have to lose their final games for the situation to repeat since a two-way tie can be settled by the team records against each other.

However, Gord was quickly reaching for the aspirin bottle again when he realized that the win by Napanee had created a three-way tie for SECOND place in the eastern section. "Oh no! Oh! Ah! This is worse than before Now we can't even use the plan I had for the other three teams," was, more or less, his reaction to the latest developments.

In the Quinte - Centennial - Trenton - triangle, there had been three teams vying for two playoff spots. Smith had planned to draw lots for one team to receive a bye with the other two meeting in a sudden death encounter. Now however, he's faced with the prospect of three teams deadlocked for a single spot, since Moira has already clinched first place in the east.

Possible ways out? Well, if BCI were to defeat Trenton in Friday's game it would assure them of a playoff spot with a 3-2 record and solve the whole problem. Unless of course, Moira were to beat Quinte in today's encounter, which would mean a three-way tie in the west again and . . . back to the old drawing board, Gord.

Potts Has Quickest Tryout for Quintes

You'll never see a more successful hockey tryout than Doug Potts had Wednesday night with the Belleville Quintes.

After his first time on skates this year, the Stirling defenceman was signed by Belleville senior club manager Ken Murphy.

Potts, familiar locally as a member of the city's junior B entry four years ago, is expected to help fill a gap created in the Quinte defence corps by Mike Rexe's knee injury.

Since his Belleville junior days, Potts has played in intermediate ranks for Batawa and Campbellford, where he played industrial hockey last winter.

The six foot, 185-pounder was as surprised as anyone to be signed so quickly.

"I was talking to Gene (coach) Poirier and he said they would probably be working me in a few shifts a game at first."

The 24 - year - old's first chance will come this weekend in an away - and - home Friday - Saturday series with Woodstock Royals.

Meanwhile, unsigned veteran centres Dave Jones and Doug Senior showed they still have an interest in senior hockey by skating in the Quinte's Monday night workout.

Due to a family illness, coach Poirier was not on hand to discuss their hockey future with the pair, who, between them, accounted for 75 points in 58 regular season games last winter.

Liske Not Filling Eagle Bill

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After a disastrous 1970, Philadelphia Eagles spent the off-season negotiating acquisition of a field leader to bolster their National Football League fortunes.

After all, the future of coach Jerry Williams, who held the same position with Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League before jumping his contract to join the Eagles in 1968, hung in the balance.

The Eagles, whose 3-10 won-loss mark was worst in the Eastern Division of the National Football Conference, dropped veteran quarterback Norm Snead and began their search with Greg Landry, the Detroit Lion who spent the most part of three seasons riding the bench.

Barton objected to the deal and joined Toronto Argonauts of the CFL, an action that almost sparked inter-league legal entanglements as lawyer Williams alleged the Canadian team had tampered with the player while he was still under contract to Detroit.

His feathers still ruffled,but the matter settled through the offices of commissioners Pete Rozelle and Jake Gaudaur of the NFL and CFL respectively, Williams extended his search to Denver Broncos and quarterback Pete Liske.

Liske, another ex-CFL star with Toronto and Williams' Calgary club, was lured to Philadelphia and touted as the leader who would return the Eagles to respectability.

Philadelphia, however, contined to lose all its four games this season and Williams was sacked.

Liske has the worst NFC passing mark among the regulars, completing 53 of 114 for 709 yards and two touchdowns.

What shows up badly in the pass ratings, however, is his percentage of interceptions and average yards gained per pass. He's been intercepted 12 times, most in the conference, and averaged 6.22 yards gained for a rating of 48.

Conference leader is Detroit's Greg Landry with 53, completions from 101 attempts for 881 yards. He's only been intercepted three times, has an 8.72-yard average a completion, and a pass rating of 13.

Bo Scott, with Cleveland Browns, ranks fifth in the AFC with 311 yards off 83 carries and four touchdowns. Vic Washington has rushed for 256 yards in 43 carries for San Francisco 49ers in the NFC. His six-yard average is second only to Landry's.

Punt return specialist Jake Scott, the former British Columbia Lion now with Miami, rates high in his department in the AFC. He's tied with Pittsburgh's Jon Staggers for most returns 14 and is second to Staggers in yardage 180 to 128.

Kapp's Name Crops Up In Pro Football Probe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Finks, vice-president and general manager of Minnesota Vikings, testified Wednesday before the federal grand jury investigating pro football operations. He answered reporters' questions afterwards with a "no comment."

Finks, who at one time was general manager of Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League, said before entering the jury room that he was subpoenaed a week ago.

He also said that he expected to be questioned about Joe Kapp, former Minnesota quarterback, but refused to say later if in fact he was.

Kapp, whose last season with the Vikings was 1969, was a witness before the grand jury earlier in the investigation, which began last November.

Kapp played with British Columbia Lions and Calgary Stampeders of the CFL before joining the Vikings.

HURRY (Hurry, hurry, hurry, hurry)

It won't last forever, but right now is a fantastic time to buy a new 1972 Chevrolet, Chevelle, Monte Carlo, Nova, Vega, Camaro, Cutlass or Oldsmobile. President Nixon's price freeze stopped the price increase that was on the way (an average of $175. per car). But it didn't stop the cars! To our surprise and delight a shipment of 25 beautiful, shiny new 1972 cars just arrived at our door.

If you buy before the freeze comes unfrozen, we can let you have one of these beauties (or two or three, if you like) at the 1971 price. Now, we know the prices are going to go up eventually probably within weeks. Because the cars are costing more to make. But right now you're definitely ahead of the game if you deal.

Our"last car business is very important to us. And right now we're not doing any because we just don't have the cars. So our new car department wants to sell, and our used car department wants to buy. And that makes a very, very good situation for you.

Golfers Open With Upset

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Canada upset Britain's highly-rated team and Australia defeated New Zealand in the first day of play in the Commonwealth amateur golf tournament today.

The Canadian amateurs defeated the Britons 5-3 after taking the foursomes 2-1.

Doug Roxburgh, 19-year-old player from Vancouver, contributed to Canada's triumph with an unexpected win against experienced British player Rodney Foster.

A strong overnight wind helped dry out the greens following Wednesday's heavy rain which restricted play in the opening matches to only two hours.

Australia, after losing the foursomes to New Zealand 2½ to ½, struck back in the afternoon to win the singles 4½ to 1½ and take the match 5-4.

Canada and Australia lead the round-robin tournament with two points each. Britain and New Zealand have no points.

Canada's biggest singles victory was recorded by Garry Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., the U.S. amateur king, playing at No. 3 in the team order.

Cowan made a brilliant start against Britain's George MacGregor with birdies on the first three holes and went on to win 5 and 3.

But Roxburgh's 1 up win over Foster, a veteran of three Walker Cup competitions, was the day's biggest surprise. Roxburgh went round the Middlemore course in an 82-11 over par.

Knudson Hot

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — George Knudson of Toronto and Ray Floyd tied the course record with 65s Wednesday on the Silverado County Club's north course during the pro-am portion of the $150,000 Kaiser International open golf tournament.

New 76er Investment Pays Fast Dividends

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kevin Loughery paid a quick dividend to Philadelphia 76ers after being traded by Baltimore Bullets in the National Basketball Association.

Loughery scored the basket that broke a 92-92 tie with 2½ minutes left, then added four more key points as the unbeaten 76ers made it four in a row by downing Seattle SuperSonics 100-93 Wednesday night.

Loughery, traded by the Bullets on Monday for Archie Clark of Philadelphia, finished with 20 points, second to Billy Cunningham's high of 29 for the 76ers. Don Kojis led the SuperSonics with 18.

Los Angeles Lakers also made it four straight by whipping Atlanta Hawks 126-104 while, in the other scheduled NBA games, California Golden State romped over Cleveland Cavaliers 115-98 and Chicago Bulls whacked Houston 125-110. Dallas beat Carolina 115-113 in overtime. Virginia defeated Floridians 111-108 and Kentucky shaded Memphis 106-104 in the three American Basketball Association games scheduled.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN

Veteran Wilt Chamberlain put the unbeatne Lakers ahead of the Hawks with a basket that broke an 86-86 tie, then ripped off 13 points in the last quarter as Los Angeles pulled away.

Jim McMillian, with 39 points, and Gail Goodrich, with 29, combined for 68 points to spark the Lakers' offence. Chamberlain finished with 18. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 37.

Cazzie Russell, with 29, and Jeff Mullins, with 27, combined for 56 points in leading the Golden State Warriors over Cleveland. Bobby Smith tallied 23 for the Cavaliers and Charlie Davis added 19.

Expos Buy Second Canadian

MONTREAL (CP) — Ron Taylor, 33-year-old right-handed reliever with New York Mets for the last five season, was purchased Wednesday by Montreal Expos.

Jim Fanning, general manager of the Expos, said the deal between the two National League clubs was a straight cash transaction. He did not specify the amount involved.

Taylor, born and educated in Toronto, had been with the Mets' organization since 1967, when he reported to the baseball club's spring training camp as a non-roster player. He subsequently earned a spot on the team's active roster and went on to establish a string of club records for the Mets.

Taylor is the second Canadian pitcher with the Expos. The other is Claude Raymond, veteran reliever from St. Jean, Que., who came here from Atlanta in August, 1969.

RON TAYLOR

Angels Fire Manager

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels fired general manager Dick Walsh Wednesday night.

Officials of the American League West club said "exploratory talks" have been held with Harry Dalton, vice-president in charge of player personnel for Baltimore Orioles, but no decision has been reached yet on whether he will succeed Walsh.

Walsh, 45, had four years remaining on a seven-year contract.

Symons Ready to Hear French School Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Prof. T. H. B. Symons, chairman of the provincial commission looking into French-language secondary education in Ontario, says he is ready to start receiving briefs from interested parties.

Prof Symons said in a statement Wednesday that notices inviting briefs from individuals and groups will be placed in newspapers across the province Friday.

Final date for submitting briefs will be Nov. 19.

Education Minister Robert Welch, releasing the commission's terms of reference Oct. 6, said its chief purpose will be to "inquire into the effectiveness of legislation to implement a program of French-language education in the schools of Ontario."

He said Prof. Symons, president of Trent University in Peterborough, is to make a preliminary report to him no later than Dec. 30. A final report is to be completed as soon as possible.

Prof. Symons was appointed by Mr Welch following a strike by French-language students at the Sturgeon Falls secondary school. "The students wanted that school to be used exclusively by French-speaking students, with English-speaking ones moved into a new school.

Drugs Claimed Escape From Worldly Pressures

TORONTO (CP) — The spiritual leader of the Church of England said Wednesday night he sees a revival in mysticism and drug usage as people seek to escape worldly pressures.

Dr. Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, said there is a "hunger for mysticism . . . and the use of drugs in the quest for ecstatic experience" because people long to escape from the pressures of environment.

The Archbishop, delivering the last of three lectures in the Larkin-Stuart memorial series at Trinity College, University of Toronto, said would-be mystics and drug-takers shrug off Christianity.

"Its institutionalism inhibits spiritual adventure," he said, "and its activist preoccupations seem uninterested in religion."

He said there are many cults which offer an escape "from the dominance of environment.

"But "institutional Christianity can fulfil a mission of help only if it will see itself under judgment and will learn from the upheavals of the time."

"A prosperous religious culture with a deadened conscience about race or poverty is a monstrosity which brings its revenge. So too does an ethical and activist religion which starves itself by its neglect of contemplation."

TV Series to Show Canadian Political History

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker felt "alone" and "condemned" and thought his political career was ended after his second unsuccessful attempt to become national leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

Lester Pearson made what he described as "one of the most disastrous debuts" ever made by a political leader on his first appearance in the House of Commons as newly-elected leader of the Opposition Liberal party when he asked the minority Conservative government to resign.

These, and other personal reflections are contained in the new CBC television series, The Tenth Decade—the Diefenbaker-Pearson Years, which makes its network debut Oct. 27.

The eight-part series focuses on the two men, tracing their contrasting rise to leadership of their respective parties.

The series combines film clips and still photographs of the 1957-67 period with new interviews with the men and their associates.

The first segment sketches the early background of both men while concentrating on the events that resulted in the Conservative victory over the Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent in the general election of 1957.

In 1942 he made his first bid for party leadership, losing to John Bracken. In 1948 he lost to George Drew, and it was at this time, he said, he thought his political career was over, as [illegible] members of his own party [illegible] saying.

R. A. (Dick) Bell, chairman of the PC's 1956 national leadership convention, said not all the delegates to that convention favored the choice of Mr. Diefenbaker to succeed Mr. Drew. But Mr. Diefenbaker won on the first ballot.

The great pipeline debate—dealing with the Liberal government's proposal to lend $20 million to an American company for construction of a pipeline to transport oil from Western to [illegible] Canada—is shown as [illegible]y issue leading to Mr. Diefenbaker's election as Canada's 13th prime minister.

The series' second episode shows that, in contrast to Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson simply progressed to—his party's leadership.

He discloses in a new interview that he was asked by Mr. St. Laurent's family to persuade the former prime minister to retire.

He met with Mr. St. Laurent and after persuasion by Mr. Pearson and Mrs. St. Laurent, Mr. St. Laurent agreed that "perhaps he wasn't in condition" to continue as Liberal party leader.

Mr. Pearson says the idea for asking the Conservatives to turn over the government to the Liberals came from J. W. (Jack) Pickersgill, right-hand man for Mr. St. Laurent.

Mr. Pearson describes the idea, based on a British parliamentary tradition, as "probably a 'little too imaginative and agile,' adding, however, that no one in his party at the time said it was not a good idea.

Knowlton Nash, director of CBC-TV information programs, said at a preview screening that the series marks "the beginning of a major effort to capture for the first time in television terms the political history of Canada.

Pope Paul Heeds Call

Vatican Asked for Commitment Opposing War

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Vatican commission proposed Wednesday that the Roman Catholic Church commit itself totally to opposing war and injustice and siding with the poor —even to the extent of selling its unneeded treasures and properties to help them.

Heeding the call, Pope Paul announced he will sell the pectoral cross and fisherman's ring of Pope Pius XII and said the money it brings, along with $20,000 from papal coffers, will go to missions in developing lands.

The pope's justice and peace commission also asked the world synod of bishops to show "understanding" for conscientious objectors, and to uphold those who refuse to take part "in certain wars, or in certain acts of war such as the bombing of civilians."

The commission is headed by Maurice Cardinal Roy, archbishop of Quebec City and comprises 11 lay experts and seven prelates.

In a sweeping, 4,000-word document, the commission went further than any church body in the past in denouncing oppression and the Church's own shortcomings in combatting it.

Moores Said Tired Of Waiting for Joey

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Frank Moores, the man leading the main assault on Joseph Smallwood's political bastions in Newfoundland, says he has given up waiting for the premier to make the first serious thrust.

The 38-year-old Progressive Conservative leader, campaigning to end the Smallwood's 22 years in office, says he's patiently awaited the unveiling of the Liberal government's platform for the Oct. 28 provincial election.

"Now it appears they don't have a platform," Mr. Moores said. "So we've got to go after them on the basis of their record. . . ."

The PC leader, a former member of Parliament who is heading a provincial campaign for the first time, continued Wednesday to "go after" the record as he carried his campaign into central Newfoundland.

He flies to the province's west coast today for several days' campaigning in western ridings.

Both the Liberals—in office since Confederation in 1949—and the PCs have fielded full slates of 42 candidates. The New Democratic Party is offering 17 candidates and there is a handful of Independents in the field.

In the last election, five years ago, the Liberals won 39 of the 42 seats in the legislature with the PCs taking the other three.

However, retirements, byelections, deaths and defections cut the number of Liberals to 25. At dissolution this fall, there were seven PCs, two Independent Liberals, one Independent and seven vacancies.

While Mr. Moores has said he has been waiting for the government to announce its platform, the PC leader has been enunciating policies of his own.

Among them:

—"A fair and open" public tendering system in the awarding of all provincial government contracts.

—Selection of personnel for the civil service commission from the ranks of the service itself to "end political patronage in the civil service."

—Introduction of "a no-fault auto insurance scheme" to reduce the cost of premiums and accident investigations.

—Establishment of a legal-aid system to provide "a full range of legal services to all Newfoundlanders."

—Legislation under which cabinet ministers would be required "to reveal any business interests with which they are connected and which deal directly with the government."

Smallwood Claims Victory on Oct. 28

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood predicted Wednesday night his Liberal government would win its seventh straight Newfoundland election Oct. 28.

Carrying his campaign to a Liberal rally in nearby Mount Pearl, Mr. Smallwood told an audience which he numbered at 600 that Newfoundland electors can not "put their faith in the Tories."

Referring to a Conservative government in the days before Newfoundland's union with Canada in 1949, the 70-year-old premier said it had altered taxation to lift the main burden from the shoulders of the "wealthy of Water Street St. John's main business street and placed it on to the shoulders of the fishermen, the miner, the logger, the ordinary Newfoundlander."

He said that experience showed Newfoundlanders they must never elect a Progressive Conservative government again.

Neptune Theatre Praised

The opening days of November will herald the coming of the Halifax - based Neptune Theatre to Centennial High School with their presentation of Goldoni's The Servant of Two Masters, Nov. 2 and 3.

The Belleville performance will be a stopover on the theatre group's journey to and after performing at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa.

The Neptune Theatre led off a showcase of Canadian theatre-groups at the NAC and after seeing the presentation the management of the centre claims, "we are showing the best Canada has to offer."

Presented by the Quinte Arts Council and sponsored by Auto Haus Bell-Ton, the company's performance, say Ottawa critics, "will incite the same kind of rollicking laughter on the provincial level as it did in the original Italian theatre."

Hopefuls in Ottawa are wondering if the Belleville stopover of the Neptune Theatre in the city will prompt other theatre companies, appearing at the NAC, to follow suit and make similar stops on their way home and create a national tour of all theatre.

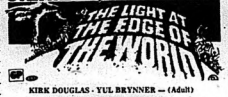
Douglas Chamberlain, "well known throughout the province and Canada for his ability," and Ottawa critics, will be performing as the servant with Tony Van Bridge and James Valentine at his backup men.

Mr. Van Bridge recently appeared in the Shaw Festival production of Candide which played in Kingston in the earlier part of this year.

While actors invariably make the show, "one of the major attractions of the performance will be the quality of the set and variety of costumes designed by Robert Doyle.

Spokesmen for the NAC said, "they filled the stage with rich texture and warm color and each character is arrayed handsomely in Italian style.

"Curtain will be rising in the Centennial High School, Nov. 2 and 3 at 8:30 p.m. nightly and all seats will be obtained in advance through reservation," say spokesmen for the Quinte Arts Council.



It will be a top level production from the Halifax company, who are only now finishing their engagement at the NAC.

Herbert Whittaker, drama critic for the Globe and Mail said about the performance, "Obviously Neptune has rallied its best work in production as well as in company to get this theatre season from coast to coast, off to a distinguished start, with admirable results."

This is the ideal stereo system for those who are undecided as to whether they should buy a cabinet stereo or a component system. It's both! Put the two speakers together with the amplifier and you have a console stereo. Separate them and its a component system. You can use the speakers as end tables because they are just the right height. On the performance end this unit is the tops. Frequency response from the amplifier is 20 - 50,000 Hz and 30 - 20,000 Hz from the air percushion speakers. The changer is a professional belt-driven model with an integrated circuit that tracks at a stylus pressure of 1.5 grams. Other features include an AM-FM-FM stereo tuner, crossover switches, full function switches and a pre-grapher diagram of tone and distortion rates.

Montreal Firemen Return to Work Rather Than Face Fines

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's firemen voted Wednesday night to return to work rather than face the possibility of heavy fines and prison terms for failing to obey a temporary injunction ordering them to end their week-long walkout.

Jacques Morin, president of the Montreal Firefighters' Association, said he urged the men to return to work "because there was a danger that certain firemen would lose their jobs."

Seven striking firemen appeared before a Quebec Superior Court hearing Wednesday, and said they would return to work provided they were guaranteed police protection. The men said reprisals had been threatened against those who returned to their posts.

Michel Cote, city legal adviser, said the city would seek means to prosecute 20 firemen a day under the contempt of court charge. He said that 20 subpoenas had already been issued, summoning the men to appear in court today.

If the men were convicted, said Mr. Morin after the firefighters ended their walkout, they could lose their jobs because the city had threatened to enforce by-laws making it illegal to hire a fireman with a police record.

Failure to obey the back-to-work order constitutes contempt of court and can result in sentences of one year in prison and a $2,000-per-day fine for each of Montreal's 2,400 firemen and a $50,000 daily fine for the association. The injunction was to have expired Wednesday, but was extended to Oct. 28.

Mr. Morin said he was determined not to lose the jobs of any firemen in the dispute, because "they would have a lot of trouble finding other jobs."

The men walked out to back demands for wage parity with Toronto firemen. The city offered them a 7.1-per cent increase, raising the salary of a first-class fireman to $10,650, some $600 short of parity.

"I will go to City Hall every day next week to force them to negotiate with us," said Mr. Morin. "I am still optimistic the city will listen to us."

However, Mr. Morin conceded that if it proves "impossible to get the increase, we will sign the city's contract."

The association president would not speculate what would happen if the municipal administration continued to refuse to negotiate the firefighters' wage demands.

After the back-to-work vote was taken, the men left their closed meeting, obviously unhappy with the result of their seven-day walkout. Some wept openly and others clustered in groups of four or five to discuss the situation. There was a heavy atmosphere of defeat at the firemen's training centre, where the series of study sessions have been held, as 450 of the men left the building to work the Wednesday night shift.

Earlier this month, Montreal police were granted wage parity with Toronto after Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer intervened in a pay dispute, and firemen felt they should receive similar concessions. Mr. Cournoyer had offered to intervene in the firemen's dispute, but insisted the men return to work first.

During the strike, about 60 firemen left their study sessions on two successive nights this week in response to calls for emergency assistance from Rene Plaisance, newly-appointed fire chief.

Both blazes were subdued within two hours by the men, who promptly resumed their walkout.

Eaton Would End Spying

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States should study its spying expenditures and put an end to military and intelligence spending, industrialist Cyrus Eaton said Wednesday.

At a news conference, Canadian-born Mr. Eaton said the U.S. spends $5 million each year on intelligence, employing 100,000 people directly.

And one top spy is a British-er—Sir Robert Thompson. He is paid $75,000 per year," Mr. Eaton said.

"It's time to say we'll give up the spy business," Mr. Eaton said.

Here to visit Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, Mr. Eaton said the Hungarian government and people were very disturbed that Geza Matrai, charged with common assault in connection with an attack Monday on Mr. Kosygin, was born in their country.

Mr. Eaton said the Canadian government should launch extensive investigations of foreign groups behind the attacker, saying the man did not have the nerve to act alone.

Mr. Eaton also announced the start of a potential $100-million trade deal with Russia. Much of the business will go to Canadian exporters, he said.

Two boatloads of breeding stock to improve Soviet dairy and beef herds have already left Canada.

No Permanent Harm Is Done By Big Worm in Intestines

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD .

Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 10, found a worm at least 10 inches long in the toilet. When I finally talked to a doctor, it sounded as if he felt it was a very common affair; he didn't want to see her and prescribed medication by phone.

The druggist also acted like it was nothing but said a second dose of medicine may be necessary in two weeks. She took the medicine but vomited most of it.

I have read your articles on pinworms and please answer questions on this type of worm. How and where would such a thing start? Are they contagious? What damage could have been done? Isn't a worm 10 inches long rare, and would you recommend another dose of medication?—Mrs. E.M.

Finding a worm can be an unpleasant surprise but, frankly, not uncommon—as you surmised from the reaction of the doctor and pharmacist.

This isn't a pinworm, of course. A pinworm is about like a short scrap of thread. From the length of this, one would suspect it to be a tapeworm.

Youngsters can harbor such worms (well, adults can, too) without much in the way of symptoms: maybe abdominal discomfort, ranging from mild to colicky; maybe an increase in appetite; no significant change in bowel pattern. You want to get rid of the critters, of course, but no permanent damage done.

Where do they get these worms? Maybe from getting worm eggs in undercooked meat. Maybe from other foods contaminated with the eggs. Or getting eggs in the mouth via dirty hands. One variety of tapeworm can be acquired from a pet cat or dog. If you have such a pet, have it checked by a veterinarian.

The worm (and eggs) can be present in the intestine for quite some time before a portion of the worm itself is expelled. When I say "a portion of the worm," I mean it, because other portions can remain and grow. Worms may be eggs, which will grow into worms.

As your pharmacist suggested, another treatment may be necessary; final clue to success would be checks at weekly intervals to see whether any ova, or eggs, are still found in the stool.

Medication for such worms should be given on an empty stomach, and a soap suds enema given to evacuate the material of the lower bowel. After all, you want to get rid of all the worms and eggs, wherever they happen to be in the digestive apparatus.

Dr. Thosteson: Have women had children after having a mastectomy? I am referring to the patient who did not require cobalt treatments. Are there any risk involved in getting pregnant after this operation? —Mrs. J.E.

I presume you mean mastectomy (removal of a breast) that was necessitated because of a cancer. Yes, women have become pregnant after mastectomy, with no undue risks.

That is, with one qualification: there is no undue risk if the cancer has been successfully removed. But in instances in which the surgery did not succeed, and there is still an active cancer, then the hormone changes involved in pregnancy could accelerate the rate of growth of the cancer.

Note that there's a difference between such hormones causing cancer, or merely speeding the growth of a cancer that already exists.

Note to Mrs. C.P.: Is a half-pound of cheese fattening? Naturally! Cheese is a nutritious, high-protein food, but a half-pound of any variety represents a lot of calories.

The bidding:

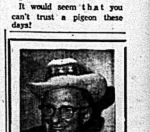
Opening lead — five of spades.

Once upon a time there lived a jackass who was not a particularly good bridge player but who, like many others of hi silk, rated himself as a top-notch expert.

He was playing at the club one day against a pair of pigeons when this hand came up. The jackass was sitting South, playing with an albatross, and he should have opened the bidding with a no-trump in order to avoid the rebid problem that would have arisen had his partner responded one over anything.

But bukkity, the albatross rebid two clubs and the jackass was able to portray his high-card strength and balanced distribution by bidding two notrumps.



The albatross was not overly happy about playing the hand in notrump with a singleton spade, so he bid three diamonds to warn his partner against notrump. But the jackass persisted with three notrump and the pigeon on his left led the five of spades.

The jackass won East's queen with the ace and saw that by far his best chance for the contract was to rely on a successful diamond finesse.

So, at trick two, he led a club to the ace, planning to finesse the queen of diamonds at trick three. But the pigeon on his right had been doing some thinking of his own, and on the ace of clubs he played the king!

Naturally this led the jackass to conclude that West had been dealt the J—7-6-2 of clubs. Accordingly he switched his plan of campaign. He crossed to his hand with a and finessed. The pigeon on heart, led the nine of clubs, his right won with the jack, returned a spade, and the jackass ended the hand going down two.

What The Stars Say

Friday, October 22

General guide—Moods continue to vary from disappointment this a.m. to elation this afternoon. This upswing hopefully can be sustained through the evening and into tomorrow. Stress highly a court decision to rescind or limit the privileges of certain investment or financial institutions.

Aries (March 21-April 19). If you're forced to act on an opportunity this morning, there can be a way of reversing decisions after lunch. Try to make special arrangements.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Just because your own individual resources are slim at the moment, there's nothing to stop you from borrowing/lending them with a small loan. Don't let barriers pass you by.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Partners may be testing you now, to see if you're stick to your resolves. Don't let anybody sweet-talk you into backing down.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Initial fears about a health or occupational problem can prove negligible. Even though certain facets of the final outcome are disappointing, the general results are good.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Don't lose interest in a new romance just because of a few rebuffs at first. Loved ones warm up to your suggestions by evening, if you're willing to wait.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Authorities have to get a few last words of warning in, before you set out on an independent course. Don't let anything they say undermine your confidence.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Don't pay too much attention to those who refuse to co-operate the first time you approach them. Just walk away and give them a while to think things over.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). There may be enough in the fifty to satisfy your own material needs, but this situation won't last if you insist on subsidizing someone else's economy. Spend it on yourself.

Davis Plane Turns Back

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis ended his campaign for today's provincial election in a plane instead of at a rally in Kirkland Lake as originally planned.

The campaign plane carrying Mr. Davis took off from Toronto Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. EDT but was forced to turn back about 100 miles north of North Bay because of poor visibility.

The premier puffed comfortably on a cigar, chatted, and participated in a sing-song with reporters as the plane headed back to Toronto. It arrived at 8:10.

Asked whether he was nervous during the flight, he replied he is never nervous but said he was sorry he was unable to go to Kirkland Lake. Mr. Davis said he was told there was a crowd of 1,000 waiting to hear him speak at a high school.

After arriving back in Toronto, the premier went home.

Earlier Wednesday, Mr. Davis spoke to about 1,000 high school students in Dorchester near London, then journeyed to Brantford to speak to another 1,000 students.

At Brantford, he re-emphasized his party's position on aid to separate schools.

Mr. Davis said Grades 11, 12 and 13 in the separate school system are private schools and that his government will continue its aid to Grades 1 to 10 only.

"But we're for a single public high school system," he said. "That's our policy."

Nixon Sees Clear Win

KINGSTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon wound up the final day of the provincial election campaign Wednesday by mainstreeting in Bracebridge, Orillia, Barrie and Kingston.

Mr. Nixon was in good spirits as he and his wife Dorothy drove in open convertibles in long cavalcades through the communities. The crowds were enthusiastic.

At Orillia, Mr. Nixon promised to proceed with the erection of Simcoe College if his party is elected. The proposal for the Liberal arts college to accommodate 2,000 students has been delayed.

Mr. Nixon also told an Orillia news conference that Liberals will win 70 seats and predicted an 80-per-cent turnout in today's election.

He wound up the campaign here Wednesday night, standing on a chair and speaking to about 7000 supporters in a converted garage.

Mr. Nixon was to spend Wednesday night at his farm home at St. George near Brantford and was to vote today at the town hall about 11 a.m.

He plans to spend election day visiting polls in his own riding of Brant and will watch the results at his campaign headquarters in Paris, Ont.

In his Kingston appearance, Mr. Nixon spoke only briefly, saying that "a change is in the wind." Through the rest of his speech, he talked not of issues, but of his confidence in a Liberal victory.

Minority Government Speculation Heard As Ontario Voters Go to Polls Today

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis risks 28 years of unbroken Progressive Conservative government today in an Ontario general election after a campaign muddied with speculation about a minority government.

The three party leaders—Mr. Davis, Liberal Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis of the New Democratic Party—have completed 36 frantic days on the election trail, criss-crossing the province by air, bus and rail.

The quiet time descended Wednesday. All that remains now is for Ontario's 4.4 million voters to pick a winner in an election that has seen just enough questions raised to put the outcome in some doubt.

At dissolution of the legislature, the Conservatives held 68 of the 117 seats, followed by the Liberals with 27 and the New Democrats with 21. There was one independent, who is not seeking re-election.

A forecast of mainly sunny skies and warm weather and a relatively-high turnout at advance polls were expected to ensure a good turnout.

The predictions came thick and fast during the final hours of the long, gruelling campaign. The Tories were talking in terms of anywhere from 60 to 80 seats with a fairly even split on the balance between the Liberals and New Democrats.

The Liberals and the Liberal watchers said cautiously they expect to win between 34 and 38 seats, the Conservatives will finish with 55 and the NDP should win between 27 and 31. Two weeks ago, the Liberals were talking in terms of 45 seats.

NDP organizers predicted only that their party will wind up as the official opposition with between 29 to 43 seats. A top organizer said he expects the Davis government to retain about 58 seats—one less than a clear majority—and the Liberals will take 17 to 24.

It was a campaign largely devoid of issues with province-wide impact, fought to a large extent on the personal qualities and appeal of the party leaders.

All parties agreed that the northern and southwestern areas of the province are ripe for big shifts in political representation.

The election was fought on local issues. In Brantford, the voters talked about an expressway; in Kenora it was studded tires. In rural Waterloo South, farm assessment is a big issue.

The Progressive Conservatives launched an estimated $4-million advertising assault on the electorate, pushing Premier Davis a 42-year-old lawyer from Brampton, as the new leader of a dynamic new government. Mr. Davis took over as premier after John Robarts retired in March.

Mr. Nixon's strategists also bought heavily into television, concentrating on the theme "Had Enough?" in a contentious and often bitter attack on the Conservative performance.

The New Democrats relied less heavily on television, radio and newspaper advertising, concentrating instead on saturation canvassing in almost every riding, and the slogan "We'll Deliver."

All three major parties ran full slates of candidates in the 117 ridings. There were also five Social Creditors, five Communists and 32 independents for a total 1,303 candidates.

The two most frequently mentioned issues—by the voters if not the candidates—were unemployment and the Davis government's decision not to extend provincial aid past Grade 10 to be Roman Catholic secondary school system.

However, much of the bitterness over the lack of jobs seemed to be focused on the federal government. And most of the candidates conceded that while the separate schools question was an undercurrent in the campaign, it would not switch many votes.

Mr. Nixon, 43, sought to become Ontario's first Liberal premier since his father, Harry C. Nixon, held the job for three months in 1943. A farmer and teacher, Mr. Nixon was considered a safe bet for re-election in the Brant riding he and his father have held for 32 years between them.

Mr. Davis also was expected to have no trouble being re-elected in the Peel North riding, one of the biggest in the province.

Mr. Lewis, a 23-year-old history teacher and son of NDP National Leader David Lewis, ran again in Scarborough West and was reported well out in front of his Liberal and Tory opponents.

NDP Blitz Canvass Plan Twelve Years in Making

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis was to vote at 9:30 a.m. today in his home riding of Scarborough Centre and then go out to pull in the vote with an estimated 42,000 New Democratic party volunteers across Ontario.

At a rally of about 450 persons at Oshawa Wednesday night, the NDP leader said the party has been working toward this election since the 1959 campaign for Ken Bryden in what was then Toronto Woodbine.

That was the first election in which the New Democrats experimented with the blitz canvassing technique, calling on each voter several times.

"And so 12 years ago a number of people in the party became. In each one, more sophisticated which reaches its peak tomorrow," he said.

Since then the party had been through numerous bylections in which hundreds of workers from the party across Canada zeroed in to elect a New Democrat carefully to build an organization

Ted Kennedy Angers Heath

LONDON (CP) — A storm of unofficial protest and public alarm has been raised here by Senator Edward Kennedy's call for Irish unity and a withdrawal of British forces from Ulster.

Britain's Conservative government declined to issue any immediate formal reaction but Prime Minister Edward Heath is reported extremely surprised and angry.

Officially, the government's attitude is one of disdain.

"We wouldn't elevate such an irresponsible action by a further statement," said one official.

The Daily Telegraph says today the senator's comments might gravely damage security efforts in Northern Ireland by encouraging further terrorist attacks by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"But it will no doubt make him a popular figure among the gunmen and saboteurs operating in Ulster and among some of his Irish Roman Catholic voters," the newspaper adds.

The Massachusetts Democrat took the rare step Wednesday of seeking Senate approval of his proposals, but such endorsement is considered unlikely.

A companion resolution was introduced in the House of Representatives stating that immediate action is necessary to prevent a "massacre of innocents" in Ulster.

The Times comments that Kennedy's Senate speech indicates "large numbers of Americans, and not only those of Irish origin, are ready to see Ulster as another Palestine and with the Roman Catholics cast in the role of the plucky Jews."

In a column by Louis Heren, The Times says:

"Certainly, the senator's speech was in no way constructive. He ignored the facts of Northern Irish life and further bloodshed which would inevitably follow a British withdrawal."

The Sun, noting that "Heath is livid," says Kennedy should have asked to speak to government ministers about the Northern Ireland situation during his visit to Britain last month.

Kennedy's comments came within hours of Prime Minister Jack Lynch's statement that Ireland may ask for United Nations assistance to prevent what he described as incursions into republican territory by British troops.

Lynch has threatened such action several times and his latest comments received little apparent attention here.

Most commentators today completed their denunciations of Kennedy by expressing a conviction that the senator plans to seek the Democratic nomination to contest the 1972 presidential election and hoped to raise Irish-American support with his latest statements.

The IRA made no immediate comment.

Ellsberg Praises Papers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg, who leaked the Pentagon Papers and now faces jail for doing so, said Wednesday that newspapers which printed the government secrets "did very well for the country," by protecting the right of the people to know what is happening behind the scenes in government.

One newspaper editor, however, disagreed sharply with some of his colleagues in a discussion on the controversial publications at the annual meeting of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

Martin Hayden, editor of the Detroit News, said he believed the publication of the Pentagon Papers, even though upheld by the Supreme Court, could lead Congress to pass stronger laws "to regulate or control the press." He added he was "scared to death" of such a possibility.

"We don't have a licence to print everything that we can get our hands on," Hayden said. "There has to be some kind of restraint on the part of editors."

Ellsberg said that the Pentagon Papers disclosed "a history of deception" by five presidents.

The APME, in a first-of-its-kind citation, presented the first Freedom of Information Award to the New York Times for publishing the Pentagon Papers.

Boy, 15, Charged As Woman Slain

TORONTO (CP) — Police charged a 15-year-old Toronto boy with capital murder Wednesday after a 49-year-old housewife was fatally shot in the face while preparing breakfast for three of her children.

Police said Alice St. Cyr was found on the kitchen floor.

Police said a daughter ran screaming from the house. A shot from a .22-calibre rifle, the same calibre used in killing the mother, was fired at the daughter as she fled, but it missed.

Police later seized a .22-calibre rifle. George Cyr, the husband, was at work when the shooting occurred at 8 a.m.

Davis Steamrolls Back Into Power

PCs Get 78 Seats In Ontario Sweep

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis' jubilant Progressive Conservatives steamrollered to a walloping victory in the Ontario election Thursday that left opposition parties with little more than token representation.

The grinning 42-year-old Conservative leader told 2,000 cheering supporters in his hometown of Brampton that he was "very humble, very gratified" in winning his first province-wide election mandate since succeeding John Robarts as premier and party leader last March 1.

Results of the last three elections:

	1971	1967	1963
PC	78	69	77
Lib	20	28	24
NDP	19	20	7
Total	117	117	108

Mr. Davis won a tremendous personal victory in the Peel North riding he has represented since 1959, finishing 18,750 votes ahead of a New Democratic Party opponent. The win was indicative of the premier's widespread personal popularity which was in large measure responsible for the Conservative gains elsewhere in the province.

Within minutes of the polls closing, it was obvious that Mr. Davis had successfully defended 28 years of unbroken Conservative government under five different premiers The only cliff-hanger was which party would form the opposition.

As the situation stood when counting ended for the night it looked as though Robert Nixon's Liberals would continue as the official opposition. But they held only a one-seat margin and official recounts were expected in a number of ridings.

At dissolution of the house Sept. 13, the Tories held 68 seats, Liberals 27, New Democrats 21 and there was one independent, a former Liberal. Following the last election, in 1967, there were 69 PC members, 28 Liberals and 20 NDP seats.

The leaders of both opposition parties retained their seats. Mr. Nixon, a 43-year-old farmer-teacher, won comfortably in Brant. But NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, 33, saw his plurality cut to 475 votes in the Scarborough West riding he won by 4,831 votes in the 1967 election.

Mr. Davis, who served as Ontario's education minister prior to becoming leader, commended both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Lewis "for the clean and constructive nature of their campaigns."

"But at the same time I think it. (the win) indicated very clearly that the people of this province are looking for leadership, they are looking for new direction.

"And I feel very humble, very gratified at the confidence that has been expressed by all the people of Ontario in me, in my colleagues. We will make every

The vast rural and small-city area, long a Conservative stronghold, gave all its 23 seats to the Tories.

Quinte riding's Dr. R. T. Potter, minister without portfolio in the Davis cabinet, took an early lead and held it all night until the final polls were counted.

He polled 14,529 votes, for a plurality of 6,711. The final count showed Dr. Potter with a margin 2,621 votes more than in 1967.

Conservative Clarke Rollins won an easy victory over Liberal Ian Munro and token NDP candidate Richard Lunn in Hastings riding.

But Mr. Rollins' edge over his two opponents was reduced slightly from 1967, when he polled a 4,570 plurality. This year the margin could be slightly under 4,000.

Despite a vigorous campaign by Liberal Barry Young of Napanee, the Conservatives took Prince Edward - Lennox, long a safe Tory stronghold.

Incumbent Russell Rowe was returned for the Conservatives in Northumberland with a tidy plurality of 5,500 votes. But his margin was down somewhat from his 1967 score.

The one tight Eastern Ontario race for the Tories in yesterday's election saw Correctional Services Minister Syl Apps returned in Kingston and the Islands by a scant 195 votes.

The former Maple Leaf hockey star had the lowest plurality of all 24 cabinet ministers after carrying the riding by 2,365 in 1967.

Biggest upset in eastern Ontario came in Peterborough, where city alderman John Turner ousted the NDP's deputy leader, Walter Pitman, by 615 votes. Mr. Pitman took the seat in 1967 by 2,750 votes.

A second upset came in Oshawa, where incumbent NDP Cliff Pilkey was beaten by Conservative Dr. Charles McIlveen. Mr. Pilkey lost by 2,733 votes compared to his plurality of 2,080 in 1967.

Benson May Not Seek Re-election

OTTAWA (CP) — There is speculation—in other words, gossip—that Finance Minister E. J. Benson will not run in the next election.

The further speculation is that he would be succeeded by Transport Minister Don Jamieson or Environment Minister Jack Davis.

Mr. Benson is saying privately that he has not made up his mind yet whether to run again.

If he does try again his, expected Conservative opponent in Kingston and The Islands is red-haired Flora MacDonald, a former worker at party headquarters here who now is on the faculty at Queen's University.

Vietnam Election Held Legal

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's Supreme Court ruled today that President Nguyen Van Thieu's unopposed re-election Oct .3 was legal.

The decision—generally expected—cleared the way for the inauguration of Thieu Oct. 31 for a second four-year term.

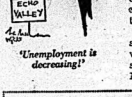
Phone Strike Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada telephone operators walked off the job here and in Pembroke, Ont., this morning amid reports that the walkout will spread to all Ontario centres.



A union spokesman said operators at all Ontario offices would walk out today, but declined further comment.

A company spokesman said "the vast majority" of operators in Ottawa and Pembroke were not at work.

The operators, members of the Traffic Employees Association, set up a picket line of 50 persons outside Bell offices. There are about 420 Ottawa operators, the company spokesman said.

The operators and the company have been unable to agree on a new contract since the old one expired in August. The dispute now is in the arbitration stage.

Supervisors and other management personnel were manning Ottawa switchboards, but there were long delays in attempts to reach Bell's business office, operators or directory assistance personnel.

Opposition Leadership Is in Doubt

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, 33-year-old leader of Ontario's New Democratic Party, shopped around early today trying to find out if he had become the Ontario legislature's new Opposition leader.

Mr. Lewis eventually learned that Liberal Leader Robert Nixon had betained the post, temporarily at least, on the strength of a 29-to-19 finish in legislature seats.

The reason for the confusion: three extremely close ridings — Ottawa Centre, Toronto Dovercourt and Nipissing — which could have boosted official opposition status to either of the parties.

But it's not over yet. Recounts are likely in all three ridings and several others as well, which could shift the balance of power.

The NDP won in Ottawa Centre, the last riding in the province to declare a winner, in a gain from the Liberals. In Dovercourt, a Tory beat back a strong NDP challenge and the Liberal incumbent finished third. And the Liberals retained Nipissing by a razor-thin margin.

Shulman Critical Of Lewis

TORONTO (CP) — Too many people "are frightened of Stephen Lewis," Dr. Morton Shulman said of his party chief Thursday night in an interview.

The re-elected New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park said of the NDP leader: "It's obvious the people of Ontario have rejected Stephen Lewis."

In High Park, Dr. Shulman polled 16,529 votes, 7,281 more than his nearest rival, Conservative Yuri Shymko.

Dr. Shulman said he had supported Walter Pitman for the party leadership and "my impression is that we would have done considerably better with him." Mr. Pitman lost his Peterborough seat Thursday.

Dr. Shulman said he didn't use the party literature in High Park because people were "so turned off by it. It was all Lewis, Lewis, Lewis."

Ottawa Agrees To Tax Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will agree to a change in federal-provincial tax collection arrangements to enable Ontario to make a three per cent reduction in income tax retroactive to July 1, a finance department source said Thursday.

The source said this commitment was given by federal officials attending a two-day conference with their provincial counterparts in Montreal Wednesday and Thursday.

The meeting was held to make plans for a federal-provincial meeting of finance ministers and treasurers. That meeting will be held Nov. 1 and 2.

Premier William Davis announced last week he would cut Ontario income tax by three per cent, matching a federal cut announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson on Oct. 14, if intergovernmental arrangements could be made.

Talk of Huge Wheat Deal Called 'Purely Speculative'

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian government official today described as "purely speculative" published reports saying that Canada and the Soviet Union are on the verge of signing a record wheat deal and are negotiating sales of several manufactured items.

The official, accompanying Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin on his eight-day tour of five Canadian cities, said it is not likely any further agreements would be signed during the trip besides the one signed Wednesday in Ottawa.

That agreement was for the expansion of Canadian-Russian exchanges in scientific, technical, educational, cultural and other such fields.

Weaver 'Disappointed' At Trenton Showing

by KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

While area Conservatives converged on Belleville's new Legion Hall for victory celebrations, Quinte Liberals pondered the decisions of the electorate at what the candidate, Gerald Weaver, called a "semi-wake" for his campaign.

There was no great bitterness among most Liberals, but campaign organizers and Mr. Weaver himself did express disappointment.

"I am naturally disappointed with the results in Quinte, particularly those from the town of Trenton," the candidate told The Intelligencer, as supporters milled around him at his Belleville committee rooms last night.

Both Mr. Weaver and his wife, Aileen, come from well, established Trenton families with a long business history in the community. However, the Liberal was trounced, even at home.

Still publishing even in defeat, Mr. Weaver mused "it appears the glossy election presentation of Premier Davis was bought overwhelmingly by the people in preference to Bob Nixon's carefully planned approach."

The Trenton businessman spent election day going from poll to poll across the riding finishing his tour only when the polls closed. He passed the early evening chatting with supporters at his Trenton headquarters as the results poured in against him.

As the local and provincial trend became clear, the Liberal wake moved into high gear, with a simple "Why?" being the common question.

There was some cynicism, but one organizer offered a bit of philosophy: "despite all the incessant complaining you hear these days, there still must be a lot of happy people in Ontario — or else their ill will is not directed against Bill Davis."

Mr. Weaver's circulated among the small crowd of Trenton supporters tendering personal thank yous for their campaign efforts before making his formal acknowledgement of defeat.

Referring to the Progressive Conservative approach to government, he said "I cannot buy their programs but I certainly wish them well.

"We presented clearly our concerns and a distinctly alternative program but the people did not want it," Mr. Weaver reflected, expressing the hope that the new government will take swift action in the areas that have concerned Quinte Liberals.

He made particular reference to the finishing of Highway 2 as a four-lane artery connecting Belleville and Trenton, the intensification of the Bay of Quinte pollution abatement systems and the grant-ing of further aid to Roman Catholic Separate Schools.

Shortly after 10 p.m. the Weavers motored to Belleville to repeat their statements of gratitude to party workers there and to be hosts for Wake No. 2 at the Campbell Street committee rooms.

Here he made a post - election comment on the PC "New Wave" theme concluding that Premier William Davis had succeeded "escaping accountability" for what he, Mr. Weaver considered the shortcomings of previous administrations in Ontario.

Although there was some regret at the election outcome, Mr. Weaver did not appear to have any misgivings about entering the Quinte contest in which he worked strenuously. He termed the campaign an "interesting education in politics."

What does the future hold for Gerald Weaver? One thing is sure, he says, he will not be taking a holiday to recover from the election grind. Instead, it is back to business.

As far as the political life of the candidate is concerned, Weaver says it is too early to tell at this point whether he would want to run for office again.

Cable TV In Madoc Gives Result

Residents of Madoc village and Conservative party supporters attending Cecil T. Rollins victory celebration at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre last night had their own personalized coverage of the election battle in Hastings riding.

The coverage was at the courtesy of Hastings Cable Vision Ltd., which did its own programing for the event.

Interviews with election personalities were taped at the company studio while a roving cameraman at the Kiwanis Centre kept viewers up to date with frequent shots of the election bulletin board.

Then a battery of television sets on location at the victory celebration allowed viewers to keep abreast of provincial election standings.

Ceremony to Open Dick Ellis Rink

In use since last summer when junior lacrosse was scheduled to play there, the new $300,000 Dick Ellis Rink on Harder Drive in the city's west end, will be officially opened on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The official opening ceremonies will include ribbon cutting by Mrs. Richard Ellis, widow of the former city alderman and junior sports benefactor after which the building was named, along with unveiling of a memorial plaque.

Also to be unveiled is a four - by - four foot plaque bearing the names of approximately 1100 walkers who, as a result of a walkathon around the bay, raised $36,000 to get the arena project underway.

Assisting Mrs. Ellis in the ribbon cutting will be her daughter Mrs. Doreen Reid.

Then, inside the building, Mayor Russell Scott will assist Mrs. Ellis to unveil the memorial plaque commemorating her husband's name.

The walkathon plaque will be unveiled by Ralph Hurst, chairman of the Quinte Action Committe, Tom Cavanaugh, president of minor sports and Ald. Donald Soutter, chairman of the city recreation and arena committee.

Members of the general public are invited to the ceremonies and following the official opening will be taken on guided tours of the new sports structure.

Although designed as a skating rink, use of the new facility will not be confined to winter activities.

The rink will see heavy use by minor hockey teams but throughout the balance of the year will be available for other recreational activities.

Joe Cox, chairman of the special committee arranging ceremonies, says the new rink is a credit to the city.

"The residents will be pleasantly surprised," said Mr. Cox, referring to the rink appointments and decor.

Designed mainly for participation rather than spectator activities, the new rink has an official 200 - by - 85 foot ice surface. Seating is provided for about 500 spectators.

Following the official opening, there will be free skating for the public.

effort to justify the confidence that was placed in us."

The result was never in doubt. The Conservatives surged out of their eastern Ontario stronghold minutes after the polls closed and lapped into Toronto, Northern Ontario and the southwestern section of the province with far more electoral muscle than had been anticipated.

In the final hours of the gruelling 35-day election campaign both opposition parties, and a number of political pundits as well, were predicting a minority Conservative government. Early returns showed a definite PC trend at 8:30 p.m., 30 minutes after the Canadian Press reported a four - way victory just 23 minutes after polls closed in eastern time zones.

The Conservatives scattered their gains across the province, taking seven seats from the NDP and six from the Liberals. The NDP also knifed into Mr. Nixon's holdings, taking three from the Liberals, one from the Tories and one held by an independent.

The Liberals lost 10 ridings they had held at the last election but managed to oust two Tories.

The Conservatives threw a reported $4 million into the election fight and most of it went into pushing Mr. Davis as a dynamic leader, a major political figure in troubled social and economic times.

It was a big gamble but it worked. Not a single one of Mr. Davis's 24 cabinet ministers sought re-election but two of three at least were reported—unreliable as it turned out—to be key cogs in trouble during the tight stages of the campaign.

There were no issues of province-wide significance. The "Bill Davis Party," as it was dubbed by opposition critics, carried the day on the merits of its leader. The issues were local, and they were fought out on a local basis by Tory candidates.

Mr. Davis, fighting his first campaign as a party leader, was bucking a trend. Six of the last eight provincial governments across Canada to go to the polls in the last two years have been defeated.

But all it took to add 10 seats to the government benches was a two-per-cent drift in popular support towards the Tories. The Conservatives cornered 44 per cent of the popular vote, compared with 42 per cent in 1967.

Though the New Democrats had a net loss of two seats, they increased their share of the popular vote by one per cent, moving up to 27 per cent.

For Mr. Nixon, whose late father Harry C. Nixon was in 1943 the province's last Liberal premier, the election results were a personal setback. The Liberals slumped to 28 per cent of the popular vote from 31 per cent.

Independents, Communists and Social Crediters accounted for 17,000 votes, less than one per cent of the 3.2 million ballots cast in a potential electorate of 4.4 million.

Taylor 'Chaired' in Victory

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Jubilant members of the victorious Progressive Conservative party last night lined Picton's Main Street near the Taylor committee rooms to await the arrival of their new MPP, James Taylor.

Mr. Taylor, who arrived sitting and waving shortly before 11 p.m., told the waiting crowd the people of Ontario appreciate the good government they enjoy.

He termed Ontario as the strongest of the economies in Canada and referred briefly to Prince Edward's "urgent" problem revealed in agricultural issues.

The 43-year-old Northport lawyer added the egg producers have a problem that must be solved.

Carried into his committee rooms on the shoulders of his supporters, Mr. Taylor spoke of his recent campaign describing "a very able fight" from Liberal opponent Barry Young. He congratulated Liberal party supporters in the riding on "a fine show".

Mr. Taylor noted he had been the recipient of many congratulations since his sweeping win at the polls but felt he should be the one to congratulate his supporters on their work in his behalf. "You produced the fine victory we are enjoying this evening," he asserted.

"This is the kind of participation by the Conservatives in this riding that has kept your representative Conservative," he said.

The winning candidate assured party members an election is won at the grass roots level.

Before leaving with his family for a victory celebration at Picton Golf and Country Club, Mr. Taylor answered a congratulatory telephone call from retiring MPP for the riding, Norris Whitney.

A Liberal Portion of Pie

Provincial election in Prince Edward-Lennox ended on jovial note as victorious Conservative James Taylor (right) presented Liberal Barry Young with a couple of pies after latter conceded election. Mr. Young seems to be pondering if campaign ammunition arrived too late. However, Mr. Taylor escaped unscathed and both opponents parted in good fellowship.

NAPANEE — Well-organized in advance, running a brisk campaign against an opponent also new to local politics, Liberal Barry Young failed to wrest Prince Edward-Lennox from the citadel of Quinte Conservatism last night.

The reasons?

Last night as party workers still wrestled to total returns from the constituency's 111 polls, it was admittedly a bit early for post mortems and explanations.

Aside, of course, from the fact, with few exceptions, the riding has always been Conservative. (Among the exceptions was the 1948 election when a Liberal made it — because of a three-way fight.)

And, almost from the time they started posting returns at the Liberal committee rooms here, it looked like the riding was going to hold fast to tradition.

By the time final tallies had been reported by the riding returning officer, local custom had been confirmed. Prince Edward - Lennox had stayed Tory.

Although there were some discrepancies between the returning office count and that tallied by The Intelligencer election-night coverage staff, the total result remains undisputed.

James Taylor, PC 9,902 (9,909); Barry Young, Lib., 6,724 (7,562); Brian Beazer, NDP, 2,335 (2,289).

Based on the returning officer's totals, the 31-year-old Mr. Young obtained about 35 per cent of the total vote cast. This compared with about 32 per cent for the Liberal candidate in Prince Edward - Lennox in the 1967 election.

In all, Mr. Young won 10 polls in the riding. In Napanee where he is founding partner of a law firm, he took one poll in 13.

By contrast, a Liberal campaign worker recalled earlier, in the 1967 election the party won five polls in the riding.

The Young campaign was organized early. First nominated in May, the Liberal candidate immediately began blueprinting his contest, said a campaigner.

By the time the election was called in September he was ready to roll.

That night, some 3,000 campaign posters were ready to go up around the riding, said the party worker.

Despite the obvious leanings came in there was no outright despondency in the Liberal committee rooms here.

"It doesn't look too good, George," whispered one worker to another as the tallies were run up.

Some time later after Liberal leader Robert Nixon made what amounted to a province-wide concession on one of the committee room's television sets, one woman marched for the door.

"After that?" sniffed the woman and stalked into the night.

But there were stouter spirits. "Let's cheer this place its around.

up," called one Liberal. "We haven't lost yet. We may have lost by the end of the night— but we haven't lost yet."

— Conservative — as the polls

Shortly after, Mr. Young himself and his wife, Diane, arrived from the party's Picton committee rooms.

Mr. Young, although defeat was obvious, looked as cheery as his campaign posters.

The election may have been lost.

"But let's take it like good Liberals," he told his followers.

Then to emphasize the point, he led a group of them down to the Conservative committee rooms to personally concede to Mr. Taylor.

In the election - night bustle there were no immediate explanations available for the way the returns turned out the way they did.

As for next time? Will the young Mr. Young try again?

"Well, that's a little premature to say," he said as he walked away with his followers.

End of a Campaign

On the Way to Concede - - and Still Smiling

Young Not Dismayed In Defeat

By HARRY MULHALL

NAPANEE — Even his opponents conceded Liberal Barry Young ran a vigorous campaign to wrest Prince Edward — Lennox from its long ensconced Conservative guardians.

Last night, the young Napanee lawyer was just as vigorous in conceding defeat.

Pausing only briefly at his committee rooms here to spread some words of cheer after it was evident his Liberal challenge had obviously been floored — the 31-year-old Mr. Young stepped out briskly to make his concession personal.

With his wife, he quickly led a band of his followers down the street to where Conservative James Taylor was still totalling up poll-by-poll victories at his headquarters.

To emphasize they might be down — but not downhearted — the little band of Liberals, enroute, even broke into a couple of choruses of For He's a Jolly God Fellow — in honor of the victor.

Once he arrived at the Tory headquarters Mr. Young pushed his way through a crowd of former opponents to the platform where Mr. Taylor was still watching the poll returns.

When he was recognized, Mr. Young drew a round of applause from the Conservative crowd.

As they shook hands, Mr. Taylor congratulated his opponent for staging a vigorous campaign — Mr. Young, nominated in May was organized and rolling with his contest by the time the election was called in September.

Mr. Taylor, by way of token in cheer consolation presented his opponent with a couple of pies — some good natured badinage followed, and then both camps went their separate ways again.

Young PCs Like Result

PICTON (Staff) — "He's the best possible man I can think of to do Norris Whitney's work," grinned Harvey Thompson, president of the Young Progressive Conservatives, speaking of victorious Conservative candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox James Taylor.

The grade 13 student who attends Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, remarked "Mr. Whitney did a good job and it takes a good man to fill his shoes."

Immediately following the Progressive Conservative candidacy convention in Napanee last month the Young Progressive Conservatives organized to wave the Taylor banner.

The group consists of students in both Prince Edward and Lennox who have promoted their party through a variety of projects including a car wash, a cross-county cavalcade and a hayride.

In Prince Edward, Mr. Thompson was elected president of the Young Conservatives with Anna Lynn Walker, Kim Taylor and Joanne Tammel as vice-presidents. Secretary - treasurers are Ena Tammell and Cindy Taylor.

This ambitious group is already making plans for party promotion in a federal election and Mr. Thompson has spoken with George Hees, MP, Prince Edward - Hastings in connection with a program.

By lowering the voting age to 18 years, Harvey Thompson feels the government has stirred political interest among many students, even those too young to mark a ballot in yesterday's election.

He observed courses at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute now include classes in World Politics and political science.

The election, in his opinion affected the whole school population since principal Paul Burd permitted student parties to post literature on a large bulletin board.

Nixon Sends Top Adviser

Latin Americans Also Upset Over Washington Surcharge

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon is sending one of his best-known advisers to Latin America next month in an effort to improve relations with an area of the world that has begun to sense increasing concern in official Washington.

Robert H. Finch, a former Nixon cabinet minister who now serves as a special counsellor to the president, will head a team of American political, educational and development experts on a ten-week tour beginning Nov. 6, about the 10-per-cent import surcharge—and, at the same time, a potentially dangerous reaction from the American business community about arbitrary seizure of U.S. investments in the Southern Hemisphere.

Although Nixon and State Secretary William Rogers have personally present to announce There have been enough curious aspects to the White House handling of the Finch tour so far to give rise to unresolved quandary the United States finds itself in.

The U.S. is faced with both ding hostility on the part of the Latin Americans—particularly the Finch trip, they mentioned only two minor conferences he would attend—and the sky re ceived scant attention in the U.S.

It was subsequently learned that Finch would visit as many as seven countries in an obvious bid to assure their governments that Nixon has not forgotten Latin America as he attached such larger areas as China, the Soviet Union, the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

The unusual handling of the announcement about Finch's trip has an apparent advantage.

It continues the Nixon administration's policy of maintaining a low profile in Latin America as a means of defusing anti-Yankee feelings there that less publicity the Finch trip gets, the less encouragement there will be for the sort of demonstrations Nixon blamed van into during a 1958 tour of the region as vice-president.

Equally noteworthy is that Finch is planning to avoid those countries where American relations are particularly touchy at the moment.

He has no plans to go to Chile, whose Marxist-led government has inflamed American business opinion with its handling of copper nationalizations; nor to Peru, Ecuador or Panama, now engaged in delicate negotiations on Brnit. U.S. control of the Canal Zone.

Treasury Secretary John Connally has been leading a campaign within the administration for the U.S. to take a tough stand on the nationalizing of American business interests in Latin America, cutting off aid if necessary in some cases. The state department is said to be urging a more cautious approach.

Reports from Latin America indicate a united front could develop there, strongly opposed to every political persuasion, to Yankee pressure against individual nations.

The trip by the Spanish-speaking Finch could result in a working understanding for the U.S. position—including domestic pressures on the president—among countries which have no particular axe to grind with the U.S. at present.

But unless the United States decides to lift the surcharge on Latin-American manufactured imports before Finch begins his tour, the envoy could have difficulty making more than a superficial impression on a region that feels particularly abused at the moment.

PCs Hold Ontario

The Progressive Conservative party has scored a resounding victory in Ontario. In so doing it has dispelled a widely held belief — one fostered in the course of the campaign by the Opposition parties — that change was in the air and that it would be reflected, if not in a Liberal or New Democratic Party victory then in a greatly reduced majority for the ruling PCs.

Clearly, change for the sake of change was not the mood of the electorate. Nor did voters detect anything in Opposition platforms to warrant entrusting the province to a change in government.

The voters' mandate is an expression of confidence in both solid government and in Conservative leader William Davis. And when the Premier says his administration will work for the good of all the people of the province, whatever their political beliefs, his words have the ring of sincerity and purpose. There were few if any promises in the Davis campaign, and this while the Opposition were jumping over themselves with ideas and issues in their attempts to catch the imagination of the public.

This is not to say that the Liberals and NDP did not fight an earnest and creditable campaign. Neither Robert Nixon nor Stephen Lewis are men to be ignored; they are able and dedicated men with the best interests of the people of this province at heart. There is no doubt that the Liberals' "Participation in Government" and the NDP's constant theme that people must come uppermost, as in the need to provide more jobs, . . . no doubt that these recommendations and urgings will be considered by the Government in its future policies.

Stephen Lewis' raiher backhand swipe at the PC advertising campaign in the closing days of the election, with the suggestion that it was this factor which sent the Conservatives headlong to victory, rather than any genuine claim to continued government, struck a sour note. Mr. Lewis might remember that he and his party's views had excellent exposure courtesy of the CBC, courtesy in turn of the taxpayer.

While it was a big victory for the ruling party, contrasting with the upsets in some half-a-dozen other provincial elections in the recent past, the Opposition parties, with 39 seats between them, may be counted upon to provide further lively dialogue in the legislature, as well as a brake upon lopsided Government.

Kosygin's Blarney

While we like to make as big a show as possible of our independence in this country — from the United States and all that — the fact remains that our two economies are very much tied together and mutually dependent on each other.

Having said that, it is embarrassing for Canadians to have to listen to Soviet Premier Kosygin using his visit here as a platform for globe-trotting the United States for its trade policies. It is easy to say now that Canada and the rest of the world should not have allowed themselves to be so dependent on the U.S. dollar and on the good standard, but that is the way it is and we have to make the best of it. That United States policy is aimed at correcting trading situations unfavorable to its own interests may be a bitter pill to swallow, but if the U.S. should go down where would that leave the rest of us?

Mr. Kosygin did not mention the U.S. by name, but it was obvious to which country he was referring. He talked about "economic miscalculations . . . and pursuit of policies creating tension and conflict in various parts of the world." Nothing but familiar cliches, in fact, and delivered with an attitude of "we're holier-than-thou." And to add to the irony of the Soviet leader went on to infer that only the West is responsible for the international arms race.

Finally there was this comment: "The times of colonial usurpation are past. . ." Actually there is little left to usurp and the U.S. is gradually withdrawing from Vietnam. The Soviets meanwhile retain their grip on eastern Europe, fought the Battle of the Black Sea, and now make use of much more subtle means of winning minds outside its own ample territories. They do it by infiltrating western institutions, our governments and news and broadcasting media, by front organizations, by encouraging permissiveness in our society, by pushing drugs. And when we have a federal youth committee advocating, for example, an end to the cadets, we may be sure that that kind of recommendation is right in line with Communist philosophy — anything in fact to undermine our way of life.

We may seek closer ties with the Soviets, trade with them and so on, but let us not drop our guard or forget our real friends closer to home.

Could Be Too Late to Save Home Textiles

Japs Give in Reluctantly to U.S. Economic Pressure

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Any speculation that the new Japanese textile agreement represented a crack in the American surtax wall was soon dispelled by the rancor the announcement brought in Tokyo and the orgy of self-praise it inspired within the Nixon administration.

There was no doubt who had won.

After three years of hard bargaining, the Japanese capitulated Thursday—the deadline President Nixon had set for an accord. The limited relaxation of the United States 10-per-cent surtax in return was little more than a gesture on Washington's part.

Under the agreement, Japan and some other countries will cut non-cotton textile exports to the U.S. back to quota levels. Cotton textiles already are controlled.

In exchange, the U.S. will remove the surtax announced Aug. 15 from the remaining textile imports.

But since the surcharge had never applied to imports under quota, the gesture was of practically no value to the hard-pressed Japanese government trying to explain the deal to the irate Japanese industry.

Informed sources here suggest that the fact the Japanese finally gave in will straighten the hand of Treasury Secretary John B. Connally in his contention that trading partners will gradually be convinced the U.S. means business if Washington holds the line on the surcharge.

In negotiating the arrangement, which he had made a campaign promise in 1968, Nixon had claim to southern U.S. votes and campaign funds for 1972.

In 'fit. Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey carried Texas, and five other southern states went to third-party candidate George C. Wallace, right-wing governor of Alabama.

Hungary A Changed Place Since 1956

Letter in the Globe and Mail

Many Canadians will be shocked by the attack on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin that took place shortly after his arrival here. As a Canadian who has just returned from a trip to Hungary I feel compelled to express my reaction to this unfortunate incident.

The actions of such people as Geza Matrai do irreparable damage to international trade or cold war talks, but to the very area in which they express concern. The effects of incidents such as this are felt at a personal and individual level.

Mr. Matrai knows very little about international politics if he feels that his actions will have a positive effect. Years of evolution have occurred since the Hungarian revolution and in those years many changes have taken place — the result of patient dialogue between knowledgeable and truly concerned people.

Mr. Matrai was just a child when he left Hungary in 1956. He does not know his former country and he does not know his present country. I am sure that he is not aware of the present standard of living in Hungary. I am sure that he would gain nothing by a visit to Hungary; he would take his prejudices with him in order to reinforce them, applying the same pinhole vision that he has used in Canada as a self - appointed Messiah.

During my visit to Hungary this summer I enjoyed the hospitality of many people. I was impressed by the high standard of living, the profusion of consumer goods, the bountiful produce markets, the variety of entertainment, and the availability of high quality cultural activities.

The Hungarians are not an oppressed people. That there may be impediments upon them from the USSR may be true but those problems are being resolved by Hungarians in Hungary. They won't be aided by a Hungarian refugee who opted out at 12 years of age and who does not adhere to the expected patterns of behavior in his new land.

As a native Canadian I am embarrassed by this incident, and agree with the Prime Minister that it brings humiliation to our country.

Local Corps' Record of Achievement

Quinte Sea Cadets Win National Honors

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

It was our pleasure to announce in September that we had attained the highest standing of any Sea Cadet Corps in Ontario in our operation for the year ending August 31, 1971.

Now we have been informed that we are considered the most proficient corps of our division in the Dominion. Eighty-five Belleville boys took part in the operation of this corps in that period of time and it is my feeling that they have certainly worked hard to earn such recognition.

Although the secretary of Belleville's committee on youth suggests that cadet corps are an anachronism in today's world, I think we are showing that this is not necessarily so. I can well agree that some of the militaristic activities open to a cadet corps do not appeal to all youth, and even some of our own modern thinking cadets. All of our individual activities are part of a whole philosophy of operation that I feel is very much in line with the times. Our aims are, firstly: Citizenship and leadership.

At all times in all places there is a need for people who can be a guide to those around them, simply because these people know where they are going and what they are going to do when they get there. If this example inspires others to follow a similar course of action, then this is applied leadership. Citizenship implies the ability to remain an independent unique individual, and yet harmoniously and cohesively function as part of a united group. A cadet corps puts a group of young lads into identical uniforms and requires them to perform identical manoeuvres in unison. Beneath these identical blue and white suits remain individual, free thinking, young enquiring minds. There is no room for a brainwashed sheep in a small boat on rough water.

Secondly, we aim for physical fitness.

Their does not mean merely sports. It means instead a coordination of brain and muscle to make the most use of the physical prowess available to you. When three or four 14-year olds handle two tons of boat in a good breeze they are testing making the most of the 100 pounds or so of muscle available to each of them.

Third, their purpose is interest in our services.

There is nothing to be ashamed of in Canada's military traditions. Some moments may be prouder than others, but the record before us always there and always able and ready to respond when needed. It certainly does not hurt for our young people to realize that service men are much more than professional killers. We, through our government, hire our armed forces and send them to serve as we command from Quebec, to Kingston, to Peru, when needed, as needed. Contrary to the beliefs of the Committee on Youth, cadet corps are not Armed Forces recruiting centres. In the eight years [illegible] recruiting-officer has ever visited Quinte nor will they ever unless I invite them, which I do not plan to do. In spite of this, several Quinte cadets have chosen service careers for themselves [illegible] some of officers, some as men. These [illegible] a success of themselves in the armed forces are doing so, though the majority of our cadets choose civilian vocations. I feel quite certain that those youths who are in "strong opposition to military training" not refuse to [illegible] and receive helicopter if they were in trouble on the Bay or [illegible] the week.

By the standards of the military [illegible] committees that sponsor us [illegible] west in Ontario last year, best in Canada this year. As they enter the final year of training, many of our boys will be leaving us for the [illegible] of age and changing interests. Many we will hate to lose, for they have made this corps what it is and their record will be difficult to maintain. However, there is a time for leaving in the same way as there is a time for joining. There never seems to be any trouble in finding new lads to replace those that move on. The only difficulty seems to be in finding qualified instructors motivated to take a real interest in the boys.

In any event, we continue as we have for over 40 years here in Belleville. Several thousand Belleville boys have been cadets in that time and doubtless more will as long as cadets serves a useful purpose in our society. Material support from the armed forces is better every year. Local financing through the Belleville United Appeal is excellent for meeting our fixed needs, and with effort on our part, adequate for continued year-round operation in our services. Our boys contributed well over 1,200 hours of labor just to keep up our boats and equipment last year.

The most prominent Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps in the country is located right here in Belleville. The Secretary of State has been told that all cadet corps, Sea, Land and Air, should be phased out. Belleville what do you think?

Election Day His Birthday

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Today marked a double celebration for Quinte NDP candidate Alan Deacon.

Marking his 40th birthday, Mr. Deacon is also saluting the consistent rise of what he refers to as the "NDP machinery," which he says will eventually wipe out the Conservative party in Ontario.

Mr. Deacon, in an interview with The Intelligencer, last night said he was "a little disappointed at the over - all picture. Mr. David 36 million has bought him another election.

"I guess if you have a good ad agency, you can buy anything."

On the local scene, the thirdplace NDP candidate said "I am pleased that we have done as well as we have."

As a newcomer, Mr. Deacon had a double battle, but "despite the fact I'm a newcomer, I do come across. I'm a sincere guy and I won't say anything I don't believe in. "If I believe in it, I'll go after it," he added.

"This is what they (the people) expect and this is what they want."

Mr. Deacon said this election would just be the last for him and his wife, and he feels the position of the NDP would improve with time. "I enjoyed meeting the people and I will continue meeting them in the future."

"This is just the starting place," he added.

Asked if he would change his election campaign tactics, Mr. Deacon stated he would get into the race a lot sooner than this time.

"I would seek a leave of absence so that I could spend more time meeting the voters." It was not fair to the board of education to leave teaching duties at Quinte Secondary School, he said.

Celebrating Double Event

Alan Deacon and his wife Kris had a double celebration last night. Although he was defeated in Quinte riding polls, Alan feels his 40th birthday is a turning point, especially with the rise in NDP party popularity. A newcomer to provincial politics, Mr. Deacon says he will remain active, with the next provincial election as a goal.

Legion Hall Rings To Victory Cheers

The sweet smell of victory filled the air at Belleville's Legion Hall last night as weary Quinte Conservative workers forgot their fatigue and joined their re-elected MPP in a monster celebration.

"It isn't just my victory, it's yours," said Dr. R. T. Potter on radio at about 10 p.m. Thursday night. "Come down to the Legion and we'll really celebrate to make up for the past four or five weeks."

And come they did, until 1,200 packed jammed the second floor of the Legion by 11 p.m., and more were still coming in.

They devoured fried chicken, rolls, pickles, Quinte district cheese and heard brief speeches from Dr. Potter and his campaign manager E. M. (Ted) Parker.

Once again it was handshakes all round — the last circuit of a long five weeks for the victorious Dr. Potter. Every worker wanted to clasp his hand, and a fair percentage of the women had a big bug or kiss for him.

At 11 o'clock, defeated NDP candidate Alan Deacon arrived to concede to Dr. Potter, and was called to the microphone. He congratulated the winning Conservative and remarked that one thing was sure: "Dr. Potter has more campaign workers than I had."

Mrs. Deacon and Mrs Potter left the stage together, deep in conversation.

Dancing started soon afterward in the third floor banquet room.

Conservative organizers had planned a smooth operation to get everyone to the party and discourage the freeloaders. As each worker came on duty, he or she was given an admission ticket for the post-election party. Those who appeared without tickets were admitted at the discretion of top party officials.

This district's biggest victory party yet began at 9:30 p.m., when the first drivers, poll workers and organizers cleared up the final details. It continued, to the accompaniment of back slapping, hand clasping and happy chatter, until the wee small hours of the morning.

Problems At the Polls

Failure by some poll clerks to report for election duty necessitated a few last minute replacements yesterday in Quinte riding.

And in Hastings riding the same problem was experienced by Returning Officer Lloyd Price — but for a different reason.

At the Bodariaw poll (Quinte area NDP organizer Ian Reilly objected to one poll clerk on the grounds that she was not a Canadian citizen.

Mr. Price said the woman had been enumerated and as far as he was concerned was an eligible poll worker, but in view of the objection, a replacement had been hurriedly brought in.

And back at the Bannockburn poll, a scrutineer had to be replaced when the scheduled worker was picked up by police on a bench warrant for court appearance.

A Coincidence ?

Disgruntled party workers or pranksters? The truth of who set a fire outside Royal Canadian Legion Hall early this morning may never be known.

At 1.36 a.m., Belleville firemen rushed two trucks to the Pinnacle Street building where Dr. R. T. Potter and Conservative supporters were holding their victory celebration.

It took firefighters less than five minutes to extinguish blazing rubbish, set on fire at the front door.

PE Vote Up

First counts showed some 19,720 voters of an eligible total of 25,385 had cast their ballots — a percentage in the high 70s.

This compared with about 61 per cent in the 1967 Ontario election when some 12,900 of about 21,000 eligibles voted.

Beazer's Was Trial Run

PICTON (Staff) — Although NDP candidate Bryan Beazer admitted he and his organizers realized they were in deed going to lose," this decision did not hinder him from the campaign trail.

"We were limited in our funds and organizations because we started from zero. But we concentrated on a couple of areas and applied our efforts," he said last night.

In this manner, Mr. Beazer says, the NDP "could establish a sound basis for an effective campaign the next time."

The Prince Edward — Lennox NDPs concentrated on their "test tube areas." One of these polls, South Marysburg, resulted in an NDP vote increase of 8 per cent. Votes for 1967 totalled 16. In the same poll this year, the number rose to 18.

"We're really very excited that we doubled our Vote in Prince Edward. This shows there is a movement towards change," Mr. Beazer said in a telephone interview, following the election.

When the next provincial election is held, the NDP candidate says he plans to be in the race again. However, he would make certain changes in his campaigning.

"I wouldn't sit back and wait for the money to come in before I started organizing."

One of the prime things that held him up was the delay in printing of the party campaign magazine. "The workers felt kind of naked without anything to go out to the electorate with," he said.

Mr. Beazer says he has always been interested in community affairs. After his five-year stint in the navy, he returned to Prince Edward Lennox..

Since then he has become active in church work. A second class stationary engineer at Millhaven Fibres Ltd., he is a steward at Conway United Church and was a primary force behind organizing a weight lifting club for the South Lennox Recreation Association.

In closing, he stated "I will continue to work in our area and to convince the electorate that I would make a good representative for the area over the intervening years."

Conceding defeat, Mr. Beazer joined James Taylor at his campaign headquarters and congratulated the newly-elected Progressive Conservative member for Prince Edward Lennox.

Mr. Taylor told his third-place fellow contestant "I admire the courage of the NDPs because this riding has not been noted as NDP."

One to NDP

Although Alan Deacon, New Democratic Party candidate for Quinte was left far behind incumbent Progressive Conservative candidate Dr. R. T. Potter, he remained unruffled.

Dr. Potter led the polls, with a total vote of 14,552, but Mr. Deacon left the MPP for Quinte in third place with Pall 122 in Sidney Township.

With 36 votes to his credit, the NDP candidate led Liberal contestant Gerald Weaver by five votes, and Dr. Potter by seven.

"Coupled with the gain we made in rural portions of Hastings County during the federal election, this also says that rural people are beginning to realize that the parties aren't cracked up to what they used to be."

PC Russell Rowe Wins Easy Victory by 5,500

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff) — Northumberland MPP Russell Rowe was re-elected last night by a 5,500 vote margin over his nearest rival in the Progressive Conservative sweep of Ontario.

The former Cobourg stockbroker mounted a commanding lead early in the returns, and sustained it throughout the evening, taking 12,277 votes to 6,728 for Liberal Glenn Cole and 1,134 for Arthur Cockerill of the New Democrats.

The Conservative margin of support was down somewhat from the result of the last provincial election in 1967 when the PCs captured 10,411 of the 18,059 total vote count. There were 22,539 votes cast yesterday.

Liberals managed to win only 136 votes above their '67 showing, despite the substantial increase of nearly 4,500 in the number of votes cast. Their candidate Glenn Cole was a prosperous dairy farmer from Plainville, a hamlet about seven miles north of Cobourg.

Biggest and most impressive gains in the riding were made by the New Democrats who won about 2,500 votes above their showing in the last election. Leading them through yesterday's ballot box contest was Port Hope professional engineer Arthur Cockerill, who built, from scratch, a political organization in each of the riding's 26 municipalities.

Preliminary figures show that both Conservatives and Liberals lost strength in Cobourg, the largest Northumberland municipality, while the NDP took 700 more votes.

Moving closer to the Quinte area, in Brighton village, final figures show Rowe taking 773 votes to 518 for Cole and 117 for Cockerill. For the Conservatives, the results meant an increase of 160 over the last provincial election returns, only one more vote for the Liberals, but a remarkable 131 more for the NDP.

Returns for Brighton Township show the PCs taking 628 votes yesterday, against 345 for the Liberals, 153 for the NDP. In 1967, there the PCs received 537 votes, Liberals 322 and NDP 87.

In Murray Township, this time, Rowe took 1,064 votes against 925 in 1967, Cole 817 against 615 for the Liberal candidate in the last election and Cockerill 278 against 158 for the NDP in '67.

Liberals lost ground in Colborne with support falling from 244 votes in 1967 to 217 yesterday, while New Democrats increased their support from 35 to 129 votes. Conservatives also increased their numbers from 378 to 464.

A similar pattern is also seen in returns from Campbellford where Conservatives and New Democrats also bolstered their support as Liberals lost ground. Russell Rowe received 1,100 votes yesterday to 899 in 1967, the Liberal candidate took 413 whereas the party won 502 votes four years ago with a smaller electorate. Again, the big gain came with the NDP which took 303 votes against only 87 in the last Ontario election contest.

Rollins Rolls Along In Conservative Win

Hastings member of provincial parliament for the past 12 years, Clarke T. Rollins of L'Amable, easily retained the riding for the Progressive Conservative party in Thursday's election, which saw the Davis Tory government sweep back to power.

The final vote in Hastings was something of a landslide victory for the popular member from the northern end of the riding and right from the first returns the issue was never in doubt.

Mr. Rollins had an almost two-to-one plurality over his nearest opponent — Rev. Ian Munro for the Liberals.

With all 111 polls reported, Returning Officer Lloyd Price indicated Mr. Rollins as receiving 9,114 votes, Mr. Munro 4,638 Richard Lunn, NDP 1,620.

In the 1967 election Mr. Rollins received 8,227 votes, the Liberal candidate 2,525 and the New Democratic Party candidate 1,364.

However, on a percentage basis, Mr. Rollins' plurality over his two opponents was slightly reduced from the 1967 election total when he had a 4,370 vote edge.

With final figures still to come in, it appeared that Mr. Rollins' plurality this time could be cut to something less than 4,000.

But Conservative supporters still considered it a landslide victory and they jammed their way into the Madoc Kiwanis Centre to congratulate their candidate at the victory celebration.

Election returns were posted both at the Conservative headquarters in downtown Madoc and also at the Kiwanis Centre.

The Rollins victory was almost unanimous with the former county warden winning all but about eight of the 109 polls.

Three of the polls lost were in the village of Tweed and an equal number in Hungerford.

It was a long day for the victorious Hastings candidate.

During the day he travelled the length of the 100-mile-long riding, visiting polls in the north end of the county and ending up at Deseronto.

He got back to his Madoc headquarters shortly after nine o'clock but already early returns showed he was well on his way to victory — his fourth win at the polls in as many elections since he entered provincial politics in 1959.

WHA Hears Address on VON Services

Nursing care in the patients home is provided by the Victories Order of Nurses. Introduced by Mrs. W. C. Harvey. Miss Valerie Truax, R.N. addressed the Women's Hospital Auxiliary members and guests recently on the subject of nursing care in the patient's home. She stated that many people are unaware of the extent their services are available.

The idea of district nursing came from England and a lot of principles of this care come to Canada. Lady Aberdeen, wife of one of the first Governor-Generals of Canada was invited to begin organization of this type of service. In the beginning the majority of visits were to the mother and newborn child. This was followed by the practice of cottage hospitals, which later led to the present Victorian Order of Nurses. To anyone ill at home in a community where there is a VON branch, this service is available. Miss Truax reported that nine out of 10 provinces are supplied with VON service.

This service is always responsible to the national office in Ottawa. An older age group of patients have frequently been involved in this type of care. Miss Truax explained with the advent of a home care program, under the supervision of the Department of Health, many more patients have become involved in this service. The nurse consults with the patient's doctor as to the nursing care required. The doctor, the family, a friend or the patient may telephone the VON office requesting a nurse to call.

In most hospitals there is a referral program so arrangements can be made for VON care after the patient leaves hospital, thus ensuring continuity of care. Their service is available to medical and surgical patients, requiring dressings or injections, as well as chronically ill and convalescent patients. One of their purposes is to encourage independence in a family and aid in the release of hospital beds with the patient returning home sooner by the assistance from their coordinated nursing service. The VON service is available in the home any hour of the day, seven days a week.

Their service is involved in several other fields with an expension program in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. Miss Truax also stated the VON will be asked to provide the nursing care necessary, if the proposed convalescent hospital materializes in connection with the Queen's Motor Hotel of Belleville.

The thanks and appreciation of the members was expressed to Miss Truax by Mrs. F. Stokmans.

The president, Mrs. J. E. Nelles welcomed new members and guests. She stated she was very grateful to Mrs. C. D. Ashley for her contribution of a convention exhibit composed of several of their puppets, each complete with a verse of poetic characteristics. Mrs. Nelles reported she had received a letter of thanks from Mrs. K. M. Flindall for the contribution of serviettes and flowers provided by Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford and Picton Auxiliaries for the recent Edith Cavell School of Nursing graduation. Mrs. J. E. Nelles and Mrs. A. B. Duffy will be attending the convention in Toronto October 24-27.

Mrs. S. B. Bochnek, convenor of memberships reported there are now 305 members with 93 new members and that 96 per cent of this membership is active.

On behalf of the Opportunity Shop, Mrs. F. Bowler stated it could almost be a guessing game as to their continued success and cheerfully thanking all volunteers, presented a cheque for $1600. to the president.

The volunteer hospital services report given by Mrs. F. Stokmans, stated 72 volunteers gave 321 hours of service during September. She reported the 3rd annual mother and daughter tea will be held on Sunday, November 28 for junior volunteers with 50 hours or more of service completed.

A tea and coffee social period followed with refreshments served by Mrs. M. Trestina and committee.

MR. AND MRS. DAMON PAUL RICHARDSON

Richardson – Eggleton

St. Mark's United Church, Cannifton was the setting for the recent wedding when Donna Louise Eggleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Eggleton of RR 6, Belleville exchanged vows with Damon Paul Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson of RR 1, Foxboro. Rev. John A. Morrison performed the ceremony while Mrs. Beverley Foster, aunt of the bride played organ music. Mrs. Richard Martin another aunt of the bride sang the solos.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white polyester crepe with the waistline slightly higher than the natural waist and featuring a lace ruffled bodice and stand-up collar. The leg of mutton sleeves were trimmed with matching Swiss lace at the wrists. Rows of the same ruffled lace enhanced the lower part of the skirt. The four-tiered shoulder-length veil fell from satin petals and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, mums and bridal pink roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Bonnie Hart wore an empire style gown with a white lace bodice and a sheer skirt over blue taffeta. She carried a nosegay of white mums and bridal pink roses. Her hair was entwined with blue flowers.

The bridegroom was attended by Brian Holgate as best man. The ushers were Elgin Wyatt, the bridegroom's cousin and Douglas Eggleton, the bride's brother.

A reception and buffet dinner were held at the home of the bride. Greeting guests was the bride's mother in a fuschia fortrel knit dress with a matching bow in her hair, black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a lace sleeveless coat over a pink crepe dress with daisies in her hair, bone accessories and a pink tinted 'mum corsage.

For the wedding trip to points west, and north, the bride wore a grey double knit pant suit with a purple figured blouse and a deep purple-throat orchid corsage.

Upon return the couple will reside in Foxboro.

Convention Dinner At Shrine Club

The IODE Provincial area conference dinner was held at the Shrine Club, October 19. Representatives were present from Campbellford, Marmora, Norwood, Stirling, Picton and the Argyle and St. Julien Chapter, Belleville.

Dinner music was presented by Mr. Stephen Choma, Mr. Reiman and Mrs. Lenna Baker. Guest soloist was Mrs. Roger Reidel.

Miss Rosa Spry, Provincial councillor introduced the Provincial team, 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. S. McMillan, Toronto, Mrs. R. J. Currie, Echoes sec., London, and Mrs. Keith McGregor, Victoria League convener, St. Thomas.

Mrs. McMillan then read a report from Mrs. McKay regarding the opening of the recreational hall at Attawapiskat, a remote Cree settlement near James Bay, a gift from the IODE Chapters in Ontario.

Mrs. McGregor, Mrs. McMillan and Mrs. Currie explained the functions of departments and conducted a question and answer period.

Closing remarks from Mrs. McMillan contained this message, "IODE is on the move – join us."

Presentations were made to the visiting Provincial officers by Mrs. C. Whitemore, Regent of St. Julien Chapter.

Social

Prior to her recent wedding Mrs. Damon Paul Richardson nee Donna Eggleton) was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by friends and neighbors; at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Bonnie Hart, Patsy Pascoe and Marilyn Eggleton. She was presented with a hair dryer by her girl friends at the home of Mrs. Rick Putman and a gift of money was presented by her co-workers at UIC.

IODE Area Convention

Belleville St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., hosted an area convention Tuesday evening at the Belleville Shrine Club. Mrs. R. J. Currie, provincial Echoes secretary, London, Ontario, with St. Julien Regent Mrs. C. R. Whitmore and Mrs. H. S. MacMillan, second vice-president provincial chapter, Islington, and Mrs. K. McGregor, provincial Victoria league convener, St. Thomas, discuss handmade items for service, displayed by the local Chapter.

Legion Activities

NO. 49 LADIES AUXILIARY

The meeting of No. 49 Ladies Auxiliary was held this week with president Gladys Fitzgerald in the chair. The president expressed her pleasure on having such a good turnout.

President Gladys, Provincial Treasurer Alice Storms and several other members attended the Provincial quarterly meeting at Simcoe in September and a good report was given to the general body. Of most interest was that Belleville had been chosen for the next meeting the last weekend in January and the planning has already started.

Gladys Fitzgerald, Alice Storms and June Newlands were the lucky winners of some very nice prizes.

Plans were talked over for the Remembrance Day banquet which the Auxiliary are cooking and serving this year. Much appreciation was expressed for the kindness of the Legion Ladies Auxiliary in allowing the ANAF ladies to use the facilities of the spacious, well lighted and fully modern kitchen in the new Legion hall. It certainly will be a pleasure after the hardships and struggles experienced in the past.

It is hoped that as many ladies as can spare the time will assist the poppy committee Nov. 5 and 6 to help roll coins and serve light lunches to those selling poppies on the streets.

The Auxiliary will hold its annual Christmas party on Monday Nov. 15. Gifts will be exchanged between members and it is asked that an extra present will be brought. These extra presents will be picked up and wrapped by the chairman of the mental institutes committee. There will be a draw for prizes to be designated at the November meeting and drawn for at the December meeting.

It was passed that a wreath be purchased for the Cenotaph and also one for the clubrooms and meetings.

A new member, Shirley Boothey, was duly sworn in and welcomed with a hearty round of applause.

The meeting was adjourned and members Lois Senarck and June Walker served a tasty lunch and the evening finished with a social hour.

The next meeting will be on Monday November 15 after the Christmas party. The party starts at 6.30 p.m. with a potluck supper.

Ann Landers

Take These Precautions Against Poisoning by Contaminated Canned Food

Dear Ann Landers: I have read in the papers about people dying from botulism after eating contaminated tuna and contaminated potato soup—both canned. Is there any way a consumer can tell in advance whether or not food is contaminated? You explain everything in such simple language that you are positively the best source of education in the country. Please help us.—Uptight Housewife

Dear U.H.: The best advice I can offer is simply this: Never taste canned or smoked food which appears to be off-color or smells "peculiar." Teach your children to exercise this caution also. The botulin toxin is so deadly that a cupful could easily kill everyone in the United States. If the contents of a can is suspicious, don't throw it out. Take it back to the store where it was purchased and let the manager know.

Also: Do not use the contents of a can that has bulges or leaks. The contents may or may not be poisonous, but it is never worth the risk. Such cans also should be returned to the store. And remember that proper cooking is a defense against most food poisoning. Finally, if you think you've eaten contaminated food, don't try to treat yourself. Go to the nearest hospital immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never heard such stupid advice in my life. You told you gave to the man with the overweight wife. You said maybe he wanted a divorce and used her fat as an excuse to unload her. Did it ever occur to you that maybe she wanted an excuse to drive her husband away? I assure you that is closer to the truth.

Any wife who thinks so little of her husband that she would continue to stuff herself like a pig deserves no sympathy. I have observed these horrors in the supermarket loading their carts with soft drinks, potato chips, ice cream, pies, cakes—all the things they shouldn't have. A woman who will not give up the fun of eating rich food so she can look like a human instead of an elephant does not deserve a husband's love.

Imagine carrying candy in her purse, like a baby with a pacifier. Disgusting! When I read that I threw up. And you came out with the absurd statement that some men love their wives in spite of their fat. How could they?—Santa Cruz

Dear Santa: They could because they attach more importance to other things—such as emotional support, intelligence, ability to communicate, dependability, devotion, and let's not forget a sense of humor and a cheerful disposition.

Dear Ann Landers: "Retired Husband in Modesto" might sound like a "Pussycat" to you, but I'll bet his wife has another name for him.

So he doesn't want to be a flunkey or an errand boy? Did it ever occur to him that the only way his wife can get him out from under her feet is to send him someplace? — Loved, But Learned In Time

Dear Learned: Consider it spread.

Handwriting Reveals Personality

By DORIS CALRK

Dear Doris: An expert on handwriting stated that a person's knowledge of it would help people in their dealings with one another.

I know a registered nurse who can do this kind of work and she told me that if a person does not cross his t's right in the centre it means something about the way he treats other people — I'm not sure just what, now.

What I really would like is to buy a book about it and I am sure it would be interesting. Do you believe in it?—Interested in People

Dear Interested: Sure I believe in it. People can't do anything as characteristic as the way they cross their t's and dot their i's and slant their words and handle their pen in general, without revealing their personalities, one way or another. Graphoanalysis has always been a great hobby of mine — although I am no professional at it.

Anything which helps us in an understanding of other people should make it easier to get along with them. I am sending you the names of five good books on the subject.

• • •

Dear Doris: Could you please let me know if there is any 1200 calorie diet I can follow while travelling, and which thereby is accessible at most of the restaurants?

The snag is that I am a vegetarian (I do take eggs though) — no fish. — Vegetarian

Dear Vegetarian: The Simple Reducing Diet is the one we promote here. But a visit to your library will produce several which count calories.

Your concern must be about your protein intake. But there are several non-meat proteins besides eggs: milk, cheese, nuts. Certain vegetables have an important proportion of protein, such as peas, beans, lentils. Cottage cheese is a good reliable standby and a staple for any reducer.

Confidential to Suffering in Silence: Perhaps he has some comfort that countless women have done what you are doing: married the man you married but find you do not love, and making the best of it for the sake of a fine young family. It is a terrific heartache.

• • •

After two breakdowns you ask me to tell you "exactly how to ease your pain and not make the wrong move," yet you do not want to go to a counselor.

Realize this: Your breakdowns are a result of your bottled up feelings; you can greatly relieve your tensions by finding a trusted friend to confide in. This can make the difference between health and illness.

Drinks to Sip with Your Favorite Cookies

By ALICE DENBOFF

At times it is pleasant to have the house to oneself, to sit in a comfy chair, listen to one's favorite music and sip a delicious drink, accompanied by delectable cookies. How about:

HOT APPLE SIP

1 cup apple juice
2 teaspoons dark corn syrup
Mace
Cinnamon stick

Combine apple juice and syrup in small saucepan. Heat over low flame. Pour into serving mug. Sprinkle with mace and use cinnamon stick for stirrer. Makes one serving, as does the following recipe, a rich, festive:

APPLE CREAM

1 egg
1½ teaspoons sugar
½ cup apple juice
¼ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
Chocolate curls for garnish

Beat egg with sugar. Add apple juice and milk and continue to beat. Stir in vanilla extract. Pour into serving glass. Garnish with chocolate curls. Here's one youngsters will especially enjoy:

APPLE FLOAT

6 cups chilled apple juice
6 large dairy marshmallow cream
Nutmeg

Fill each of 6 glasses with apple juice. Top with marshmallow. Sift together next six ingredients. Add alternately with apple sauce to creamed mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in 400-degree-F. oven. When cool spread with Vanilla Glaze. Makes about four dozen.

GLAZED APPLE SAUCE SUGAR COOKIES

½ cup shortening
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar

1 egg
1 cup seedless raisins
2 cups applesauce
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup canned apple sauce
Vanilla Glaze (recipe follows)

Cream together shortening and sugar) add egg. Add rais-

VANILLA GLAZE

1½ cup confectioners' sugar
2½ tablespoons light cream
1 tablespoon soft butter
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
Pinch of salt

Combine all ingredients and stir until smooth.

Wide Appeal

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 30,000 visitors were expected to tour the Montreal Furniture Market's 25th edition in August. The market, which occupied 500,000 square feet of exhibition space, featured for the first time this year an international section for American and European designers. Registration of exhibits indicated modern furniture has finally outdistanced Spanish, Mediterranean and colonial designs for the average home.

Consumers Get Help

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of enthusiastic consumer consultants capped a week of briefings here recently by a session with the top man himself, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford.

Each year since the first consultants were appointed in 1969, they converge to talk with departmental officials about new or planned consumer protection legislation and trade information as consumer problems and programs in their regions.

Department spokesmen say they are informed and interested and contend many consumers could benefit by talking to them, given enough time.

But since there are relatively few consultants for a vast land, they have to direct most of their information about such things as the federal government's consumer protection legislation at larger audiences. They speak to groups of consumers and retailers, and give radio and television talks.

They keep in touch with consumer and retail organizations and help consumers with complaints. Although the consumer may take these direct to the department by writing The Consumer, Box 99, Ottawa.

There are consultants for the Atlantic region, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia. Regional managers are in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, with consultants working out of each of these cities and assistant consultants in St. John's, Nfld., Fredericton, Regina and Edmonton.

The consultants' jobs vary somewhat by regional needs. In Vancouver, for instance, they handle a heavy load of complaints. This doesn't leave them time to do as much work with retailers as the Winnipeg consultant, Tannis Yankewicz.

She holds sessions with buyers and administrators of large department stores. She tells them what concerns consumers have and in turn learns about their problems.

"Whatever we do, the basic intent is to create just a little more equity in the marketplace," says Sally Merchant, an assistant consultant in Edmonton.

The government could legislate to provide warning labels on hazardous products, she says. But unless consumers read them, they could not fully benefit.

Nancy Downing says that it helps a consultant follow up a consumer complaint properly when the consumer is able to document it. But she notes: "We are not offering legal advice.

"When something is referred to us that is under provincial jurisdiction we pass it on to the provinces and they handle it."

The consultants, who generally travel frequently in their areas, are able to draw on the experience of the department's regionally based inspection staff. It is concerned with such things as electricity and gas meters, weights and measures.

"If a consumer brings in a matter falling clearly under the department's jurisdiction and which needs investigation, the inspectors look into it." Nancy Dowding says. "But once an investigation begins, we can't tell the consumer about it."

Club Activities

MADOC SENIOR CITIZENS

Approximately forty members and friends of the Madoc and district senior citizens spent a very enjoyable day in Belleville recently.

During the morning, the group visited the new Quinte Mall where they spent some time shopping and then had lunch there. Later they visited the bazaar and tea, sponsored by the Belleville senior citizen's club in St. Thomas' Anglican Parish Hall. The program of the day was concluded with a pleasant hour of visiting with old Madoc friends, who are now residents of Hastings Manor.

The regular monthly meeting of the club was held in the United Church basement at Madoc on Wednesday, October 13. In the absence of president, Mrs. Broadworth, first vice-president, Mrs. Fox, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Holmes. The Lord's Prayer, said in unison, opened the meeting. Roll call showed an attendance of 30 members and four visitors.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by secretary, Miss Raney. The business and correspondence were dealt with. Members were pleased to have Mr. Brownson back with them again. He thanked his friends for cards and other kindness received while he was ill.

The next meeting is scheduled to be held on Wednesday, October 27. The lunch committee for this will be Mrs. M. Fox, Mrs. Blanche Keller, Mrs. Lily Casselman, Mr. Harry Declair and Mr. Jim Rollins.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Moorcroft, program convener, who began with a lively sing-song. Miss Raney read a paper on pioneer days, which brought back many memories to the members. Mr. and Mrs. Carman delighted the audience with musical selections.

A contest, "know your country," was won by Miss Raney, Mrs. Hailstone and Mrs. Holmes.

Special guest, Mrs. Forestell gave a pleasant talk, "Thoughts at Autumn and thanksgiving".

The lunch committee served a bounteous lunch and a social half-hour brought another enjoyable afternoon to a close.

MISS ANNE THERESA O'CONNOR daughter of Mrs. Anne T. O'Connor, 227 Bridge St. East, Belleville and the late Frank O'Connor, graduated from St. Mary's School of Nursing, Kitchener, Ont. Anne is a graduate of Nicholson Catholic College, and is on the staff at her training school.

Trudeau Hopes Kosygin's Call Won't Cool U.S. Friendship

OTTAWA (CP) — Does Canada-Soviet friendship mean that relations will cool with the United States and other countries?

Not necessarily, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday.

"That is not our position," he said. "I hope it would not be that of opposition MPs."

But opposition MPs expressed a string of fears to that effect as—with the Ottawa portion of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's eight-day Canadian visit finished—tipples from his three days of statements and talks here continued to spread.

The tough-talking Soviet leader raised some parliamentary hackles when he told a luncheon Tuesday that the U.S. turn to economic protectionism was causing unemployment in other countries, because it was being drained by the Vietnam war.

Conservative Eldon Woolliams (Calgary North) said Wednesday the Canadian government should have divorced itself from that statement.

Thursday, Mr. Trudeau and other ministers were peppered with questions about Soviet military policy and about the reaction any Canada-Soviet agreements on such things as shipping in the Arctic would bring from countries outside the Communist bloc.

Mr. Trudeau also gave a long reply on his talks with Mr. Kosygin about relatives of Ukrainians and other Canadian ethnic groups in the Soviet Union.

He said the Soviet premier had pledged to speed up the process for those desiring to leave Russia and come to Canada.

Mr. Trudeau said he and Mr. Kosygin both agreed on a United Nations resolution designed to bring peace to the Middle East.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) said he wanted it put on the record that this resolution involves Israel giving up part of Jerusalem that it seized from Jordan in the 1967 war. Was this what Canada supported?

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Canada supports the resolution, which would require withdrawal of Israeli forces to "secure boundaries."

Warm Quebec Welcome Is Accorded Soviet PM

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Alexei Kosygin, heading for Vancouver today, was assured in the heart of French Canada Thursday that Soviet-Canadian co-operation in matters of education, culture, science and technology is welcomed.

In the fifth day of an eight-day Canadian tour, Premier Kosygin received a warm official welcome on his arrival from Ottawa but various ethnic groups in this cosmopolitan city staged bitter demonstrations.

Some 2,000 persons of East European stock caught Mr. Kosygin's attention when they started an evening demonstration in Dominion Square, along Dorchester Boulevard a block away from his hotel, the Queen Elizabeth.

As the motorcade passed, some demonstrators waved placards condemning the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 and the bloody suppression of the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

Other placards said: "Kosygin Go Home," "Trudeau Invited You, Not Us," and "Kosygin Assasin."

The protesters marched nearly a mile, bypassing the Ritz, to the Soviet consulate and hurled rocks and several tins of red paint at the building.

The pleas of organizers and the appearance of more than 100 riot-equipped Montreal police quelled the disturbance, but not before four windows were broken and the building paint-stained.

Meanwhile, some 2,000 Jewish protesters held a demonstration at Place Bonaventure and then marched to Place Ville Marie, opposite the Queen Elizabeth, chanting slogans on behalf of Soviet Jews who want to emigrate to Israel.

Protest action was in progress much of the day but mostly out of earshot or vision of the 67-year-old Russian leader, who was screened by the tightest security seen here since the funeral of Pierre Laporte at the height of the October kidnap crisis last year.

Proposing a toast to the Soviet premier at the government dinner Thursday night, Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Canada-Russia exchanges in all fields "are an excellent way of working for world peace."

Quebec is ready to participate in exchange of an academic, commercial, economic, scientific and social nature, said Mr. Bourassa.

By then Mr. Kosygin had been given a whirlwind tour of the city, which included a panoramic view from near the giant cross atop Mount Royal.

He visited Soviet freighters—an unexpected interlude—in Montreal harbor, inspected cargo-container facilities in the port and expressed his admiration of Mayor Jean Drapeau at a civic luncheon, recalling that he himself was once mayor of Leningrad.

Days of Informal Visits Seem Over

OTTAWA (CP) — A tight new security system will protect visiting dignitaries in future, apparently squeezing out the informality that used to mark such visits in Canada.

Because of Monday's attack on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, Solicitor General Jean-Pierre Goyer said Thursday that, in future, the public and press will have less access to distinguished visitors.

"It's unfortunate," he told reporters, "but no Canadian would like to see a major incident on our territory."

In the Commons, Mr. Goyer told John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) that there was no police negligence involved in the Monday incident during which Mr. Kosygin had his coat partially pulled off before the lone assailant was wrestled to the ground by police.

However, more effective security measures would have to be developed, limiting public access to visitors.

He dismissed reports that the Russian KGB security service had taken over the responsibility for Mr. Kosygin's visit from the RCMP.

"The RCMP is definitely in charge."

Ministerial Commission on French-language Secondary Education

The Ministerial Commission on French-Language secondary education is interested in receiving briefs from all groups and individuals who wish to make their views known to the Commission. Any person or group wishing to submit a brief is requested to do so by Friday, 19 November, 1971.

The terms of reference of the Commission are as follows:

The Commission shall inquire into the effectiveness of the legislation to implement a programme of French-language education in the schools in Ontario. The Commission shall direct particular attention to the establishment, operation, and progress of French-language secondary schools and French-language classes in secondary schools.

The Commission shall submit a final report as soon as possible, and shall make a preliminary report to the Minister of Education on or before 20 December, 1971.

Without restricting the generality of the foregoing, the Commission may make recommendations in respect of:

1. the jurisdiction of boards of education to provide French-Language education;
2. functioning of French-Language Advisory Committees;
3. the effectiveness of the safeguards for the continuance of English-Language instruction where instruction of the French language is provided; and
4. such other matters the Commission considers relevant.

Enquiries and submissions will be very welcome and should be directed to:

Ministerial Commission on French-Language Secondary Education, Mowat Block, Queen's Park—Toronto 182.

AVIS

Commission ministérielle sur l'éducation secondaire en langue française

La Commission ministérielle sur l'éducation secondaire en langue française est très intéressée à recevoir des exposés d'opinions de la part de tout groupe ou particulier qui désirent soumettre leurs points de vue à la Commission. Les groupes ou les particuliers voulant adresser leur exposé sont priés de le faire jusqu'à vendredi, 19 novembre 1971.

Les termes du mandat constitutif de la Commission sont les suivants.

La Commission soumettra son rapport définitif aussitôt que possible et présentera, en outre, un rapport préliminaire au ministre de l'Éducation avant ou au plus tard, le 30 décembre 1971.

Sans restreindre la portée générale de ce qui précède, la Commission peut présenter des recommandations au sujet:

1. des compétences devolues aux conseils de l'éducation pour dispenser l'enseignement en langue française;
2. du fonctionnement des comités consultatifs de langue française,
3. de l'efficacité des mesures devant assurer la continuité de l'enseignement en langue anglaise là où l'instruction est dispensée en langue française; et
4. de toutes autres questions que la Commission jugera pertinentes.

Les demandes de renseignements et les exposés seront beaucoup appréciés. Veuillez les adresser comme suit: Commission ministérielle sur l'éducation secondaire en langue française, Edifice Mowat, Queen's Park — Toronto 182.

Declared Elected Early

It Didn't Take Long to Declare Potter A Winner

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

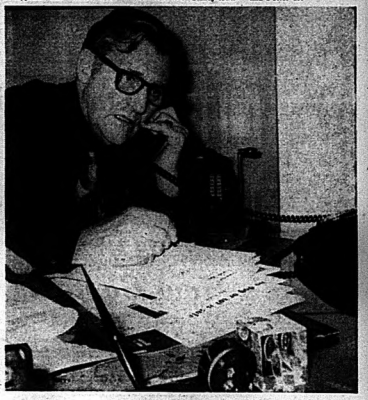
Victory was in the bag for Quinte riding's incumbent member Dr. R. T. Potter, just 50 minutes after polls closed in the provincial election last night.

The outspoken member of the Ontario cabinet was returned to Queen's Park for a second time with a plurality of 6,711.

With 151 of the 154 polls reported, Dr. Potter obtained 14,559 votes to Liberal Gerald Weaver's 7,848 and the NDP's Alan Deacon's 3,559.

The winning Conservative candidate repeated his Trenton success of four years ago. He carried all but two of the Liberal Gerald Weaver's home town polls.

Final score, when all Trenton's 34 ballot boxes had been opened, was 2,821 for Potter, 1,910 for Weaver and 719 for Deacon. Dr. Potter's total in Trenton is 122 in excess of the votes polled by both Weaver and Deacon, about the same as in 1967.



In the five Middleton Park and CFB Trenton polls Dr. Potter's polularity continued. He polled 465 votes, for a plurality of 169. Weaver polled 356 votes and Deacon 153.

The Conservative standard bearer increased his plurality this year from that in 1967. With 21,846 going to the polls in 1967, Potter's plurality was 4,091.

Of the almost 39,000 eligible to vote yesterday, about 25,966 turned out. Dr. Potter took 56 per cent of the vote, with three polls still unreported.

With some Belleville polls still unreported at press time, it appears that Weaver took only one poll in the city. At poll 59 in the area west of the Moira River and south of Bridge St., Weaver polled 61 votes to Deacon's 27 and Potter's 24.

Dr. Potter took Sidney township's 20 polls with 355 votes over the total for his two opponents. But Sidney gave Alan Deacon his only winning poll. In poll 127, he gathered 36 votes. Weaver polled 31, and Potter 29.

Potter Headquarters Attracts All Ages

Conservative headquarters on Front Street in Belleville is a scene of subdued confidence as the young and the aged come to witness Dr. Richard Potter's landslide victory in Quinte riding. The celebrations did not begin until the last poll was in even though there was little doubt who the winner would be once results began to pour in. The number of party stalwarts who drifted into the office varied between ten and 50, most of them content to wait patiently while an announcer told them the story.

Delighted, Weary, Victorious

"I'm as delighted as you are at the Tory sweep," Dr. R. T. Potter told his supporters last night in his victory speech at Legion Hall.

"I asked you last week if you'd had enough," he added, referring to a Liberal election slogan he had turned to Conservative advantage in the last days of his campaign. "You sure as hell hadn't, and you've proved it today."

"I'm sure you're all as tired as I am," he remarked to the more than 1,200 workers who had brought out the vote in the second provincial election for Quinte riding, created by redistribution in 1967.

Prime Minister William Davis, heading a strong majority government, "will give you the kind of government he has given you for the past six months," said Dr. Potter.

"I'm going to continue working for you in the next four years as I have for the last four," he assured his supporters to the sound of their cheers.

Waiting It Out

In the first tense minutes after the polls closed last night, Dr. R. T. Potter waited by the telephone to get results from his Belleville campaign headquarters. But 50 minutes after the last voter left the polling booths, it was all over, with an overwhelming victory assured for the incumbent Conservative

Little Suspense for Spectators

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Quiet confidence is the description that would best sum up the mood in the Progressive Conservative headquarters on Front Street only half an hour after the polls had closed.

While perhaps a dozen Tory workers, most of them with subtle victory smiles sealed on their lips, were manning the phones and adding machines, perhaps 10 party stalwarts sat patiently in the office lobby listening to announcer Ernie Calbourne proclaim the results.

With a third of the polls in, no one was ready to pronounce Quinte PC candidate Dr. Richard Potter a winner, even though he had yet to lose. After one landslide tabulation, Mr. Calbourn was moved to announce, "Isn't that amazing?" It was obvious that the party workers had thought the victory would be harder fought. The atmosphere was workmanlike and methodical as the PC machine swept over the riding.

One of the contented observers was 93-year-old Mrs. Annie Rose, a partisan Tory for 67 years and a resident of Belleville since 1932.

In explaining the defeat of Liberal candidate Gerald Weaver and the NDP's Alan Deacon, she said, "It doesn't pay to say too much. You shouldn't accuse someone of something you can't prove." She was referring mainly to the Liberal slogan, "Had enough? Like the trend?"

"Dr. Potter," Mrs. Rose said, "doesn't take a back seat. He is doing a wonderful job for people who haven't got piles of money." She had walked to the committee room from her Patterson St. apartment with the aid of two elderly friends and had every intention of attending the post-triumph celebrations later in the evening at the Royal Canadian Legion.

By 9 p.m. the number of PC supporters had swelled to nearer 40 but the celebration was far from under way. People were drinking Coke and the room was remarkably clear of smoke. Quinte Conservative headquarters was a forthright reflection of the subdued approach that had carried the party to victory.

Winner Waited with Family

He was surrounded by his family and two secretaries who have served him at Queen's Park—Mrs. Florence Kramer and Miss Margaret Thompson.

Mrs. Dorothy Howell, longtime Conservative organizer, was on hand as well, keeping a running score as results came in by both radio and television.

Dr. Potter made his personal check, disappearing to his office periodically to telephone Conservative headquarters in Belleville for the score.

By 8:45 p.m. with results in from 20 of Quinte's 154 polls, the Conservative candidate was so far ahead of his opponents that tension visibly vanished and confidence took over.

Just 50 minutes after the polls closed, a CBC television flash proclaimed Dr. Potter re-elected for his second term in Quinte.

"We don't know it here yet, but I'm elected," quipped the victorious minister without portfolio in the Davis cabinet.

Interest in the Potter home shifted subtly from Quinte riding to province-wide results. But the overwhelming Conservative sweep of the province was soon evident and all that remained was to arrange the schedule of Dr. Potter's appearances for the evening.

At 9:15 p.m. with all but one of Trenton's 20 polls counted for, Trentonian E. M. (Ted) Parker, Dr. Potter's campaign manager, was jubilant.

"We have a 1,656 plurality in Trenton, 50 per cent better than last time," he said.

Shortly afterward, he and Dr. Potter left for Quinte Mall where radio station CJBQ was broadcasting election results, while a fashion show continued behind the microphones.

Dr. Potter thanked the circle of well-wishers gathered around the broadcasters, said a few words of thanks to the radio audience and left for his Belleville headquarters.

Then it was on to the victory party that lived up to its advance billing as the largest ever held in the district.

Double Delight

Ted Parker of Trenton, right, campaign manager for victorious Quinte candidate Dr. Richard Potter, celebrates a double triumph at the party's wing-ding at the Royal Canadian Legion Thursday night. Not only did his man win, but he also swept all but one of Trenton's 36 polls from home town nominee Gerald Weaver of the Liberal party. With Parker is Tory worker, Carl weese, also from Trenton.

Jubilant Supporters Toast Potter Win

Spirits are high at Dr. Richard Potter's victory party at the Royal Canadian Legion Thursday night. A crowd of about 300 persons celebrates the Conservative candidates return to the legislature as Quinte's representative for the second straight term. Festivities began two hours after the polls closed and went on into the wee hours of the morning.

His Victory Horizon Widens

Careful Man Rides Crest

It's The Bill Davis Party Now---He Has Clout

TORONTO (CP) — William Grenville Davis, an inordinately careful man riding the crest of his first election victory as premier of Ontario, has made himself a man to be watched.

Not only did the boyish, sandy-haired premier lead a trend that resulted in the defeat of six other provincial governments at the polls in the past two years—he increased his Ontario legislature majority.

It's this newly-acquired political clout that is bringing Mr. Davis mention as a possible key figure on the federal scene of the Progressive Conservative party.

Four years ago, Robert Stanfield defeated former Manitoba premier Duff Roblin to become the party's national leader. Mr. Davis, then Ontario's education minister, had toyed briefly with the idea of chasing the job himself although he has shown no recent indication of such ambitions.

He wound up in hospital for treatment of a back ailment and had to drop out in the early stages of the PC leadership campaign. A statement issued by Mr. Davis's office a month before the 1967 national convention said: "He can think of the national leadership in five, 10 or 15 years."

If Mr. Stanfield were to step down, one other federal leadership prospect in the Conservative stable is Premier Peter Lougheed, who put an end to 36 years of Social Credit government in Alberta, in a general election last August 31.

The two Tory premiers have much in common: both are lawyers, Mr. Lougheed is only a few months older than Mr. Davis, and both are 6 feet 3 inches tall.

But Mr. Drew couldn't crack Louis St. Laurent's Liberals in two federal elections and retired from politics. Mr. Davis's immediate predecessors, John Roberts and Leslie Frost, both steered clear of the federal scene.

Mr. Davis was born into a true-blue Tory family in Brampton northwest of Toronto, July 30, 1925. He has never moved away from the little town, which has served as a home and base for his political career.

At the age of 16 he cut his political teeth, serving as a delegate to a national party convention, and four years later he was elected president of the Peel North riding association.

Following his graduation from the University of Toronto, he studied law at Osgoode Hall and was admitted to the bar in 1953. After obtaining his law degree Mr. Davis joined his father's law firm, but his stay was short.

With the blessing of his political mentor, former Tory premier T. L. Kennedy, he sought and won the Conservative nomination in Peel and was swept into office in the 1959 election. He has held the riding since.

In 1961 Mr. Davis became a vice-chairman of Ontario Hydro and a year later took over the province's apprenticeship education portfolio. As education minister he commanded an annual budget of more than $1 billion.

Mr. Davis became party leader and premier on March 1 and immediately launched a wholesale reshuffling of the cabinet, leaving only three ministers in the portfolios they held under John Robarts.

In a whirlwind of legislature activity between his succession as premier and the election call six months later, Mr. Davis initiated or rammed through more than 40 items of individual legislation.

He gave 18-year-olds the right to vote, drafted drinking laws, put new curbs on pollution, introduced a form of no-fault car insurance, limited foreign investment in new brokerage houses and took the unprecedented step of suing a newspaper for libel—for $25 million, for polluting the St. Clair River water system.

The new premier also torpedoed Toronto's controversial Spadina Expressway and rejected Roman Catholic demands for extending aid beyond Grade 10 in the separate secondary school system.

Mr. Davis has been married twice. His first wife, Phyllis McPhee of Windsor, died in 1965 after an operation and he was left with four children. A year later Mr. Davis married Kathleen Sutherland of Chicago and they have had one child.

One Davis Puff and Wind of Change Turns Tail

TORONTO (CP) — William Grenville Davis's sweep of the Ontario election Thursday may bring him more than normal satisfaction.

The premier, fighting his first election since being named provincial leader last March 1 following the retirement of John Robarts, was barking a nationwide trend in recent provincial elections which has seen the last four administrations to go to the polls fall from power.

Six of the eight provincial elections outside Ontario since 1969 have resulted in upsets in government.

Ed Schreyer started the string of election upsets June 25, 1969, when his New Democratic Party captured 28 seats in Manitoba to defeat Walter Weir's Progressive Conservatives. The Tories had held power in Manitoba for 11 years.

Then Robert Bourassa and his Liberals smashed Jean-Jacques Bertrand's Union Nationale party at the polls April 29, 1970, in an election where Quebec independence was the major issue.

In Nova Scotia, Premier G. I. Smith's Big Progressive Conservative government to the polls Oct. 13, 1970. The Tories, previously led by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, were thrashed by Gerald Regan's Liberals after governing since 1956.

Thirteen days later Richard Hatfield's Conservatives ended 10 years of Liberal rule in New Brunswick by winning 32 of 58 seats. Former premier Louis Robichaud retired from politics.

This year, the New Democrats stormed back into office after a seven-year absence in Saskatchewan, defeating the Liberals led by the late Ross Thatcher. Allan Blakeney led an NDP upsurge that captured 45 of the 60 seats at stake.

Then, Alberta's Social Credit government was defeated Aug. 31 by the Progressive Conservatives after 36 years in office under three premiers.

Only three provincial governments have weathered these waves of electoral change.

In British Columbia, Premier W. A. C. Bennett beat back the NDP Aug. 27, 1969, in Prince Edward Island, Liberal Alex Campbell captured 27 of 32 seats May 11, 1970.

And now Mr. Davis!

The Tumult and Shouting Dies--

Here's How Captains and Kings Fared When Votes Counted

TORONTO (CP) — How prominent candidates fared in Thursday's Ontario election:

Gordon Carton, labor minister in the last Progressive Conservative government, was the first cabinet minister elected, retaining Toronto Armourdale over Liberal Donald Copley and New Democrat Harold Hechter.

George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, re-elected Halton West for the Progressive Conservatives with a victory over Liberal Robert McNutt and New Democrat Walter Mulkewich.

James Auld, public works minister in the last Progressive Conservative government, retained his seat in Leeds, downing Liberal Fred Carpenter and New Democrat John Fielding.

Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer, gained re-election in Chatham-Kent, defeating Liberal Donald McGeorge and New Democrat Leroy Wright.

Premier William Davis retained his seat in Peel North, defeating New Democrat Neil Davis and Liberal Gary Thaler.

John Yaremko, provincial secretary, was returned in Toronto Bellwoods over Liberal Frank Kennedy and New Democrat Helen Roedde.

New Democrat Dr. Morton Shulman was re-elected in Toronto High Park, defeating three other candidates, including Geza Matrai of the Social Credit party, who is charged with assaulting Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, retained his seat in Cochrane North by defeating New Democrat Rene Brithe and Liberal Phillip Kelly.

In Quinte riding, Dr. Richard Potter, minister without portfolio, retained his seat for the Conservatives, topping New Democrat Alan Deacon and Liberal Gerald Weaver.

Health Minister A. R. Lawrence was returned in Carleton East over Liberal Fred Barrett and New Democrat Jean Hines.

Toronto Telegram columnist Frank Drea, a Conservative, defeated the NDP's Margaret Reprick in Scarborough Centre. Her loss broke up the only husband-and-wife team in the legislature. Mrs. Renwick's husband Jim, also an NDP incumbent, won in Toronto Riverdale.

Trade Minister Allan Grossman was returned in Toronto St. Andrew-St. Patrick, defeating five other candidates.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, retained his seat in Scarborough West over Liberal Frank Faubert and Conservative Richard Bishop.

Attorney-General Allan Lawrence was returned in Toronto St. George over Liberal Peter Maloney and New Democrat David Middleton.

Vernon Singer, deputy Liberal leader, was returned in Toronto Dovercourt over New Democrat Murray Chusid and Progressive Conservative Lorraine Deane.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dalton Bales defeated Toronto York Mills, defeating Liberal Dan Brill and New Democrat Mike Morrow.

John White, minister of university affairs, was returned in London South over Liberal Dr. John McKim and New Democrat William Murdock.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart was re-elected in Middlesex North over New Democrat Pat Durfurka and Liberal Adrian Anseems.

Tourism Minister Fern Guindon was returned in Stormont over Liberal Marcel LaFontaine and New Democrat George Samis.

Thomas Wells, minister of social and family services, retained his seat in Scarborough North over three other candidates.

Phil Givens, former Toronto mayor and federal member of Parliament, won Toronto York-Forest Hill for the Liberals over New Democrat Fiona Nelson and Conservative Barry Lowes.

Richard Beckett, who resigned as mayor of Hamilton to seek election, won Brant-ford riding for the Progressive Conservatives over Liberal incumbent New Democrat Mac Makarchuk. He was mayor of St. Thomas, and two other candidates.

Conservative John Lane won Algoma-Manitoulin over Liberal Austin Hunt and New Democrat Roger Taylor, reeve of Elliot Lake.

University Affairs Minister John White, who retained his London South riding in the election, said last night there will be his last term as a member of the Ontario legislature. He told reporters that "16 years is long enough."

David Lewis Wept

TORONTO (CP) — David Lewis, leader of the federal New Democratic Party, listened with tears in his eyes Thursday night in a crowded Legion hall as his eldest son Stephen conceded that he had lost the Ontario election.

The federal leader and his wife Sophie had been with Stephen Lewis and his wife Michele earlier in the evening at Stephen's Scarborough West campaign headquarters when for a time, the Ontario leader was trailing in his own riding to a Progressive Conservative.

In an interview about midnight when it became evident that the Ontario NDP had won fewer than 24 seats, David Lewis blamed the loss on the strong Conservative media campaign.

"I had so much hope," he said.

He blamed the loss in Liberal strength on "strong anti-Trudeau feeling" which he said he had encountered in the short campaigning he had done for his son.

And he added: "I think that if a father can be objective, Stephen Lewis did a magnificent job throughout the campaign."

Nixon, Lewis Conducted Clean Campaigns--Davis

BRAMPTON (CP) — Premier William Davis, beaming amid the tumultuous acclaim of his townsfolk, said Thursday the re-election of his Progressive Conservatives points to a great future in Ontario."

The premier, whose 78-seat win in the 117-seat house dashed the hopes of the Liberals and New Democrats, commended the leaders of both parties for "the clean and constructive nature of their campaign."

The 45-year-old native of this community just west of Toronto thanked his party workers in Peel North for helping him to a personal victory in the riding.

But he said his government will be committed to the whole province, adding that during his campaign he has not appealed to any one sector of the population.

A cheering, shouting crowd of about 2,000 jammed the Farmers' Hall where the premier, perspiring profusely under the glare of television cameras and the crush of well-wishers, had to push his way through with his wife and two children.

"I feel very humble, very gratified at the confidence that has been expressed by all the people of Ontario in me, in my colleagues," he said. "And I promise that in the months and years that lie ahead we will make every effort to justify the confidence they have placed in us."

He said that Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and NDP Leader Stephen Lewis had conducted gentlemanly campaigns.

He received congratulatory telegrams from national Conservative leader Robert Stanfield and former premier Leslie Frost.

Mr. Davis promised that in the months ahead he will be committed completely "to do those things for the people of Ontario province that are in their interest."

Like 1963 Over Again

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — John Roberts, former Progressive Conservative premier, said Thursday night as the PCs swept the Ontario election, "it's like 1963 all over again."

In 1963 Mr. Roberts led the party for the first time in an election and came through with a resounding majority.

Mr. Roberts resigned after nine years as premier in February and was succeeded by William Davis who got his first test as leader in an election Thursday.

"I thought it would be this way," Mr. Roberts said in an interview. "But you don't like to stick your neck out. Politics in a horse race. Who knows?"

The riding of London North which Mr. Roberts held for 20 years before retiring this year was retained for the Conservatives by Gordon Walker, a lawyer and London alderman.

Mr. Roberts said the people of Ontario wanted a stable and competent government and added they got it.

Matrai Loser

TORONTO (CP) — Geza Matrai, the Toronto man charged with committing common assault on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, received only 220 votes in Thursday's Ontario election.

Mr. Matrai ran in Toronto High Park riding under the Social Credit banner, although he has been repudiated by the national party. The party did not enter a candidate in the riding in the 1967 election.

The riding was retained easily by Dr. Morton Shulman of the New Democratic Party, who received 16,509 votes. Progressive Conservative Yuri Shymko was runner-up with 9,238 and Liberal Laima Sivgals had 4,284.

PC Popular Vote Up Only Marginal Amount

TORONTO (CP) — The ruling Progressive Conservatives swept Ontario in Thursday's provincial election but showed only a marginal increase in their percentage of the party vote.

With nearly 98 per cent of the total vote reported early today, the Tories under Premier William Davis have increased their share to 44 per cent from 42 in 1967.

The party's strength in the legislature climbed more dramatically to 78 from 68 as Ontarians voted in record numbers and set an unofficial post-war record of an approximate 72 per-cent turnout.

The New Democratic Party under Stephen Lewis garnered one per cent more of the vote than it did in 1967 when the NDP picked up 26 per cent, but the party's legislature strength dropped to 19 from 21 at dissolution.

The Liberals under Robert Nixon were the big losers as their house strength dwindled to 29 from 37, and their percentage of the voting dipped to 28 from 31.

The Liberal drop continued a decline that started in 1963 when the party won 36 per cent of the vote, a one-per-cent drop from 1959.

All parties increased their totals as a record 3,223,809 cast ballots in 18,229 of the 18,613 polls that were reported early today.

This means the record will be increased when the final count is in.

The turnout percentage was by far the best of the six general elections during the last 20 years and beats the post-war record of 67 per cent set in 1948.

In Thursday's election, an estimated 4,650,000 were eligible to vote compared with 3,685,755 in 1967 when 2,419,710 cast ballots for a turnout of more than 65 per cent.

The record turnout this year could be attributed to the lowering of the voting age to 18 from 21 which added about 400,000 in that age bracket and a similar number in the 21-24 age group that were eligible Thursday but weren't in 1967.

Early fog turned into unseasonably-warm weather throughout most of the province and many deputy returning officers found line-ups outside their polling stations when they opened at 9 a.m.

The Tories picked up more than 400,000 votes with 1,432,276 in this election compared with 1,032,897 in 1967 and 1,051,749 in 1963 when they captured 49 per cent of the vote and 77 seats in a 108-seat house.

Liberal vote tallies climbed in 1967 compared with 1963 but in 1967 and the NDP picked up 250,000 more than the 626,429 votes cast for them in the last election.

CP's Ontario party vote from 18,229 of 18,613 polls (97.9 per cent) compared with vote by polls in the last two elections (percentages bracketed):

	1971	1967	1963
PC	1,432,276 (44)	1,032,897 (42)
Lib	897,861 (28)	760,096 (31)
NDP	876,269 (27)	626,429 (25)
Others	17,283 (1)	10,218 (1)

Only Two of 20 Women Successful at Polls

TORONTO (CP) — Only two of the 20 women candidates won their bid for seats in the Ontario election Thursday, the same number as in the 1967 voting.

Margaret Scrivener retained the Toronto St. David riding for the Progressive Conservatives while Margaret Birch, a New Democrat, took the Toronto Scarborough East seat from the Liberals.

Margaret Renwick, the lone women incumbent, lost out in her bid for re-election as a New Democrat in Scarborough Centre. She too was defeated by a Conservative—Frank Drea, former columnist with the Toronto Telegram.

Mrs. Renwick was one of the two women among 13 female candidates in 1967 to win a seat. The other was Conservative Ada Pritchard in Hamilton West.

Davis Surprised ?

BRAMPTON (CP) — Kathy Davis said Thursday night she thought her husband was really surprised by the size of his party's victory in the Ontario election, but she took it calmly.

Asked whether she was surprised, the wife of Premier William Davis replied:

"Well I'm pretty much a novice at these things. I'm not very good at predicting."

Seven Minutes Told the Tale

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

It took just seven minutes to set the victory trend in Hastings riding for victorious Progressive Conservative candidate Clarke T. Rollins.

That was the number of minutes past the 8 p.m. closing time for polls before the first voting results were phoned in to returning officer Lloyd Price at Actinolite.

Those first results — from poll 63 in Tuesday township — gave Mr. Rollins 13 votes as against four for Rev. Ian Munro, Liberal, and two for NDP Richard Lunn.

It was a trend that was never reversed throughout the night, although the Liberal candidate did carry eight of the 111 polls.

The next two polls gave Mr. Rollins 122, Mr. Munro 21 and Mr. Lunn 16.

Close to 70 per cent of the eligible voters in the riding turned out to cast their ballots as compared with the approximately 76 per cent in the 1967 election.

Four years ago there were 18,492 eligible voters with 12,136 ballots being cast.

Due to the lowering of the voting age to 18 and as a result any increase in population, the eligibility list this year was raised to 22,200. Of the eligible voters 15,272 turned out to cast their ballots.

Mr. Rollins swept all 11 polls in Thurlow township, with unofficial totals giving the Progressive Conservative candidate 1,419, Munro 615, and Lunn 183.

In Tyendinaga, however, Mr. Munro picked up some strength, carrying the township (exclusive of the Mohawk Reserve) with 467 votes. Mr. Rollins polled 412 township votes with Lunn receiving 65.

The Tyendinaga Reserve restored Mr. Rollins' margin, however, as he polled 154 votes against 15 for Munro and nine for the NDP candidate.

Deseronto went strongly for Mr. Rollins, the vote margin being 428 as against 242 Liberal votes and 36 NDP.

Rawdon also gave strong majorities for Mr. Rollins in all of the six polls. His count was 622, Mr. Munro's 180 and Mr. Lunn's 97.

It was the same story in Sidney, where four polls gave Mr. Rollins 528, as compared to 172 Liberal and 58 NDP votes.

Huntingdon also went strongly Conservative, with 600 votes being cast for Mr. Rollins. Munro polled 172 and Lunn 51.

Liberal Ian Munro polled his greatest successes in Rungerford township and in the village of Tweed, where he outdrew the Conservative candidate in the municipalities.

Mr. Rollins polled 476 in Hungerford with Mr. Munro receiving 521 and Mr. Lunn 66.

In Tweed, Munro received 499 votes, Rollins 416 and Lunn 34.

In Marmora and Lake township the vote was for Rollins, 64 Munro and 51 Lunn. In Marmora village the count was Rollins 371, Munro 159 and Lunn 102.

In Dekora the count was Rollins 63, Munro 28 and Lunn 14.

Both Madoc township and Madoc village were strong territories for Rollins. In the township he received 297 votes, Munro 79 and Lunn 26. In the village it was 465 for Rollins, 109 for Munro and 64 for Lunn.

Elzevir and Grimsthorpe gave Rollins 176 votes, Munro 71 and Lunn 16.

Wollaston, Mr. Rollins' native township, gave him a majority with 131 votes as compared to 59 Liberal and 60 NDP.

In Tudor and Cashel, Mr. Rollins received 159 votes, with Munro getting 41 and Lunn 20.

In Limerick it was 97 for Rollins, Munro 21 and Lunn 15.

Faraday gave Rollins 238, with 95 going to Munro and 79 to Lunn.

Bancroft gave Mr. Rollins 625, compared with 189 for Munro and 135 for Mr. Lunn, while Centennial Manor at Bancroft polled 41 Rollins, 11 Munro and four Lunn votes.

Dungannon was strong Rollins territory, giving him 132 votes, compared with 39 for Munro and 25 for Lunn. Mayo saw 70 Rollins votes, 31 for Munro and 14 for Lunn.

Herschel township gave Rollins 193, Munro 50 and Lunn 43.

Monteagle saw 175 votes for Mr. Rollins, 123 for Munro and 58 for Lunn, while in Carlow it was 88 Rollins, 32 Munro and 22 Lunn.

In McLure it was 48 Rollins, 26 Munro and eight Lunn.

Wicklow gave Mr. Rollins 87, Munro 64 and Lunn 14.

In Bangor it was Rollins 25, Munro 79 and Lunn 18.

All three advance polls in the riding polled majorities for Mr. Rollins.

At Bancroft the voting was Rollins 56, Munro 30 and Lunn 18. At Madoc it was Rollins 74, Munro 23 and Lunn 11, while at Carrollton the count was 34 for Rollins, 13 for Munro and five for Lunn.

Wifely Hug for Winner

Victory smiles were in order at Madoc last night as party supporters attended a post election party for Clarke T. Rollins at the Kiwanis Centre.

Here the candidate Clarke and his wife flash victory for the cameraman.

He's Anti Regional Government

As a former warden of Hastings county and with a long record in government at the local level, Clarke T. Rollins doesn't have much use for regional government.

He made this clear Thursday night as he spoke to several hundred party supporters who turned out for his victory celebration at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre.

Expressing his appreciation to his party workers and to Kenneth Smith, his campaign manager, who helped him win the Hastings riding for the fourth consecutive time in the past 12 years, Mr. Rollins said he would carry on in the future as he had in the past.

"I am for local municipal government and for county government," he said. "I am not in favor of regional government and never have been."

Referring to the Progressive Conservative sweep in the province, which saw the Davis government returned with a larger than ever majority, the victor in Hastings riding said the vote result had shown a desire on the part of electors for a responsible government in Ontario.

His own personal victory was made possible by the hard work of his supporters, he said, and promised he would do his best to warrant their confidence.

"I am interested in the people of this riding and I am interested in their problems," he said.

Premier Davis was a capable man and sincere in his commitments, he stated.

Fight Not Over Yet -- Liberals

"When we entered this election," said a Liberal spokesman, "we knew we were facing a most difficult campaign and seemingly an impossible task of dethroning Clarke Rollins."

Out of 111 polls, the Liberals managed to take only eight and tie one.

"The real task now," said Don Hodgins, financial manager of the campaign ,is "get our bonework done, reinforce the areas that have shown a Liberal trend, work with them in any way on committees, and grow to increase the number of these supporters by next election."

"I just can't believe the progress we have made in especially the Tweed and Thurlow areas", said Ian Munro, who ran on the Grit ticket. "The vote against the PCs seems to be getting stronger, and I believe the people are thinking."

Members of the party agree "more organization must be done, and when it is, the Tory stronghold can be brought down and the vote will be swung".

With the strengthening of the Tory government in the province, members of the Hastings' Liberals claimed, "if something is not done to govern this group, we will eventually lose even the right to decide on how our garbage is to be taken care of."

This statement was made in reference to the issue of regional government which the Liberals feel will "hinder the voter in contributing verbally in the shaping of his future".

Tuning In

Like many candidates in local ridings, Ian Munro, running on the Liberal ticket for Hastings county, rather than travel all evening, decided to return home to his family and follow the results over the news media.

Waiting Is the Hardest Part

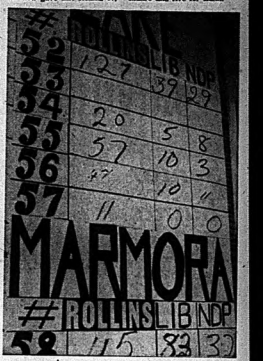
June Munro and daughter Kimberley showed full-hearted support for the head of the house last night while Ian Munro waited in the living room with his sons, friends and party members for the election results. Mr. Munro ran on the Liberal tickets in Hastings riding in contest with Clarke Rollins, MPP for the Conservative party who emerged victorious.

Munro Got The News At Home

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TWEED — After returning from a tour of the polling booths and committee rooms in Hastings riding, Liberal candidate Ian Munro returned to his family of two sons, his wife and a small gathering of friends to wait out the results of the contest between himself and Conservative Clarke Rollins.

It was no great surprise to the Liberals that once more Tory candidate Rollins would reign supreme at the end of the count, but the huge pleasences of the campaign as far as the Liberals were concerned were the gains covered to show that there are Liberals in the riding.



Sitting with his wife, June, and watching the television coverage of the election, Mr. Munro, supported by members of the group, claimed "those who voted Liberal in this election have not lost their shown the 'well greased Tory vote. Rather they have machine' that Grits are alive and well in the country and mean to make their voices heard."

The group, including Mrs. Munro's mother and riding president Charles Bates, remained quiet for most of the evening until good returns came from the Tweed and Hungerford polling stations.

"These areas show that when we make an all-out effort to meet the people and talk to them, we can have a good effect on them, start them thinking and asking questions on the issues and the numerous problems that are currently facing the country," said Don Hodgins, financial chairman for the campaign.

"All we set out to do was to get everyone to ask themselves if they really wanted a Tory government for this area or do they want a Grit government," said Mr. Munro. "We have made advances in many of the polls and have made inroads for the Liberal government.

"This was a start of something that will grow in the county and prosper, to give people a chance to say their piece," said Mr. Munro.

Tallyboard Tale

Rollins was the No. 1 man at Progressive Conservative headquarters in Madoc yesterday, this despite the fact his surname initial put him last on the ballot. Here a section of the bulletin board sets out results for polls in Marmora and Lake.

Liberal Won't Quit

When it became apparent the Clarke Rollins, Conservative MPP for Hastings would be re-elected, Rev. Ian Munro, Liberal candidate, said, "I will not congratulate Mr. Rollins or his unjust government for winning."

Mr. Munro did mention that later he would contact Mr. Rollins by telegram for a brief acknowledgement of his victory.

Comments made by members of the group surrounding Mr. Munro in his Tweed home, where he waited out the results this evening ranged from, "If he could have won, he would have been able to serve so many more people than he can now as a minister; "he won't be my MPP but he will be my minister as long as he and I reside in this community; we did everything we could to secure a Liberal victory for the county."

"I will, always stand behind my conviction that the PC government infringes on civil rights and hinders communication between the public and the government machine, said Mr. Munro. "All that I have said in the past few weeks about the Tory government and Clarke Rollins will remain my opinion and we Liberals have only begun to fight."

Dick Lunn Ran Third From Afar

HILLIER (Staff) — New Democratic Party candidate for Hastings riding, Richard Lunn, a journalism teacher at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto, based most of his campaign on the subject of tourism.

However, Mr. Lunn spent scant time campaigning in his riding. As a token candidate for Hastings his party did not require him to be present for election night.

As NDP organizer Ian Rellas stated, "after all, he's got a living to make".

Mr. Lunn, a resident of Hillier, who returns to his family home on weekends, was not available for comment last night.

Congratulations Clarke!

Raceway Planning Enclosed Grandstand

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

It was a year of handicaps for the Quinte Raceway: hurried last-minute construction; horse power shortages, the first, raised in the history of the Saturday night cards, even the introduction of a new handicapping system.

However, the Belleville Agricultural Society, which assumed responsibility for the meets from the defunct Quinte Riding and Driving Club, is already formulating plans for next season. "We didn't do as well financially as we might have," concedes chairman Ey Gowsell. Inexperience and the fact that we had to make a number of improvements in only one year proved to be costly. We certainly didn't lose money, however."

Among the improvements effected this year were widening of the track, installation of new betting facilities, improvements of paddock and receiving areas and the introduction of a lounge for race patrons.

The Agricultural Society is hoping to be able to install an enclosed grandstand for next season as well as year-round stabling facilities for the race entries.

A total of 17,589 fans paid their way into the Belleville fairgrounds over the 17 race dates held in the city, wagering almost a half-million dollars at the pari-mutuel windows. Originally 24 racing dates had been set for Belleville, however there was one rainout, two dates lost because of a shortage of horses, two omitted due to track repairs and the final two were cancelled because of inclement weather at the end of the season. Belleville track attendance compared favorably to the more lavish Frontenac Downs operation in Kingston, which averaged 1,800 five its first 20 dates.

The biggest crowd of the season was July 3rd when 1,468 paid their way into the grounds, while the top pari-mutuel handle of $24,714 occurred one week later.

The method of deciding which horses would race in the various heats also changed this year. Instead of classifying horses according to times, they were conditioned by total earnings and age. "It was hectic at first," admitted Doreen Kemp, who was in charge of the new conditioning method, "since we didn't have as many entries as the bigger tracks, sometimes you wouldn't have enough entries in a certain class and then I'd have to set different conditions in order to have a full card. It seemed to work out well in the end, though."

The seasonal track record of 2:09.1 was set by Wil Lor Ben on Sept. 4. The five-year-old gelding, owned and driven by Derek Newman of Orono, came right back a week later with a 2:09.2 performance for the second best time this year. Other top marks included a 2:09.3 by Yankee Jed and a 2:09.4 effort by George Hanover as' Flying John.

The controlling board hopes to operate from May 20 to Sept. 30 next season, with the possibility of a five free for Saturday cards to be held in the afternoon to increase spectator comfort.

Woodstock Not Same Pushovers

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

If Belleville Quintes harbor any thoughts of a weekend sweep in their home - and - home series with Woodstock Royals, they'd better sneak a glance at the Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'A League's scoring statistics.

Three Woodstock players — Don Kuboda, Dan Mahony, and Wayne Weller — share the individual points leadership with nine each.

Not only that, but the new-look Royals have already accumulated five points in four games on two wins and a tie to draw within a point of the second-place Quintes in the eight - team standings as Belleville makes their half of the 360-mile exchange visit tonight.

Woodstock's early - season record, including an 8-3 win in Kingston a week ago, is even more remarkable when one considers that the old A's won only three of 36 games last season. Their last appearance was a 21-3 setback in Belleville.

In addition to their 3-1 second-place record, the Quintes have several major statistics going for them as they tackle Woodstock tonight and back in Belleville at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Centre George Godson's seven points, including three goals, put him in the league's top 10 producers. Goalie Steve Reze's 3.25 goals - against average (13 goals in four games) makes him second only to Galt's Sonny Pennington (2.57), who started the season as the Hornets' backup netminder but took over the starting spot when veteran "Boot" Hurley broke his ankle on opening night.

Senior Saints Sack Moira

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Watch any unsupervised football practice for 10 minutes and you're almost certain to be treated to the spectacle of a 220-pound mid - guard chugging through the world's most elaborate square - out pattern in an attempt to track down the lame-duck throwing efforts of an equally large offensive tackle.

Deep inside him every football player appears to want a crack at one of football's "glamour" positions. Every Inside linebacker knows that if he just lost 15 pounds and didn't have to oil his hands once a week, he'd be an all-star scatback; an offensive tackle who thinks a back-flip is something you eat with six eggs, only believes that if he was just a little more agile he'd make a heck of a tight end, deep in his heart, every defensive safety knows that he could throw the ball better than that bum they've got playing quarterback.

Considering this latent desire for glory Quinte Secondary's Ralph Lepore has to be possibly the most unique case in football. A starting flanker with last year's Bay of Quinte COSSA champs, Lepore asked to move to offensive centre for this year's senior Saints. While Quinte was pretty well set at centre, offensive coach Bob Sisson did manage to install him at offensive guard.

Ralph's efforts are now far less obvious to casual spectators than when he was catching passes and making end runs, but teammates Paul Hall and Bill Kirkham at two people keenly aware of his contribution.

Lepore was one of the main cogs in a re-juvinated Saints' offensive line which helped them to a 42-7 trouncing of Moira yesterday to guarantee them a spot in the high-school playoffs.

The Quinte linemen helped provide running room for Hall and Kirkham to operate from their twin fullback positions and the pair responded with some outstanding ground-gaining efforts. Each of them scored on a one - yard plunge in addition to doing a lot of inside yardage, while Hall pulled in a 12-yard touchdown pass as the Saints built a 36-7 half time lead.

A stubborn Moira defence led by the superb efforts of tackle Stan Reston held Quinte to one major in the second half, but the Trojans were unable to muster an offence.

Halfback Dave Rutherford had pulled the Trojans into a brief 7-6 lead in the first quarter, but was unable to break loose for any further scores. His major came on a brilliant 60-yard effort with the speedy back breaking at least two tackles.

Mike Goegan counted a first-half Saints' score, scooting 35 yards on a Statue of Liberty play and Terry Meagher added a defensive score by ramming 85 yards with an interception. Meagher also pulled in a 50-yard pass to set up Ken Vos for the only touchdown of the second half. Stan Brooks collected three two-point conversion throws from quarterback Rick Meagher.

The junior Trojans completed their third unbeaten season in a row as they hung a 39-0 blanket on the Saints.

Halfback John Lodder paced the eastern division champions with three touchdowns with Mike McClelland and Bob Bernier picking up the others. Brian Calhoun and Mike Sinclair each had a pair of two-point conversions.

Heavenly Hitting

Two of the stars from Thursday's Bay of Quinte COSSA senior football battle meet head on as Moira's Peter Stallkovich lays a crushing tackle on fullback Bill Kirkham of the Quinte Saints. Kirkham scored a touchdown and was one of the driving forces in a 42-7 win by the Saints, while Stallkovich came up with an outstanding effort on behalf of the losing Trojans. The same two teams are slated to meet in the opening round of playoffs next Tuesday at Moira.

Mulvihill Making Big Move

If you're going to score like a forward, then why not be a forward. At least that's the strategy that Moe Hunter is implementing by moving Belleville Fairway captain John Mulvihill from defence to centre.

Despite playing almost exclusively on the blue line, Mulvihill still managed to crack the top 20 scorers in the Eastern Ontario Junior B league last season. He has scored one goal in two regular season games at that position so far this year, and picked up 2 goals and 2 assists in two exhibition tilts.

However, the return of regular Kevin Dockrill has left the Fairways with five front-line defencemen so Hunter is hoping to boost his scoring punch by installing Mulvihill at the pivot position between Dave Smith and Rod Palmer.

Another move will see Tim Yohn, a swing man in last Friday's loss to Peterborough, taking a regular shift at right wing on a line with Mark Woodward and Jeff Howard.

Despite 6-0 and 8-1 exhibition wins by Belleville over Kingston, Hunter isn't taking tonight's encounter with the Frontenacs too lightly. "They've got a big team and they'll probably be hitting us," he advises, "they're certainly not going to be the pushovers they were in the exhibition games."

Tonight's bout at the Belleville Memorial Arena will get under way at 9 p.m.

Goalie Quickest To Face Facts

It didn't take long, about 15 seconds in fact, for Larry DiPietro to realize that he was in for a rough Quinte Hockey League opening night.

Last year's league MVP saw Jack Francis open the scoring after only 15 seconds as Belevedere Hotel went on to pump in 8 more goals past the Stinson's netminder. In the other game, Central Taxi grabbed an early 7-1 win over Reid's Dairy.

Francis, last year's scoring champion, showed that he retained his touch by counting four goals and adding three assists in the 11-0 rout. Centre Elmer Cain came through with a hat trick for the defending champs, with single tallies going to Miller, Henderson, Doug Hallam and Larry Marshall. Claude Carr recorded the shutout for Belevedere, who drew eight of the game's 22 penalties.

Defenceman Ed Christopher counted two goals and three assists in his first Quinte league game to pace Central's win over Reid's. Kevin Allen counted two goals and two assists while Grant Hagerman notched two goals and Andy Prudden one. The lone Reid's tally went to Don Goodfellow.

The winners drew only three penalties against nine for Reid's.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Petes moved into fourth place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A seven Thursday when they whipped out Niagara Falls Flyers 5-0.

Scoring single goals for the winners were Paul McIntosh, Mike St. Cyr, Ron Lalonde, Bill Five and Rick Chinnock.

In goal for his first shutout in Junior A competition was Rolly Kimble, who attended the Flyers' training camp before joining the Petes. He faced only 20 shots.

The Petes led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 3-0 going into the third. The teams split 12 minor penalties called by referee Jim Lever.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Detroit Junior Red Wings took a firmer grip on first place in the Southern Ontario Junior A series Thursday night with a 7-3 win over Windsor Spitfires.

The win, before a crowd of 2,857, gave the Wings a four-point lead over second-place St. Thomas Elgins.

Detroit scored six goals in a row in the second and third periods to blow the game wide open. The first period had ended with the teams tied 1-1.

Windsor goaltenders Brian Rose and Eddie Mio had a busy night, facing 68 shots. The spitfires fired 48 shots at Detroit goalie Gary Fawkes.

CORNWALL (CP) — A goal by Tony McCarthy with 30 seconds remaining in the third period gave Cornwall Royals a 3-3 draw with Shawinigan Bruins in Quebec Junior A Hockey League play Thursday night.

The Bruins stormed to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Maxime Quoquich and Jean Deschenes but the Royals narrowed the margin on a goal by Bob Murray in the second period.

Cornwall's Kevin Tracey evened the score at 2:07 of the third period but the Bruins' Rene Villemure put his club ahead 3-2 at 16:07 to set the stage for McCarthy's tying effort.

The two teams then battled through a 10-minute, sudden-death overtime session.

Hull Boys Up to Old Tricks

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Hull brothers are up to their old tricks for Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League.

Bobby and Dennis Hull scored three goals between them to lead the Hawks to a 5-3 victory over Buffalo Sabres Thursday night. In the only other NHL game, Los Angeles Kings routed Philadelphia Flyer 7-0.

A year ago, the Hull brothers combined for 84 goals, with Bobby getting 44 and Dennis 40. In seven games this season they have six, Bobby four and Dennis two.

Bobby got his fourth late in the second period against the Sabres to break a 2-2 tie before a record turnout of 15,451 at Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium. Dennis added two more in the last three minutes of play for good measure.

It was the Hawks' sixth victory in their first seven games and regained for them sole possession of first place in the West Division.

Dennis' goals were his first of the season and the younger Hull brother said "It felt good to break into the scoring column."

BOBBY HULL

Los Angeles goalie Gary Edwards kicked aside 34 shots as the Kings spoiled Philadelphia's home opener before 14,120 at the Spectrum. Bobby Berry and Real Lemieux each tallied twice to lead the Kings' offensive.

Meanwhile at Pittsburgh, defenceman Tim Horton will be lost to the Penguins for possibly six weeks because of a broken ankle, the Penguins said Thursday.

Horton, a former Ranger and Toronto Maple Leaf who came out of retirement to sign with Pittsburgh, received the injury against Los Angeles Wednesday when he crashed into the boards.

At Toronto, the Leafs reported that centre Dave Keon, who has missed five games with a knee injury, could be in the lineup tonight when Detroit Red Wings invade Maple Leaf Gardens.

Earlier it was reported Keon might not start skating until Oct. 27.

Boston forward Don Marcotte will undergo surgery today to correct a spinal disc ailment, the Bruins said Thursday.

Marcotte has been out of action since the Bruins' season opener.

Competition Worrying Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Thursday that proposed federal legislation, if passed in its current form, "would lead to the dissolution of all professional leagues in Canada."

Campbell used a speaking engagement to the Kiwanis Club for his first public examination of impending legislation introduced by Ron Basford, consumer affairs minister, and labelled: "The Competition Act."

The legislation, with wide-sweeping powers that would include amateur and professional sports, will, if passed, supplant the Combines and Investigation Act of 1889.

Its Sec. 19, the one that brings amateur and pro sports into the jurisdiction of the act, is the one that concerns Campbell. This section proposes that no person be allowed to conspire . . . to limit unduly the opportunity of any one to deal with another person for his services.

"This legislation, if passed in its present form, would lead to the dissolution of all professional leagues in Canada," Campbell said.

Tides Run Wrong Way

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — An unassisted goal by Rochester left winger Barry Wilcox broke open a tight American Hockey League game Thursday night and sent Tidewater Wings down to the seventh loss in a row, 4-2.

Rene LeClerc and Larry Johnston had scored for the Wings and Duke Harris and Dan Seguin for the Americans when Wilcox intercepted a clearing pass late in the second period and whipped a 20-footer into the net.

A power-play goal by Rochester's John Cunliff in the third period put the game out of reach of the Wings, now 1-7.

Jenkins Top Right-hander

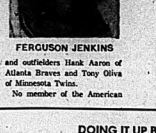
NEW YORK (CP-AP) — Fergie Jenkins, Arlington right-handed pitcher with Chicago Cubs was one of two pitchers named Thursday to the 1971 Associated Press all-star baseball team.

The 27-year-old fireballer from Chatham, Ont., thus became the first Canadian to top a major league baseball poll in a list that includes such earlier era standouts as Phil Marchildon, Gaggie Sekirk and Jeff Heath.

Jenkins joined left-hander Mickey Lolich of Detroit Tigers on the all-star pitching staff. Another Cub, second baseman Glenn Beckert, was the only repeater from AP's 1970 team.

Pittsburgh Pirates, 1971 world champions, also placed two on the team—outfielder Willie Stargell and catcher Manny Sanguillen.

Others chosen to the all-star team were first baseman Lee May of Cincinnati Reds, third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis Cardinals, shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles Dodgers.



League champion Baltimore Orioles was named to the first team although outfielder Frank Robinson and third baseman Brooks Robinson were second-team choices.

Alvin received the most votes, 236, but Stargell was a close second among the outfield balloting with 208. Oliva was third with 130.

Beckert, a .342 hitter, posted the largest runaway margin will. 223 votes compared to 15 for runner-up Cookie Rojas of Kansas City Royals.

Big Game Saturday

Ottawa Step Behind Ticats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Hamilton Tiger-Cats ever hear footsteps behind them on the artificial turf at Ivor Wynne Stadium, it should be Saturday when they entertain Ottawa Rough Riders.

A win or tie for the Ticats would eliminate Ottawa from an Eastern Football Conference playoff for the second straight year.

But if the Ticats are looking for a playoff advantage with Montreal Alouettes in their battle for second place, they'll have to come up with a far superior performance than they've managed in recent games.

The contest will be carried on CBC-TV's Eastern network at 2 p.m. EDT.

The Als are also involved in it most a one this weekend. They are at home Sunday to red-hot Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference.

That game will be carried on the CTV national network, starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

Ottawa trails both Hamilton and Montreal by four points with each team having two games remaining. Toronto Argonauts, idle this weekend, wrapped up first place two weeks ago.

The Riders, however, still have an outside chance of reaching second, but it's iffy—if Hamilton and Montreal lose their remaining two games and Ottawa wins.

If the three clubs should wind up tied, Greg Fulton, the Canadian Football League's statistician, has a formula worked out to determine the final standings.

The nod goes to the team with the greater number of wins against the other club or clubs. In this case, Ottawa would have an advantage over Montreal. Montreal over Hamilton and Hamilton over Ottawa.

If a tie still remains, then the league would revert to the net aggregate system—points scored for less points scored against in games played against the other tied club or clubs.

If a tie still exists, then the formula takes on an even more complicated picture—the higher net quotient of points, which is to say the points scored for divided by points against.

And if that's not a tie breaker, then the league applies the same formulae to games played against other clubs in the conference, then against teams in the other conference.

Nykoluk Ending Retirement

TORONTO (CP) — With a chronic leg injury continuing to badger defensive lineman Ed Harrington, Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference have lured offensive lineman Danny Nykoluk out of retirement. Coach Leo Cahill said Thursday the Argos have been advised Harrington probably will miss the rest of the season. Nykoluk, 27, retired last year after playing more than 200 games for Toronto.

Sport Briefs

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Hugh Royer and Tom Aaron, both Georgia natives, shot first-round 66s to head a tightly-bunched group of challengers in the $150,000 Kaiser International open golf tournament Thursday.

Following the Georgia pair with 67 were Larry White, Jim Colbert, J. C. Snead, Bob Till, Billy Casper and Al Geiberger.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg was in a group of eight tied at 68.

George Knudson of Toronto and Ken Fulton of Montreal were far back of the leaders. Knudson shot a 71 while Fulton had an 80.

Longshots Rule Roost

TORONTO (CP) — Thursday was longshot day at Woodbine racetrack. Not a single favorite made it to the winner's circle.

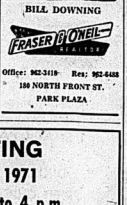
Largest price winner of the day was Real Talent. He raced home to take the fifth, covering the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5, and paying $78.60, $19.40 and $9.20.

Second place went to Rock O War for $3.50 and $3.20. Rays Purse, in third spot, returned $5.50.

Not far behind Real Talent when it came to paying off was Lucky Doctor, winner of the ninth. That victory was worth $73.10, $15 and $7.40.

Lucky Doctor's time for the 1 1-16 miles was 1:44 4-5. Second-place Trucial paid $4.20 and $3.70. No Mo Polo came in third for $4.80.

An exactor of Lucky Doctor and Trucial was worth $268.60.



Menebrite took the opening race on the card and combined with Pops Lady in the second for a $142.90 daily double.

Menebrite's win returned $10.20 and $3.10 while Pops Lady paid $16.30, $6.60 and $3.70.

Nattily Attired and Marty's Tudor teamed for a fourth-race exactor, paying $61.80 while a seventh race exactor of Peter's Creek and Domineer 3rd paid $31.80.

A crowd of 5,530 was on hand.

Lewis Would Not Change Thing If Running Campaign Again

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, whose New Democratic Party lost its bid to form the next Ontario government, said after the election Thursday he would campaign in the same way again.

"If I was asked what I would do differently, I would say 'not a thing.'" Mr. Lewis said upon learning that the Progressive Conservatives had swept to victory.

He said the party stuck to the issues, fought as hard as it could and did "everything humanly possible."

Mr. Lewis, who retained his seat in Scarborough West after a tight battle with Conservative Richard Kirkup, said to his father, NDP National Leader David Lewis: "Weren't you worried? I was."

His father replied: "No, I wasn't worried—I was concerned."

The younger Mr. Lewis told supporters:

"Our kind of party moves slowly over the years. Social democracy takes time to take root. We have won a tremendous popular vote across the province. We'll continue to grow .One day, one day it's going to be ours."

Mr. Lewis spoke to reporters and party supporters at the Royal Canadian Legion hall in his riding, in what had been billed earlier as a victory party.

He said his party had learned a real lesson about media advertising: "People will buy the product, even if they say they don't like it. It isn't being sold often enough.

He congratulated Premier William Davis on his victory.

"I want them to know and I want you to know however many seats we win we'll be in there fighting on every single issue for the next four years as we have in the last four."

Mr. Lewis said deeply regretted such losses as Ken Bolton in Middlesex South; Clifford Pilkey in Dehart and Gordon Renwick in Scarborough Centre.

Mr. Lewis said Floyd Laughren's win from the Conservatives in Nickel Belt will be "a strength in the legislature," but added: "I prefer not to lose any of the sitting members."

After his speech, Mr. Lewis moved through the crowd to be with his father, who had tears in his eyes.

"... except that I haven't been able to convince the people to vote for me."

He said his party would have a convention within two years to determine a leader. But would he be a candidate?

"I'll have to think about that," he said.

His mother, Sophie, who had been campaigning in Sault Ste. Marie, and his 22-year-old sister Nina Lisbeskind were almost crushed by photographers.

His wife, Michele, was ignored by nearly everyone except her husband.

Earlier, when his own win was in doubt, Mr. Lewis said:

"Assuming that my very paper-thin majority holds, if the party wants me, I'll still be there leading the party."

The 33-year-old NDP leader and his wife cast their ballots in the Scarborough Centre riding at 9:15 a.m., 15 minutes after the polls opened.

Mr. Lewis lives and votes in the Scarborough Centre riding, although he ran in Scarborough West.

People Do Not Want to Change Says Nixon

PARIS, Oct. (CP) — Liberal leader Robert Nixon said Thursday the province had shown "a great reticence to opt for a change."

"It's something people tend to ignore but there it is," he said after conceding the election to the Progressive Conservatives from his party headquarters here.

"I think basically the people have confidence in Conservative traditions," said the leader, who was re-elected in his own riding of Brant.

Referring to elections in other provinces that have voted out existing governments, he said the basic difference in Ontario is that this province enjoyed a relatively high level of prosperity.

He said advertising in news media probably had some impact for the Conservatives during the campaign because polls showed a large number of people hadn't made up their minds how to vote late in the campaign.

Of his own campaign, Mr. Nixon said he had no regrets

Ankle Sprain 8 Years Ago Not Likely Cause of Trouble

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Eight years ago I severely sprained my left ankle and tore some tendons. Since then my ankle would "give out" maybe once a year. More recently it has occurred about once a month—the ankle gives out completely and I step down on the side of my foot. The pain is terrific and I fall.

Could the sprain possibly be getting worse? Is there an exercise to get strength back in the ankle? I've also developed a bunion. Could the two be related? Is there any exercise to cure a bunion?—Mrs. G. B.

I have my doubts that the sprain, eight years ago, is causing your trouble, but the combination of troubles (ankle turning and the bunion) would make me strongly suspect faulty foot mechanics—something gone wrong with the bone and muscle structure.

Before trying to "strengthen the ankle," I'd most certainly have a podiatrist or an orthopedist examine the foot to see whether some quite different treatment may be what you need.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was exposed to syphilis but was not told until much later. I was tested and started treatment as soon as I found out, but after a series of treatments my tests were still positive.

I changed doctors and took two more series of shots when the health department instructed him to discontinue treatment.

What can I do? The doctors say I don't have it, but my tests show that I do. If I wish to get married, how can I tell my husband? How can I have children? What are the dangers of blindness and insanity? I feel I must have help or I will go insane.—Uusigned.

I can assure you that you have company. You are one of those individuals in whom a positive test continues even though the disease has been thoroughly treated. The positives may or may not continue. The VDRL is the usual test used. There are others, and to obtain a positive VDRL that might really be negative.

If you want to get married, go back to the doctor who has been treating you. He can perfectly possible to get a marriage license despite the "positive" test. But you will need his report that you have been adequately treated and do not have the disease.

Since you don't have the disease, the rest of your fears, as to children and so to yourself, are groundless.

Building Designs Exchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Canadian efforts to step up co-operation in such fields as education, science and technology are set to quick start, reports from Moscow indicate.

A day after Prime Minister Trudeau and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin signed an exchange pact in Ottawa, the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Moscow a new agreement on construction.

At the same time, Tass said in a separate report, a group of Canadians led by Manitoba Education Minister Saul Miller was touring schools in Soviet Estonia.

The agreement on construction provides for the exchange of designs of homes and public buildings and consultations on city planning, with special emphasis on construction in northern latitudes.

The agreement was signed in Moscow by Ivan Ganichev, vice-chairman of the Soviet state committee for building, and Gerald Hutchinson, Canadian assistant deputy minister of public works, who head a joint working group for co-operation in building.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades and North leads the king of hearts, which you win with the ace. How would you play the hand? (The trumps are divided 3-2.)

	NORTH
	♠7963
	♥K875
	♦932
	♣92
WEST		EAST
♠QJ3		♠4
♥2932		♥Q1064
♦AK874		♦10765
♣85		♣109742
	SOUTH
	♠AK1075
	♥A6
	♦A3
	♣AKQJ

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♠	Pass	2NT	Pass
4♠	Pass	4♠	Pass

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump and North leads the six of hearts. How would you play the hand?

1. At first blush, this may look like a complicated problem, with quite a few different methods of play possible. Thus, after ruffing the A-K of trumps, you could try a diamond finesse, or lead the A-K of clubs, planning to continue with the jack, or lead a club towards dummy planning to finesse, or attempt still other possible lines of play. Actually, none of these plays would guarantee the contract 100 percent.

But if you continued with a trump at trick four nothing else could stop the contract. If the player with the high trump ruffed to a club, you would either immediately or eventually score a second club trick by simply following low, thus eliminating the diamond loser, while if he played any other suit you would be able to establish dummy's fourth diamond as a trick and thus eliminate the club loser.

2. There does not seem to be much to the play, but if you fail to exercise proper care, you may wind up going down one. The key play is to win the opening lead in dummy with the king. Then cash the A-K of diamonds and play a spade to the jack. If it loses to the ace, you have nine solid tricks; if the jack wins the trick, you simply cash the rest of diamonds and force out the ace of spades.

If you made the mistake of playing low from dummy on the opening lead and won the trick with the ace, and then cashed the A-K of diamonds you could be defeated if the defense refused to win the first two spade leads. You would not be able to make three spade tricks and would fail a trick short of the contract.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — The St. Ola United Church Women sponsored a pork supper on October 20 in the Orange Hall.

Mrs. Don Palmateer entertained a few friends on Saturday evening in a baby shower in honor of Mrs. Donnie Patrick.

Mr. Ern Brooks is spending a few days with his son and daughter-in-law in Dryden, after hoping to do some moose hunting.

Euchre winners were C. Smith, Jack Polmateer, Bill Scaife, W. Smith and Jay Poulain.

What The Stars Say

General guide—People who decide to abandon their usual Saturday pursuits and try something new instead can come up with some surprising and pleasant results. Aspects encourage you to get out of your rut and be a bit daring.

Aries (March 21-April 19). Just because some people can justify throwing money away foolishly, that doesn't mean you can. Don't be enticed into speculation on fads, items of little practical value.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). It may irk you to find that partners think themselves just too special to bother with some very necessary chores. The dirty work gets dleegated to you instead.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Saturdays may have been a time to kick up your heels when you were a kid, but that's over now. Get your work done and stop fooling around.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). You can meet with opposition from family peers over the way you've been handling a loved one. Kin think you're spoiling someone too much

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). No effort should be spared to safeguard home security. Unexpected and bewildering developments in your neighborhood can make such measures all the more necessary.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Regardless of how satisfied you may have been with what you have, a touch of envy could creep in after you get a glimpse of how the other half lives.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Your charm may wear a bit thin today, particularly when someone tries to hit you up for a loan. They could get blood out of a stone a lot more easily.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Once your mind is made up, nothing, not even the truth, will change it. This sort of irrational obstinacy today can cause numerous regreta later.

Sagittaries (Nov 22-Dec. 21). Under the prevailing circumstances, any attempts to quick revenge would only backfire. Just resolve not to open yourself up for a similar defeat in the future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). If your expertise is questioned, you could easily become too defensive. Any criticism is only mean to be constructive, don't take it so personally.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Resentments can be smoldering as a result of having to knuckle under to someone else's authority. The shoe will be on the other foot shortly, so just bide your time.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Don't waste sympathy on those who haven't the initiative or persistence to improve their lot in life. You've worked hard; don't be ashamed of your success.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—You'll be putting a dollar sign on everything this year, even friendships and alliances. Any gains through such materialistic means will be paid for in other ways, however. Some sad lessons are likely.

Davis Lists Air Standards

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis took what he called a first major step toward implementing air pollution standards Thursday by announcing proposed national air quality objectives.

The objectives, establishing mid- and long-term goals for the reduction of five major pollutants across Canada, "outline the quality of the air—the big air—we're trying to maintain, to preserve," Mr. Davis said at a news conference after tabling the proposals in the Commons.

The objectives won't become incorporated into the Clean Air Act, which itself won't become law for a few more days, until the government consults with citizen groups and industries on them. Sixty days will be allowed for the public to make their comments, Mr. Davis said.

But then, maximum acceptable and maximum desirable levels of sulphur dioxide, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photo-chemical oxidants and hydrocarbons will be established as objectives.

Objectives for nitrogen oxide will be set later, as will maximum tolerable objectives.

The objectives won't have the force of law, Mr. Davis explained, but will provide a framework within which standards will be set.

12 Killed In Glasgow Explosion

GLASGOW (CP) — A howling gale hampered rescue workers today in their search for possible survivors of a gas explosion that wrecked a modern shopping centre and killed at least 12 persons Thursday.

Police confirmed the toll as 12 dead, mostly women, and 59 injured, half of them severely.

"We are not sure how many are still missing, but there are four or five who cannot be accounted for," said Robert Campbell, assistant chief constable of County Renfrew.

The shopping centre in the Clarkston Toll district was at its busiest at 2 p.m. when the explosion tore out its heart. It was payday for Glasgow families and men were thronged the shops.

Fifteen one-storey shops, built six years ago of reinforced concrete-and-steel beams, were blown up. Automobiles from an overhead car park crashed down on shoppers.

Workers of the nationalized gas board had been digging in the area to trace a leak after residents reported a strong smell of fumes.

"As far as I know this is the worst gas accident ever in Scotland," said Ronald Parker, chairman of the Scottish gas board.

"At this stage we just don't know what happened."

Canadians Picketing

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs and a United States senator picketed the White House Thursday, calling on President Nixon to cancel a proposed detonation of a nuclear device on Amchitka Island in Alaska.

For 20 minutes, bearing protest placards, the three legislators and a small group of protesters paraded in front of the presidential mansion as television and news cameras recorded the unusual event.

Mark Rose (NDP-Fraser Valley West), Lionel Beaudoin (Cred.-Richmond) and Senator Mike Gravel, Democrat from Alaska, carried signs saying "Canada Opposes Canakin" and "Canakin a Threat to Alaska and Canada."

The five-megaton device—equivalent to five million tons of TNT—was originally scheduled to be detonated early in October but has been delayed by court action. President Nixon must give final approval for the test.

200-mile Nature Trail Proposed by Manpower

Plan Is Given To Davis, Lang

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A dramatic program which would develop nature trails spanning the entire reach of the Quinte district is being proposed to federal and provincial governments.

The plan would develop a 200-mile trail through Hastings and Prince Edward Counties from Lake Ontario to Algonquin Park.

The project is being proposed as a regional make-work program by the Belleville and district employment committee of Canada Manpower in Belleville.

The idea would be to develop a hiking trail similar to the famed Bruce Trail in western Ontario.

Although still only a proposal, a spokesman says the committee hopes the project could be realized as a multi-government development, with federal, provincial and local governments participating.

The plan already has been forwarded to Ontario Premier William Davis and federal Manpower Minister Otto Lang for consideration. A meeting is scheduled Nov. 10 in Belleville to discuss the proposal with federal and provincial politicians, local government officials and area tourist association spokesmen.

"The project would provide recreational outdoor trails from Prince Edward County . . . to the northern limits of Hastings County" to be used by visitors with all manner of hobbies from hiking to snowmobiling, from photography to horseback riding and canoeing says the committee's brief.

Specifically, it would see development of trails for all nature lovers — facilities not now available in the Quinte district.

Its economic aim would be to "make use of off-season and unemployment periods, to create immediate employment and provide future employment as a result of the facilities created now," says the committee's brief.

The development would make use of facilities already available. (For instance, highlyorganized snowmobile network already exists in the Highlands of Hastings tourist area.)

The project would become reality after a number of initial phases of organization.

First among these would be the listing of all existing service areas — stores, accommodation sites, sports facilities including lakes and special fishing and canoeing streams, churches and emergency services.

Existing facilities and trails would then be incorporated in an over-all conforming plan.

In all its phases — from assessment and planning to the actual creative labor—the project would demand workers.

Th project would also create permanent positions for maintenance and expansion workers.

It would "create employment for the unskilled, skilled and administrative type of worker," says the brief. It would also have "far-reaching" affects on the region's economy for future generations.

British Bullets Kill Two Women In Terrorist Car

BELFAST (AP) — Two sisters, aged 19 and 20, were shot and killed by British troops in Belfast early today. The army said the women were dressed in men's clothing and had fired at the soldiers from a speeding car.

An army spokesman said the troops returned the fire and the car crashed into a wall. He added that a third woman in the car was injured by flying glass and a fourth woman was taken to a hospital with bullet wounds in her leg, but it was not clear whether she had been in the car.

However, Gerard Meehan, father-in-law of the elder sister, said: "The army's description of what happened is absolutely ridiculous."

He denied the women were dressed as men, saying his daughter-in-law, Mary Ellen, was wearing white slacks and a blouse. He said her 19-year-old sister, Dorothy Maguire, also was wearing slacks.

He said they had heard there was some trouble in the area and drove down to investigate.

"As they turned a corner an army Saracen armored car cut across their path and a shout rang out. 'Stop that car.' A volley of shots rang out and both of them had the backs of their heads blown off."

The army gave this account of the incident:

A nail bomb and two shots were aimed at soldiers from a car in Caple Street at 4:25 a.m.

"Accurate fire was returned and a man in the back was believed hit," the spokesman said. "The car continued for a short while, then crashed into a wall."

Civilians surrounded the vehicle and refused to allow the soldiers near it. After five minutes, the car was handed over to the patrol.

"Inside were three people," said the spokesman. "Two were dead, in the back. All were women. The two in the back were jeans, boots and men's jackets."

The two in the back had been shot dead. One was 30 and the other 19.

The third woman was slashed by glass, presumably when the car smashed against the wall. She was taken to hospital.

"There was another woman with gun wounds in the leg," the spokesman said. "It is not known whether she was a bystander."

Boy, 3, Lone Survivor Of Family

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Five members of a Sudbury, Ont., family were killed Friday night when their car and a tractor-trailer unit collided on Highway 69, about 10 miles northwest of here.

Dead are George Albert Shorer, 35, his wife Beryl and their three daughters Elaine, 9, Leslie, 8, and Vickie, 5.

Their three-year-old son Kelly survived the crash. He was reported in good condition in hospital in Parry Sound, Ont.

NDP May 'Separate' In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party will decide at a meeting this weekend whether to form a separate, independent party.

Delegates heard a plea Friday night from federal leader David Lewis to stay united in the right for "democratic socialism" and a call by Quebec President Raymond Laliberte for Quebec's self-determination.

The Quebec NDP wants self-determination for its workers, and social self-determination for its citizens," Mr. Laliberte said.

He also told delegates no matter what they decide they would "have to begin today" to build the party in Quebec.

Mr. Lewis said he agreed with the self-determination principles of the Quebec leader, but "I must see two New Democratic parties in Canada.

"I want to see the workers of Quebec unite with the workers elsewhere in this country to combat capitalism, foreign control of capital and other problems the NDP fights."

U.S. Sees UN Vote Victory

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — After weeks of intensive manoeuvring during which the United States carefully avoided predictions as to the outcome of its bid to keep Taiwan in the UN, the Nixon administration now says it is confident of victory.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush met in Washington with President Richard Nixon Friday night and following their meeting, administration spokesman said Bush and State Secretary William P. Rogers both told Nixon they were "confident that the Republic of China will maintain its seat in the United Nations."

India Mobilizes Reserves Along Pakistan Borders

NEW DELHI (AP) — India mobilized its military reserves today to strengthen its forces along its borders with Pakistan, where both countries have massed their troops in a show of force.

An Indian defence ministry spokesman said all army reservists and air force and navy reservists with specialized skills were being called to active duty.

The spokesman said he did not know the strength of the reserves, which were last activated in the 1965 war with Pakistan. The word to report for active duty, he added, had gone out in the the last 24 hours or so.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi also scheduled a country-wide broadcast for today in which she is expected to outline India's latest position on the crisis with Pakistan.

The Indian government radio network formally announced the broadcast, which will come only 12 hours before the prime minister's scheduled repartune on a three-week trip to Western Europe and the U.S.

The prime minister's spokesman said Mrs. Gandhi is still going ahead with the trip.

According to the 1970-71 annual report of the Indian defence ministry, the army has been maintained at its authorized strength of 828,000 men.

The total strength of India's armed forces, including naval and air force units, is estimated at 930,000 by the authoritative Institute of Strategic Studies in London.

The institute estimates that Pakistan's armed forces number 324,500.

The Indian defence ministry spokesman made no formal announcement of the reserve call-up, and instead merely confirmed a report circulated Friday night by United News of India news agency, which said it had received its information from official sources.

Telephone Operators Here Continue Walkout Begun Friday

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Protesting telephone operators continued to picket the Bell Telephone Quinte central exchange in Belleville this morning.

Meantime, emergency teams, many of them men, manned the switchboards to keep communications services working throughout the district.

Because of possible delays in reaching operators, emergency calls were switched to special local numbers in several small-er Quinte centres. Provincial police offices in several small communities — usually closed during the night — kept personnel on duty to handle any calls on a local basis.

The Friday afternoon walkout — a Bell spokesman estimated it involved about 100 girls in Belleville — was part of a sudden strike that began spreading through Ontario and Quebec yesterday.

More than 2,000 operators walked off their jobs and others were refusing to report for work delaying long-distance to many points.

In Toronto Mary Lennox, president of the Traffic Employees Association which represents about 8,500 Bell Canada operators, office and dining service workers in both provinces, said the walkouts were "not authorized".

The operators were protesting delays in reaching a new collective agreement with the company.

The walkouts do not affect local calls, and direct long-distance dialling. However, information and other services provided by operators are involved in the slowdown.

In Belleville, Bell's local manager George Thompson said management personnel were being used on the switchboard.

A 10-man team was on the board this morning and operations were flowing "a little bit better" following yesterday's hastily-assembled work crews which were pressed into service when the girls walked out shortly after noon.

Pickets began parading in front of the Bridge Street East exchange late in the evening, most of them carrying placards.

The walkout came as Bell was completing its direct-distance dialling installations in the Quinte area.

Belleville, Trenton and Bancroft already were in the network.

As a result of the dispute, installations plans were speeded up and other communities now are linked with direct dialling, said the manager. These include Thurlow, Gilmour, Arden, Tweed, Ficton, Brighton, Stirling and Madoc.

Marmora, Bloomfield and Coe Hill areas should be included soon, he said.

Of immediate concern was emergency communications in smaller Quinte communities.

Several such centres are on Zenith emergency lines — where-by calls for fire, ambulance, and police assistance are placed through a central operator and relayed to the local service.

Quinte Emergency Measures Co-ordinator Angus Duffy said fire and ambulance authorities set up numbers in several communities — Stirling, Tweed, Wellington, Madoc — where emergencies could be relayed by dialing a local number.

Provincial police offices in Madoc, Bancroft and Napanee — which customarily close during the night and have emergencies relayed to patrol cars through the Zenith system — also kept personnel on night duty to answer local calls, an OPP spokesman said in Belleville.

These are the local numbers for each Quinte communities needing fire or ambulance services:

Tweed (fire, ambulance) 478-2222; Stirling (fire, ambulance) 395-3473, 395-2262, 395-3241; Wellington (fire) 399-3038, 399-2000, 399-2061; Madoc (fire) 473-2353, 473-0243.

Parachuting to Pole Recounted by Speaker

Ray Munro, flier, balloonist, scuba diver and financier, met with the members of the Belleville Men's Sales and Ad Club this week in the Legion Hall to speak on his personal expedition of parachuting onto the North Pole.

Mr. Munro carried out man's first descent on the polar cap in March of 1969 after completing 538 preparatory jumps in high and low altitudes, and polar and tropical conditions.

Recalling his first jump ever from an aircraft, he said, "I wanted to learn to fly so badly that I agreed to fill in for a carnival parachutist after he had gone on a binge and pawned his parachute. The organizers of the fair agreed that I would be given one free hour of flight instruction if I made the jump."

Because of poor equipment and lady luck, he ended up with a cut lip and the wind knocked out of me, and never did get the lesson."

"I could say that I made the jump onto the most precarious part of the world because it was so difficult or that it was simply there," said Mr. Munro as he spoke to the second gathering this year of the club.

"The real purpose of the mission was to determine the physical and mental effects of such a jump on a stranded flier," he said. "You can never duplicate the environment of the Pole in a laboratory to the degree that you could observe mental effects. The best person always knows there is someone on the other side of the refrigerator door in the lab."

The physical well - being of a stranded pilot in the north depends to a great degree on his attitude.

"It is sometimes easier to die than it is to fight for survival," said Mr. Munro, while he talked at length on the occurrence of people quitting before the battle is lost.

In preparation for the trip, members that would take part in the expedition slept outside in the north, where temperatures dropped to 117 below.

"It was so cold that you could break free with a chiblike blow, rubber would shatter like glass and a camera froze to our photographer's face," said Mr. Munro.

The lecture ended with a film on aviation and a final comment from Mr. Munro, who said, "one mistake, and we'd have all been killed."

The number attending the meeting was significantly larger than usual due to the large number of Liberals and guests in the audience with Gerald Weaver, candidate for Quinte Riding.

Leo Maher Gets Medal for Valor

POINT ANNE (Staff) — More than 100 fellow workers gathered at Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. here Friday noon, to pay tribute to Point Anne fireman Leo Maher.

Mr. Maher was presented with the bronze medal for bravery from the Royal Canadian Humane Association. The award and tribute was made by district nine Ontario Provincial Police Superintendent, D. E. Wellesley in a brief ceremony.

"In this day and age, when we hear so much about people not wanting to get involved, it is indeed rare to hear of such acts of courage as I will relate today," the OPP senior officer said.

On the evening of Saturday, Feb. 6, 1971, three snowmobiles were travelling east on the Bay of Quinte. The riders were headed for inter-fire department sports activities in Deseronto.

Two of the machines broke through the ice at Telegraph Narrows. The four occupants were buried into icy water.

"Mr. Maher, who was on the third machine, at great risk to himself, approached the people by hytrel on his stomach and crawling forward on the ice to the holes where the four people were struggling," the Superintendent told guests.

"By his efforts he was able to rescue Fred and Mrs. Donald File, and Mrs. Barbara Ucns, all of Belleville."

However, while remaining in the water to help his wife and friends onto the surface Alfred Ucns perished.

Mr. Maher left the three survivors in a bush shelter on the north shore. With a borrowed snowmobile sleigh, he returned to the scene and transported the trio to the home of Richard Brant, approximately one mile east of the accident scene.

From this point, an ambulance transported the Files to Mrs. Ucns to hospital.

"Had these actions been carried out in times of war, there is no doubt that Mr. Maher would have been deserving of the proper military honors and commendations for his disregard for his own safety and clear thinking in an emergency," the OPP officer continued.

Superintendent Wellesley said the Royal Canadian Humane Association was formed in 1894 to honor deeds of selfless heroism in civilian life.

Since then, more than 3,000 medals and parchments have been awarded. The gold award is usually awarded posthumously. Both silver and bronze medals are presented to those who have "shown extraordinary disregard for personal safety" in saving or attempting to save the life of another.

Mr. Maher is reluctant to discuss the tragedy which he says he will not easily forget.

Following the presentation, a luncheon in honor of Mr. Maher was held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on North Front Street.

Doing Her Thing

Ann Douglas (here singing and dancing) and a group of 20 odd Belleville Collegiate Institute students, tramped the downtown streets of the city last night proclaiming their desire to be a member of the school's Keyette Club. Initiations included measuring windows with garter belts and imitating a dead horse on the Front St. sidewalks.

Percentage Reduced

The revised count from 154 Quinte riding ballot boxes in Thursday's provincial election has been released by returning officer Gerald Joyce.

They show Dr. R. F. Potter, winning conservative, with 15,037 votes, Liberal Gerald Weaver of Trenton with 7,541 and NDP Alan Deacon with 3,642.

Dr. Potter was elected with a secure 7,496 margin over his nearest opponent, Mr. Weaver. His plurality in his first year for provincial seat in 1967 was 4,091.

Turnout at the polls this year was down from 1967's. Sixty-six per cent of the almost 20,000 eligible voters went to the polls Thursday. But 74.1 per cent of the 29,471 poll voters in 1967.

The additional 10,000 on the voters' list this year were young people from 18 to 21, newly enfranchised by the government. The ill and elderly who would vote by proxy this year for the first time, as well as invalids to the area, said Mr. Joyce.

Housing Loan Granted

OTTAWA (Special) — A low - down - payment housing project aimed at families earning around $5,700 is expected to get under way in Belleville soon.

The project, to be developed by Rollins Construction Ltd., is sited for the northeast corner of College Street and Prince of Wales Drive.

A million - dollar federal loan to Rollins to assist in building the 54 houses for families with a median income of $5,764 was announced Friday by Housing Minister Robert Andras.

The houses, selling for a median price of $16,485, would include six two-bedroom, 14 four-bedroom and 44 three-bedroom houses.

They can be purchased on a conventional basis, or by lease - purchase agreement, Rollins spokesman said this morning.

Purchasers require down payments of five per cent of the purchase price — or less if capital grants from municipality reduces it, said the Ottawa announcement.

Total monthly payments of principal, interest and taxes cannot exceed 27 per cent of gross income.

The federal loan was made under the Assisted Home Ownership Program.

The Rollins spokesman said a start on the project merely awaits the completion of the necessary paperwork between government and the contractor.

"It doesn't take long," he said, and added a start should be made "fairly soon."

Homebuilders Choose New Officers

Specialist in Building Industry

The age of the specialist has infiltrated the building industry and now is the time to make the necessary changes.

This comment was the sentiment expressed at a special panel discussion involving municipal building inspectors from around the province as well as various industry experts at the Ontario Building Officials Association conference this week.

Bob Hamilton, commissioner for the borough of York in Toronto and panel chairman, says the modern inspector must be an expert in the fields of structure, architecture, safety and trench design. These fields are all covered by provincial acts for whose enforcement the inspector is held responsible.

"There is considerable need to define the role of the building inspector as it pertains to structural inspection in view of the rapid expansion of technology in the building industry," said Mr. Hamilton.

"He must be knowledgeable in the area of fire protection, lighting and ventilation, space between buildings, exit designs, the size of buildings and a variety of other things."

Asked which way the inspector's role will go, he said that the fire and building code reveiw committees, which have been federally appointed, will resolve the question using information such as was discussed Wednesday. Committee representatives are in attendance at the convention and will benefit through feedback.

Belleville building inspector Grant Sickle, who is also acting as official conference host, said that he was required to take on an assistant because of the work load. He cited the implementation of new materials and the ever-increasing size of buildings as two of the problems with which he must now contend.

Tire Industry Veteran Is Closing Up Shop

He is Bruce Smith, of Uptown Tire and Battery Service at 301 Pinnacle Street who this Saturday is closing out the Belleville store he has operated for the past 32 years.

He will, however, continue to operate his store at Marmora which he opened in 1951.

Mr. Smith has had a lifetime association with the tire industry, a business in which he got his feet wet while still in high school.

That was nearly five decades ago when he went to work for the Tiger Tire Company which operated on Sidney Street where McFarlane-Gendron now is.

"We made the tires by hand," recalls Mr. Smith, who after 18 months at the plant, quit to work at a service station.

Later he joined "Toots" and "Bounce" Holway at their service station at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, and then in 1939 opened his own tire shop on Front Street near the Upper Bridge.

He has been at his present location on Pinnacle Street since 1948.

Today's low pressure "wide track" tires are a big improvement over the skinny high pressure ones put out when Tiger Tires were being made in Belleville.

Standard auto tire sizes were then 30 x 3½ or 31 x 4 with air pressures ranging up to 64 pounds per square inch.

The tires rode hard and with the high pressures carried, were prone to blowouts. At his Marmora shop Mr. Smith still has one of the old hydraulic tire presses and the old fashioned split rims.

An area wholesaler for Goodrich Tires, Mr. Smith has the territory from Gananoque to Port Hope.

Active in Masonry, Mr. Smith also has shown a keen interest in municipal affairs.

He was a member of city council for four years in the early 1950s and served 11 years on the Moira River Conservation Authority, including five years as chairman.

Ask Share Of Dump

STIRLING (Special) — A joint meeting of Stirling village council and Rawdon township council last Monday night discussed the possibility of making Stirling's municipal garbage dump available to residents in the southern section of Rawdon Township.

After having its dump ordered closed, Stirling now has approval to continue its operation until Oct. 31, 1972, with the possibility of a further extension.

Current suggestion is that residents of Rawdon living south of the Fifth Concession be allowed to use Stirling's dump, through a mutually agreeable arrangement to be worked out by the councils of the two municipalities.

Several proposals were made, Monday night and it was decided that further discussions be held by the two councils themselves, with a view of finding a solution by

Canine Aristocrats Now in Frankford

Dogs are taking over Frankford this weekend — 1,382 of them, and all aristocrats of the canine kingdom.

The Belleville and District Kennel Club is sponsoring its third, fourth and fifth International Dog Show in Frankford Arena on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Area motels have been booked solidly for the weekend as owners and handlers move in to exhibit their prize animals.

The three non - bench shows are under the direction of Ironsel club show secretary Ron Johnson.

The best - in - show competition each day will take place under spotlights to add a dramatic touch to proceedings. Companies and merchants, notably those in Trenton, have donated prizes and trophies for the events.

About 105 different breeds of dogs will be seen at the shows and there will be a special Norwegian Elkhound booster class.

Obedience classes will be judged by Mrs. Pat Matthews of Kingston.

Organizers have brought in a judge from Surrey, England, Stanley Dangerfield, who has been judging dogs for 40 years.

From Nova Scotia, Judge Harry Story will be in attendance and from British Columbia, Robert Wheeler.

For added interest, organizers have introduced some unofficial classes. One is a puppy point veterans class for dogs served years old or more.

More than 100 pups are registered in the puppy sweepstakes and the junior handling class is expected to attract a large number of youngsters with their dogs.

To bring the community into the spirit of the event, the kennel club is staging a dance after the Saturday evening show in the arena at Frankford.

PC's Responsibility

It has been a clean sweep for the Conservatives in our immediate area — Dr. Richard Potter in Quinte, Clarke Rollins in Hastings, and newcomer James Taylor who succeeds veteran member Norris Whitney in Prince Edward Lennox.

Dr. Potter, both as member and minister without portfolio, is known by his many accomplishments and his single-minded approach to provincial needs, particularly in the medical field. The Ontario Municipal Board's approval of the Queen's Motel as an extended care convalescent home crowns one of his latest major efforts. Hastings' Clarke Rollins is another who, especially at the grass roots level, in his attention to the needs of individual constituents, and in committee work at Queen's Park. James Taylor, a lawyer who makes his home at Northport, is as yet untried but has the confidence of a large number of voters.

The Davis administration has been given a strong mandate and consequently much will be expected of it. Education, protection of the environment, the elimination as far as possible of pollution, the need for a greater degree of individual responsibility among citizens to this end, and in the area of administrative revolution — regional government, for example, and the dangers of it usurping the democratic rights of local governments — these are some of the areas of concern.

In Ontario we need a real attempt at improving the quality of life of all citizens. In many ways we do not measure up as citizens: crime is on the increase, our rivers and landscapes are blighted by litter (we have at times it seemed deliberately from cars) and pollution of every description. There are pockets of poverty in the midst of overall affluence, thousands are unemployed, there is a need for more public housing — and so on.

Sometimes the democratic process seems to break down, as in the furore up north where there has been a call for the resignation of the tri-township council of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure, with allegations of "illegal procedures" regarding a by-law restricting development to existing uses. Council is accused of going over people's heads and the gathering at Maynooth the other day remained unsatisfied even when assured by MPP Clarke Rollins that ratepayers would have their say. But all this is another story which has been reported in full. Suffice it to say that the provincial government must be at pains to answer satisfactorily the kind of charge made by a cottage owner that such laws are probably passed to suit somebody in Toronto rather than local residents. When it does so the government cannot then be blamed for ignoring the needs of people wherever they live and whatever their shade of opinion.

Island Link

The controversy over ferry service to Wolfe Island, whether or not to subsidize it and how and short route with only one ferry, has become, in the words of one island councillor, a political football.

Involved are the provincial government on the one hand and on the other such groups as the Committee of Concerned Citizens of Kingston and Wolfe Island, the Wolfe Island Residents for Progress committee, and of course the island council.

G. M. Merry, chairman of the first-named group, said in a recent letter to The Kingston Whig-Standard that relocation as it relates to the island and mainland terminals "is detrimental to the ecology and commerce of both areas."

By contrast, a letter under the name of several members of the Residents for Progress committee, complained of lineups on the present route and losses to farmers while valuable crops are waiting. Some lumber companies, the letter went on, have voiced hesitancy concerning construction of dwellings on the island because so much time is involved in crossing, while others have instructed their truckers to collect a waiting charge. Some department stores, the letter added, will not permit service calls on the island unless they have several calls on order.

And the controversy continues. In all the current discussion, The Kingston Whig-Standard has noted, there should be one common denominator: the desire to have the best possible means of traveling to and from Wolfe Island. Indeed, but what of that other plan outlined not so long ago for a series of causeways or bridges linking the southern extremity of Prince Edward County with Amherst Island, as well as the mainland at Kingston, Wolfe Island, and on to New York state?

Hangman Likely Gone for Ever...

Thirty-year Sentence, However, Suggested for Killers

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Did you manage to catch that intriguing exchange in the Commons the other day on crime and capital punishment?

It was part of a carefully-traded question and answer — and all in French, that it could have flowed and translated, in the revised daily river of words under the parliamentary bridge except for two things.

1. It happened just after a supposedly rehabilitated former prison inmate had been held on a coroner's warrant for three-killings in a Montreal office building, and just before another criminal, free in the very process of rehabilitation, was charged with bank robery, the murder of a policeman and the kidnapping of a child.

2. Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was involved in the very brief but possibly very revealing dialogue.

The exchange:

Lionel Beaudoin, Social Credit MP for Richmond: "What is the murder rate showing a truly alarming increase in Canada, can the Prime Minister say whether the Government intends introducing a bill to reinstate the death penalty for those accused of capital murder?"

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau: "No, not immediately, but the House knows that the present legislation, (sanctuization of capital punishment) calls for revision after five years. When the time comes, the Government will have to consider the matter, but does not intend doing so now."

Study the Prime Minister's answer:

"No, not immediately" . . . (but later, perhaps?) . . . "the Government will have to consider" it.

The question, one of increasing urgency, is raised almost daily in the Commons or by lobbies, corridors and offices as the "truly alarming" — as MP Lionel Beaudoin defined them — crime statistics confront parliamentarians.

It is coming at them two ways, on the front pages of the newspapers they read, and in from their constituents through the mail.

So what is going to happen next year when the time comes," as the Prime Minister tells the Commons, for the Government and Parliament to reconsider the matter?"

Perhaps the most important factor to remember is that Pierre Trudeau by self-proclamation is not what he calls "a bleeding heart," nor is his justice Minister John Turner.

The same cannot be said for either Leader Prime Minister Lester Pearson or his Justice Minister Lawrence Pennell who were largely responsible for the abolition of capital punishment.

Mr. Pearson was literally in tears for pity over the plight of the condemned killers.

Not only have the Prime and Justice Ministers changed, but so have many MPs in the Commons.

And so, too has the temper of the House and the opinion of many of its veterans.

Among them, let us listen for a minute to Robert Muir, Conservative MP for Cape Breton-the Sydneys, a cool, unemotional veteran of 14 years in the Commons.

A not unkindly man, nor without mercy, but rather a man of humanity and deep concern.

Four years ago he voted with the losing side — against abolition of capital punishment.

He will do it again, he says, and for two reasons.

1. Crime, especially violent crime, like hiking not only of armed robbery and other victims of the criminally insane, but trigger finger has increased, but more and more policemen are being gunned down.

2. It is undeniable that a killer once executed is forever prevented from killing again.

But Robert Muir is willing to compromise.

He has been sufficiently concerned to give the issue a great deal of thought and consult a lot of people in police and prison service who in their years have seen scores of killers and criminals serving untold years in the cells.

Distilling their collective specialized knowledge, he comes to this conclusion:

"I would really not want to see the return of the hangman.

"I believe now find he is gone for all time, possibly to be replaced by a more humane instrument of execution.

"Our first duty, and Parliament must remember this, is to protect society, and for the hard-core criminal brute this has to mean the use of a convincing deterrent.

"For the murder of a policeman or a prison officer — those who catch the violent criminal and those who guard them.

"I believe there must be a mandatory prison sentence long enough to equate it with a life sentence.

"Not by hanging. Not by imprisonment for 14 years with time off for good behavior. Not for parole and a ticket-of-leave-to-kill again. But imprisonment without remission for 30 years.

"Loss of liberty is a fearful thing, even for a short sentence.

"I believe such a mandatory punishment of 30 unrelenting years, with no faintest hope of release under any circumstances, would make even the most callous criminal think twice before pulling the trigger.

"Thirty years is a life for a life."

Shorter Election Run Good Bet for Future

By DON O'HEARN
O'Hearn-Sat. Oct. 23
Queen's Park

Before the election disappears from mind:

The campaign got tiring didn't it?

And we only had to watch it, not fight it.

Look for it to be shortened next time.

There has been talk of this now for the last two elections.

All three leaders would probably favor less than the five steady weeks, even though all of them may not say so—they don't want to appear weak.

Politically there would be little, if any, loss in shortening the campaign by a week.

The big obstacle is in the election machinery.

Chief Election Officer Roderick Lewis says the five weeks is necessary for his returning officers to get organized, conduct the enumeration and carry out the other details of the vote.

There probably will be some requests of Mr. Lewis, however, to look for some corners that could be cut.

Short er campaigns would mean at least slightly less expensive campaigns, and this also should be welcome.

This last election was easily the most expensive we have had and there is a question if the ceiling hasn't been reached.

There has been talk for some time now that corporate donors were beginning to resist campaign demands. And this resistance can be expected to increase.

The climate, in fact, is perhaps finally ripe for ceilings on spending and payment of political costs out of public funds.

One complication may be how to allow for donations of free p e r s o n a l services, particularly the many provided to the NDP by the labor.

One rewarding result of a ceiling on election spending could be that all parties would try and promote more public participation in politics.

If funds were cut down this would be the one avenue open for more effective campaigns.

All parties now make some effort towards this, of course, but only the NDP really has much success (though just how much is hard to account.

But if they had to have the participation the parties somehow or other would probably get it.

To complete organization of the special committee of the city council to deal with unemployment relief, a meeting was held in the council chamber at the city hall with Mayor George Reid presiding. The gathering was well attended, delegates from the city churches, the teachers association and the various welfare organizations being present, also citizens in general. It is expected that the central office for the committee be arranged and that sub-committees be appointed to aid in the work. E. V. Illsey and Charles Dolan were appointed to act with Mayor Reid in appointing a citizens' unemployment relief committee. When all arrangements are completed, a definite plan of relief can be presented to the citizens.

Ma Murray To Retire

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Reports out of Lillooet, B.C., that that Ma Murray, editor of the Bridge River - Lillooet News, is planning to retire. Now Ma Murray probably has the right to retire since she is 84, but she could ever replace this woman who is something of a Canadian institution?

Lillooet is a town of 2,000 and Mrs. Murray's weekly newspaper has a circulation of only 1,700 but the dynamic and outspoken editor is known to Canadians from coast to coast. She has appeared frequently on television and the originality and strength of her thinking has made her a popular figure in the press as well.

Mrs. Murray says she hopes some young newspaperman will buy her out and carry on the business. And it is typical of her that she says she has other plans to occupy the "20 years ahead of me".

Somehow Canadian journalism will not seem the same if Mrs. Murray retires. But we somehow doubt that she will just drop out of the limelight. People like Mrs. Murray rarely ever retire, really. They just go on and on until old age takes the decision out of their hands.

More on the Tunnies

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It was not until yesterday that I would have classified myself a "Comic Strip" follower knowingly, but upon reaching the funny page in your newspaper, much to my horror, gone were many of my favorite characters.

I sincerely submit that you reinstate some of your previous strips, and if I must categorize by importance, (at least to myself, and I'm sure others like me) let me continue: "Peanuts" with young and old is now an institution, and a must; what with Hallowe'en quickly approaching how will we ever find out if the Great Pumpkin will make its appearance.

Next, I would suggest that "B.C." be restored. Where else can we learn these new expressions such as Gonk, ARRGGHH and Smak? With all the daffy Armed Forces personnel located in the area, I imagine that "Beetle Bailey" suits the interest Look in "ZAP" not to mention "Archie's" antics for the teenagers. "Mr. Tweedy" epitomizes the average homeowner anywhere as did the other cartoon at the end of the Comic Page.

On the other hand, with your new comic scheme, we'll be forced to succumb to, such inane trash as "Hagar the Horrible", "Scamp" and "Nubbin". And with all the Science Fiction we're exposed to these days, we could likely do without "Brick Bradford" too.

Let's stop fooling ourselves; there are some things in life we simply can't do without: Boore, sex and comics, so please show it at least.

1812—Canadian troops fought the bitter Battle of Little Gibraltar Hill in the Detroit War.

1942—The Battle of El Alamein was fought.

1814—C. A. Scott and Campbell Black, British fliers, flew from London to Melbourne, Australia, in less than three days.

1931—French scientist Jean Picard and his wife landed after flying to an altitude of 10 miles in a balloon over Ohio.

American Churches See Hint Of Stronger Financial Support

NEW YORK (AP) — American religious bodies, hit hard by shrinking funds for the last two years, now see hints of some strengthening of support. But they're still being tough.

"We now can see a little sun," says Dr. Lindley H. Franklin Jr., treasurer of the Episcopal (Anglican) Church, which has felt the crunch with particular severity. "Things are beginning to look a little better."

Receipts are running about two per cent ahead of last year, when the downturn was sharpest, he notes. But the denomination, like others, still is operating under tightly retrenched manpower and program.

The pattern varies, but the belt-tightening has affected the vast major religious groups to differing degrees. Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic. There were scattered signs that it was easing somewhat.

The Christian Church (Disciples), after suffering actual drops in revenues the last two years, reports that at midpoint in 1971 the trend has turned around and was ahead 2.1 per cent.

American Baptist and Reformed Church officials also saw inklings of improvement. The Lutheran Church in America says receipts are about the same as in 1970.

But even in cases where income has been kept level, or resumed a slight upward curve, it rarely has matched the nearly seven-per-cent annual rise in costs. And in many cases, receipts still are declining.

"At this point, we're simply hoping that the rate of decrease this year will be smaller," says Charles Lockyear, treasurer of the United Church of Christ, whose income fell about five per cent in 1970.

With its budget cut and agencies trimmed in staff and functions, the church's national receipts so far this year are down about four per cent, barely less than the previous drop.

Many Roman Catholic dioceses report mounting deficits, brought on mainly by efforts to keep parochial schools going. The church's national office, like U.S. Catholic Conference, is on a hold-the-line budget.

"Things are tight," a spokesman said. But on the bright side, collections for Catholic Relief Services, after dropping for the first time in 1970 by nearly $1 million, bounced back up again—by about five per cent—this year.

Various reasons are cited for the pinch, including the general economic slump, the retirement of some members to church stands on social issues, and the shifting concentration of church work from the national to local levels.

In East-end Montreal 23 of 100 Attend Mass

MONTREAL (CP) — A church-authorized study indicates that 77 per cent of Roman Catholics do not attend Sunday mass in Montreal's east-end Hochelaga-Maisonneuve district, which is 95 per cent Catholic and 92 per cent French Canadian.

The study, conducted by Abbe Jean-Pierre Duchesne, a sociologist at the Montreal archdiocese office, found that attendance among young adults between ages 20 and 32 varies between 10 and 14 per cent.

Total attendance 10 years ago was 48,000 compared with 16,000 on Sundays this year. Allowing for a probable population drop, the rate of attendance now was approximately 23 per cent where it had been 51 per cent in 1961. Fifty-five per cent of those who went to Sunday mass 10 years ago no longer do so.

The survey indicated that in the 20-to-24 age group attendance was 51 per cent among women and 45 per cent among men in 1961. Now the corresponding percentages for were 13 to 14 and for women 10 to 11.

Traditionally, the Roman Catholic church imposes attendance at Sunday mass on its adherents under pain of mortal sin but the emphasis in recent years has been more on individual conscience.

Abbe Duchesne predicted attendance will diminish another 10 to 15 per cent in the coming years because of demographic changes and from any decline that might occur in devotions.

The inquiry confirmed in a scientific way what had been known to parish priests in the area, which is bounded by St. Lawrence River on the south, Sherbrooke St. on the north and CPR tracks east and west. It is hoped the study will enable parish authorities to face their difficulties better and coordinate action in a more realistic way.

The newest and most attractive housing in Hochelaga-Maisonneuve, is found generally along Sherbrooke St., with a progressive decline in the descent to the river and the west, where industries were drawn by the port and railway. Sixty-four per cent of the population in the poorer district is made up of manual workers and a high proportion of young people is unemployed. Forty-nine per cent of the men in that area earn less than $3,000 a year while, over-all, 20 per cent of families are below the poverty line.

Preliminary conclusions of the study were that the parishes should unite to face the financial difficulties which accrue for small church collections. In the school domain, tasks also ought to be redefined, with the Catholic school commission of Montreal regrouping parochial elementary schools.

Building Trade Unimaginative

Every woman who has ever owned a home would love to have been in Mrs. Carolyn Emerson's position Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Emerson, vice - president of the women's division of the Sales and Ad Club, had the opportunity to accord off to the Quinte Home Builder's Association about the problems she encountered in purchasing her home last July.

"The happy home owner, she told 40 club members of the local building industry, "is one who lives in a home she has had a chance to help create. She wants it to reflect her personality."

One of her main criticisms was with the lack of originality and practicality which seems to pervade the industry just now.

"When you go into any new home today," she said, "you see the same old ideas. This is hardly the answer for the woman who wants something exciting and different."

Among the improvements she would like to see made universal are extended vanities in the bathroom, divisions in kitchen drawers, back shelves, stub walls to break up open spaces, more indoor and outdoor electrical outlets and drop ceiling fixtures.

Her complaint, she said, is "the standard unsightly medical chest. They are too small, the mirrors are too high for children and they are cheap, cheap, cheap." In her own home she has installed a full - sized bathroom mirror, she said.

Mrs. Emerson also mentioned the locating of hydro poles in the front yard as an unnecessary hazard of home-buying in Belleville. Why, she asked, couldn't poles be placed in the back yard where the wires would be out of sight as was done in the sub-division of West Park Village.

While economics are the principal cause of most dissatisfactions, one area she felt could easily be improved upon was the relationship between the contractor and the sub-contractor. She felt that "specifications should be more explanatory and better fulfilled."

There is a definite lack of communication between the contractor and sub-contractor and the solution would be a set of common instructions for all the secondary builders. While her own home was being built, she found that the hearth of her fire place was not six inches above floor level as she had requested. The reason, she said, was because the instruction to the brick-layer, one of Belleville's finest, had all been given verbally.

The home builders were not without rebuttals to many of Mrs. Emerson's criticisms but they were all in agreement on the question of communication among the various construction agents.

They said most prospective home owners are not interested in extras. There are custom builders for persons wanting unusual items but in most cases, people want the least expensive details available and as a result, modern houses cater to these needs.

Builder Charles Lambert noted that rising prices of housing materials have forced designers to come up with new techniques for cutting costs. Consequently many features which used to be taken for granted in houses have had to go by the wayside in order to avoid skyrocketing prices.

In concluding her address, Mrs. Emerson praised the association members, saying "the list of positives would have been much longer than the negatives but I came to offer constructive criticism. The quality of the workmanship is good but you have to scream to get things done."

MR. AND MRS. GARFIELD TILL

Till – Post

Christ Church was the setting of the mid-day wedding of Janet Elizabeth Post, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon M. Post, and of Garfield Wesley Till, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Till. Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright officiated while John C. Withers provided organ music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of imported crystal organza styled along Elizabethan lines. The empire bodice featured a wedding band collar and full bishop sleeves trimmed with an edging of ultra-fine guipure lace embedded with miniature seed pearls. The gown was trimmed with three rows of the same lace from neckline to hem both at the back and front. The skirt flared into a train at the back. She wore a bouffant veil flowing from a headpiece and carried a Bible crested with a white gardenia and streamers of yellow sweetheart roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Gregory, the bride's cousin, wore a gown featuring a gold velvet bodice and a white, gold, brown, and orange full skirt with matching sleeves. She wore yellow and bronze daisies in her hair and carried a bouquet of yellow and bronze daisies.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Gaye Post, sister - in - law of the bride and Miss Lyndy Shriner. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Tracy Till, a niece of the bridegroom. All were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

The best man was Norman Till, the bridegroom's brother, while the ushers were Gordon Till, the bridegroom's brother and Ron Post, the bride's brother. The ring bearer was Todd Rebman.

The reception was held at Club Canara. Guests were greeted by the bride's mother who wore a multi - colored green chiffon street length dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted her, wearing a street length dress of rose colored silk crepe with black suede accessories and a corsage of white roses.

For the wedding trip to Thousand Islands, the bride wore a purple pant sat with a multi-colored purple and cranberry blouse with black patent accessories and a white gardenia corsage. Upon return the couple will live in Belleville.

Three Generations at Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mitchell celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary at their home, RR 2 Sidney, on Sunday, Oct. 15.

They received 75 guests assisted by their daughter and son-in-law, Elaine and Jim Wallace, and their sons, Guy, Bevan and Nicky.

Mrs. Mitchell was the former Ruth Milligan of Trenton.

Among the special guests were the "bride's" mother, Mrs. Fowell Milligan, and her sister and brother who were the attendants 25 years ago, Mrs. John Heard and Mr. Harold Milligan, and their granddaughter Yvonne Wallace.

A buffet tchey supper was served to about 40 family members.

The honored couple were the recipients of many cards and gifts and were presented with a matched luggage set by their children.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

p.23

Can loneliness affect physical health?

Answer: Loneliness itself may have no actual bearing on the physical health. Yet loneliness can often induce behavior in an individual that does have a direct effect on his condition. Many old people, for instance, who live by themselves are reluctant to do things for themselves that they once enjoyed with their families. A lot of them will not cook for themselves and will thus bring on malnutrition problems.

Is it all right to let a smart child 'act up'?

Answer: No, and he is not very smart if he does act that way. The smart child may have a higher intelligence potential, but if he misbehaves, he is certainly proving that he does not yet have the ability to use his talents intelligently. Parents should be just as cautious to see what causes him to act that way as they would be if the child were not so gifted. Perhaps he may believe his high IQ is depriving him of love.

Does 'anything go' in psychotherapy?

Answer: No. Patients above all are human beings, and they carry their fears and taboos in whatever form of mental therapy they are undergoing. Some people who refuse to seek help are afraid that they will be induced to say or do something that is entirely out of keeping with their nature; something they think may be used as leverage to pry unnecessarily into their personality, or cause them to lose respect for themselves.

CONVERSATIONALLY SPEAKING

"Talkative facts are always more interesting and more important than silent ones. — Ruskin.

Entering a Belleville store this morning we heard a mother's distraught voice from the back, call out: "Come, we're going, you two; put everything back!" and we customers up front, witness to hurt conversation, were made akin, mindful of the truth, that rearing the young of the human race, is a full time job, and and the humor of the fact brought smiles all around.

While conversations may not be recorded for posterity, there is a certain urgency, an immediacy about them, with their strands of truth, that have a way of weaving themselves into the tapestry of one's life; truths of human wit, wisdom, joy, knowledge, despair, hope, love, hate . . . all that pertains to being human.

We spoke with a friend concerning the loss of a Toronto newspaper to the city and province at large.

"Yes," she said, "it brings to mind my father, a newspaper, a staunch Irish Conservative, who in her nineties went to live with a daughter and son-in-law, who was a great Liberal.

"When her son went to visit his mother and found her reading the Liberal newspaper he asked if she wouldn't prefer reading her own Conservative newspaper.

"'No, thank you,' she replied. 'This way I can keep an eye on what the other side is up to. . . .'"

This are charming family anecdotes preserved — conversationally.

Superhighways and aeroplanes draw the world together as never before and if it has any disadvantages it might be, comments one who had just returned from Europe where a married member of the family is living, "it is easier to visit your children when they live closer. Short frequent visits are then possible.

But when they live a great distance away, this entails long, extended visits which often work a hardship on the lives of all concerned. It is difficult not to infringe upon the private and routine life of each."

However, though travel presents geographical environmental problems, Mrs. J. W. Hepburn, on visiting Vancouver, says "When my husband and I made our first visit, we found the mountains overwhelming. We felt hemmed in. Now, having made four visits all told, we find the mountains grown on one. They now seem protective, friendly, inspiring. We like them.

And Miss Leona Riggs, upon her return from a delightful and prolonged visit abroad says among her favorite places is "Crete — an island as lovely, as it is full of historical interest".

Conversing with Mrs. F. H. Bellstedt, our subject turns to women and the fact that their role as mothers rearing children brings them close to life. This fact, as a rule, discloses women are more observers of fine details and facets of nature, and "for this reason," says Mrs. Bellsted "I do not greatly approve of co-education. I feel the embodiment of refinement that women (as teachers) have to offer young girls benefits and enriches their lives, in ways otherwise impossible."

Thus does a day's gift of "conversational" truths and treasures bring uplift and breadth to living. Wherever conversation is eternal, being one of the most pleasant things in life for, as one has wisely said, "there is no end to talking that lies in the

Prayer for Older People Repeated

Dear Ann Landers: Occasionally you run a back number on request from your readers. Recently you did so for some teen-agers. (It was that appalling Do-It-Yourself Sex Quiz.) And now will you do a favor for some senior citizens? Please rerun that Prayer For Older People I clipped it out of the paper when it first appeared and now I can't find it. Many thanks—Aunt Ada, Bad Axe, Mich.

Dear Aunt Ada: Here it is. I hope you enjoy it. Again.

Lord, Thou knowest I am growing older.

Keep me from becoming talkative and possessed with the idea that I must express myself on every subject.

Release me from the craving to straighten out everyone's affairs.

Keep me from the recital of endless detail. Give me wings to get to the point.

Seal my lips when I am inclined to tell of my aches and pains. They are increasing with the years and my love to speak of them grows sweeter as times goes by.

Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally I may be wrong. Make me thoughtful but not nosey; helpful but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom and experience it does seem a pity not to use it all. But (God knows) Lord, that I want a few friends at the end.

Dear Ann Landers: I take exception to the suggestion that the typographical errors in the newspaper are the result of the typesetters "playing around." I can tell you that we strive daily to achieve excellence in all areas of the composing room.

Computerized typesetting, new electronic equipment and changing methods require retraining and the acquiring of new skills—and the daily deadlines must be met, as usual. And though modern technology has changed the equipment and the methods of operation, as in many other industries, the pride in our craft has not diminished. Words are our bread and butter and we do not play around with them in the composing room. I would like to set this letter in type, personally.—S. L.

Dear S. L.: Here it is. Be my guest. A recent visit to your composing room provided plenty of evidence that there is no time for playing around. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is going with a bright young man who has many fine qualities. He is hard-working, industrious, completely honest, and has some old-fashioned virtues which we appreciate. The trouble is that Jason is extremely tactless and has a way of alienating people because of his outspoken, often belligerent manner.

My husband is appalled by the way he speaks to us, as well as to some of our friends. Whenever there's discussion (particularly on politics) Jason just right in expressing his dogmatic views vehemently with no regard for an opposing viewpoint.

Our daughter backs him up completely. We feel he will have a hard time making his way in the world unless he learns tact and compromise. They both believe that anything short of full expression is "selling out." They say it is important for young people to be forthright, fearless and to demonstrate that they can stand on their own two feet. Any comment?—Mom and Pop

Dear M and P: They will learn that it's very hard for a person (young or old) to stand on his own two feet when one foot is in his mouth.

I too find it difficult to find humourous readings, especially modern ones which do not have to be changed too much to apply to present day situations. I have some monologues written during the war which are difficult if not impossible to change to use now.

I would be glad to exchange if you wish to pass my name on; or would welcome suggestions as to where one might obtain readings or monologues. — Pat

Dear Pat: Thank you. "Betty" is hilarious and we now have copies here for anyone writing in, enclosing a stamped self - addressed envelope and 20 cents.

Doubtless our Canadian readers-at-large contains a good many group leaders, who use monologues or who want them. I'll be glad to help out with an exchange.

Dear Doris: What does one do when one's supervisor shows such great dislike for one? I have been away from work for 18 months on prolonged sick leave, and am quite slow at my work, which is entirely new to me. And I am an older worker.

Is there anything I can do so that she would eventually like me? It takes all the joy out of work when one is in such a miserable position — nor can I do my best work under such circumstances.—Getting Discouraged.

Dear Getting: She may not realize just how long it takes for new work to become familiar. Probably you are still convalescing, to some extent, and will continue to develop alertness as you get more into your job.

Any person skilled in rehabilitation knows just how great a part is played by the instructor who encourages and praises the learner. Older workers have proved their unique worth — in steadiness, perseverance and reliability—time and again. Let this letter encourage you, if she won't.

Show her a patient and gracious exterior, persistently, and if she doesn't come around then, show her something else — this column.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have been told that last year we signed our Christmas greeting cards wrong. I would like to know the proper etiquette. From an English point of view the husband, wife and children's names are signed. When I was in school I learned from someone to sign everyone else's name in the household first and then the writer's name thus: as in our home, George (our son), Bruce (my husband and Jessie (myself).

On asking my husband's viewpoint he remembers from school days that the husband's name is first, then the wife (as she was usually the writer), Vice - versa if the husband was the writer, followed by the children's names. — Just Jessie

Dear Jessie: The usual way is for parents to be listed ahead of children and for the writer to put her or his name after the other marriage partner's name.

This would mean you would sign Bruce, Jessie and George. If you husband wrote the cards he would put Jessie, Bruce and George.

It is better for the names of any children to follow the parents. But don't lose any sleep over it, whatever you did last year. We aren't all that formal here in Canada.

Doris invites comments on correspondence. If you read about a problem similar to the one you have solved, let's hear about it.

Arthur and Jack Koomen Regulate Cruiser Speedometer

Revised Speeding Ticket Provides New Approach

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Now that the Summary Convictions Act amendments pertaining to traffic tickets have come into effect, speeders will have an easier time of it as far as court fines are concerned. Locally, fine ratios have been axed by more than 50 per cent.

However, all is not a bed of roses. The policeman's job has also been made easier. He can now lay charges under six provincial acts, instead of one.

The revised ticket can now be used to lay an information and issue a summons for an offence under any provision of an act or regulation designated by the regulation, or of a municipal bylaw controlling traffic

This includes the Highway Traffic Act, and now the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act, the Motorized Snowvehicle Act, the Highway Improvement Act, the Public and Commercial Vehicles Act and the Public Vehicles Act.

In the past, other violations had to be processed with a regular information and a summons was then issued either by hand or by mail.

Although the new traffic tickets, as they are now known, require less detailed information to be recorded, violators now know what they are being charged with and what date they have to appear in court.

Ontario Provincial Police Constable Robert Harvey, court officer, said under certain circumstances, preset fines which could be paid out of court, are placed on the summons portion of the traffic ticket by the officer.

"This system will assist the courts in that they won't be receiving guilty pleas and then have to reply. It cuts down on the correspondence," he said.

"It's an advantage to the violator because of undue delay with correspondence if he so desires."

Under the old structure, speeding violators who appeared before Belleville provincial judges, were charged increasing rates for every mile travelled over the speed limit:

— 1 - 9 mph over the limit; $1 per mph.

— 10 - 19 mph over the limit; $3 per mph.

— 20 - 29 mph over the limit; $4 per mph.

— 30 mph and any speed over this limit; $5 per mph.

Under the new rate system, recommended by the province, and adopted after consultation between the courts, the Crown Attorney's office and both city and provincial police, speeds of between one and 19 miles per hour over the limit, will bring a fine of $1 per mph. For more than 20 miles per hour over the limit, violators will be assessed $2 for each mile per hour.

The new summons portion of the traffic tickets must be served on the day of the offence, otherwise old procedures will apply. Any offence under the Criminal Code, involving use of a motor vehicle, such as impaired driving, dangerous driving, motor manslaughter or a situation where an accident has occurred, will still require the driver to be served with a more detailed summons.

The shorter form will not contain minor information such as weather or pavement conditions. "This is just an added area where you could make an error that would cancel a ticket," the court officer explained.

"With the revised ticket, there is less chance of technical error and possible dismissal on technical grounds due to the decrease in required information."

Also, an officer who lays a charge does not necessarily have to appear in court if the case appears before a provincial judge. The policeman now signs the ticket establishing that he did serve it, but then any officer can swear the information before a justice of the peace.

Although attempted many times without success, drivers appearing in court on speeding charges, will still be able to contest the charge.

In recent months, most contesting drivers have questioned the validity of a charge being laid when the motorists speedometer records what he believes to be an accurate reading.

Provincial court Judge T. Y. Wills often reminds these drivers that "ignorance of the law is no excuse." He then advises these motorists to have their speedometers checked by a reliable auto-electric workshop, similar to one used by city police for cruiser checks.

On a regular basis, city police cruisers are taken to Belleville Auto Electric, where their speedometers are calibrated and checked at varying speeds. In this manner, officers following a speeder, will be able to swear to an authentic rating before the court.

Other driver - contested police speed methods concern radar traps.

Belleville police Constable Cecil Herron recently demonstrated his force's unit to illustrate the highly technical steps taken to ensure accurate readings.

Mounted on a rear window of his cruiser, the radar unit is preset with a calibrated tuning fork. Each of the high-pitched instruments represents a different speed.

When the officer strikes the metal prongs, producing a tuning, or steady humming tone, the radar set reacts to the vibrations. Placed against the face of the radar unit, the tuning fork reaches a certain pitch.

Mounted on the driver seat, the metre can then be set at the speed appropriate to the zone in which the radar trap has been set up in.

As a measure of grace, the metre is set at two or three miles over the speed limit. Responding to the fastest and largest moving vehicle in the radar zone, vehicles travelling in either direction can be checked.

As accurate as both these systems are, drivers can still question their validity in court, but will still be required to pay the additional court costs if they are found guilty.

The new act is quick to point out, with charges now limited on the tickets, that officers are not cashiers for the court.

Mahovlich Aims Early At Esposito's Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League season is young but veteran Frank Mahovlich is taking dead aim at a record that some NHL observers thought might stand for a long time.

The big left winger fired three goals Friday night as Montreal Canadiens blanked Vancouver Canucks 6-0, increasing his goal-total to six games in nine.

It's a long way off but if Mahovlich manages to keep up his torrid scoring pace, the NHL record of 76 goals in one season set by Boston Bruins Phil Esposito last year could be fair game.

Meanwhile, Esposito showed he hasn't lost his touch for collecting points by picking up four goal and three assists as the Bruins downed California Golden Seals 5-1 Friday.

Mahovlich, who came to Montreal from Detroit in a late-season trade last year, notched 49 goals with the Red Wings in 1968-69, his best season.

"I like it here," the Big M said of Montreal. "It's a good city with a good atmosphere for hockey and a darned good hockey team. There's a good spirit on Canadiens."

Mahovlich scored three consecutive goals after Marc Tardif gave the Canadiens a 2-0 lead. Ken Dryden picked up his first shutout this year, stopping 22 shots. Dunc Wilson faced 21 Montreal drives.

Esposito, who also had 76 assists last season for a record 152 points, got his fifth goal this season after the Bruins built up a 2-1 first-period lead at Oakland.

Esposito increased his league-leading point-total to 14, two more than Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers and three more than Mahovlich.

At Detroit, defenceman Ron Stackhouse, acquired from California Thursday night in exchange for Tom Webster, scored one goal and set up two others as the Wings gained their second win this season.

Webster, Detroit's top scorer last season with 30 goals and 27 assists, gets a chance to play against his team-mates Sunday when the Seals visit Detroit.

At Boston, Bruins' forward Don Marcotte was operated upon Friday for a repair of a spinal disc which forced him to quit playing last month.

FRANK MAHOVLICH

Bruin Back In Old Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito, defending NHL scoring champion, has made his way back to the top of the NHL scoring list for the first time this season.

The Bruin centre scored one goal and added three assists Friday night to pace Boston to a 5-1 win over California Golden Seals. Esposito's five goals and nine assists gives him 14 points, two more than Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers.

Montreal's Frank Mahovlich scored three goals as the Canadiens blanked Vancouver Canucks 6-0, giving him nine goals and third place.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Esposito, B	5	9	14
Gilbert, NY	4	8	12
F. Mahovlich, M	9	2	11
Orr, B	2	8	10

Hornets Hold Top Senior Spot

Galt Hornets held on to first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings Friday night despite a 5-4 loss to Barrie Flyers in Barrie.

In other action Friday, Woodstock Royals moved into second place with a 7-3 win over Belleville. Guelph, Woodstock and Orillia Terriers blanked Oakville Oaks 6-0 in Orillia.

The Barrie team needed overtime to squeeze out its win over Galt with Mike Dubeau scoring the clincher. Bob Baird had two goals for the Flyers and Pete Panagabko and Nick Holmes each scored one.

For Galt, Dave Cressman, Bruce Reier, John Beechey and Moe Galand were the scorers.

Wayne McCreedi, Al Ferguson and Jim McConnell scored for Belleville.

Tonight, Barrie is Galt, Kingston at Owen Sound, and Woodstock at Belleville.

Orioles Win for A Change

TOKYO, Saturday (AP) — Baltimore Orioles drubbed Japan's best 8-4 Saturday with the help of five errors by the losers, opening a tour of Japan for the American League champions.

The Orioles, losers to Pittsburgh Pirates in he U.S. World Series, took on the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants, winners of Japan's version of the World Series for seven consecutive years, before a crowd of 43,000 at the Giants' home park Korakuen.

* * *

NEW YORK (AP) — First baseman Donn Clendenon, star of New York Mets' 1969 World Series baseball victory, and third baseman Bob Aspromonte were released unconditionally by the team Friday.

Clendenon, whose home-run hitting earned him the Most Valuable Player award in the Mets' 1969 upset triumph over Baltimore Orioles, hit only .247 last season.

The 36-year-old slugger, who set a club record of 97 runs batted in in 1970, had 37 RBI and 11 homers in 1971.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates, world champions of baseball, have voted to cut the stadium ground crew out of any World Series money, it has been learned.

Most winning clubs share their bonuses from playoffs and World Series with the ground crew. A full share this year for the Pirates will be with about $20,000.

One player, who asked to remain unidentified, said the ground crew was left out of the World Series share partly because they supported an umpires' strike before last year's playoffs.

Monday Looks Good

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Football League gets under way Monday hours early this weekend but a lot of fans will still be holding their breath until Monday night.

In the NFL's only regular season Saturday night clash, Buffalo Bills invade San Diego tonight, looking for their first victory of the year.

But the big bashes in this sixth weekend of action send Washington's undefeated Redskins against Kansas City Chiefs in Sunday's top attraction, and on Monday night, Minnesota's Vikings are host to Baltimore Colts in what looks as a murderous defensive grind.

Elsewhere Sunday, it's Detroit Lions at Chicago Bears, Cincinnati Bengals at Oakland Raiders, Miami Dolphin at New York Jets, New York Giants at Philadelphia Eagles, Green Bay Packers at Los Angeles Rams, Denver Broncos at Cleveland Browns, San Francisco 49ers at St. Louis Cardinals, New Orleans Saints at Atlanta Falcons, New England Patriots at Dallas Cowboys, and Houston Oilers at Pittsburgh Steelers.

Billy Kilmer has made a lot of people all but forget about Sonny Jurgensen. Now the Redskins' quarterback, along with Clarley Harraway, Larry Brown, Roy Jefferson and a solid defensive unit, goes for victory No. 6.

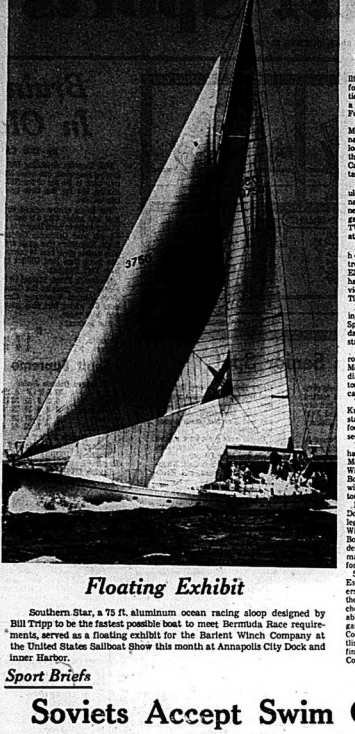
But they'll be up against another tight defensive squad in he Chiefs who, with Len Dawson at the helm, are once again dueling with Oakland in their annual scrap for leadership in the AFC West.

The Colts and Vikings are 1-2 in begrudging opponents the fewest points in the league. Both are like cement walls when it comes to yielding yardage on the ground. The Colts hold a slim half-game lead over Miami in the AFC East while Minnesota is tied with Detroit for first in the NFC's Central Division.

The Chargers haven't won since their opening game upset against Kansas City. The Bills haven't won at all. But their quarterback, Dennis Shaw, will have some extra incentive as he returns for the first time to the scene of his collegiate brilliance with San Diego State.

The Lions will be without cornerback Lem Barney, sidelined by a groin injury. But the Bears will be without a lot more. Injuries force them to go with third string quarterback Bobby Douglass and reserve running back Dot Shy in place of Gale Sayers.

Quarterback Virgil Carter is still out for the Bengals but Daryle Lamonica who came back from an injury to direct the Raiders to a second half comeback victory against Philadelphia, will start this time. Elridge Dickey, however, may replace Rod Sherman at wide receiver for Oakland.



Bob Griese will be aiming his passes for Paul Warfield and Howard Twilly and Jim Klick and Larry Csonka will be grinding out the yardage as the Dolphins seek to avenge their loss to the Jets, the only one they've suffered this year. Bob Davis goes again for New York at quarterback after his successful debut a week ago against Buffalo.

Rick Arrington is questionable, so Pete Liske may have to start at quarterback for the winless Eagles, who, for the first time in six games, are facing a team other than a 1970 divisional winner in the Giants.

The Rams return home looking for their fourth straight victory that would keep them in the NFC West. Green Bay meanwhile, is at the bottom of the Central Division, but the Packers have whipped Los Angeles in their last three meetings.

The Broncos finally won a game last week with Charley Hacks and two ties. But not they face the solid AFC Central leaders in the Browns, who have an injury-free squad.

The Saints are riding high following their upset victory over the Cowboys a week ago while the Falcons are reeling from injuries, including a hamstring pull that has forced quarterback Bob Berry to give way to Dick Shiner.

All Ticats, Als Require Is Tie to Make Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats will be scrambling for victories this weekend, but a tie for either club would clinch a playoff berth in the Eastern Football Conference.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers visit Montreal's Autodrade for a Canadian Football League interlocking game Sunday against the Alouettes, and the Tiger-Cats are at home today to Ottawa Rough Riders.

The game in Montreal, scheduled for 2 p.m. EDT, will be nationally televised on the CTV network. The Ottawa-Hamilton game will be carried on CBC-TV's Eastern network, starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

Although the Alouettes take heart from the fact they trounced Toronto Argonauts, EFC leaders, last weekend, they have not lost sight of the 18-4 victory by the Bombers over the Tiger-Cats last Sunday.

Both clubs are bothered by injuries but Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital demonstrated last Sunday that Bombers have bench strength.

He produced a big surprise in rookie running back Clayton McEvoy, a 24-year-old Canadian, who penetrated the Hamilton defence for 95 yards on 19 carries.

With Mack Herron and Bob Kraemer listed as doubtful starters Sunday, McEvoy, a 6-foot-1, 205-pounder will likely see plenty of action.

"It really fell good to get my hands on the football," said McEvoy this week as he and Ed Williams worked out in the Bombers' backfield. "I just wish I could get my first pro touchdown."

Middle linebacker Mickey Doyle, who has been out with a leg injury, will return to the Winnipeg lineup Sunday. The Bombers said Friday they cut defensive end Sid Bailey to make room on the import roster for Doyle.

Spavital is hoping Edmonton Eskimos stop Calgary Stampeders in their weekend clash. If they do, the Stamps and Saskatchewan Roughriders won't be able to ease up in their final games when they meet British Columbia Lions, currently battling the Bombers for third and final playoff spot in the Western Conference.

The Alouettes placed three players on the team's 16-day injury-reserve list Friday.

They are guard Pierre Desjardins, defensive end Steve Booras and tackle Paul Patterson, all of whom have had knee operations this season.

Coach Sam Etcheverry is planning to go with rookie Jim Chasey at quarterback Sonny Wade, who directed the Als to the 1970 Grey Cup championship over Calgary, is suffering from a separated shoulder, but he will be in uniform to do the Montreal punting.

The addition of fullback Bob (Hoss) Bouttard to pair up with Dennis Duncan has been one of the big offensive changes by the Ottawa team as it prepares to invade Ivor Wynne Stadium. Each player stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 215 pounds.

Hamilton coach Al Dorow will probably counter with Max Anderson and Dave Buchanan, who are lean, but spritely runners.

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta, whose team must win to protect a mathematical chance for the playoffs, seemed concerned because the Riders would not get a chance to practise on Hamilton's artificial turf.

The team was to practise late Friday but Gotta was informed that a high school tripleheader was booked in the stadium.

"I would have liked to let the boys get another shot at that turf," he said. "but I wouldn't want the high school teams deprived of their games."

"Anyhow, I honestly think our club is ready to go," he added.

Most Walking Done by Knicks

Shortly before Baltimore Bullets played New York Knickerbockers in a National Basketball Association contest Friday night, veteran guards Earl (The Pearl) Monroe and Archie Clark walked off the team. Then the Knicks walked all over the Bullets.

Monroe had expressed unhappiness at playing in Baltimore and team officials have been trying to trade the player, who is in the final year of a three-year pact.

Clark had been acquired from Philadelphia 76ers earlier this week and, together with Monroe, had participated in Thursday's workout. Coach Gene Shue reported neither player had offered any indication during practice that they would abandon the team. Both were suspended by the Bullets without pay.

The Bullets tossed together a makeshift starting lineup and were thrashed 119-97 by the Knicks, playing without standout Wak Frazier who was sidelined with a groin disorder.

In other NBA action, Boston Celtics downed Atlanta Hawks 115-108, Milwaukee Bucks pasted Buffalo Braves 124-105, Chicago Bulls dumped Los Angeles Lakers 113 - 106, Seattle Super Sonics defeated Houston Rockets 110-91 and Detroit Pistons beat Phoenix Suns 115-109.

In the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh edged the Floridians 124-123 in overtime, New Jersey upended Utah 111-100, Dallas whipped Virginia 123-108 and Indiana decisioned Kentucky 105-102.

Casper Takes First Two Rounds

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper, playing his way out of the most disastrous slump of his career, credited a new set of irons with helping him move into a commanding, three stroke lead in the $150,000 Kaiser International open golf tournament.

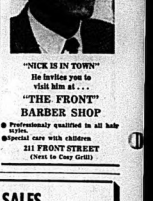
"I got them a couple of weeks ago," the 40-year-old Casper said after shooting a seven-under-par 65 in Friday's second round, giving him a 36-hole total of 132.

"I really don't know what it is, but by hitting the ball higher and I'm not hooking it. The clubs are a little stiffer but I can't explain it beyond that."

Casper, who has failed to win this season for the first time since 1958, had a three-stroke margin over soft-spoken Tommy Aaron, who had a 69 for 135.

Young Tom Watson, a 22-year-old rookie playing in his first professional tournament, was alone in third at 136. He shot his second consecutive 68.

Tied at 137 were George Johnson, Dick Lotz, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Lanier Hill.



Lee Trevino managed only a 70 for 139, seven strokes off Casper's pace.

It took a score of par 144 to make the cut for the final two rounds. Among the casualties were defending champion Ken Still and Hugh Royer, who shared the first round lead at 66, then went to a 74t 79.

Soviets Accept Swim Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Soviet Union has accepted an invitation to compete in an international swim meet at Simon Fraser University next January, the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association announced Friday.

It will mark the first time a Russian swim team has completed in Canada.

BILLINGHAM, England (AP) — Julie Heldman of New York upset Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia 6-0, 7-5, in the women's semi-final Friday in the Dewar Cup tennis series.

Miss Heldman now advances to a finals contest today against Britain's Virginia Wade, who defeated Francoise Durr of France 7-6, 6-3.

Gerald Battrick of Britain, a 6-1, 4-6, 6-2 victor over Georges Goven of France, will play Jaime Fillol, Chile's top player, in the men's final. Fillol defeated Ion Tiriac of Romania 6-2, 6-2 in the semi-finals.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The United States rode to victory in the Nation's Cup at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show Friday and recaptured the lead in the international team standings.

The showing by the U.S. equestrian team put the Americans out in front of Canada by a 92 to 80 margin, while Argentina trailed in third place with 22 points.

Dew Blamed for Dolphin Flips

MIAMI (AP) — The faded blue grass on the Orange Bowl field is primarily to blame for suffering from too much dew at night and sunshine by day, say its makers, who have promised to groom the artificial turf into slip-proof condition for the rest of the football season.

And after that?

Officials for the company that produced the $152,000 Poly-Turf playing surface aren't saying.

Fred Piermattei, vice president of American Biltrite Rubber Co. told Miami officials Friday that the slippery conditions blamed for 114 falls during the Miami Dolphins' last two home games would be corrected.

He promised to have the field steam cleaned, combed and inspected regularly to insure proper footing for sliding players. He also said the firm would provide a "shoe bank" of special shoes for use on Poly-Turf.

The once green surface has mellowed into a light blue but Piermattei said the color of the turf was "shot" and there was little hope of restoring it.

"All our efforts and our main thrust is to get this field into a playable condition that will not cause slippage," Piermattei said. "Our thrust is toward maintaining this field through this football season."

He said laboratory tests indicated the field's slippery condition is caulked, at least in part, by its matted condition and by a "contaminating substance" of unknown origin.

"We've never seen anything quite like this before in all our installations," Piermattei said. "It's obvious that heat plays a role."

"Our technicians have concluded that the high dew point at night in Miami deposits a film of water vapor that acts as a wetting agent and minimizes the matted contaminated condition that causes slippage," Piermattei added.

Eagles Making Cuts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles' football team went through a sometimes ragged practice session this week after new head coach Ed Khayat ordered a ban on mustaches, creeping sideburns and shaggy locks.

Some of the players affected by the order were angry, others didn't care, but all had less hair than they had the day before.

Linebacker Tim Rossovich, who sacrificed a drooping mustache but allowed his hair to remain fairly shaggy, stormed through the locker room, yanking helmets off their hooks and knocking football around.

Safety Leroy Keyes was less upset than Rossovich.

"It's not a life or death matter with me," said Keyes. "My personal belief is that the football season lasts only a short time and if I want to grow hair, I can do it after the season."

Linebacker Bill Hobbs, however, had "never been so teed off in my life."

The Eagles' player representative, Ron Porter, said nothing could be done about the hair edict.

"If we were winning, I'm sure a lot of players would have something to day," Porter said. "When you're 0-and-5, you don't have much to talk about."

"Belleville Fairway linemates Jeff Howard and Mark Woodward (9) cruise in on Kingston goalie D'Arcy Walters' crease during second period action at the Memorial Arena Friday night. The Fronstenacs, who were soundly beaten twice in pre-season exhibition games with the Fairways, came up with an 8-5 Eastern Ontario Junior B League win.

Fairways Find Difference When It Comes to Real Thing

The difference between an exhibition hockey game and a real one is precisely two points, as Belleville Fairways found out Friday night.

The Fairways who had trounced Kingston Frontenacs 8-6 and 8-1 in two pre-season "nothing" games, took an 8-5 trimming from the Fronts in a game that counted in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League standings.

"In our first exhibition with Belleville we were using five lines — they had their lineup pretty well cut down."

"Tonight our forechecking really paid off. We sent two men in and were forcing their defencemen to give up the puck."

That tytle of play led to what Walton picked as the game's key goal, one by Bruce Jennings with only 29 seconds left in the second period. Kirk Twigg pestered the puck away from a Fairway defenceman in the corner and fed it out to Jennings who banged it past Bob Harrison.

Walton didn't get to see the finale of his team's triumph. He was ejected from the Kingston bench for referee riding midway through the third period.

Other observers might have picked Dave Johnson's goal with the second-period only 24 seconds old as the game's hinge.

The Fairways had carried most of the first period play but only came out of the last-paced 20 minutes with a 3-2 lead.

Johnson's goal, on a pass from Jim Scullion, triggered a five-goal Frontenac outburst in only nine shots at Belleville goalie Harrison, who had been brilliant during some first-period Fairway penalty-killing spells.

Meanwhile the Fairways got only one goal, and that on a power play, out of 17 second-period shots at D'arcy Walters.

Belleville scorers were Jim Cain, Dave Smith, Lou Doucett, Brian Coates, and Doug James.

The Fairways take their 1-2 record to Peterborough Sunday afternoon for a return bout with the Lions, who dropped them 5-3 in their Belleville home opener.

Persons interested in travelling to Peterborough on the Fairways' bus are invited to contact Frank Mulvihill at 962-3462. The bus will leave the Memorial Arena at noon Sunday.

Tigers Pounce on BCI Mistake to Capture Title

Special to The Intelligencer

Trenton high school football seniors had only seven holdovers to start the 1971 Bay of Quinte season, and one of them clinched a divisional title for them Friday.

Two-way tackle Steve Sioui pounced on a fumbled punt early in the second quarter to give the Tigers what proved to be the winning touchdown in a 20-12 schedule - ending game with BCI.

In other action, Trenton juniors completed their first undefeated season in recent memory by romping over BCI 68-6 while Bayside juniors assured themselves of a playoff spot in their first year of action by trimming Picton 34-6.

With their COSSA championship team of three autumns ago badly depleted at the outset of this season, Trenton senior coach Tom Nigro really didn't consider an opening game 7-1 loss to Centennial an upset, despite the fact it marked the first time Centennial had defeated the senior Tigers.

"But the boys have been playing really great football since then," Nigro beamed after his team's fourth straight win Friday. "We got a big break picking up that fumble — it was a tight game until that point."

BCI quarterback Peter LeBaron scooted in from eight yards out to give his team an early 6-0 lead, before Trenton quarterback Dave Harvey combined with flanker Gord Kelly on a 68-yard pass-and-run play that, converted, gave Trenton a 7-6 edge.

Then, early in the second quarter, defensive lineman Sioui, a last-year co-captain of the Tigers, pounded on a fumbled punt in the BCI end zone to increase the Trenton margin.

Halfback Don Armstrong and end Eldon Garrett added second-half majors that upped the Trenton margin to 26-6 before BCI's John Tracey got his team's only other touchdown in the final period.

Friday's result left Trenton and Quinte with identical 4-0 records atop the senior western division standings, with Trenton getting first place by virtue of last week's 16-8 win over the Saints.

The BCI loss left them in a three-way tie for second in the league's eastern division with Napanee and Picton, who play Monday, with the winner playing host to BCI Wednesday.

That winner will play at Trenton, Friday. Meanwhile, Quinte will play Moira, first-place eastern finishers, in the other senior semi-final Tuesday.

The Bay of Quinte Senior final will be played Tuesday, Nov. 2, three days before the winners play host to this year's COSSA championship.

Trenton's juniors also started the season unblessed by a surplus of holdovers, five to be exact, but two of them stood out as the Tigers whipped BCI 68-6.

Fullback Mark Petrie, normally a blocking back, accounted for four touchdowns, and Steve Beecroft threw in the Trenton romp. Other Trenton majors came from Eric Burnett, Dave Rodgers, and quarterback Dave Lewis.

BCI quarterback Brian Roach's 35-yard gallop kept the Collegians from being blanked.

Trenton juniors, who last year compiled a 3-3 record, finished this fall with a perfect 6-0 slate under coach Joe DiCrese. They will play their half of the conference semi-final Thursday at home to Napanee.

Bayside junior playoff makers in their first year, didn't really need Friday's 34-6 win over Picton to assure a post-season berth.

But despite his trouble that forced the players to don their equipment in a hitch, the Bayriders pulled away to a 22-0 halftime edge over their Prince Edward opponents and never looked back.

Al Robinson scored two touchdowns for the winners, from Jim Barr, Ray Generoux, and Larry Deseyve.

Bayside plays their half of the playoff semi-final Wednesday at Moira, who finished with an unbeaten record for the third straight season.

The Bay of Quinte junior title will be decided on Monday, Nov. 1, with the winner travelling to Peterborough for the Friday, Nov. 5, COSSA game.

Lady Luck Hits Layton

By GEORGE H. CARVER

(Note to the Gods of Chance on their Horseshoe Olympus

Change that "Luck of the Irish" ballyhoo of yours to the Luck of the Laytons

Reference Director Jack Layton of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club.

Director Layton is now firmly-convinced that the lightning of fickle Lady Luck does strike twice in the same place.

The Original Knight SQUINAR TABLES Where To Fish Map On Hand

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in roll-face type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

(October 23 - 31.)

Day	Minor	Major	Minor	Major

Picton Sizes Up

PICTON (Special) — It looks like the Eastern Ontario Junior B League entries are not going to finish in strict order of population size, but Gananoque might not be convinced.

Peterborough upset the population applecart Friday night by shading Oshawa Crushmen 2-1, but Gananoque fell 7-2 to the fellow "C" calibre Quinte Canucks from Picton.

Ringer Ronald Eugene Berndt each scored twice for the Canucks, who led 3-0 before the game was nine minutes old. Holmes' first goal came at the 27-second mark.

Steve Bedard, Larry McQuaid, and Randy Ellis also scored for the Picton entry, whose record is now 1-1.

Billy Truesdale and Marty Mangan replied for winless Gananoque, who open their new arena in Sunday night's 7 o'clock return bout with the Canucks.

A missing turkey, disdaining public appearances, is believed to have "holed" up in a friendly freezer.

President George Hammett stressed the importance of an upcoming membership drive.

Motion picture films on hunting and fishing on the Pacific coast, Labrador, the Gaspe and Newfoundland were enjoyed by the members.

Quintes Came Up Flat Twice on Woodstock Trip

WOODSTOCK (Special) — Prolonging the constantly long enough 240-mile bus ride home from Woodstock with a flat tire in the two hours of this morning only added insult to injury for the Belleville Quintes.

The Quintes had come up flat in their Senior A hockey game against the surging Woodstock Royals Friday night, dropping a 7-3 decision.

The loss bumped the Quintes out of second place in the eight-team standings and left them with a 3-2 record and a share of third place with Barrie Flyers.

For Woodstock, the win meant two things. It gave them second place and more points (seven) in their five league games to date than they managed in an entire 3-35 season last year.

Dan Mahoney's two goals paced the Royals, who opened up a 4-0 first-period lead.

AL FERGUSON

Al Ferguson's sixth goal in five games and another by Wayne McDonnell narrowed the Woodstock margin to 4-2 after the second period, but John McConnell's third-period goal was offset by three by Royals.

Belleville, who will play host to the Royals at the Memorial Arena in an 8 o'clock game tonight, drew eight of the game's 14 minor penalties.

A win tonight would boost the Quintes back into second or even first place by the league standings, depending on the outcome of a Barrie-Galt game. The Flyers beat Galt 5-4 Friday.

TORONTO, (CP) — A Quebec exchange student said she likes Toronto's hospitality but is disappointed at the lack of French-speaking tour guides.

Dorothee Fran ce cue yr, 16, of Hopetown, Que., one of 1..5 Quebec students now staying with Toronto area students in a program sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, said that when she visited Casa Loma, she couldn't find a guide who spoke French.

Stirling Swimmers Receive Awards

STIRLING (Special) — Pupils of the Stirling Public schools have received recognition for progress made during the Stirling Rotary Club's swimming instruction at the Belleville YMCA.

Last Thursday morning, Elwood Bateman, club president and Graham Mouck, chairman of the swimming committee, attended assemblies at both schools to award certificates to the participants in the club-sponsored programs.

The Rotary president pointed out that swimming instruction is only one aspect of the services carried out by this international organization. Mr. Bateman also said that as a result of this education, these boys and girls may some day be in a position to save the life of a drowning person or even their own.

Although the participants paid fees to enter the program, this revenue covered only part of the actual cost of the lessons.

Over fees during this past summer, the club received $250. However, the program cost a total of $467.25 which included $250 for the use of the Belleville pool, $200 for bus transportation to and from the pool and $17.25 for advertising.

This means that the club will have to raise $217.25 to look after the deficit.

In 1970, the total cost of the program was reported to be $238.50 and the deficit was $108.50.

Rawdon

Seychelles Asks UN -- Spare Us Independence

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The elected leader of a group of islands in the "wilderness" of the Indian Ocean has pleaded with the United Nations to stop working for his British territory's independence.

But the unusual plea of James Mancham, chief minister of the Seychelles Islands, apparently fell on enough deaf ears and UN committees will continue to seek the independence that he says his people do not want.

"We have no wish to interfere in other people's business," Mancham told the General Assembly's decolonization committee Friday, "and we do not think that other people should interfere in ours."

He said self-determination does not necessarily mean independence. It can also mean people determining the course that suits them best, he said.

And, he added, his people have decided to remain a colony and lie neck even closer ties with Britain.

The Seychelles are flyspecks in the Indian Ocean about 1,200 miles off East Africa. Mancham said about 56,000 people live on 90 small islands that have a total land area of only 154 miles. They have virtual internal self-rule.

For years a special 24-country UN committee has been demanding independence for the Seychelles. It has found support in the decolonization committee. Britain has stoutly maintained that the islanders do not want independence.

This year Mancham, whose country is bilingual, had his fare paid to the meeting of French-speaking countries in Quebec. He decided while in North America to offer his services to Britain in attempt to convince the doubters here.

Mancham was blunt in a news conference. He said the Seychelles saw that independence in some new countries actually meant an end to freedom because of virtual dictatorships.

"We have learned to like and understand the British, and whatever one may say about them in respect of other countries and continents, in our context it is wrong and malicious to style them as they have often been styled in this organization as 'exploiters' and 'oppressors,'" he told the committee.

He put it better another way: The "proud but free" Islanders felt "a devil we know is better than one we don't know."

Some members of the committee, especially Tanzania and Iraq, were frankly unbelieving.

They said Britain had taken over three islands for its own uses and that constituted a threat to neighboring countries.

Saudi Arabia and Mali said it was strange to have a territory come here and not ask for independence.

The British took over in 1814 under the Treaty of Paris.

Now the people are a mixture of many races. Their basic language is Creole. But many of them are bilingual in French and English.

The islands have a "state of happy multi-racialism which is, in my opinion, second to none in the world today."

Kosygin Gets Warm Reception At NHL Game in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was given a standing ovation by 15,370 National Hockey League fans Friday night and said it was one of the warmest receptions he has received outside Russia.

The crowd, which jammed Pacific Coliseum to capacity for a regular NHL game between Montreal Canadiens and Vancouver Canucks, stood in applause for 20 seconds or more when the 67-year-old Soviet leader was introduced prior to the game.

It was Mr. Kosygin's firsto public appearance since arriving in the city a few hours earlier after a flight from Montreal aboard a Canadian forces jet airliner.

The Soviet leader appeared to enjoy the hockey game and applauded plays along with the crowd, Montreal was leading 4-0 when he and his party, including his daughter, Mrs. Lyudmilla Gvishiani, returned to their hotel suites at the end of the second period. The final score was 6-0.

Speaking through an interpreter, he told Canucks' General Manager Bud Poile that hockey is a great game and should be played internationally between Russia and Canada. He wasn't sure why the two countries did not compete, but "plans to study the matter."

The Russian leader, accompanied by Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Public Works Minister Arthur Laing, arrived at the Coliseum in a 15-car procession a few minutes before game time.

The party's limousines were driven into the building at the ground-floor level in an area under the bleachers, cordoned off and heavily guarded by police.

Only reporters were allowed into the area as Mr. Kosygin was introduced to Poile and his wife and captains Henri Richard of the Canadiens and Orland Kurtenbach of the Canucks, who had just completed warmups on the ice.

Token gifts were exchanged. Mr. Kosygin giving each of the captains a souvenir-sized hockey stick autographed by members of the Russian national team, plus cufflinks, a tie bar and a medallion.

Richard was the first of the two players to reach the area beneath the stands. After the two, shook hands, Mr. Kosygin took the Montreal veteran's stick and tested it on the cement floor before giving it back.

Richard said Mr. Kosygin told him he was "not able to play hockey anymore," but that he does have a pair of skates which he puts on "from time to time."

The official party of about 30 watched the game from the Coliseum's lower press box about 30 feet above the ice level and between the Montreal and Vancouver players benches. Mr. Kosygin said he was impressed with the style of play, that he didn't find it as rough as he had been led to expect.

Those Demonstration Blues

Canada's 'Open Society' Now Seems Sadly Ended

MONTREAL (CP) — Once upon a time Canada was simple and authorities grinned happily when large crowds turned out to have a look at any king, queen, president or premier on a state visit.

Goodbye to all that. Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, continuing his state visit in British Columbia today, stayed 25 hours in Montreal, but few citizens had a chance to see him in the flesh and his opportunity of seeing them was also scant.

Montreal has known security on such a scale only once before and that was when government proclaimed a state of "apprehended insurrection" in the terrorist kidnapping crisis a year ago.

Mr. Kosygin could not enter or leave his hotel except through lines of anti-riot police wearing white steel helmets and carrying fearsome truncheons and sidearms.

Citizens who clustered in the lobby of the Queen Elizabeth hotel were lucky if they even got a glimpse of the back of Mr. Kosygin's head as the official party swept rapidly along a red carpet between entrance and elevators.

To many Montrealers, Mr. Kosygin will remain only a flimsied visage peering from a limousine surrounded by police motorcycles with red lights flashing amid a general air of crisis.

Russian journalists told colleagues that Mr. Kosygin, a one-time textile-mill foreman, is not the type of person who wants to cling to a fixed itinerary as if it were a matter of life and death for security reasons.

He would have liked more chance to talk with ordinary folk and perhaps, for instance, interrupt his official schedule to prowl around an art gallery, since he is an avid art fan.

Walking to his jet plane Friday for the flight to Vancouver, Kosygin suddenly turned about to shake hands with members of his motorcycle escort. One of the few other opportunities he had for informal exchange came Thursday when Soviet seamen shouted greetings at the Montreal harbor front.

Reporters received the distinct impression that Soviet security police were never happy with their Canadian colleagues after a man succeeded in jumping Mr. Kosygin, 67, in Ottawa Monday.

The Canadian security men in fact, repeatedly rendered differing judgments among themselves as to which reporters were allowed to go where.

Police worked under considerable tension in this cosmopolitan city where Jews and many East European ethnic groups demonstrated—though with little violence—against Kosygin.

Reporters were startled, however, Thursday night when chanting demonstrators converged opposite the Queen Elizabeth and one police officer shouted to nearby police that the "priority is Kosygin" and any measures would be justified to get against demonstrators who might try to cross the street.

Anglicans Celebrate In Catholic Basilica

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,500 persons jammed the Roman Catholic Notre Dame Basilica Friday night for services celebrating the 75th anniversary of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa.

Archbishop J. A. Plourde had invited the Anglicans to hold the religious service in the Roman Catholic basilica when it was realized Christ Church Anglican cathedral would be too small for the expected crowd.

Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury and spiritual head of the Anglican Church, aptly made fellowship the subject of his address to the overflow gathering.

The doors of the basilica had to be left open and the crowd flowed onto the outside steps in the east-end French-speaking neighborhood.

Troupe of Satirists Appears Here Oct. 29

One of Canada's finest entertainment troupes will make an appearance at Centennial Secondary School in Belleville Oct. 29.

The Jest Society — the name is a pun derived from one of Prime Minister Trudeau's slogans — is a satirical revue company whose trademark is improvised comedy.

Filmmaker Diversifies

CULVER CITY, Calif. (Reuter) — Movie-maker Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced Thursday it is going in for sea cruises and gambling casinos.

Company President James T. Aubrey told a news conference Metro will buy three 400-cabin cruise ships and build a 2,000 room hotel-casino in Las Vegas, which he said would be the world's largest.

Aubrey, who took over Metro in 1969, announced that the once-ailing movie company would this year produce its highest net profit in 25 years.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Robert Wagner and actress Marion Marshall were married Thursday at a brief hearing here before Superior Court Commissioner John L. Goddard.

Wagner appeared at the hearing to obtain the uncontested decree that dissolved the seven-year marriage.

The couple, separated since June, 1970, have a seven-year-old daughter, Katharine. Miss Marshall was awarded custody.

The marriage was the second for Wagner and the third for Miss Marshall. They married July 21, 1963. Both are 41.

NEW YORK (AP) — Famous tuberculturus soprano Joan Sutherland announced Thursday she will star in two television operas, condensed to half an hour each, aimed at people who haven't already seen them.

The two operas, The Barber of Seville by Rossini and The Daughter of the Regiment by Donizetti, will be taped in January in London and shown on the 210-station U.S. National Educational Television network, in prime time, probably in April.

Feature Times

AT THE BELLE — John Voight - Jane Fonda in "Coming Home" Tel. 968-6066. Showtimes: 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Performance at 7:00 and 9:10. Matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday.

AT THE PARK — Showing today and tomorrow "Rabbit, Run" and "The Sweet Sins of Sexy Susan" Shows start 7:15 p.m. Last complete show 8:30. Restricted to persons 18 years of age and over.

The five - member group, four men and one woman, have considerable experience on stage before theatre and auditorium audiences and have appeared on the CBC and CTV.

The Society began late in 1969 when John Morgan and Martin Bronstein, two of the country's leading comedy writers, collaborated on a 45-minute presentation for the Salsbys - Bronson Centre in Montreal. The one - performance - only show avoided line memorization and dependence of props in favor of character knowledge and the opportunity to react spontaneously.

The results were interesting enough to try again some months later, again with the focus on the material and performance. The audience responded enthusiastically for the entire 90 minutes. On May 31, 1970, at the Revue Theatre, with a new cast, the Jest Society made its professional debut.

In October 1970 the group opened at the Poor Alex Theatre in Toronto to raves from local critics, the underground press and university papers. The initial run, scheduled to last 4 weeks, was extended for an extra six months until May 1, 1971. Since then the troupe has been playing before high school audiences, universities, clubs and theatres.

John Morgan and Martin Bronstein are both British. They began their partnership writing full time in 1967 on the radio comedy show Funny You Should Say That. It was a teamwork that took them through the CBC network television show Comedy Cafe, a British TV show and to Canada Goose and a stint on the David Frost Show in London.

The third Englishman in the group is Roger Abbott who has done everything from public relations to copy writing since coming to Canada with his parents in 1946. He is also a freelance writer and graphic designer. Jayne was raised for the CBC, National Film Board and the U.S. educational program Sesame Street.

Don Ferguson joined the Jest Society in January 1971 after gaining experience in radio in Montreal and Toronto. He holds an honors degree in English from Loyola College in Montreal and augments his performing services with his photographic and recording skills.

The lone woman in the company is Ottawa native Lynda Boyd. After graduating from the National Theatre School in 1969, she joined the Stratford National Theatre of Canada and performed in the National Arts Centre in Ottawa. She too joined the Jest Society at the beginning of the year and now commutes to its Toronto base from Ottawa.

Nathan Cohen, late theatre critic of the Toronto Star, said the Society "bring to their stage entertainment the same sense of literacy, informed awareness, civilized relish for the ludicrous and grotesque, and the same conviction that there's nothing sacred."

"On a good night," says Ottawa Citizen critic Aubrey Ashley, "the rapport between performers and audience generates a party-like atmosphere . . . put down to the fact that audiences feel a need to join in."

The group takes shot at all aspects of the world in which we live, from Parliament Hill politics to the sexual revolution. Tickets are available from members of the Belleville Rotary Club and the performance begins at 8:30 p.m.

Bearcats Not Better With Age

NEW YORK (AP) — New television series often have their greatest difficulties in getting started. Sometimes a series that looks dreary and maladroit at beginning picks up steam and better scripts as it moves along.

Bearcats, CBS's Wild West series, does not seem to improve with age. The year is 1915 and there are more model T's than horses and more jaunty straw boaters than 10 gallon hats. Plot is so contrived and tedious hour with completely predictable plot turns. Worst of all, it assumes a jaunty air that just doesn't come off.

The story Thursday night involved a small town captured by a band of desperados. Their evil leader offered to release the village priest if the remaining townsmen built a gallows. The old daddy had been hanged there five years before for a killing and the leader was best on revenge.

Hank and Johnny—Rod Taylor and Dennis Cole—dashed around for most of the hour and finally set a big explosion under the gallows, sprayed machine-gun bullets around, captured the villains and freed the priest.

The idea of an adventurer for hire was carried off with considerable style in Have Gun, Will Travel. This one seeks to substitute 50-year-old props, mostly old cars and armaments, for a good story.

Bearcats has some tough competition, including another Western about a pair of jaunty adventurers. ABC's Alias Smith and Jones. And Flip Wilson's program on NBC has an audience almost as big as the two rival series together.

ABC's Longstreet, on the other hand, started with a violent, painful episode but now seems to have simmered down into an interest detective series. The blind sleuth,[illegible] most effectively by James Francisco, is trying to solve a murder in the puzzle of the "theft of two horns once owned by a famous Dixieland musician. The theft was complicated by the murder of an officer in a jazz buffs' society.

Since Longstreet is set in New Orleans, the nightclub scenes were logical and the excellent music provided pleasant interlude. And Francisus' sympathetic portrayal of a blind man makes the hour several cuts above the usual whodunit.

After 17 Days Debate, MPs Agree to Talk Business on Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — After 17 days of general debate on the government's massive tax-change bill, the Commons agreed Friday to get down to specifics.

Starting Monday, MPs will be required to debate only particular subject matters—something they have been supposed to be doing since Oct. 11.

The first will be the government proposal to raise the basic income tax exemptions to $1,500 from $1,000 for single persons and $2,850 from $2,000 for married persons.

The new deal, which required all — party agreement, is designed to speed up progress of the bill. The government hopes to have the debate completed before year's end so the changes can go into effect Jan. 1.

But Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre) served notice that his party will move amendments to raise the basic exemptions proposed by the government. He didn't say by how much.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) claimed the end of the three-year tax holiday for mines would discourage investment in the North.

"The tax-holidry arrangement is followed by 67 major mining countries around the world and Ireland allows up to a 20-year tax holiday," he said.

"Profits from the mining dollars are like hitting the jackpot at the bingo or the daily double at the part-mutuels," he said.

Charles H. Thomas (PC—Moncton) quoted Peter Bentley-Taylor, president of Massey-Ferguson Ltd., as saying that the tax changes would damage Canadian business.

Mr. Thomas said layoffs were occurring every day in Northern Ontario, yet the government was "intent on piling dread with measures to place more restrictions on these firms."

"Those will inevitably lead to further layoffs," he predicted.

Steve Paproski (PC — Edmonton Centre) said the tax freeze" is contained 700 pages lawyers.

Stan Schumacher (PC—Palliser) said the government should not proclaim the new tax laws until they are understood by the people.

He also charged that the changes were part "of a grand design" to reduce Canada's friendly relations with the U.S.

Federal Conservatives Enthusiastic Over Davis Win

OTTAWA (CP) — How provincial elections affect Federal parties — if at all — has rarely been clear. But there is no hiding the federal Conservatives enthusiasm over the overwhelming victory of Premier William Davis in Ontario.

It came on the heels of a public-opinion poll which indicated the biggest jump in Conservative popularity since 1958, and just before the Nov. 8 Assiniboia byelection said Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, as he watched the Tory triumph sweep through Ontario Thursday.

A Prairie Conservative, not noted as a Stanfield fan, was offering bets that his leader would be the next prime minister of Canada.

The party enthusiasm was everywhere. When Mr. Stanfield rose in the Commons Friday to ask a question, he was treated to the type of party applause that's usually reserved for great personal triumphs.

Federal Conservatives openly talked about a revitalized party, and for the first time since 1958 there appeared to be a genuine eagerness for a general election.

Behind the scenes, some highly - placed Conservatives were playing it coolly. They referred to the enthusiasm of the New Democratic Party after the Nine victories in Saskatchewan, when there were unbridled predictions of later success in Ontario. And a Liberal victory in Nova Scotia was followed by a Liberal defeat in New Brunswick.

"It would be foolish of us to get too enthusiastic about the Ontario win," says one.

"By the time we have a general election, nobody's going to be thinking about these provincial elections."

Generally, the position of federal parties is that they shouldn't become too tied up with provincial elections because this makes it difficult for them to untangle themselves from provincial losses. The trick is to be quietly associated with victories and dissociated from losses.

Diabetes Is Often Difficult In Puberty Due Gland Turmoil

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 13, has diabetes and is under monthly supervision by a specialist in the disease. It is well controlled, but as usual there are families and friends who think they know more about it than the doctor. Would you discuss:

A girl who has not menstruated, but is often difficult to control in diabetes until after she has.

Why is it that grandparents refuse to discuss the disease, or even whether there is one in the family? We are still at a loss to find any relative on either side who ever had it.

One of my children was told in school that my daughter had to inherit it from some other female in the family, and could not inherit it from a male.

Please don't use my initials because we have enough trouble with our families without adding to it. I am sure they will recognize themselves anyway, which might not be a bad thing is that.—Mrs. Y. Y. Y

Okay, there you are with some brand-new initials.

Why people refuse to accept facts is not easy to explain. All I can say is that it happens with diseases other than diabetes: epilepsy, cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy. Among older people, some refuse to admit that there's such a thing as cancer. It's a superstitious hangover, I suspect, from the days when people were inclined to blame anything bad on something a person "must have done to be punished." Nonsense, of course, but there it is.

Diabetes is often difficult to control during puberty because the glandular system is in a turmoil with the approach of menstruation and other aspects of maturity. Once you've weathered that growing-up time and the body's functions have stabilized, the diabetes usually is much easier to control.

The young diabetic, however, has to learn how to meet other problems. How, for example, to cope with the question of NOT snacking on hamburger when the rest of the crowd decides to. After all, there is no outward, visible sign of diabetes. You can't tell a person has it by looking at him. How does the youngster explain being "different" without a long explanation? It takes some doing! Your dietitian can explain what snacks are permissible on such occasions so that your daughter does not have to appear different.

As to heredity, somebody once said that a diabetic plum could be found in most family trees Some ancestor could have had mild diabetes that never was recognized. Maybe several. It's nobody's "fault."

Diabetes can be inherited from either parent, and is far more likely when the trait exists on both sides. It is not, like some characteristics, a sex-linked one.

So stick to your guns. Try gradually to educate your friends and relatives.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a woman in the late 50s. About three years ago my doctor discovered I have pernicious anemia.

Have always had three or four bouts a year with a couple of hospitalizations before dinner plus if at a party more after dinner. Haven't stopped because of the p.a. Should I have?—E. K.

Not if your health holds up otherwise under the barrage of alcohol. It isn't directly related to the pernicious anemia, but most people pay one way or another for heavy drinking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The "attachment" of my fingernails is backing up. That is, the distance between the cuticle and quick is getting less and less, There is no sign of irritation or infection, and the nails themselves are strong, but not as pretty as they once were.—Mrs. F. H. K.

"Separation" of the nail from the bed is the usual term for this. Strong soaps or polish remover can be responsible.

Alberta Experienced In Opposition Ties

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta had a simple way of solving a problem that Ontario may face.

Following Thursday's provincial election, Ontario faces the possibility of recounts giving two opposition parties, Liberals and the New Democratic Party, the same number of seats. Alberta experienced such a situation twice.

Its solution was to give equal billing to opposition parties who tied for second. The opposition leaders who tied get an equal share of the special sessional indemnity normally paid to the leader of the opposition.

In the 1948 Alberta election, Social Credit under Premier Ernest Manning gained 51 of 57 seats. The opposition consisted of the Liberals, led by J. Harper Prowse, and the CCF, led by Elmer Roper. Each party had two seats and there was one independent and one independent Social Credit.

In 1959, there were four opposition parties with equal billing. The Social Credit party, again under Premier Manning, gained 61 seats and the opposition consisted of Liberal Mike Maclagan, Conservative Ernest Watkins, coalition member Francis Gainer and independent Social Credit Roland Ansley.

The four had to split the opposition leader's indemnity of $2,500. The two co-leaders of the opposition in the 1948 legislature divided $1,500.

What The Stars Say

Sunday, October 24th

Aries (March 21-April 19). Now that all the facts have been reviewed, your financial security may be more solid than you had anticipated. Follow the advice of experts to keep it that way.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). The various and separate responsibilities in an alliance must be assigned carefully to avoid conflicts. This may mean that only one partner gets to wear the pants in the family.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). There's no loss of prestige in asking for advice or instruction from an expert. Only fools insist on clinging to their ignorance.

Cancer (June 22-July 23). Loved ones can help this day reach a perfect conclusion. Expect extra attention and favors from those you have treated kindly in the past.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Spend the day close to your own hearth, strengthening bonds of affection with family and partners. Disagreements and contentment can erase the week's worries

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Time spent diligently practising some skill or improving a talent is starting to bring results. Don't quit until things are perfect.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). You can take profit in your possessions only if you allot sufficient time toward their upkeep. Willy-nilly shoddy articles will be left in a heap to collect dust and be thrown out.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Your faith and belief that everything will work out eventually in troubled alliances can be bolstered today by the first small signs of agreement.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Efforts at self-improvement will continue to succeed only so long as your will power holds out. Resist falling into old habits.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Investment opportunities that promise the largest returns are invariably risky. As a short-term gamble, though, the odds are in your favor.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Any incompatibility with associates today is merely superficial. Even the best of friends can't agree on everything, so don't make a big point over trivial issues.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). A temper tantrum can get results, but only because others are too tired to fight back. Don't indulge your luck by making such outbursts part of your standard set of tricks.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—New ways to increase earnings open up by mid-January, but you may have to wait patiently until next October before they can be implemented without a lot of interference. Save during the summer.

Monday, October 25th

YOUR DAILY GUIDE—Announcements are due shortly regarding the demise of a powerful political figure in a foreign government notably, antagonistic toward the U.S. There can be an obvious lack of information released detailing the circumstances of this passing, setting the world to wonder.

Aries (March 21-April 19). Your arguments don't necessarily need to be based on hard facts, if you're trying to get back into partners' good graces. You know what they want to hear, so accommodate them.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Time and fate have been your initial reaction, but now that you know a bit more about the matter, you're beginning to see. Big gains aren't what they're cracked up to be.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Don't volunteer your services to anyone without knowing exactly what their motives are first. Somebody's trying to play you for a sucker.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). If you're in prime form driving you, even the most difficult and burdensome duties are made lighter. Considerable sacrifices may be required as well.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). The most rewarding activities today are apt to be ones that involve the folks at home. Don't think you're missing out on any fun by spending the evening with the family.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You can find it easy to compromise with loved ones if you take time now to re-evaluate your position. Your present opinions are based on faulty information.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). It will be hard to resist the urge to waste the entire day dreaming. Unless you shake off this frivolous mood, you'll accomplish nothing worthwhile.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). You may find yourself regarded as an expert in a field where you've succeeded only due to luck. Don't give advice unless you really know what you're doing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your best bet is to refuse to be direct and open, you're also capable of using your deceptive tactics when they suit your purposes. Just watch your step.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You can find certain moves thwarted now because of the earlier mistake of making a commitment too lightly. Social obligations cannot be ignored.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). When you've focused on a particular goal, you're liable to overlook everyone, especially yourself, until it's finished. You've plenty of time, so reduce the pressure.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Your prayers would be answered a lot faster if you got off your knees and got down to work instead. It'll take a lot of elbow grease to produce a happy ending.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—Financial affairs are due to prosper this fall quarter, but by the first of the year, a deceptive influence gains strength. Don't get into the hole with creditors.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Opening lead — king of diamonds.

You wouldn't think that the order in which declarer played his clubs could make any difference in the result of this deal, but South succeeded in conducting the issue by his club plays and stole the slam as a result.

West led a diamond. Declarer won with the ace and cashed the A-K of spades. East showing out. This development placed the slam in considerable jeopardy, since West now had a guaranteed trump trick as well as a diamond winner.

Undoubtedly South would have gone down had he simply attempted to run his clubs at this juncture in an effort to discard two diamonds from dummy. All he needed for this line of play to succeed was for West to have more than two clubs.

But South was not content to rely on just this one possibility. He wanted to disguise his actual club holding so as to have an added chance for the slam in case West really did have only two clubs.

Accordingly, at trick four, he played a heart to the king, returned a low heart and "finessed" the queen. He was trying to persuade West that East had the king. South then cashed the ace and continued with the jack.

Probably West should have ruffed the jack and cashed the queen of diamonds. But he had been mesmerized into thinking that East had the king of clubs. So he discarded a diamond.

This proved fatal when South now led the king of clubs and threw dummy's last diamond. The only trick West made was a trump.

It is easy to say that West should have avoided the trap laid by declarer, but South is surely entitled to at least some credit for having done everything possible to pull the wool over West's eyes.

U.S. Economic Disaster Is Forecast by Nader

TORONTO (CP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader warned Friday that the United States is headed for the "greatest economic disaster to befall our country" if it continues its new economic policy.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario, Mr. Nader called on Canadians to do more than "trip down to Washington to ask for exemptions" from the U.S. extra duty on imports.

"Canadians should present their case to the American public directly, not the administration measures," Mr. Nader said.

He said the U.S. now must rely on external enlightenment to redirect the country from its present economic course.

"When all is said and done, the president and big business have lost their nerve. They are going the way of rigidity, controls and protectionism."

"Such a course cannot help but have an extreme recessive impact on the U.S. economy."

Bank Rate To Be Cut On Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada followed trends Friday night and pulled its bank rate down to pre-inflation levels, announcing that it would be lowered Monday to 4.75 per cent from the current 5.25 per cent.

The move would check international pressures that were threatening Friday to force the Canadian dollar above par with the U.S. dollar — which would increase unemployment in Canada by forcing up export prices.

At the same time, the federal monetary authority was giving the go-ahead to easier domestic credit as a stimulus to business activity and employment.

The new rate is the lowest since September, 1967, when the central bank rate began a steady rise — in an effort to check spending and stabilize prices — that culminated in a level of eight per cent through much of 1969 and 1970. With unemployment rising, the prime concern recently has been to stimulate spending, thus the rate has been dropping.

Legislature Reform More Urgent - - - Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Friday the huge majority his Progressive Conservatives won in Thursday's Ontario election makes reform of the legislature more urgent.

Mr Davis said in an interview the government will place higher priority on finding ways of increasing the role of individual members, including strengthening of the committee system.

Referring to the poor showing of the opposition in Thursday's election—the final seat count was Conservatives 78 Liberals 20 and New Democratic Party 19—Mr. Davis said the quality of the opposition is more important than numbers.

U.S. Reports Good and Bad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States economy suffered a relapse in the July-September quarter while the inflation rate, responding to President Nixon's treatment, slowed marked improvement, the government reported Friday.

The two reports supplied a mixture of both good and bad economic news. A slower-paced economy means little progress in apt to be made on the unemployment front immediately. A slower rate of inflation means a slower rise in prices.

The commerce department said the gross national product, total output of the country's goods and services, advanced at a three-per-cent annual rate in the third quarter in terms of non-inflated dollars.

Economists consider that rate of growth too slow to cut into currently-high unemployment, which has hovered around six per cent since the first of the year.

The good news in the GNP report was a 3.4-per-cent rate of inflation, down from last quarter's 12.5 per cent and the lowest since the second quarter of 1967.

Canadian Dollar Nears Parity

TORONTO (CP) — The value of the Canadian dollar on domestic currency markets closed within a fraction of parity with the United States dollar Friday amid rumors of foreign trade deals and trade concessions by the U.S.

The closing value of 99.97 cents U.S. was the highest since June 1, 1970, when the dollar was allowed to trade freely on world currency markets. Trade previously was limited to within one per cent of 92.5 cents U.S.

Currency traders said volume was moderate and it appeared the Bank of Canada intervened with currency trades to hold the value of the dollar below par.

Traders in New York said there were vague rumors that the 10-per-cent additional levy on dutiable imports imposed Aug. 15 by the U.S. may be lifted for Canada and Mexico.

Traders in Toronto said speculation of a wheat sale to the Soviet Union may have provided an early boost to dollar trading. A published report that such a deal was being negotiated was denied by federal government officials.

Ulster Police Shoot Bomber

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland's weekend toll of dead civilians stood at six today after police marksmen killed a terrorist and wounded his woman accomplice outside a Belfast night club.

The incident, resembling a gangaster movie, happened outside the Celebrity Club, in the fashionable centre of Belfast, just before midnight Sunday night.

Plainclothes police opened fire on two men and a woman hurrying away from the club where they had just left a time bomb in the lobby. One of the men fell dying, the woman collapsed wounded and the second man ran off.

Shortly afterwards the bomb exploded, sending the club up in flames—but not before an army bomb disposal squad managed to get clear and club members had scrambled to safety through a back window.

It was the culmination of Ulster's worst weekend of violence in two months, bringing the death toll to 133 in more than two years of civil strife in Northern Ireland.

In the preceding 48 hours, troops shot dead two sisters in a car racing past army checkpoints in Belfast and killed three men suspected of trying to rob a bank, or bomb it, at Newry, by the border with the Irish Republic.

The deaths of the two women, who the army said were in a car from which shots were being fired at the troops, provoked bitter accusations by republicans and civil rights leaders against the army's methods and sparked off a series of violent incidents in Belfast.

Worse violence broke out in Newry Sunday after three men were shot and killed by troops who saw them apparently trying to carry out a robbery at a bank. The army said the men refused to stop after they were challenged, and the troops opened fire.

A day of rioting in Newry followed, and Sunday night the 30-foot flames of a blazing timber yard illuminated a cortege of more than 1,000 mourners following the coffin of one of the men, 19-year-old Sean Ruddy, through the rubble-strewn streets.

Bell's Operators Continue Picketing

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Bell Canada operators continued picketing the company's main Quinte district exchange in Belleville today as negotiators in Toronto were tackling money issues in their contract dispute.

Bell's Belleville manager, George Thompson, said the emergency manning operation so far had hit no major snags since about 100 women operators walked off the job Friday afternoon, seeking an early settlement in the dispute.

Practice made for better service and the slowdown in switchboard communications caused by the sudden walkout improved over the weekend.

"We've pretty well settled in and we were giving excellent service yesterday by our own standard of measurement," said Mr. Thompson.

However, what happens today when the business community returns to work and the pressure of calls mount was still an unknown quantity this morning, he admitted.

Also helping ease the situation was the sudden speedup in introducing direct distance dialling throughout the Quinte district.

By 10 p.m. last night 12 new communities had been linked into the direct-dialling network. Only three of Bell's 21 Quinte exchanges now await the new system — Northbrook, Denbigh and Plevna, purchased a year ago from a private company and where new equipment still is awaited.

Toronto Raids Yield Weapons

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police, who carried out weapons raids on 18 Toronto homes and arrested two men Sunday, continued stringent security measures today to protect visiting Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Police were stationed at almost every intersection and on every overpass this morning as the Kosygin motorcade left the hotel and drove 10 miles east to Pickering.

Mr. Kosygin, accompanied by Soviet ambassador Mirosh Nichenko, toured Ontario Hydro's $746 million nuclear generating plant there.

The raids Sunday followed tips to police that an attempt would be made on Mr. Kosygin's life. Weapons seized included a machine gun, some M-1 semi-automatic U.S. Army rifles, knives and bayonets. Some of the guns were loaded.

Gerald Doyle, 18, was charged with possession of a restricted weapon and possession of an offensive weapon. Kenneth Wilson, 21, was charged with one count of possession of an explosive substance, two charges of possession of restricted weapons and one count of possession of stolen goods valued at more than $50.

In Pickering Mr. Kosygin was greeted by George Gathercole, chairman of Ontario Hydro, and Loren Gray, president of the Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Kosygin, hatless and smiling, looked at a scale model of the plant before starting the tour, greeted various plant executives and signed a guest-book. He was accompanied by Senator Paul Martin.

Following the plant tour, Mr. Kosygin returned to his hotel where he passed a group of about 50 demonstrators who jeered him.

The demonstrators were the hangers-on from an all-night vigil held across the street from the Inn on the Park by the Canadian Jewish Congress.

Mr. Kosygin was to enjoy a private luncheon and then relax for much of the afternoon before resuming his tour schedule.

Tight security was in evidence Sunday night when Mr. Kosygin's plane from Edmonton landed in a wind-whipped rainstorm. Police cordoned off a section of Toronto International Airport prior to his arrival, and reporters covering the event were checked at least twice for accreditation and identification.

Police also kept the 67-year-old leader well away from about 200 demonstrators at the Inn on the Park, where Mr. Kosygin occupied a $160-a-day suite Sunday night. He was to occupy the same suite—carpeted with deep shag rugs and equipped with two 26-inch colour television sets —tonight. His departure to Cuba was set back to 8 a.m. Tuesday from 10 p.m. tonight.

At the airport, Mr. Kosygin's jet taxied to a hangar about two miles away from the public terminal.

The motorcade sped away into the persistent rain to the hotel. Police were stationed strategically along the route. Both entrances to the airport hangar were sealed.

About 1,500 police were involved in the combined operation covering Mr. Kosygin at the airport and ringing his hotel where the motorcade drove past about 200 shouting demonstrators.

The demonstrators—representing the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Jewish Defence League, the right-wing Edmund Burke Society and a number of ethnic organizations—gathered about four hours before Mr. Kosygin's arrival.

Brezhnev Arrives In Paris

PARIS (CP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived here today on his first trip to the West since taking over the leadership of the Soviet Communist party in 1964. French security forces stood on alert for anti-Soviet demonstrations during the visit which ends Saturday.

President Georges Pompidou greeted Brezhnev at the airport and the Soviet leader was given a 101-gun salute, an honor usually reserved for heads of state.

Brezhnev seems to be emerging as the main spokesman of the Soviet Union in its dealings with the West.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Ontario this morning was caught between two weather disturbances. The first system brought some light drizzle to central and southern regions. The second system brought an extensive band of cloud to the northern regions. The weather picture will remain essentially the same for today. On Tuesday most of the drizzle will have moved out of the province but skies will stay on the cloudy side. The threat of a few showers over the northern regions will increase Tuesday.

Church, School and Newspaper Leaders Targets

South African Police Raid Hundred Homes

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South African police, in their second major country-wide swoop this year, staged simultaneous weekend raids on the homes of about 100 persons in seven cities and made at least one arrest.

The raids were carried out Sunday but there was still no official word today about the reason for the searches, conducted by three-man teams of plainclothes security police armed with warrants issued under the Suppression of Commission Act.

All the raids were between 4 and 5 a.m. and were at homes of student and church leaders, university lecturers, journalists and other public figures in Johannesburg, Cape Town, and five major centres in the eastern coastal region—Durban, Pietermaritzburg, Port Elizabeth, Grahamstown and East London.

In Durban, a 24-year-old student at the University of Natal, David Davis, was detained by the police who also seized some documents from his home. The reason for his arrest was not immediately known and no one was allowed access to him.

In Pretoria, the commissioner of police, Gen. Gideon Joubert, said the police were acting on information. He added that a certain number of persons have been questioned and investigations are continuing.

Police last made a similar country-wide swoop on religious, semi-religious and student bodies Feb. 25 as part of the investigation leading up to the trial of Very Rev. Gonville French-Beytagh, the Anglican dean of Johannesburg.

Judgment in the dean's trial, which ended nearly more than a week ago, is to be delivered Nov. 1.

Among those whose homes were searched in Sunday's raids were the Anglican bishop of Port Elizabeth, Rt. Rev. Phillip Russell; lecturers at the University of Cape Town and Rhodes University in Grahamstown; the editor of the Port Elizabeth Evening Post, John Sutherland; Rev. Cosmas Desmond, a Roman Catholic priest under house arrest in Johannesburg, and Winnie Mandela, wife of the jailed former African nationalist leader Nelson Mandela. Mrs. Mandela lives in Johannesburg's African township of Soweto.

From adding machines to computers, A. D. "Al" Cameron has seen it all during his 44 years in the banking industry.

And the business has never been in better shape, says the retiring manager of the four-corners branch of The Bank of Montreal.

Now beginning his final week of service, Mr. Cameron began his career in Sudbury after coming to Canada from his native Scotland in 1927. He had attended Glasgow University and spent three-and - a - half years as a student chartered accountant before going abroad.

His first managerial appointment came in 1950 when he took over the Meaford, Ont., branch. He has also worked in centres such as Kitchener, Ottawa, Peterborough and Lachine and for four years was assistant superintendent of the Ontario division at the head office in Montreal.

Mr. Cameron came to Belleville in 1964, when the Bank of Montreal had just opened its second local branch. Since that time two more offices have been inaugurated, reflecting what Mr. Cameron cited as the area's "good general growth."

Belleville's largest Bank of Montreal branch has had 16 managers since it was established in January 1843 and Mr. Cameron's tenure has been the longest stop of his career. The present building was opened in 1962 and currently has a staff of about 50.

Asked what trends he has noted over the years in the banking industry, Mr. Cameron said, "There is more mechanization because of the increased volume of business with more people using banking services." The number of persons writing cheques has been a major factor in the advent of technological aids. Mr. Cameron learned very early not to be overwhelmed by the size of the dollar amounts with which he was dealing. "You have to realize what they mean and what's behind them." He also added that Belleville's banking needs are not much different from those of the other 13 communities in which he has worked.

His main delight in serving as a manager stems, he says, from "meeting people and looking after your fellow man's requirements." He does not believe in letting personalities enter into bank dealings and has always adhered to company policies when negotiating with potential workers.

Married for 33 years, he and his wife Helen have two sons, Donald, 27, is a foreign service officer attached to the Canadian High Commission in New Delhi, India. A graduate of the University of New Brunswick, he is visiting home for the first time in three years.

The Cameron' other son John, 25, is an electronic technician with the Unemployment Insurance Commission in Belleville.

A former golf enthusiast and member of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, Mr. Cameron has been an active curler for 26 years. He and his wife also divide gardening chores, he commanding the lawn and shrubs while she looks after the flowers.

Mr. Cameron is also a part-time souvenir collector. His most prized possession is a financial statement he rescued from a small Ontario bank branch in which he worked several years ago. On the statement, dated March 31, 1873, are recorded several transactions but the most amusing item is the salary scale which shows the manager being paid $1,000 per year and a junior clerk receiving $4 a month.

Formerly director of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Cameron has also been active in community affairs as a member of the Belleville Industrial Commission and the Belleville Club. He was general chairman of the Salvation Army's Red Shield Appeal in 1970 and 1971 and is on the committee of stewards at Bridge Street United Church.

He was also director and treasurer of the Belleville Rotary Club for more than five years.

The Camerons intend to stay in Belleville, although they may travel once the winter sets in. Mr. Cameron always planned to make his life in Canada and says he is fortunate to have many friends with whom he can continue to associate. Although he didn't obtain Canadian citizenship until he had been here for 42 years — it is now a requirement for a Canadian passport — Mr. Cameron feels he owes his life to this country and qualifies as a bona fide Canadian.

Certainly there can be few people more knowledgable of the affairs of Canada than a retiring bank manager. A modest and reserved man, Al Cameron has been a credit to both his native and adopted countries as well as the entire banking industry.

Milk Board Candidate Favors Simplification

PICTON (Staff) — Cherry Valley farmer Emery Evans, this week running for office on the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, has stated his primary goal, if elected, will be to make pool system, without the classes, grades and divisions he claims are now tearing industry apart.

In a speech to fellow farmers during a banquet at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute last Friday, Mr. Evans said he questions the rules and regulations and various grade systems the board has evolved, "much of them often understood only by a lawyer."

He also queried the directing of milk at the expense of the traditional local factories.

"The fact that in a period of shortage we are still penalized for over-production — surely there can be chances flexible enough to rectify this situation," he observed.

The farmer, who will be opposed in his bid for office by incumbent board member Allen Ketcheson, Hastings, and Mrs. F. Lang, Shannonville, also a contender, said that bureaucratic red tape, delays and penalties will not solve the problem.

The farmer who will be up industry.

Mr. Evans recalled that he has been a milk producer for 24 years and originally started with a herd of seven cows.

At the time when he entered the dairy industry there were approximately 20 local cheese factories and dairies operating as well as small whole milk and delivery dairies that operated in and near the county.

"Butter", he noted, "sold for a while at an unprecedented 90 cents a pound and milk fetched $2.25 per cwt.

"On our street, from Cherry Valley to the end of Salmon Point, there were 18 farmers shipping milk to various factories with herds from 7 to 12 cows. Everybody cultivated a couple of acres of tomatoes," continued Mr. Evans.

He added that hogs were to be found "on every second farm," to utilize either whey or skim milk, byproducts of the dairy industry.

Mr. Evans remarked that in 1948 "any man could start on shares or get a mortgage. Land was cheap and milk could be sent to a factory. Farmers could "drive up" as they went, moving into cows with the accent on factory crops and pigs to tide them over until a herd was acquired.

The farmer said that in the past seven years there have been only three newcomers to the dairy industry in Athol township where he resides.

This "real drift from the land" in his opinion was triggered by an epidemic of hoof and mouth disease in the west in 1952. The border was closed to exports and the bottom fell out of the whole farm industry.

"That began the slow, hard climb through the advent of low cost loans and increased mechanization," suggested Mr Evans.

Mr. Evans outlined the formation of the OMMB and the Milk Act read here by an appointee of William Stewart in 1967. A committee was formed and Allan Ketcheson was chosen as the member for zone four, representing Prince Edward farmers.

The farmer spoke of the climb of milk prices from $5.687 per cwt. in 1970 to $5.87 in January, 1971 to $4.961 last month.

Holdback and trucking costs climbed in this time from 34 cents a cwt., to 37.4 cents, then to 36 cents.

Mr. Evans claimed there is now an exodus from farms and mainly the dairy industry.

Members of the OMMB say the decline will stop and an upward swing will be witnessed, but Mr. Evans insisted that it is continuing.

He added that in Ontario the OMMB has given every shipper 17 per cent more quota that has become available since its inception at 1969 production levels.

"It is safe to assume there is this amount on hand of subsidy quota lying around in the Canadian dairy industry", charged the Athol farmer. "And how will we produce this extra 17 per cent more milk?" he demanded.

In reply to his own question Mr. Evans stated that it will mean 17 per cent more cows, 17 per cent more labour and 17 per cent more crops to feed the stock.

He said replacements for the big bevels come from the small dairy man and observed in 1966 there were only 18 herds in Canada "producing over a million pounds of milk annually. Now there are only 14, with four of them in Ontario.

"In spite of the processor howling for milk and factory quotas, the fluid market is always well supplied at the expense of the bulk industrial shipper," charged Mr. Evans. He said this forces him to question where the division of price lies. "Have we fostered a Gorgon's head or can the milk industry's problems be solved?" asked the concerned candidate for the election to the OMMB.

Horse Killed Under Rider

CHERRY VALLEY (Staff) — A Prince Edward County youth trail riding near Cherry Valley with four other horsemen Sunday afternoon, miraculously escaped serious injury when a car struck and killed the horse he rode.

Lorne Webb, 16, Picton, mounted on a horse loaned by Larry Everall, Cherry Valley, sustained a minor leg cut in the mishap.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said that a convertible driven by Robert Algar, 23, of 7 Agnes St., Picton, apparently slid out of control on a curve leading from Cherry Valley Road to Outlet Park. The car careened broadside into horse and rider and both Mr. Webb and his mount were thrown over the vehicle.

The driver of the convertible, his passenger, Shirley Knight, RR1, Bloomfield and Lorne Webb were treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital following the incident and released.

Police say the car rolled into a ditch after striking the horse and was totally demolished.

Post Office Girds For Yule Rush

TORONTO (Special) — The post office hopes the weatherman will schedule his meanest blizzards after the Christmas mail rush says L. C. Henry, forwarding supervisor.

"An unexpected blizzard during the critical ten days before Christmas will turn the post office into a scene resembling the Rocky mountains as millions of letters pile up," he said.

Mr. Henry told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer storms add moisture to the air which is absorbed by the paper envelopes. The envelopes stick to each other and a fraction of a second is required to separate them. The fraction of a second is magnified into hours when handling millions of letters, he said.

To avoid delays and backups during week before Christmas, the post office must move 60,000 pieces each hour through the Toronto forwarding office.

Toronto is the hub for forwarding mail in Ontario. Most mail entering one Ontario post office to any post office in the world passes through Toronto, said Mr. Henry.

During the Christmas rush the volume of mail triples. The planes at Malton airport daily can reach eight million during the peak.

Almost as soon as the final card was delivered last year, postal officials in Toronto met to plan the budgets, final mailing dates, and special transportation arrangements for this year.

Transportation contracts were signed with rail, truck and air companies during the summer, he said.

Dates for final posting of cards and gifts remain constant each year except for minor changes to avoid weekends. This year the final dates for delivery are December 8 for cards to distant points in Canada and the United States, December 13 for out-of-town mail, and December 17 for delivery in your own town or city.

Despite additional postage rates, changes in classes, and a trend away from cards by some people, Mr. Henry predicts a two per cent increase.

"People naturally want to send cards at Christmas," he said.

Mr. Henry said weather in other parts of Canada can also affect the operation of the post office in Toronto, particularly in staffing. To maintain a budget "a little above the break even point" the post office must balance the workload.

With an additional 2,000 part-time workers, a delay of an hour in receiving mail costs money. A severe storm in the west can also delay rail transportation. The post office may plan to handle four railway cars a day. A storm prevents the cars from coming and one morning when the weather clears, 12 cars of mail arrive, he said.

The critical week prior to Christmas includes mostly domestic mail. Incoming mail from England, Europe, South America and other countries reaches a peak before the domestic load, he said. Because of the increasing use of containerization and earlier deadlines, forwarding of foreign mail is considered routine. Last year the Toronto post office received the equivalent of 60 railway cars of cards and gifts from outside of Canada.

Everything is ready for Christmas 1971, says Mr. Henry. In fact, he says, one deadline has already passed. Christmas delivery of surface mail to Australia was October 12.

OMMB Candidate

Harry Evans of Prince Edward county, one of three area candidates seeking election as director to the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, is seen with carton of milk (which he insists he doesn't like), as he goes over recent campaign speech.

Indian Festival Celebrated Here

To celebrate Diwali, the ancient Hindu festival of lights, which is equivalent in India to Christmas in the Western world, the India-Canada Association of the Quinte district staged an ethnic event on Saturday night at Glen Miller Hall, Trenton. The second purpose of the event was to acquaint Canadian guests with some aspects of Indian culture.

A program of folk dances, songs and music was staged. also a parade of (traditional costumes from some of the provinces of the vast sub-continent, which was presented in the format of a fashion show with a commentary by Dr. B. M. Hegdekar.

Members of the Tibetan community of this area, who recently arrived in Canada after a long stay in India following the Chinese invasion of their homeland, were special guests at the event. As a token of appreciation to their Indian hosts, a group of Tibetan women contributed one of their native folk dances to the program.

Prior to the cultural program, a buffet supper featuring a large variety of authentic Indian dishes, (incidentally no relation to the "curry" known to North Americans) prepared by the women of the association was served.

MC for the evening was Dr. B. M. Hegdekar, president of the association. It was announced at the end of the program that a similar event, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Belleville, would be presented early next year.

An Old Story

R-E-V-O-L-U-T-I-O-N!

It is an old story isn't it, going back into the mists of time and grinding its way through history to the European conflagrations of 1848, Dublin in 1916, Leningrad in 1917 leading to the establishment of the modern Soviet state and the Communist political philosophy; and Budapest in 1956, the latter a heroic but abortive affair which left Hungary still under the heel of the Soviets.

There have been sundry other uprisings too — in China, in Prague in 1968, but leaving the Czechs too more subservient to Moscow than ever, coup d'etat affairs in Africa, not to mention the Vietnam conflict, the FLQ in Quebec and the IRA in Northern Ireland.

Talk of brotherhood and banishment of war is to ignore the basics of human nature; down the ages these fundamentals have been responsible for the kind of unrest typified by the happenings listed above.

Little has changed over the centuries. Consider that in 1591 Queen Elizabeth I chartered Trinity College in Dublin for "the banishment of barbarism, tumults, and disorderly living," yet universities traditionally have been the forum of political activism resulting in pitting man against his fellows. No matter that such trends ostensibly have been aimed at righting wrongs, real or imaginary, the resulting bloodshed is a high place to pay.

The fact that Trinity specifically has not been involved in any major eruption of this sort is be to its credit. Indeed it is known as a highly civilized institution.

From Queen Elizabeth's high-minded educational sentiments we come to the present day and our own relatively peaceful Canadian society. While we read last year's brush with terrorism, warnings are being sounded of possible trouble on the horizon. One of them comes from Paul Hellyer, former Liberal cabinet minister now off on his own as leader of the fledgling Action Canada political party.

Mr. Hellyer forecasts a bloody youth revolution in the streets if unemployment continues to rise. He says he has talked with a lot of young people "and I found a lot of alienation and disenchantment exists."

Others too take a pessimistic view, Dr. Norman Alcock for instance, the ex-physicist who gave up a successful career 15 years ago to establish the non-profit, non-partisan Canadian Peace Research Institute. Dr. Alcock, in an interview with Weekend magazine's Ernest Hillen earlier this year, was not optimistic. War, he believes, will find another number one problem and its prevention must be the personal responsibility of us all. "We can't afford to leave it to 'them' any more," he said. "It isn't going to be solved by Gigi or Pierre Trudeau, the Pentagon or the Kremlin. People at the grassroots level have got to be involved."

The question is, what action should be taken by an aroused public? Must we wait, as Dr. Alcock suggests, for a major disaster, say the destruction of New York or Moscow by the bomb, for world society to come to its senses? As Globe and Mail columnist Bruce West put it over the "backsliding period: "violence and hate seem to be growing in a ratio that almost exactly corresponds with the increasing talk we hear about love and peace and brotherhood..."

Let's keep saying it though, and without altogether abandoning our individual and national principles. Maybe if we can learn to defuse the seeds of controversy and arrive at mutually satisfactory solutions the watchword eventually, really and truly, will be P-E-A-C-E!

Kennedy on Ulster

Senator Edward Kennedy has been at pains in months past to dispel any idea he is interested in the Presidency — and all the more so since the assassination of his two elder brothers, not to mention the incident at Chappaquiddick.

Every now and then, however, he surfaces as a spokesman on this or that situation — such as the Vietnam war to which he is opposed, the India - Pakistani confrontation, and now the trouble in Northern Ireland.

Kennedy says the British should withdraw their troops from Ulster. The Kennedys of course are Irish Catholics, their forebears hailing from New Ross in County Wexford, and if nothing else such a statement will endear the senator to the large Irish Catholic population in the U.S. That it has also alienated the Heath government and British opinion generally goes without saying.

Is Kennedy thus preparing for a run at the presidency? Or is he just a meddler, with his foot in his mouth a good part of the time? Time may tell.

Economic Outlook Good Despite U.S. Measures

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian economists, business and government officials put together a generally optimistic view of 1972 recently, despite gloomy prospects for Canada-United States trade relations.

Prospects for the coming year were summarized by 17 speakers at the annual business outlook session of the Conference Board in Canada, a Montreal-based business and economics research institute devoted to providing objective information on economic trends and management practices. The session was held on the day U.S. President Richard Nixon announced new economic policies to follow the U.S. wage-price freeze.

Speakers hedged their predictions because of uncertainty about U.S. economic plans, but many said Canada would ultimately benefit if those policies are successful in stimulating the U.S. economy.

Most predictions were for a gain in Canadian gross national product of about 5% per cent coupled with a 3½-per-cent rate of inflation.

There were few projections of unemployment levels, but short-term prospects were for continued unemployment rates above six per cent.

There were no predictions on what the rates would be through 1972.

E. P. Neufeld, a University of Toronto economist, said it seems "Canada is facing a period of impressive economic expansion, but one in which there will have to be experimentation with new approaches to controlling inflation."

He said a "cyclical spurt in economic activity that will absorb the cyclical unemployment" is needed, but the economy has already begun a long-term growth cycle.

Prof. Neufeld said the problem of inflation "has become so intractable that I fully expect that Canada will have to adopt a system of wage-price guidelines" to match actions taken by the U.S.

J. Douglas Gibson, a Toronto financial consultant, said Canada must "take a fresh look at our relations with the United States."

Canada does not want to be part of the U.S. but needs the U.S. market.

Monetary policy—J. R. Beattie, deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, said government encouragement of use of domestic capital has had results.

"Net new issues of Canadian securities payable in foreign currency, which had risen from $600 million in 1965 to $1.7 billion in 1969, declined to $650 million in 1970 and to an annual rate of $350 million in the first nine months of 1971."

He said this shift to borrowing at home "has taken place more smoothly than probably anyone would have predicted."

Consumer credit—Douglas D. Peters, chief economist for the Toronto Dominion Bank, predicted consumer credit would increase by between eight and nine per cent this year and the total outstanding would exceed $10 billion by the end of the year. This would be above the average of 11 per cent during recessions years.

W. H. Poole, professor of business at Queen's University, said he anticipated consumers would be cautious in spending.

People tend to restrain their buying as a defence against inflation," he said, noting this pattern is counter to the logical expectation that people would spend before savings are devalued by inflation.

Automobiles—Ron W. Todgham, president of Chrysler Canada Ltd., said that while prospects for the industry may be affected by negotiations on the auto pact, he was optimistic.

Mr. Todgham forecast an increase of close to eight per cent in passenger-car sales during 1972 and a gain of more than 10 per cent in truck sales.

He projected total Canadian sales would be about 850,000 cars and trucks this year and about 920,000 in 1972.

Moira River Clean-Up

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recently, Bellevillians saw the completion of a large undertaking, that of cleaning up the waste and garbage scattered throughout our city. More so, the excellent part of the whole scheme was the cleaning of the Moira River done by the young members of our city, under the guidance of Col. Angus Duffy and behind the inspiration of our local PACE Committee and the support of our local downtown merchants.

One can now drive or walk along the Moira's river banks and actually see the bottom! gone are the nasty sights of garbage, floating objects, bottles, etc. I think citizens should take off their hats to all who were concerned and indicated true appreciation by not polluting the city or river in the future. Then the annual clean-up campaign proposed by PACE will not be so laborious and perhaps the city in general will be a better place to live in. Has had the correspondent from Colorado was not able to remain in Belleville now that the necessary steps have been taken to clean up the Moira.

A. P. NEWMAN

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Is the badly needed removal of garbage and litter from our river not considered as news of public concern?

Up to now I have heard no congratulations or appreciation from the citizens or the city of Belleville. The only article I have seen is of the band which played for the free dance after the clean-up on Saturday.

I am beginning to wonder just how much this city cares about the pollution of the Moira River which in past years brought many a tourist to this area. If your concern for our project reflects the public's attitude, then you might as well write off Tourism and forget civic pride. I can't blame the youth of this city one bit if this is the treatment we receive for caring about our environment. If your paper cannot print an article of appreciation then let me say thank-you to all those who participated in and organized the project and even if it helped only in a small way to stop the waste of our river it was worth it.

JOHN KIDD,
District Captain BCIVS 1971
Pollution Clean - Up of Moira River

EDITOR'S NOTE: Our pictorial coverage and report on Oct. 18 gave the salient facts — the recovery by more than 60 participating young people of some 25 tons of refuse, including refrigerators, tires and wine bottles. We also reflected the widest picture of the weekend's activities in this newspaper. In reference to the dance and disturbances by drinking youths who came on the scene. The efforts of the young people who took part and worked so hard were much appreciated by all and there have been letters to this effect on this page from members of the public.

The Funnies—Again!

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

My congratulations to T.Gers pa (Tigger's Paw?) on his genius concern for the quality of the Intell's reading material.

Such characters as Snoopy L'il Abner and Beetle Bailey are as much a part of our culture as Sir John A. Macdonald and Queen Victoria. If youth is to remain happy, they must not have these traditions taken from them.

Premier Favors 'Rule by Decree'

Is Democracy Going Out the Window in Cambodia Too?

WASHINGTON (CP) — When Premier Lon Nol announced this week in favor of "rule by decree" for Cambodia instead of "fruitless democracy," it was his words more than the act that apparently upset official Washington.

It was noted by some officials that not much would change in the Southeast Asian country. In actuality, they said, the National Assembly there had been ineffective and Lon Nol had been ruling by periodic reassertions of emergency power ever since March, 1970, when Prince Norodom Sihanouk was removed as chief of state.

The state department, perhaps in anticipation of an expected round of renewed criticism from some congressional quarters, seemed to be trying to put the best possible interpretation on the Cambodian leader's decree.

Spokesman Charles Bray said the Cambodian National Assembly "was not abolished." Instead "its term expired" and "rule by decree in an established precedent in Cambodia when there is no parliament in existence."

Certainly there was considerable confusion due to different translations of Lon Nol's words, but there was pretty broad agreement on the main thrust of his announcement.

Should Cambodia "vainly play the game of democracy and freedom" that would lead to defeat, or would it "curtail anarchic freedom in order to achieve victory?" Cambodia chose victory.

Bray told reporters the United States anticipates no change in policy towards Cambodia due to the new setup of government. Nevertheless, some observers felt the announcement came at the worst possible time with regard to U.S.-Cambodian relations.

The anguish over the no-confi. Oct. 5 debate in South Vietnam, after the U.S. had laboured so hard to set up all the mechanics and trappings of democratic process, still is fresh on Capitol Hill.

Not only that,the Senate foreign relations committee had just this week finished work on a $2.3-billion foreign aid bill that put new limits on military support for Cambodia and other Indochina countries.

There is certain to be a heated fight over the bill when it reaches the full Senate and House, however, Cambodia provides new ammunition for critics of the Nixon war policy.

Although the U.S. must of course reiterate its predilection for democracy, some observers feel that stability is far more important than democracy in Southeast Asia under the present wartime circumstances.

And many diplomats stationed in the Cambodian capital also are reported to be sympathetic with Lon Nol in his pledge to install democracy while unable to find a way under the pressures of war to do so.

As for the U.S. giving aid and comfort to a leader who even temporarily turns his back on the democratic process, President Nixon's remarks after the Vietnamese elections seem appropriate to the Cambodian situation.

"If we cut assistance to those governments which are not representative," he said then, the U.S. "would do business with very few governments indeed."

P.M. And Nixon Keep Distance

By DAVE McINTOSH

Repeatedly in recent days, opposition MPs in the Commons have been urged Mr. Trudeau to see, telephone or write Mr. Nixon about current Canada-U.S trade problems now spotlighted by the U.S. 10-per-cent import surcharge.

Mr. Trudeau has rejected these urgings and recently told Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield:

"If I thought anything positive would come from following up on such a suggestion, I would have followed it up long before now."

Mr. Nixon was originally scheduled to visit Ottawa this fall. But plans now call for a visit in the spring—about the time the president intends to go to China and Russia.

Canada sells arms to 29 countries, the government has informed the Commons.

The list was 39 in 1970 but South Africa and Pakistan have been cut off.

Canada still sells arms to Greece and Portugal, allies in NATO but dictatorial in government. However, these arms comprise only non-offensive items such as spare parts for vehicles, officials say.

Portugal gets from Canada only spare parts for old piston-engine planes because this country is the last source of supply.

There was an odd combination of supplies shipped to Pakistan just before the ban on shipments to both sides in the war when civil war broke out with East Pakistan. The last items sent were spare parts for aircraft engines and parachutes.

Countries buying arms from Canada are: Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Botswana, Brazil, Britain, Burma, Brunei, Chile, Colombia, Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, France, Germany, Ghana, Greece, India, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Kenya, Malaysia, Mauritius, Mexico, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Panama, Peru, Portugal, Singapore, Spain, Tanzania, Swaziland, Switzerland, the United States and Zambia.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ticked off the editors of Hansard, the official record of Commons debates, for allowing the bracketed word "applause" to appear after a tally by an MP.

He ruled that Hansard will stick to "Oh!" for denoting applause or jeers or whatever.

Hansard may be in for another wrist-slapping. Perry Mason, chairman of the Toronto Spadina, got mixed up in a motion and Hansard makes this observation:

"Some honorable members: Ha, ha."

There are 35,000 organizations in Canada registered with the revenue department as charitable organizations for income tax purposes—meaning exemption.

Many of these organizations which rely on mail appeals for funds have asked the government for relief from increases in the third-class postal rates.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote has ruled that it would be technically difficult and inequitable to set rates favoring one type of organization.

The Potential Was There For Big Conservative Win

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

The most surprising thing about Thursday's surprising election is that when in the cold afternath you dissect it how few actual surprises there were except for the over-all result.

There was a considerable turnover in the ridings and a good number of members, some of them quite prominent, were defeated.

But when you go through the changes seat by seat, there were very few in which there hadn't been enough advance indication of trouble to put them in the doubtful category.

One defeat that did come as an absolute surprise to me was that of Liberal Tim Reid in Scarborough East by Conservative Margaret Birch. No hint of this had reached me ahead of time. Also Cliff Pilkey in Oshawa was considered safe. But with all the rest—Walter Pitman in Peterborough, George Bukator in Niagara Falls, Gaston Demers in Nickel Belt and the various others—signals had been flashing.

Really the overall result itself wasn't all that much of a surprise either.

It was in the cards, if you looked for it.

As it happened, a friend and I went over the Conservative "possibles" a few days ahead of the vote and we came up with a total of 79 seats.

The potential was there. But this was the utmost potential, and not a result that on experience one ever expected to see. And particularly not in this election which had so many imponderables.

With these imponderables anything could happen. And when you considered them and looked to the other end of the line you could see the Conservatives with as few as 45 seats.

In fact bets around the press gallery ranged from 45 to 79 seats (happened, of course).

But what happened, of course, was that everything went for the government, the imponderables all went its way.

The supposed spirit of change which had hit other provincial elections just wasn't there.

The separate school question reacted in its favor. Even in French Catholic ridings its vote went up.

The new youth vote wasn't a factor.

And it was shown that the NDP's mass canvass technique while it can have some effectiveness, can't work miracles.

With the Davis image on top of this the not impossible but hardly likely happened. The Conservatives got their ultimate.

Actually they came up roses with the ultimate once before in recent times.

This was in 1951 when, in his first election, Leslie Frost won 79 of the then 90 seats.

A good many people have noted the similarity in the campaigning styles of Frost and Davis.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 25, 1971 . . .

Maurice Duplessis and his first Union Nationale government were defeated when the Liberals won 68 of the 86 seats in the Quebec provincial election 22 years ago today—in 1939. Adelard Godbout led the Liberals in a campaign filled with charges that the Union Nationale was lukewarm towards the Canadian war effort. Duplessis, however, was again victorious in 1944 and was premier until his death in 1959.

1958—Thirty persons were injured when a $2-million explosion destroyed a wide section in the business district of Ottawa.

1943—The second battle of the Philippine Sea ended with two battleships, four cruisers and four carriers of the Japanese Navy sunk by the United States Navy.

1927—The Italian ship Principessa Mafalda exploded off Brazil, killing 314 persons.

1886—Prohibition was approved in Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

1913—The Calgary Stock Exchange was incorporated.

Cattle, Hay Lost in Fire

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — A herd of cattle and a large quantity of hay were lost in a barn fire on the Huff's Island Road Saturday night.

Cause of the $40,000 blaze that levelled the barn of K. Werthoven at RR2, Belleville has not been determined.

Ameliasburg Fire Department received the alarm at 7:20 p.m. and kept three trucks at the scene through the night as they fought to contain the flames.

Knights Hold Family Breakfast

The Knights of Columbus held their annual family communion breakfast Sunday morning at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

E. J. Neville, superintendent of Hastings - Prince Edward Separate School board was guest speaker. He discussed some of the changes in North American education and outlined the present position of Ontario separate schools on a continuous high school program.

The Grand Knight, Frank Quinn, was introduced by Edward McDermott and the guest speaker was thanked by Leo Simpson.

Twice Best in Show

The star of the International dog show held in Frankford, over the weekend, sponsored by the Belleville and District Kennel Club, turned out to be about the smallest dog in competition. Owned by Dorothy Norman White of Youngstown, Ohio, the Maltese toy was chosen as third top dog of all breeds in the U.S.A. last year and has been honored "best in show" 29 times. The best in show is chosen from all the winners of the various categories in the show.

Dogs, People Flock to Show

Showers and handlers from every part of North America and many parts of Europe made the trip to Frankford, this past weekend to show off their pedigree prima donnas and claimed, "this is a great show right from the facilities to the trophies and ribbons awarded."

The hustle and bustle of making dogs more beautiful was made even more complicated with the large crowds that packed into the Frankford Arena.

"Not only did we not expect the large crowds that have been coming to watch the show," said one organizer, "but we never expected such a large crowd of showers."

When the final count was completed, it was found that more than 1,500 dogs had been entered into the competitions, and 300 of these had come from the Belleville - Trenton and Hastings area.

The shows were organized by the Belleville and District Kennel Club.

One of the highlights of the show was the junior dog handlers' competition where youngsters could have their first chance in some cases to exhibit a dog under competition circumstances.

"This is one place where the world is going to the dogs, and the people who are involved in it are at least part crazy," said an owner from the Kingston area.

On the average, it takes up to an hour and a half to groom a poodle for competition. This includes, shampooing, trimming (hair and nails) combing, retrimming and re-combing.

"If you didn't already know it," said one of the American representatives, "in the United States we spend more money annually on dog food than on baby food."

"One of the nice things about this show is that there are enough dogs entered into the various competitions, that a large number of animals are getting their Canadian Champion papers," said a visitor.

A Canadian Champion is a dog that has accumulated 10 points from three different judges from at least three separate competitions.

"The competition was also fortunate to have a glittering list of judges, coming from as far off as British Columbia and Great Britain. In all there were 16 judges for the three-days of shows, and depending on whether you talked to a winner or a loser, the consensus was that the judges, "were good".

Quinte Cadets Best

Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte was judged the top corps this year in its class — one with fewer than 75 cadets.

The corps was the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet general proficiency trophy presented by the Navy League of Canada.

The Sea Cadet program for young men from 13 to 18 years old is sponsored by the Navy League of Canada in co - operation with the department of national defence. It is a United Appeal agency.

African Speaker Here Wednesday

An African evangelist will be in Belleville Wednesday to give a first-hand report on the Christian church in action in his homeland.

Rev. Moses Ariye of Nigeria heads a Gospel team conducting campaigns in many cities under the sponsorship of the Christian Nationals' Evangelism Commission.

Mr. Ariye will be at Parkdale Baptist Church Oct. 27 at 8 p.m.

A graduate of the Sudan Interior Mission Seminary in Igbaja, Nigeria, he also has a degree from Central Baptist Seminary in Toronto. He was a pastor for the Evangelical Church of West Africa and served a church in Lagos, Nigeria. Following a year-long, nation-wide evangelical program in Nigeria he continued as a full-time evangelist. He has ministered throughout his homeland and in other nations of Africa.

Graduation Colorful Affair

To the theme of Up, Up and Away, members of the graduating class of Quinte Secondary School made their final official visit to their school to accept the words, "This evening you are being honored for achieving what you set out to do, some five years ago."

Parents and friends were packed into the auditorium to watch as 74 students were presented with their grade 13 certificates and 211 students were awarded their grade 12 certificates.

"We, the teachers, in every way attempt to keep the quality of the school as high as possible, but we are only as effective as the young people who walk in the front door allow us to be," said one platform speaker.

"As an example of the high standing these people have attained, we have five Ontario Scholars coming from our graduating class," said Robert Howard, awards superintendent.

Deborah Duffy, Patrick Gleeson, Ann Ketcheson, Barbara Mansfield and Richard Mason all received the coveted scholarship.

"What I would place foremost in importance from my past five years in this school, would not be so much what I learned in the classroom, but how I was taught to learn on my own, and how to live with others," said Susan Boardman in her valedictory address. "We have learned to communicate with each and how to respect their thoughts when they don't follow our own line of thinking, and this is important to me."

The highlights of the evening came in the portion of the program where prizes and awards were presented on behalf of at least 42 groups, individuals and industries.

School staff scholarships were presented to Sue Boardman and a graduating grade 12 student, Brenda Sweet.

The Intelligencer Scholarship for highest standing in grade 13 English was awarded to Debbie Duffy.

For the highest average in physical sciences, the Corby Distilleries Limited Prize went to Pat Gleeson of grade 13 and Wayne Kerik, a graduating grade 12 student.

For proficiency throughout all grades, all subjects considered, the Hastings County Board of Education award was presented to Ann Ketcheson.

The Lee Grills Prize for a student majoring in history on the university level was awarded to Darcy Lawton, and the Mary G. Plumpton Award for outstanding interest in Canadian history was presented to Brenda Symons.

The Governor of Canada prize for proficiency in history was presented to Leslie Edworthy.

Latin prizes for outstanding marks went to Ann Ketcheson and the Miss J. Tickell prize for highest standing in grade 13 French was awarded to Heather Ketcheson.

The Beta Sigma Phi prize went to Deanna Jones and the Rotary Club of Belleville prize was presented to Bonnie Whalen.

Reid's Dairy Company Limited went to Joyce Christy and Debbie Pearcey for [illegible] grade 13 biology. For outstanding achievement in grade 13 chemistry, the Chisholm Limited prize was awarded to Barbara [illegible].

The Avon Jewelry prize was [illegible] and the Wilson Concrete Limited Prize went to Curtis Nickel.

The student parliament prize was awarded to valedictorian Sue Boardman and the Belleville Kinsmen Bursary was awarded to Diane Bellemore.

Mrs. A. E. McColl Bursary was given to Tim Zebedee and Janna King was presented with the St. Julien Chapter of the IODE award. Miss King was also awarded the Royal Canadian Legion, Ladies Auxiliary Bursary.

The University Women's Club Bursary was presented to Barbara Phillips.

The Home and School Association Trophy for greatest [illegible] presented to Barbara Kirkland.

Girl Athlete Award went to Gladys Stephenson.

The Most Outstanding Boy Athlete award was presented to Barry Calkin.

High Honors

Some 300 students from grades 12 and 13 marched up to the platform at the Saturday evening graduation of Quinte Secondary School, to receive honors for achievement and proficiency. Here Deborah Duffy is awarded her grade 13 certificate by Mrs. Judy Hull. Later she was Declared an Ontario Scholar and also awarded The Intelligencer Award for proficiency in English.

FWIO President Main Speaker at WI Convention

Well over 200 members of Women's Institutes from the counties of Hastings, Northumberland, Peterborough and Prince Edward registered for the opening day of the convention in Oak Canora.

Presiding for the morning session was Mrs. Clifford Barber, area president and for the afternoon, Mrs. Gordon Macklin, first vice-president.

In charge of the musical sessions was song leader Mrs. C. H. Dallison and on the piano, Mrs. Alex Bell.

Corsages were presented by Mrs. Digweed to Miss McKercher from Home Economics Service, Mrs. A. Zoeller, president of the Women's Institutes of Ontario, Mrs. C. Barber, area president, Mrs. E. Sine and Mrs. W. C. Mann, board members and Mrs. McCulloch, secretary - treasurer for the area.

The main speaker for the convention was Mrs. A. Zoeller, president of FWIO. Mrs. Zoeller told the meeting that Institutes could will be proud of their nearly 75 years of accomplishments. One example is Miss Nazmine Saltman from Turkey, who was educated through the International Scholarship given by the FWIO.

Miss Saltman was this summer at the conference of the associated countrywomen of the world, held in Oslo, and there spoke to the assembly. The Turkish group at that time presented the FWIO with a hand worked tablecloth in appreciation of the Ontario efforts.

Mrs. Zoeller told the meeting that the ACWW Conference in Oslo was represented by 11,000 women from a possible 60 countries. The essence of the sessions was getting to know each other in basic things, such as how different groups were run, how often they met, how monies were raised. One of Institute's prime objectives is getting to know people.

There will be a special 75th anniversary luncheon, held in the Canadian Room of the Royal York Hotel on February 12, 1972 at which all Ontario branches may be represented. The guest speaker at that time will be Mrs. Olive Farquharson, the rural president from England.

Mrs. Zoeller told the meeting that the new titles for the convenorships will go into effect as the officers for the coming year are elected.

The second guest speaker for the convention was Miss Helen McKercher, from the Home Economics Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Miss McKercher said that although speeches at a convention may be forgotten, people are not. In the branch meetings of Institute opportunities are there for any member to develop as a leader. Every office, every short course, training school or 4-H club gives the members a chance to take part and grow. A good leader is an artist in working with people but is also a follower.

A good leader brings along other leaders.

Leaders are people who are thinking ahead. Do we look ahead with the confidence and eagerness that our great-grandmothers did? she asked. We must capture her pioneering spirit. "Great-grandmother might counsel us not to run with the hounds as domestic scientists but to leap ahead with an unusually keen eye to appreciation of the contributions of the various departments of domestic philosophy."

Roll call on the convention theme and the Institute motto For Home and Country" was answered by the Public Relations Officers of the districts.

During the business sessions the following resolution was carried: that the Women's Institutes of Ontario do everything possible and ask the Provincial government of Ontario to use its influence to help change this law," so that the property owner is not liable for these trespassers or anyone trespassing on his property; And that those persons are there at their own risk, also if any damage is done to the property owners' land or buildings that the traveller and trespasser be liable for this act.

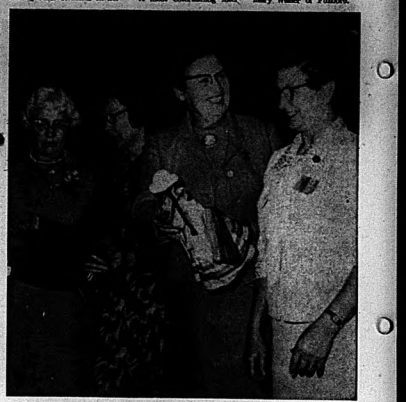
For the area the following bylaws were passed.

1. An honorarium of $35 be given to the Trent Valley Convention area president to help defray her expenses.

2. That the Trent Valley convention area send the president or the vice-president or the immediate past - president to the National convention and pay 75 per cent of her official living and travel expenses. No one officer to be delegate more than once.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: past president, Mrs. Clifford Barber; president, Mrs. Gordon Macklin; 1st. vice-president, Mrs. Clifford Reid; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Douglas Reid; 3rd vice - president, Mrs. Francis Tobin; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Gordon McCulloch; assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Percy Ray; public relation's officer, Mrs. Reg. Payne; Tweedsmuir curator, Mrs. Ralph Sills; provincial board directors - subdivision, no. 5, Mrs. Clifford Barber; alternate, Mrs. Earl Onderdonk; subdivision no. 6- Mrs. Garnese Mann; alternate Mrs. D. Raddon.

The convenors chosen were: agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Percy Carman; citizenship and world affairs, Mrs. Wellington Hennessey; education and cultural activities, Mrs. Alex Bell; family and consumer affairs, Mrs. Ted Puddephatt; resolutions, Mrs. T. M. Gresham; convention committe, Mrs. A. J. Rollins, Mrs. Rex Rollins and Mrs. E. Sine; auditors, Mrs. Ralph Simpson and Mrs. Floyd Bilcox.



Mrs. Clifford Reid, 2nd vice-president presided for the Friday morning session.

Mrs. E. Sine and Mrs. Clarence W. Mann provincial board directors reported that they had attended seven District Annual meetings; each of which was very different with displays of courses taken by members and neighbors.

Mrs. Ralph Sills, area curator reported that 81 Tweedsmuir History books have been compiled by branches of the area. The books contain pictures and information of the people, places and events in the branches' local.

Films were shown by Mrs. Sine of her trip to the Associated Country Women of the World in Oslo, Norway; and by Mrs. C. Mann on her trip to New Zealand and Australia.

A most entertaining interlude of Newfoundland folklore and song was given by Mrs. Mary Walker of Foxtrap.

Splendid Array of Handicrafts

Mrs. Clifford Barber, W.I. Provincial board director for Subdivision 5, Mrs. F. A. Zoeller, Provincial president of the FWIO, Mrs. Gordon Macklin, president of the Trent Valley area and Miss Helen McKercher, director of home economics for Ontario admire some of the crafts from displays set up by the various W.I. branches represented at the Trent Valley area convention. The convention was held on Thursday and Friday at Club Canara.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DENNIS GUNTER

Gunter – Gallinger

Bonnie Elizabeth Gallinger, daughter of Mrs. Shirley Gallinger was recently united in marriage to John Dennis Gunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Gunter at Bridge Street United Church. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Alfred Bradley while music was provided by Linda Johnston, organist and Rosaline Robertson, soloist.

Given in marriage by her uncle Russell Hamm, the bride wore a floor length gown of imported antique satin in Elizabethan motif. The empire bodice featured a wedding-band collar and full bishop sleeves trimmed with Alencon lace and white satin ribbon. A vertical row of the same trimming ran from the neckline to the hem of the A-line skirt. The chapel train fell from the waist and was adorned with the same trim. A four tier veil of silk illusion flowed from the bridal cap head piece composed of tiny stephanotis and miniature seed pearls held by a satin bow. She carried a white Bible accented with a single rose and three ribbons with a rosebud on each.

The maid of honor Miss Jude Gallinger, the bride's sister, wore a printed silk chiffon gown in shades of rose, brown and green with a wedding band collar, puff sleeves and brown velvet trimming at the empire waistline. A frill enhanced the bottom of the skirt.

The bridesmaid Miss Jane Abbott was dressed identically to the maid of honor. They carried nosegays of white and pink freesia.

The best man was Gary Gunter while guests were ushered by Johnny Bocne.

The reception was held at the Army and Navy hall. Guests were greeted by the bride's mother in a floor length gown of azure blue lace over taffeta with an empire bodice trimmed with a blue band of peau de soie. Caught at the shoulders with bows was a semi - attached cape.

Assisting her, the bridegroom's mother wore a peacock blue patterned crimplene dress with a stand-up collar and button trim on the sleeves and skirt. Her accessories were black and her corsage was of white baby mums with pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Quebec City, the bride donned a rust colored tweed pant suit with an Edwardian style jacket, and hibbed pants. She wore a corsage of yellow and white baby mums.

Upon return the couple will live in Belleville.

WEDDING

BARRIE — WARREN

An autumn wedding took place this month in Picton Park Free Methodist Church, Kingston, when Sherrill Esther May, youngest daughter of Rev. Dr. Barclay Warren and Mrs. Warren, became the bride of Dr.. Gordon Barrie of Aberdeen, Scotland.

MISS ELIZABETH LYNN McDOWELL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don McDowell, RR 4, Stirling graduated from the Toronto East General Hospital 'school of nursing, recently. Miss McDowell who graduated from Quinte Secondary School, Belleville has accepted a position on the staff of the Queen Street Hospital, Toronto.

Rev. Mervin Saunders of Montreal played the wedding music.

Attending the bride and bridegroom were Mrs. Helen Saunders, sister of the bride, and Dr. Ian Anderson, of Pembroke. The bride was given in marriage by her brother Dr. Robert May of Toronto and the ceremony was performed by her father.

The bride was attired in a white floor-length gown with matching coat of Ligoda material and wore a mantilla of lace. She carried a pretty basket of autumn flowers.

Following the reception, Dr. and Mrs. Barrie took a trip east, and have taken up residence in Toronto where he is doing post-graduate work.

Women's Institutes

WALLBRIDGE WI

The monthly meeting of the Wallbridge Branch of the Hastings West Women's Institute was held Thursday evening, October 14, at the home of Mrs. J. Loshaw.

The president, Mrs. G. Garrison welcomed the many ladies in attendance. The roll call was responded to by naming a country and its traditional food.

The secretary - treasurer, Mrs. D. Shorey, gave her reports.

Mrs. O. Chisholm invited the ladies to attend the sewing classes to be held in the near future. This course deals with the use of the many new fabrics and is entitled "knack for knits".

Mrs. E. Phillips reported on plans for the area convention to be held October 21 and 22. Mrs. W. Johnston will be the delegate from this branch.

Mrs. Phillips also told of plans made to date for the 75th anniversary to be celebrated with the ladies of the entire area on February 14, 1972 at the Stirling community hall. A theme song is needed for the district.

The ladies were invited to attend the tea and bazaar to be held at Hastings Manor on October 23.

Mrs. W. Johnston read some interesting and humorous items. Mrs. Carl Silke read a poem written by Mrs. S. Nicolson many years ago. The contest was won by Mrs. H. Fisher.

The monthly draw was won by Mrs. D. Shorey.

The ladies were asked to bring items suitable for a silent auction to be held at the November 11 meeting.

Mrs. D. Shorey will be hostess.

The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the Queen. Lunch was served by the committee.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Prior to her recent wedding Mrs. John Gunter (nee Bonnie Gallinger) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held by the staff of UIC at the home of Mrs. Betty Bland with Debbie Dougall as hostess. She was also honored at a shower hosted by Jane Abbott at her home. A presentation was made by the staff of UIC.

Malcolm Bird who has been a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital is now convalescing at his home, 134 Marion Street, Toronto 156.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

Are children impatient with shy children?

Answer: Impatient may not be the proper word. Admittedly few children try very hard to get reluctant children to play with them. After the first couple of attempts, most children give up. Yet they are not actually being impatient with children who need to be coaxed into playing. Most youngsters are on the defensive, and when another child won't play with them, they believe they are being rejected by a contemporary.

Does talking about a problem really help solve it?

Answer: Sometimes a person may indeed get a problem straightened out by talking it over with someone else. We must remember, however, that in discussing his difficulty he is able to review all the solutions he should and believes that simply talking about his problems is the complete answer, or that once he airs his troubles, he is finished with them and they become the responsibility of somebody else.

Is a man afraid of a woman who has everything?

Answer: Only an insecure man would be afraid of a woman who has looks, brains, charm, personality, a pleasing manner—the whole shebang, as they say. Someone who is mature and self-confident would expect the same qualities in another. But only a man who has self-doubts could regard a woman who seemingly has everything with fear; not fear that she would prove too good to be true, but that he may not meet her approval.

Family Tree Only Adds to Little Girl's Problem

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please, Ann, say something in your column about teachers who make family trees a classroom project. Our little niece came home yesterday with tears in her eyes. Marianne is my sister's child. She was born out of wedlock and we are raising her. Her mother is in California, but her father's identity was never made known.

Although Marianne is only nine years old she knows that her mother was never married. We wanted to adopt her four years ago when we took her to live with us but her mother would not agree to it. On Marianne's record at school, her mother is listed as Miss Alice ——. I warned Alice that this would be a problem and she replied: "She'd better learn to live with it." When the teacher asked the children to draw their family tree Marianne filled hers out as best she could. The boy across the aisle saw her tree and that started everyone else in the class to talking and laughing about it.

It is my suggestion that these days, when out-of-wedlock children are showing up in schools more and more, the tree project should be abolished. Thanks for your help—If I get it. — Tarrytown, N.Y.

Dear T. N. Y.: You've got it. I've never been very excited about family trees. Too often they turn out an abundance of sap.

Dear Ann Landers: I was disappointed in your answers to the woman whose friend gave her daughter a box of dusting powder as a high school graduation gift—one she had received during a recent convalescence. You have given AID to your column that a gift if what people want is give—and this time you responded with something about a "cheap streak."

I have learned not to knock the inexpensive gift. Last year in the office grab-bag-exchange at Christmas, I drew a little thing-a-ma-jig that looked like nothing. It was a small hook on the end of a string. Someone explained it was a zipper-pull. I though it was a pretty crummy gift but said nothing and put it away when I reached home.

A few months later I fell and injured my arm. It was impossible to zip my dress in the back. Then I remembered the zipper-pull. Ann, I wouldn't take $1,000 for that gadget. It turned out to be the most useful thing in the house. So please tell your readers not to be too hasty in their judgment of gifts. One never knows when that white elephant will turn out to be the best gift of all.—Lady

Dear Ia: In behalf of all the White-Elephant Givers in the nation I thank you. You've endeared yourself to them forever.

Dear Ann Landers: A neighbor of ours died recently. She was an elderly person, an eccentric, or to put it more bluntly, of her rocker. Our young son befriended her on a few occasions and although she expressed no thanks at the time it seems she did not forget his kindness. We were informed today that she left the boy $6,000 in her will. He is 14 years old, sensible, and has never been a problem to us. If he wanted to spend the money foolishly would he be free to do so? — Las Vegas

Dear L. V.: See a lawyer. He will tell you that a minor cannot spend an inheritance without the consent of his parents or legal guardian. (In some states the age of majority is 18 or 19, other states it's 21.)

Dear Doris: My husband runs around with my sister; has done so for a long time, in spite of the fact that we have two children and another one coming. He went with her before he went with me, and now I think he doesn't know which one he wants.

Even the children notice it. They say, "If Daddy doesn't love us, just Auntie, why doesn't he stay with her?" My sister is a person who is interfering in most of the family marriages.

He also makes sure I get a beating every so often .I can't put up with it any more. I'm not one to nag; I get so mad at him I can't say anything so I suffer in silence. Talking to him is impossible. I'm ready to leave.

He takes his guilty conscience out on me; denies his misdeeds and says it is around. which is a lie. — Fed Up

Dear Fed Up: Even a worm will turn. If you can't talk to him and your family won't help you, talk to somebody! A trained counsellor, preferably. You need somebody on your side.

Remember, if a wife finds it necessary to leave her husband for reasons of cruelty or faithlessness, she may sue him for support for herself and her children. You have both reasons. It is time you stood up for your rights and gave the children a break. Contact the child care agency for your area.

Dear Doris: I have indulged in self-spanking throughout adolescence. It bothers me that I can't discuss it with anyone, for fear they would not understand.

I have read books and magazines dealing with spanking on a sensationslist level, and am wondering if you could refer me to any material with a somewhat more intelligent approach to the subject.

I had thought I would grow out of it, but it doesn't seem so. I would rather not have to continue fantasizing being spanked, but who can I talk to without being thought perverted? — Frustrated

Dear Frustrated: Self-spanking is more common than you might think. There are people who have an urge to punish themselves and we call it masochism. The psychiatrists define it as "sexual pleasure from receiving pain". Sometimes a person gets somebody else to flog them with whips.

There are problems involved:

1. Self - spanking, which sounds more or less innocuous, can progress to pretty brutal flagellation.

2. Harmony with any sexual partner will be difficult because most girls will not enjoy being a partner to this behavior.

3. The very fact that you gain pleasure from a form of punishment suggests a deep-seated feeling of guilt or worthlessness. Perhaps you should think about this pretty deeply and see whether it is not reflected in other areas of your life.

All of which prompts me to suggest that you could use professional help to talk some things out .My psychiatric consultant thinks you should see a psychiatrist.

Family Cooking

Citrus Fruits Add Zest

By ALICE DENHOFF

Give a Midas touch to fall vegetables such as acorn squash and rutabaga (yellow turnip) with the aid of citrus fruits.

Nothing new under the sun? Well, there's lots of good recipe ideas and mighty good eating from Florida, where a wealth of citrus fruits grows.

Orange juice concentrate helps put the flavor in many recipes as does pure citrus juice and sections.

Incidentally, when sectioning oranges, always remove section by section over bowl so you won't lose any of the precious juice.

FLORIDA TURNIP PUFF

2½ pounds rutabaga
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoon frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
2 eggs

Cook rutabaga in boiling, salted water until tender, 35 to 40 minutes. Drain and mash. Add next 4 ingredients. Separate eggs. Beat yolks and rutabaga mixture. Beat egg white until stiff but not dry. Fold into egg white mixture. Turn gently into greased casserole and bake in 375 degrees F. oven 20 to 25 minutes. Serve immediately. Yields 4 to 6 servings.

BRAISED CELERY

2 bunches of celery
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
¼ cup orange juice

Wash celery, remove coarse outer stalks and tops. Slice in lengthwise halves. Heat butter in skillet; add onion, salt and thyme. Saute about 5 minutes over moderate heat; add celery and continue to saute 5 minutes longer.

Pour orange juice over all; cover and let simmer about 7 minutes. Serve at once. Serves 4 with a deliciously different vegetable dish.

STUFFED ACORN SQUASH

2 medium acorn squash
¾ pound ground pork
¼ cup cooked rice
3 tablespoons minced onion
6 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
¾ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 orange, sectioned

Cook acorn squash in boiling water about 15 minutes. Cut squash in halves, Scrape out seeds and string portion.

Blend together remaining ingredients except orange sections. Mound meat filling into squash halves. Place halves in pan with 1 inch of hot water. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven about 30 minutes or until squash is tender. Garnish with orange sections during last 10 minutes of baking. Serves 4.

Pop-off Gerry Pinder Helps Seals Win First

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gerry Pinder has a habit of popping up, or off, in the most unusual manner.

The 23-year-old Saskatoon native was hardly a household word after three National Hockey League seasons until last April when he earned critical acclaim for popping off at his coach.

He alleged Billy Reay wasn't using him properly in the Chicago Black Hawk lineup, that he was being ignored.

And when Chicago sent him to California Golden Seals earlier this season with goalie Gerry Desjardins in exchange for goalie Gary Smith, controversy followed.

The NHL ruled the trade void when it was learned one of the principals, Desjardins, had not fully recovered from a broken arm suffered in the latter part of the 1970-71 season and that these involved in the trade would not be able to work out with their respective teams until an amicable agreement was reached.

The two teams finally settled their differences last week and Pinder, true to his word, showed new boss Vic Stasiuk he can play hockey.

The fiery 163-pounder scored three goals and assisted on two others by Ernie Hicke as the Seals scored their first win of the season Sunday night, 6-4, over Detroit Red Wings.

The victory ended California's five-game losing string, after two ties to open the season, and were the first points for Stasiuk who took over the club 10 days ago.

In other Sunday games, Pittsburgh Penguins and New York Rangers tied 3-3, Boston Bruins edged Vancouver Canucks 4-3 in an afternoon game, St. Louis Blues downed Buffalo Sabres 7-2, Philadelphia Flyers clipped Chicago 3-1 and Minnesota North Stars cruised 6-3 over Los Angeles Kings.

Pinder's first goal, at 16:17 of the second period at Detroit with Wings' Al Karlander in the penalty box, broke a 2-2 tie. He added two more in the third along with Hicke's second before the Wings could reply.

Pittsburgh's Jean Pronovost and Vic Hadfield of the Rangers scored 32 seconds apart for the stalemate at New York, marred by an injury to Penguins' rookie goaltender, Jim Rutherford.

Rutherford, who came up through the Detroit farm system before moving to Pittsburgh in the off-season, made a sparkling save on Rangers' Bill Fairbairn who had broken in alone. He apparently injured his right leg making the save and was carried off the ice on a stretcher.

The Bruins needed a big effort to overcome a 3-1 deficit at Vancouver. Centre Phil Esposito notched the winning goal to increase his NHL point-leading totals to 16.

The Canucks had opened a two-goal lead on Andre Boudrias score at 16:49 of the second period before goals by defenceman Bobby Orr and veteran Johnny Bucyk brought the Bruins even and kept them within a point of New York in the East Division race.

Veteran defenceman Carl Brewer's first goal of the season at Buffalo spearheaded the St. Louis victory. Brewer's goal opened up a 3-1 lead for the Blues before Sabre rookie Richard Martin narrowed the gap with two minutes remaining.

Bob Kelly intercepted a pass at the Chicago blueline and fed the puck to Serge Bernier for the winning score at Philadelphia.

Bernier flipped a 10-footer over goalie Tony Esposito's shoulder at 6:47 of the third period and prevented the Hawks from gaining any ground on the rebounding Minnesotans who moved into a second-place tie with Pittsburgh in the West, three points behind Chicago.

Dean Prentice scored twice and assisted on another goal and Murray Oliver drew four assists as the North Stars smothered the Kings at Los Angeles.

The Kings narrowed a 4-1 margin with goals 25 seconds apart by Al McDonough and Ross Lonsberry in the second period.

But Danny Grant, while the Kings were a man short, and Bob Nevin clinched the victory with third-period scores.

Orr Spark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defenceman Bobby Orr sparked Boston Bruins to two key victories on the West Coast this weekend to keep them just one point away from New York Rangers in the National Hockey League East Division race.

Orr scored one goal and added one assist as the Bruins edged Vancouver Canucks 4-3 Sunday afternoon. His total of three goals and 11 assists for 14 points gives him a share of second place in the NHL scoring race with Rod Gilbert of New York, two points behind teammate Phil Esposito.

The leaders:

Esposito, B	6	10	16
Gilbert, NY	4	10	14
Orr, B	3	11	14

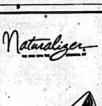
Hornets Maintain Their Image

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last year's championship team and scoring leader in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series are continuing their winning play this season.

Galt Hornets, Canadian Senior champions, held first place by beating Barrie Flyers 5-3 Saturday. Ron Hergott, the scoring champ, led the way for the Hornets with two goals and an assist.



In other weekend action, Belleville Quintes blanked Woodstock Royals 4-0, Oakville Oaks downed Orillia Terriers 5-3 and Kingston Aces tied Owen Sound Crescents 2-2 Sunday after downing the Crescents 5-3 Saturday.

In Galt, Ron Smith, Pete Brennan and John Nickerson counted the other Galt goals. Doug Acomb scored twice for Barrie while Bob Baird scored the other.

Sunday, in Kingston, Terry Keeling of the Crescents scored the tying marker at 17:56 of the third period to send the game into a scoreless 10-minute overtime period. Stan Allen scored the other Owen Sound goal.

Chiefs Rule Tribe

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took a full-scale Indian war to stop the rampaging Redskins and when the dust settled it was—quite fittingly—the Chiefs who subdued the tribe.

Washington Redskins went into Sunday's National Football League action as the only undefeated team and it appeared they would stay that way as they carried a 17-8 lead into the second half against Kansas City.

But 30 minutes and three Len Dawson touchdown passes later, the Chiefs were whooping it up with a 27-20 victory.

"It's not the end of the world," Washington coach George Allen said. "We're a fine football team and we will come back. We were a team that was supposed to finish last. I'm proud of the way our team played."

In Sunday's other games, Chicago Bears defeated Detroit Lions 28-23, Miami Dolphins beat New York Jets 30-24, Philadelphia Eagles whipped New York Giants 23-7, Dallas Cowboys demolished New England Patriots 44-21, Oakland Raiders edged Cincinnati Bengals 16-14, Atlanta Falcons dumped New Orleans Saints 24-10, Los Angeles Rams shelled Green Bay Packers 30-13, Denver Broncos stunned Cleveland Browns 17-6, San Francisco 49ers slapped St. Louis Cardinals 26-14 and Pittsburgh Steelers trounced Houston Oilers 23-16.

In Sunday night's lone game, San Diego Chargers smothered Buffalo Bills 20-3. And tonight, in a contest that looms as a brutal defensive collision, Minnesota Vikings host Baltimore Colts.

Dawson, who wound up completing 19 of 30 passes for 302 yards, began hitting with consistency in the second half. He hit his favorite receiver, Otis Taylor, with scoring strikes of 28 and 36 yards and found Elmo Wright with a 15-yarder. That wiped out the first-half heroics of Washington runner Billy Kilmer, who teamed with Charley Taylor on touchdown tosses of four and 36 yards.

It was Kansas City's fifth successive triumph. Washington's streak ended at five, its best since the start of the 1940 season when the Redskins captured their first seven.

What would have been a day of rejoicing for the Bears became one of mourning for all of pro football as Lions wide receiver Chuck Hughes, a five-year veteran from Texas, collapsed on the field and died a short time later of what Detroit team physician Dr. Richard Thompson said was apparently a ruptured major blood vessel.

Third-string quarterback Bobby Douglass directed the Chicago upset, throwing touchdowns of 54 and 15 yards, then plunging over from the one for the winning score.

"We can do this against anybody," Larry Csonka said after scoring two touchdowns and teaming with Jim Klick to roll up 258 yards on the ground in the Dolphins' romp over the Jets.

"It was a wonderful, wonderful feeling to win," coach Ed Khayat said after the Eagles beat New York for their first win of the season, thanks primarily to Happy Feller's three field goals.

The Cowboys opened their new home, Texas Stadium, in grand style as Roger Staubach threw touchdown passes of 30 and 26 yards to Bob Hayes and ran two yards for another score against the outgunned Patriots.

George Blanda, who made a habit of saving the Raiders last season, came off the bench against the Bengals to direct his team-mates to two touchdowns and a come-from-behind victory.

Another pub quarterback, Dick Shiner of the Falcons, also sparkled as he passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third against the Saints.

Rowan Gabriel was the Rams' star, passing for three touchdowns in their victory over the Packers while the Broncos held the Browns' potent ground game to a measly 36 yards in their upset romp.

John Brodie fired a 50-yard touchdown bomb to Dick Witcher and Bruce Gossett booted four field goals to lead the 49ers over the Cardinals. Terry Bradshaw and Joe Gilliam Fuqua ran for fourth-quarter touchdowns as the Steelers rallied to trim the Oilers and John Hadl hit Billy Parks with scoring passes of 56 and 12 yards to lead the Chargers past the Bills.

HUGHES TAKEN FROM FIELD — Detroit Lion wide receiver Chuck Hughes lies on his back with his right arm dangling off the stretcher. Lion Collapses, Dies After Loss

DETROIT (AP) — Words were replaced by tears and bowed heads as Detroit Lions filed solemnly from their dressing room Sunday after a 28-23 National Football League loss to Chicago Bears.

Chuck Hughes was dead.

The likable, 28-year-old Lion wide receiver collapsed on the field with a minute left in the game and at 4:41 p.m., about an hour after the game, was pronounced dead at a nearby hospital.

Dr. Richard A. Thompson, one of two team physicians, said an autopsy would be performed today but added that cause of death was likely a ruptured vessel of the aorta, heart, or possibly the brain.

Six weeks ago Hughes underwent a complete physical examination and was pronounced fit.

Reporters were barred from the dressing room, where the Lions said a team prayer for Hughes and waited hopefully, but pessimistically—for news from Henry Ford Hospital of his condition.

Hughes had replaced injured Larry Walton in the fourth quarter and caught a 32-yard pass from Greg Landry with 1:38 remaining. He was immediately sandwiched by Bob Jeter and Garry Lyle of the Bears. The next three plays of the desperation drives were incomplete Landry passes, and it was after the third that Hughes, heading for the huddle, clutched his chest and collapsed on the 15-yard line.

"He came back to the huddle and seemed okay," a spokesman quoted Landry as saying. "Nobody thought anything of it."

A few crucial seconds passed before anyone realized the gravity of his condition, and Detroit officials rushed to his aid.

Dr. Thompson pounded his chest in external massage while other team physician, Dr. Edwin Guite, gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Also helping was Dr. Eugene Boyle, an anesthesiologist, who came out of the stands.

Hughes was put on a stretcher and taken to the hospital.

A team spokesman said his heart had stopped beating but was revived on the field, before it stopped again.

Gotta's Decisions Look Better All Time

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

During the course of the year, Jack Gotta made two monumentous decisions.

The Ottawa Rough Rider coach put Ivan Mcmillan, the 1970's teen-age kicking sensation, on waivers before the Canadian Football Conference season started, then midway through decided to dump veteran quarterback Gary Wood.

Dropping MacMillan was a precarious move by Gotta. MacMillan, 19, from nearby Alexandria, Ont., was practically a hometown boy, and his kicking feats of the previous year had been one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal season.

But the sophomore coach had reasons. He wanted versatility and had in camp another young rookie kicker, Gerry Organ, who could also fill in at offensive end.

Organ arrived with high credentials, having been steered to Ottawa by Garnet Henley of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, a member of the physical education faculty at Guelph University.

Gotta's reason for letting go of Wood, the six-time New York Giant signal caller, was less questionable than was his decision to replace Wood on the roster with Paul Brothers to back up Rick Cassata.

Wood couldn't make the Ottawa a winner, but by the same token Brothers had just been released by British Columbia Lions of the Western Conference for the same reason.

But the Rider coach's decisions seem to be paying dividends.

The high-flying Riders, with quarterback Rick Cassata calling the offensive shots and Organ, the EFC scoring leader with 83 points, continuing to impress with his booting, crushed Hamilton 46-18 Saturday to keep their conference playoff hopes alive.

They got a little help from the West Sunday when the visiting Winnipeg Blue Bombers upset Montreal Alouettes 19-18 at the Autodrome.

The Ticats, who could easily have paralyzed eight Ottawa turnovers in the first half into at least 30 points, could only muster a 10-6 lead and this vanished quickly once the Riders got into the extreme case of fumbling.

Defensive halfback Barclay Allen and Al Marcella put the finishing touches to the humiliating Ticat setback when they intercepted two desperation passes by Hamilton quarterback Joe Zuger in the final minute and returned them for touchdowns.

Organ contributed four field goals and four converts, for 16 points, including kicks of 27 and 14 yards early in the fourth quarter that sent Ottawa into the lead. Cassata directed the Riders offence to two touchdowns—passing for one to Dave Pivec and running and passing them into a position where Bob Hoenard could dive for another.

Dick Wesolowski, on a fumble by Marcella in the Ottawa end zone, and Lewis Porter on a 47-yard pass from Zuger, scored for Hamilton. Tommy Joe Coffey had added one converted. Doug Mitchell boomed a long kickoff single and Ottawa's Marcel Desrosiers contributed another two points to Hamilton by conceding a second-quarter safety.

Don Jonas's 15-yard field goal midway through the fourth quarter at Montreal assured the Blue Bombers of not only a victory in the East but also a playoff spot in the West.

The Bombers completed their season with 10 points and third place in the Western Conference after their closest rivals, B.C., dropped a 35-18 game Sunday to Saskatchewan Roughriders and remained four points behind.

Jonas, who had missed three earlier field goal attempts, also kicked two singles and converted touchdowns by Paul Williams and Mack Herron.

And the Als, who already were hurting at quarterback with a shoulder injury to Sonny Wade suffered two games ago, got some additional bad news from that position as they started preparing for the struggle against Ottawa next Saturday in the capital city.

Rookie Jim Chaney, who had been doing a good job in relief of Wade, was lost to the club in the fourth quarter with a dislocated elbow.

"It's almost likely through for the season," said a disappointed coach Sam Etcheverry.

Roughies Keep Stamps on Toes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The hectic battle for first place remains undecided in the Western Football Conference after high-scoring weekend games which featured brilliant individual efforts and another record day Saskatchewan's George Reed.

However, it wasn't a total loss as far as the playoff race is concerned, thanks to Winnipeg Blue Bombers who took an away-from-home 19-18 win over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League interlocking game Sunday.

It was enough to clinch the third and final playoff position for the Bombers—the first time they've been in the Grey Cup battle since 1966—although they had to wait a few hours to celebrate.

Later in Regina, Saskatchewan Roughriders hammered British Columbia Lions 35-18. Reed now has 10,927 yards.

Calgary Saturday night, the red-hot Edmonton Eskimos won their fourth straight with a 34-12 triumph over the slumping Stampeders.

The Calgary defeat was the fourth in six games.

The results left Saskatchewan and Calgary in a first-place tie, each with 10 points, and both squads have one game remaining. If the teams are deadlocked at the end of the regular-season schedule, the Stampeders would get first because of a better points for-against in league games with the Roughriders.

In Regina, Reed shattered his third CFL record of the year—he also has the mark for career carries and touchdowns—as he picked up 47 yards on 11 rushes.

He surpassed the previous rushing level of 10,909 yards formerly held by Johnny Bright of Edmonton and Calgary. Reed now has 10,927 yards.

Jones Justifies Self With First-shift Goal

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

It took Dave Jones exactly 11 minutes and 19 seconds to justify his signing by Belleville Quinte's last prior to Saturday night's OHA Senior A hockey game with Woodstock Royals.

At 11.19 of the first period, in his first ice appearance, Jones netted the winner - play point shot that proved to be the season's goal as the Quintes blanked the visiting Royals 4-0.

"You saw for yourself why we wanted to sign him," said Coach Gene Pickle after Jones showed that he still belongs in senior hockey 14 years after he first skated in these rushes.

Pickle spotted Jones as a power play point man and penalty killer most of the game's first half, but the veteran fitted right into place between Ralph Plane and Wayne McConnell near the end of the second period.

On that combination's first shift, Jones dekked a Woodstock defenceman, and slid a perfect goalmouth pass to Bob Corrie for the Quintes' third goal.

"Yes — I played reasonably well — I'm still out of shape — but it made it if lot easier playing with a couple of guys I'd played with before," Jones said later.

Earlier in the second period, George Godson had given the Quintes a 2-1 lead by steering Al Ferguson's perfect centering pass behind Woodstock goalie Art Fraser.

Ferguson stayed among the league's leading goal-scorers by potting his seventh of the year, a high hard one over Fraser's left shoulder at 16.42 of the final frame.

Ferguson, who missed one of the Quintes' six games, has now scored in every game he has played.

The shutout was as easy as Steve Rexe has ever recorded in his senior hockey career. The redhead had only 15 shots to handle in the entire game from the same team that had pumped seven goals behind the previous night in Woodstock.

"They had a good chance right off the bat in the third period," Rexe recalled, "but the puck went right over the net."

The score could just as easily have been 8 - 0, Ralph Plane, George Godson, Perry Chittick, and even defenceman Pete Stoutenburg were all in on Fraser alone but couldn't cash in.

"But that's the beauty of it," coach Poirier beamed, "at least we were getting those kind of good scoring chances. Friday two couldn't get any kind of a break," he said of the 7-3 road setback.

The two points vaulted Belleville over the Royals into second place in the eight - team standings. Their 4-2 record leaves them two points back of Galt Hornets (3-2) who play in Belleville next Friday night.

Imperials Feel Right at Home

The Blake Kerr Imperial midgets made themselves at home no matter what ice surface they played on in a pair of minor hockey all-star exhibition games this weekend.

The Imperials blanked Belleville's Western Tire juvenilles by a 3-0 count Sunday morning and then traveled to Trenton to enjoy a 7-3 win over their arch midget rivals.

Andy Rickards paced the win over Trenton with a hat trick performance, with single goals going to Mark Coates, Mike Watt, Darrell Brown and Paul Ackerman. Watt, Brown and John Masterson were the marksmen in their 3-0 win over Western Tire.

The juvenile all-stars had been on the other end of a 3-0 count Saturday, when they defeated their Kingston counterparts. Joe Watson scored a pair of goals for Belleville with midget call - up Peter Smrke counting the third.

Fairways Close To Taming Lions

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Peterborough Lions showed that they still have sharp claws, but in spite of a 3-2 win over the Belleville Fairways, Sunday it appears as though they may find things a little tougher repeating as top oats in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League.

"It was our best game of the year. We just didn't have any luck around the net," remarked Belleville coach Moe Hunter of his team's one-goal loss. "We must have outshot them in both the second and third periods."

The Lions drew first blood when husky right winger Derrick Emerson popped in a pair of quick goals past Bill Sernisky, marking his first regular season start in the Belleville goal. The Trenton juvenile graduate went on to play a strong game, however, allowing only a second-period breakaway goal by Jim Johnston.

Right winger Tim Yohn got the Fairways on the score-sheet in the opening period connecting on a screened drive. Belleville's other counter came from a scramble around the Lions' net in the third period, with Dave Smith cashing in the chance.

The losers came close to squaring matters in the dying seconds of the game, after lifting Cormier for a sixth attacker but were unable to get the puck past goalie Terry Wasson despite applying considerable pressure.

Fairways Brian O'Coin came up with his best showing of the year, relieving on a line with Mark Woodward and Jeff Howard also turned in strong showings.

Each team was assessed a total of seven penalties, with a first-period fighting major to Peterborough's Lee Palmer and a third-period penalty to be only majors in the game.

The Fairways' next game will be Tuesday, November 2 when they travel to Kingston for an encounter with the Canadians, recently administered one of the three Belleville losses this season.

Canucks Take Two To Tango

GANANOQUE (Special) — It took the Quinte Canucks a period to warm to the task, but they managed to make things hot for their Gananoque hosts to take a 7-2 Eastern Ontario Junior B league decision Sunday.

The Picton team had trailed 3-1 at the end of the first period of play between the league's two Junior "C" entries, Bill Strondale and Jim Gerow counted for Gananoque, with Dave Ferguson getting the lone Quinte marker. Ferguson was a member of the Belleville Fairways last year, but elected to play in his home town of Picton this season.

Goals by Vernon Amey, Larry McQuaid a nd Eugene Berndt put the Canucks in control of the game after two periods. McQuaid and Randy Ellis scored in the final frame for the winners who drew seven of the game's 13 minor penalties.

Mosquitos Still Biting

The Falcons mosquitos proved to carry the toughest sting in a pair of minor soccer exhibitions this weekend as The Falcons utilized an excellent team effort to maintain their unbeaten record this season with a 4-0 win over Trenton at the OSD field.

In the second game, the Falcon peewees and Trenton battled to a 4-4 draw in a loosely played contest.

Life Still Leisurely In Dublin's Fair City

DUBLIN (AP) — Life is as leisurely as ever in the capital of the Irish Republic, yet an unmistakable undercurrent reflects events in Northern Ireland. In one sense, this has become a city of whispers—sometimes denoting a kind of guilt conscience, sometimes fear of what may happen.

The "six counties" to the north are under British rule, as the republic itself once was, and events around Belfast shock and dismay the Dubliner. But as one says: "Frankly we're scared stiff at getting directly involved. Selfish I suppose."

Despite a wave of nationalism there are mixed feelings about the tactics of the Irish Republican Army.

Everyone seems to know who the IRA are but you are advised not to mention them by name in public—at least in Dublin.

Hotels and stores complain that rioting and shooting in the North have scared off tourists.

"They get the impression all Ireland is embroiled in turmoil," said one hotel manager.

"Ted tells British to Quit North," read one headline last week, reporting Senator Edward M. Kennedy's demand for the withdrawal of British troops.

This clashed with the views of Dr. Conor Cruise O'Brien, former UN negotiator in Congo during that country's troubles. O'Brien takes the stand that troop withdrawals would lead to the slaughter of outnumbered Catholics and bring civil war—even the danger that the Republic might be drawn in.

O'Brien has denounced the IRA tactics of waging a "shooting war against the British army, and also the Ulster government's internment policy. He claims the only solution is a political solution.

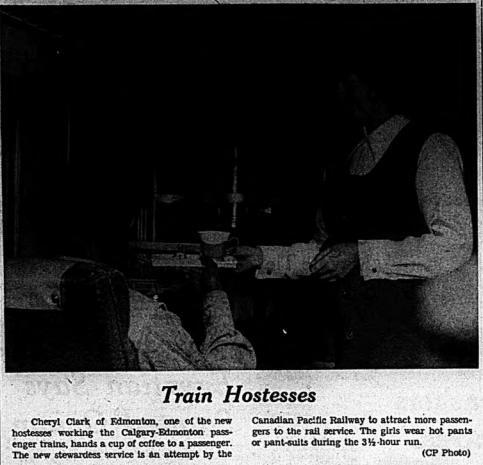
Five Perish In Fire



ST. HENRI DE LEVIS, Que. (CP) — Five children died early Sunday when a fire ripped through a two-storey wooden house in this community, 15 miles southeast of Quebec City.

Provincial police identified the victims as Serge Pomerleau, 12, his brother Richard, 9, and his sister Solange, 7, as well as Gaylaine Gagnon, 14, and her sister Lynn, 12. The two Gagnon girls were visiting the Pomerleaus.

Gerald Pomerleau was taken to hospital suffering from first-degree burns while his wife was suffering from shock.

Their daughter, Claudette, had to be treated for third-degree burns but was reported in satisfactory condition.

Cause of the fire, which started around 12:30 a.m., was not immediately known.

Train Hostesses

Cheryl Clark of Edmonton, one of the new hostesses working the Calgary-Edmonton passenger trains, hands a cup of coffee to a passenger. The new stewardess service is an attempt by the Canadian Pacific Railway to attract more passengers to the rail service. The girls wear hot pants or pant-suits during the 3½-hour run.

Catholic Missions Are Barred

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul said Sunday that "many frontiers are still forbidden" to Roman Catholic missionaries "in spite of the modern declarations of the rights of man and of freedom of thought."

The Pope did not elaborate or name the countries whose frontiers are closed.

Vatican sources, however, said the Pope's remarks referred to some Communist countries and especially mainland China, which had been expelling Roman Catholic missionaries.

Pope Paul spoke during a mass he celebrated in St. Peter's Basilica on the occasion of the World Missionary Day observed today by Roman Catholicism.

U. S. Surcharge Not Equitable Congressional Study Reveals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard Nixon's surcharge on imports is not an across-the-board 10-per-cent levy and actually hits some United States trading partners much harder than others, a congressional study concludes.

This is due mainly to the fact that it does not apply equally to all products. And an analysis by the staff of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives says, for example, that the additional duty applies to only 2 per cent of imports from Venezuela, but to 92.2 per cent of those from West Germany.

The study was prepared for committee chairman Wilbur D. Mills (Dem.—Ark.).

Overall, additional duties apply to only about 48 per cent of U.S. imports, and about 12½ per cent are estimated to be subject to less than a 10-per-cent surcharge.

More than half the imports to which additional duty applies, the study says, come from five countries—Canada, Japan, West Germany, Britain and Italy.

Bill of Rights Being Used To Despoil Indians -- Horn

WATERLOO (CP) — The Canadian Bill of Rights is being used to despoil Indians of their lands, Indian activist Kahn-Tineta Horn said Saturday.

Miss Horn said the Bill of Rights was cited in a recent appeal decision that restored treaty rights to an Indian woman who had been deprived of them under the Indian Act after she married a white man.

An official of the department of Indian affairs and Northern development said Oct. 18 that Indian women marrying non-Indians no longer will lose their rights and status as Indians.

A Federal Court had upheld an appeal by Jeanette Corbiere Lavall, 28, against a lower court decision to remove her name from the Wikewemikong band on Manitoulin Island because she had married a white man.

Miss Horn said the appeal decision was "cunning manipulation of the courts."

If this decision is allowed to stand every Indian will be driven from his land within a few years.

She was speaking at the 10th annual seminar of the Iroquoian Institute of the University of Waterloo.

David Lewis Applauds Constitutional Review

OTTAWA (CP) — David Lewis, federal leader of the New Democratic Party, was quick Sunday to applaud proposals for constitutional review adopted at a special weekend convention by the Quebec wing of the party.

Mr. Lewis said in a statement he is "greatly encouraged" by the results of the convention which at one point considered the possibility of a breakaway from the national party.

He also congratulated Quebec NDP president Raymond Laliberte and other officials for their "statesmanship and broad Canadian outlook."

The convention approved a proposal for a national all-party convention intended to work out a new constitutional "consensus" for Canadians.

Mr. Lewis said adoption of the proposal means that "the whole party stands united in the belief that all Canadians must seek new ways to work together in the framework of a single country."

Canadian Film Wins Gold Medal

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — The Canadian film Synchromy, directed by Norman McLaren, was awarded the gold medal of the 19th international short color film festival here Sunday.

McLaren, a leading director of the National Film Board, is a native of Scotland but has been living in Montreal since the 1940s.

The Canadian short, Images by Julius Kobza, received a special award.

More than 40 films from 22 countries were entered for the eight-day festival which began here Oct. 16.

Law Review Tribunal Advocated

DELAWARE, Ont. (CP) — A University of Windsor law professor said Saturday a tribunal which includes representatives of the public should investigate complaints about law enforcement.

Prof. Walter Tarnopolsky, speaking to about 80 delegates at a conference on community-police relations, said the tribunal should replace the Ontario police review board which he said is dominated by judges.

"There is little involvement with citizens and police," he said of the present system.

He recommended a tribunal be headed by a judge but have as members a lawyer, representatives of the public and policemen.

The conference in this community, five miles west of London, was sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

Fifteen Charged Following Fights

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Police charged 15 persons Saturday after a series of fights near a downtown hotel. Eighteen police officers spent two hours at the scene as about 200 spectators watched.

Police said there was no explanation for the fights which involved women and men. Nine persons are charged with creating a disturbance, four with obstructing police and two with assault.

Ray Expected Pardon By 'President' Wallace

CHICAGO (AP) — His former lawyer says James Earl Ray allowed himself to be captured and sentenced for the assassination of Negro civil-rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. because he expected to receive a presidential pardon from George C. Wallace.

Percy Foreman, who was Ray's lawyer when he pleaded guilty without a trial to the murder charge, said Ray expected the Alabama governor to be elected president of the United States in 1968 and that Wallace would grant him a pardon.

Ray, who since has hired new lawyers, has argued in petitions for a trial that it was Foreman who promised he would be able to get Ray a pardon if he pleaded guilty. Ray said Foreman told him he knew who the next governor of Tennessee would be and that Foreman would be able to get the pardon through him within two years.

Foreman has denied Ray's charges.

Ray is serving a 99-year sentence in Tennessee for the April, 1968, slaying of King at a Memphis, Tenn. motel.

"He figured in his simple mind that everything is black and white," Foreman said in an interview in Saturday's editions of the Chicago Daily News.

"He figured that he would automatically be the white hope, the champion of the white race." Foreman said of Ray.

Policemen At Hull End Strike

HULL, Que. (CP) — Both the city and its police force accepted this weekend an offer for a raise in municipal police pay, ending a dispute that kept Hull police off the beat for 40 hours earlier in the week.

The city's executive committee voted Sunday night to accept the same wage offer the policemen voted to accept Saturday night.

But Mayor Marcel D'Amour said he accepted the offer with regret and warned that city taxes will probably rise because of the settlement.

Pay for first-class constables will rise to $10,000 from $7,696 immediately and to $10,000 Oct. 25, 1972. The men will receive lump $200 sums now, but no retroactive pay.

The two-year contract was worked out in negotiations conducted by Pierre Valois, a mediator with the Quebec labor department.

The Hull Municipal Policemen's Union had sought a raise to $11,600 during a two-year period.

Police returned to work Friday afternoon after new offer was relayed to the union by deputy police chief Rolland Morin. Saturday night they voted to accept the offer.

Property damage was reported two nights in a row where about 70 police left their beats to take part in a study session at midnight Wednesday.

Official Recounts Confirm Winners in Ontario Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's all over but the recounting in last Thursday's Ontario election, with several official recounts having already been made to confirm narrow-margin wins, and more judicial recounts a possibility.

A judicial recount is likely in the riding of Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, whose Progressive Conservative rival Richard Kirkup has charged there were voting irregularities.

Mr. Kirkup lost to Mr. Lewis by 166 votes. A recount Friday gave Mr. Lewis 13,080, Kirkup 12,927 and Liberal Frank Faubert 7,230.

In Ottawa Centre, where unofficial results gave Michael Cassidy of the NDP a 192-vote margin over Conservative Garry Guzzo, an official recount Saturday gave Mr. Cassidy a 185-vote margin.

Syl Apps, a Conservative cabinet minister who retained his seat for Kingston and The Islands, remained the victor after a recount Saturday which gave him a 155-vote edge over Liberal Dr. John Hazlett. His margin had been 102.

J. J. Richards, a PC candidate who lost in Riverdale to NDP incumbent James Renwick, said he wants a judicial recount of ballots cast Thursday which gave Mr. Renwick 9,991 votes to his 8,344.

A candidate may seek a recount by applying to a county court judge within four days after the official tabulation is made in his riding, and must deposit $100 which could be forfeited if the judge feels the challenge is frivolous.

Other ridings where election night results are being questioned:

—Dovercourt, where an official tabulation Friday gave PC George Nixon a 36-vote edge over Stephen Penner, an NDP candidate and chairman of the Ontario Waffle group, Mr. Penner hasn't indicated whether he will call for a recount;

—Nipissing, where Liberal incumbent Richard Smith was declared unofficial winner by 40 votes over PC Merle Dickenson. An official recount is scheduled for today.

Progressive Conservatives won 78 seats to 20 for the Liberals and 19 for the NDP.

UN Vote On China May Be Tie

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Diplomats said the race was still neck and neck today as the General Assembly neared a vote on whether to oust Nationalist China from the United Nations. Some said it might end in a tie.

The key issue was an American resolution to make the ouster an important question requiring a two-thirds majority for passage.

"We think we're going to win that vote," said spokesman for the U.S. delegation. One diplomat friendly to the Americans figured they had a 58-to-57 or 59-to-57 advantage with more favorable votes possible.

Should there be a tie, a second vote would be taken within 48 hours. If the tie persisted, the resolution would fail.

Assembly President Adam Malik of Indonesia was said to hope the vote could come late today. But key delegations believe the voting would start Tuesday.

Brewer's Retail Store Held Up Second Time

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A recently-opened Brewer's Retail store is becoming a popular target for Windsor holdup men.

Saturday night, for the second time in 10 days, a shotgun-wielding bandit blasted out a front window and grabbed the day's take just as it was being placed in the store's safe.

A store employee dropped the money-bag he was about to put into the safe when a shot was fired over his head through the window.

When the employee fled to a back room, the robber shot out the rest of the window, entered the store and made off with about $1,400.

Police are still investigating that incident and a similar holdup Oct. 13, when a man with a sawed-off shotgun took about $600.

Most Alleged Window Smashers Released on Bail at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty-four of 35 persons arrested following a window-smashing foray at the University of Montreal early Friday were released Saturday on bail of $200, each.

Judge Bernard Bilodeau also set preliminary hearing for about 35, charged with causing about $5,000 damage to the university, for next Friday.

The person who was not released will have a ruling made today on his application for bail.

Forty-four persons were arrested by police after the rock-throwing incident, but nine were released without being charged.

Meanwhile, officials at the University of Montreal announced Saturday that the university was being closed indefinitely.

The demonstration came in the third week of a strike by 1,000 non-teaching employees who walked out Oct. 4 to protest lagging contract negotiations. Professors have voted to respect picket lines until the dispute is settled.

The non-teaching personnel, affiliated with the Canadian Union of Public Employees, are seeking wage parity with their counterparts at Laval University.

Egyptian Says Chinese Planted Opium for GIs

LONDON (AP) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt in 1965 that China planted opium in Vietnam, hoping to demoralize United States troops there with drugs, a close adviser to Nasser said in a Sunday newspaper.

Chou also told Nasser in a June, 1965, conference at Alexandria, Egypt, that he wanted the United States to send more men to Vietnam as "an insurance policy" against a U.S. nuclear attack on China, Mohammed Hassanein Heikal wrote.

Heikal is editor of Cairo's semi-official Al Ahram newspaper and was a confidant of the late Egyptian president. He reported the talk between Chou and Nasser in the latest instalment of his biography of Nasser, which is being carried in the London Sunday Telegraph.

In discussing the demoralization of American soldiers in Vietnam, Chou is quoted as telling Nasser: "Some of them are trying opium, and we are helping them. We are planting the best kinds of opium, especially for the American soldiers in Vietnam."

Nixon Cautions Countrymen Against 'Unrealistic' Hopes

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon has cautioned Americans not to have any "unrealistic expectations" about his forthcoming trips to Moscow and Peking.

Speaking on television on the eve of the U.S. Veterans Day from Camp David, Md., Nixon said the United States is ending an unpopular war in Southeast Asia "while moving to prevent" other wars in future.

"My trips to Moscow and Peking are directed toward that goal," the president said. "We go with no false hopes, and we intend to leave behind us in America no unrealistic expectations."

But, he said, opportunities to build a lasting peace are greater now than at any time in this century.

There are great differences between the governments of the U.S. and of the Soviet Union and China, he said, but the three peoples have much in common including an understanding of the futility of war.

Nixon said his trips are directed "toward an end to the conflicts which have, divided so many of the world's people, and which have threatened all of the White House as anti-war protesters start a year-long campaign to oust him from the presidency.

The Pentagon has placed about 2,000 soldiers and marines on alert at three military bases within 30 miles of the capital in case violence erupts at the demonstrations planned by the Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice.

The coalition, which sponsored the massive Mayday protests here last spring, plans rallies through Tuesday.

Organizers of Conference On Education Are Criticized

MONTREAL (CP) — Criticism was levelled at organizers of the McGill Conference on University Teaching and Learning at its closing session Saturday by Richard Pomerantz, president of the McGill Student's Society.

"The failure of this conference is the lack of student participation," said Mr. Pomerantz, adding that conference organizers should have done more to stimulate student participation in the four-day event.

"For a conference on educational reform, it was organized in a very traditional way," he said.

Mr. Pomerantz was the only student to address the conference delegates.

"Over the past four days we have heard many papers on experimental teaching methods. You are the experts and experimenters, we, the students, are the guinea pigs," he told delegates.

"The students should be here to state their complaints and criticisms concerning present university teaching."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y Z I D R A A Z E
is C O N C E R T L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

S K A U A ' M E N R E Z A I U A S S R
X K W N O W Z. S K A V E U N O , H Z O
A C A U R L E S K A U K H M W S. — A Z F -
N W M X I U E C A U P

Paper Says Trudeau Seeks Tito Role

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Telegraph has made a stinging editorial attack on Prime Minister Trudeau in connection with the current Canadian visit of Soviet Premier Kosygin.

Trudeau "has made such anti-American statements in Moscow" Mr. Kosygin's visit . . . that he seems set on becoming a kind of Western Tito," the London newspaper says in a reference to the neutralist-inclined president of Yugoslavia.

The Telegraph contends that Kosygin is actually took his cue in Canada from Mr. Trudeau's outrageous statement in Moscow recently that Canada feared American economic and military domination."

"He also took advantage of an invitation to address a joint Commons Senate external affairs committee to slander British over Northern Ireland."

The Conservative-supporting Telegraph says that "Trudeau seems to have convinced himself—and many Canadians likewise embarrassed by the dependence on America which will always be Canada's most jealously-guarded birthright—that relations with Russia can indeed become as close as with America.

The paper then asks two questions about the thinking of Canadians:

"Do they really believe that relations with a closed, iron-curtain dictatorship are as easy as with America, with all her faults?

"How long do they think Canada could defend her vast riches without America's shield?"

The security crackdown on homes in Toronto prior to Kosygin's arrival there was given first place on one of the main national television newscasts in Britain Sunday night, topping in prominence even the latest crisis in Northern Ireland.

In Paris, meanwhile, the newspaper Le Monde noted what it calls Kosygin's offer to buy Canadian industrial equipment, notably computers.

"This was a way of replying to the restrictions imposed by Washington on (American) imports of industrial products," Le Monde says.

Without taking the hostile viewpoint adopted by The Telegraph, Le Monde cites a Trudeau statement about Canada's desire for having relations with Russia equally friendly as those with the United States.

The Paris paper agrees with some Canadian commentators that the Trudeau statement might mean a turning point in Canadian foreign policy.

"The mutual exploitations of resources in the far north isn't really the only factor conducive to 'rapprochement' between Canada and the Soviet Union and to estrangement with regards to the Americans."

Portrayal of Trudeau as an aspiring Western counterpart to Tito was a feature of an article on Kosygin's visit published by The Sunday Telegraph, The Daily Telegraph's sister paper.

One Cat in the Bag

When Ontario Humane Society officers from Toronto, Belleville and Kingston, launched a safari into the jungle's of Brockville's Woodland Park Zoo Thursday, they came away with an empty net instead of a full-grown African lion. Public complaints over the animals' condition initiated the raid, but doctors from the Ontario Veterin ary College in Guelph reported she had improved since OHS officers last examined her. However, they insisted soo /proprietor John Vanderschuit, left, and employee Russell Brown move the private park's American bobcat, (shown), and fox to new quarters.

Army, Navy, Air Force News

The time is coming this weekend when the bobsledders, spooks and what have you will be roaming the highways and byways of town and country. A time when drivers must employ extra caution for nothing is that urgent that would cause injury of death to a little one. Speaking about fun. One set of doubles and one triple were played with the following results: Doubles winners Jack Asselline and Dave Feeney. Runners up, Pete Beumer and Bob Totten. Triple winners, Bob Totten, Dave Feeney and Paul Pelletier. Runners up, Pete Beumer, Jack Asselline and Ira Wagar. Come on down, join the gang.

The Mr. and Mrs. darts got off to a good start with about 40 couples entered and the club was a scene of gayety, laughter and the serious moments as the winning doubles was frantically tried for. Cde. Dave Feeney kept the competition moving along in good style but would like to get the play started by 8.30 p.m. Several new faces appeared among the players and two of them proved to be the upset of the evening, Cde. Alec McLeod and his charming wife, Marilyn who, by the way was playing in her first dart competition, beat out last year's champions in the finals; Cdes. George and Ruth Woodhouse.

Actually the winners were not beaten once all night which is quite a achievement, all was not lost by the Woodhouse couple as Ruth threw the score of 117 to win the ladies' high three darts while Harry Vecchetti won the men's high three darts with 126. A very merry evening was enjoyed by all made happier by the news of the home team over Woodstock. A resounding victory that put the Belleville Quintes in second place.

Cde. C. Mariott has been transferred to the Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto. In Belleville General Hospital are Cdes. J. Boyle, room 634; C. Holland, room 701; H. Latham, room 625 and W. Shepherd in extensive care. Resting at home are Cdes. G. Wallace, A. Tuck and R. Mills.

The president and members extend best wishes for a speedy recovery from her recent operation to Cde. Sheldon Smith's charming wife, Blanche. No. 49 Ladies Auxiliary join in with the Unit with their best wishes.

Casper Coasts to Golf Win

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper, playing almost the best golf of his sparkling career, got so far in front he made his victory in the $150,000 Eastern International Open a bonus affair.

Casper established a six-stroke lead at one time during the final round, fashioned a four-under-par 68 and finished with a tournament total of 285, 19 under par on the 6,633-yard Silverado Country Club course.

"When I saw what he was doing, I decided I'd better start playing for second," said Tommy Aaron, the only man who really had a shot at the front-running Casper.

Aaron's last hopes died when he went one over par on the 11th and 12th holes and he slipped back to third when Tampa Texan Fred Marti birdied the last two holes for a 67 and 273, four shots behind Casper.

Aaron had a 71 for 274 with George Johnson alone in fourth with a 276. Miller Barber and Mike Hill tied at 279.

Lee Trevino, holder of the U.S., British and Canadian Open titles, never really got it going on the cool, sunny day and finished far back with a 282 total and a 71 final round.

The victory was worth $30,000 to Casper, pushed his money winnings to $167,000 for the season and snapped the longest slump of his career.

Manchester Widens Gap

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United went further ahead at the top of the English First Division standings today with the inevitable George Best goal propelled the club to a 1-0 away win over struggling Newcastle.

Arsenal's reserve sent the club sliding down from fifth to eighth place. Arsenal was overtaken by Tottenham, Leeds United and Liverpool.

Leeds came back after falling behind to a goal by Everton's Howard Kendall to defeat forward Joe Royle. At half-time Leeds was level 1-1 and in an exciting second-half, Leeds ran out 3-2 winners.

Aderposi and Huddersfield Town were locked in a scoreless struggle until the second half when the Merseysiders turned on the power to win 2-0 with goals by Tommy Smith and Alan Evans.

London club West Ham continued its revival after a poor start to the season with a 1-0 victory over Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Norwich, the last unbeaten side in the English League, lost its record when it was beaten 2-1 by Millwall in a Division II top-of-the-table clash.

Despite the defeats, Norwich stayed top of Division II but now is only one point clear of Millwall.

Bristol City maintained its challenge for Second Division honors with a 5-3 home win over Orient. City now is joint top scorer in the league with 31 goals with Carlisle.

The shock result of the day came in the Scottish League Cup final, hot favorite Celtic slumping to a dramatic 4-1 defeat against Partick Thistle.

There was no relief for Celtic, whose defence was often reduced to comic measures to clear danger.

With Celtic engages in the League Cup final, Aberdeen took advantage to extend its lead at the top of the Scottish League. First Division to three points with a 1-0 away win over Morton.

Murray scored the only goal of the match in the first-half and Aberdeen now has 16 points from eight games. Celtic has a game in hand.

Dundee, which thrashed Falkirk 6-0, and Hearts, held to a 2-2 draw by Kilmarnock, are a point behind Celtic but have played one more game than the Scottish League champion.

Despite holding highly-placed Hearts to a draw, Kilmarnock continued to prop up the Scottish First Division with the dismal tally of four points from eight games.

Cowdenbeath stayed two points clear at the top of the Scottish Second Division with a handsome 4-1 away win over Clydebank.

Canuck Boxers Impress

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Canadian amateur boxers took five of 11 bouts, including victories over four of Sweden's national champions, in an impressive display Sunday night.

Heavyweights Jack Meda and Carroll Atkinson gave the fourman Canadian Amateur Boxing Association team a big boost, each Canuck scored two 1-1 and in the final two bouts of the card.

Meda, 26, Prince George, B.C., is unanimous decision over Hans Thomsen, Sweden's national champion for the last three years. This was the second win for the 223-pound lugger in the Canada-Sweden tour.

Morgan, 23, Antigonish, N.S., scored the only knockout of the night as he pummelled Gennaro Finalitis, a veteran of 35 fights. Appearing in only his fifth bout, Morgan, 206, floored Finalitis with a right to the midsection in the first round and battered the Swede for a standing count in the third. The referee stopped the fight as Morgan continued to stagger his opponent.

Kay Wilson, 217, Belleville, Ont., defeated Lundberg by a crowd of about 3,000, started out brightly when Chris Ius, 17, Vancouver, scored on a popular decision in the flyweight division over Sigvard Ruskog, 29, another Swedish champion.

Dale Anderson, 18, Rocky Mountain House, Alta., followed with a split decision over ten bout champion Ove Lundby.

Anderson, 119 pounds, hit Lundby for a standing count in the third. This was Anderson's second win in the tour.

Canada's fifth victory came when Bernie Guindon, 28, Thunder Bay, Ont., took a split decision over Swedish light middleweight champion Christer Ottosson.

An indication of the Canadian popularity with Swedish fans the crowd jeered as judges gave Lars Johansson a split decision over Montreal's Jose Jartieres.

Bitter Collection of Interned Men Held in Huts at Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — A squat collection of closely-guarded huts near Belfast is the home of angry men held without trial and with little hope of early release.

This internment camp, called Long Kesh, is Northern Ireland's version of preventive detention: Stopping crime before it starts. To its gates come most of the residents of Long Kesh are far from innocent.

Authorities say the majority of those they intern are dangerous gunmen, leaders and members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army dedicated to ending Ireland's 50 years of partition.

To many of the Roman Catholic minority in Northern Ireland, they are victims of a system which throughout those 50 years has kept all real political power in the hands of Northern Protestants and their British backers.

The Catholic-based civil rights movement, in its opening campaign of 1968, placed abolition of the Special Powers Act of 1922 at the heads of its demands.

This year, with Belfast reeling under a wave of bombings that threatened the whole economy, the Special Powers Act was invoked again, and this time more severely than ever before.

This roundup began at dawn Aug. 9. Squads of troops and police spent the night in Catholic backstreets of Belfast, Newry and Londonderry and "lifted" more than 300 supposed IRA men.

Nearly 150 men have been taken in since the original raids and the rate seems to be increasing.

Once seized, a man is held first for interrogation—theoretically no longer than 48 hours. Men since released say, however, that questioning went beyond this limit and that torture and brutality were used against them.

The next step is imprisonment through an interim detention order while security authorities check the suspect's dossier. This process could take a month.

The dossier also is checked by a three-man advisory commission headed by a Roman Catholic judge. The suspect then is either released—as has happened in more than 100 cases—or interned.

In Long Kesh the men live 40 to a hut, sleeping in three-tier bunks. The camp is divided into two compounds, perhaps to separate members of IRA's feuding wings.

Whether internment can succeed as a military weapon against urban guerrilla warfare remains to be seen. Politically it looks to be a failure.

Canadian Is Head of UN Security Forces

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — When a self-styled public relations man attempted to speak in the General Assembly last week he managed to bring under the gun a former Canadian army officer who is supposed to stop such things from happening.

The Canadian is Harold Trimble. Huc to his friends and "the colonel" to his 320-odd "boys" who are in charge of protecting this little piece of ground in New York from everything from backwoodsmen to women in potential nasaanins

Trimble is the contented head of the UN security forces, one of the most thankless jobs in the organization.

Daniel P. McColgan's invasion of the assembly Thursday and the fact that he managed to reach the podium and was prepared to speak aroused many delegates but enraged others.

It came at a time when the delegates from 130 countries were discussing attacks on Soviet and other diplomats in New York.

The whole messy situation is expected to result in a formal debate in the assembly next month.

It was not the first time that unauthorized persons have entered the blue and gold chamber reserved for delegates. Last year, a South Vietnamese lawyer actually managed to deliver part of a statement allegedly on behalf of the mission of Laos.

Trimble takes it all philosophically.

"Things happen that don't even become public knowledge," he said in an interview Friday.

During the General Assembly, Trimble has 221 men under him whose duties include protecting diplomats, looking for bombs, guarding against spies, checking to see that foul air is not coming into the building from the nearby East Side Highway and quietly telling suspected radicals it would be better if they left.

As to drugs, although we know some dangerous ones, we simply do not know enough. It will take controlled study and observation—for obviously we can't experiment in the sense of giving large doses of drugs to pregnant women just to see what will happen.

Therefore the rule for safety is for women who are likely to become pregnant to take as little medication as possible—and when they know or suspect they are pregnant, to take none without the express advice of their doctors that it is necessary.

At various conferences on this topic I have heard such comments as, "No drugs at all, not even aspirin, unless there is medical need for it." I think that is sound advice.

We do not know if aspirin has been specifically indicted as causing defects, but I don't know of any proof to the contrary, either.

So while I seriously doubt that you have harmed your baby-to-be, I concur with doctors who tell their patients to avoid all drugs when pregnant, unless specifically instructed.

There's so much self-medication these days that people get into the habit of taking aspirin with all sorts of drugs and mixtures, and among them there may lurk something that will deform babies.

Greatest danger is in early pregnancy, primarily the first 8 to 12 weeks.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am nursing my four-month-old baby and have not yet resumed menstruating. Would it be possible for me to become pregnant without knowing it? I am not using any contraceptives.

Also is it true that nursing a child while pregnant with another can cause a miscarriage?

—K.S.

First question: yes. Second: no.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If I got a humidifier, would it help my breathing? I have emphysema so bad I nearly choke to death.

—Mrs. D.K.

Perhaps—if your house is extremely dry for the climate where you live) then a humidifier would be helpful. If the air is not particularly dry, then a humidifier would not help.

Best consult your own doctor, who knows the local conditions. Preferably, find a place with humidified air, and try it out before investing.

Aspirin Taken for Arthritis Unlikely to Harm Unborn Baby

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend told me her doctor told her never to take aspirin during pregnancy.

I am 4½ months pregnant but did not know it until I was pretty well along. Since the talk with my friend I have become very frightened because I have a slight case of arthritis and sometimes took two aspirin tablets a day. Not regularly, but often.

Please tell me doctor, have I malmed or deformed my unborn child?—T.L.

I doubt it. The dosage was small and occasional. And before that, there were, unquestionably, many women who used aspirin while pregnant. In the 50 days before there was as much interest in birth defects as there is today. A lot of healthy babies were born, all the same.

The fact that, in the early stages of pregnancy, drugs and viral infections can cause abnormalities in the fetus. The thalidomide tragedy, some years ago, was the outstanding and shocking instance of deformity from drugs, of course. It also was a major factor in establishing interest in the effects of drugs on pregnancy.

Among viral diseases, German measles is the big spectre. But other diseases can play evil roles also.

Clemmie's Letters Quoted In New Volume on Winnie

LONDON (AP) — "And so I married and lived happily ever after."

Winston Churchill made the statement in his autobiography, written as a brash young man long before he gained fame.

"Winnie" and "Clemmie" became one of the tenderest love stories of the 20th century.

The influence of "Clemmie" in edifying him from his darker days was revealed Saturday in letters she wrote to him in 1916 when he was commanding a battalion in France and his political career was at its lowest ebb.

The moving letters are quoted in the third volume of Churchill's biography, started by his son Randolph and carried on since Randolph's death by historian Martin Gilbert.

Baroness Spencer-Churchill, who was made a life peer in 1965 after her husband's death, married Churchill in 1908. He was a rising young politician and she a society beauty, Clementine Hozier.

She remained the strong and quiet woman behind her flamboyant husband as the letters revealed—just as brave and determined as Churchill himself in the First World War. Churchill was ousted from the cabinet after the Dardenelles disaster for which he was blamed.

"Bitter and frustrated," the biographers say, he took command of the 6th Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers on the Western Front.

"My own darling. I long so to be able to comfort you," she wrote in January, 1916. "Later on when you are in danger in the trenches you will be equable and contended, while I who am comparatively at ease will be in mo tal anxiety.

"Try not to brood too much. I would be unhappy if your natu rally open and unsuspicious nature became embittered.

"Patience is the only grace you need.

"If you are not killed, as sure as God lives you will come into your own again.

She recalled how Churchill took over as first lord of the Admiralty early in the war with fire and determination.

"I remember quite well when we were at the Admiralty during those wonderful opening weeks of the war we were both so happy with the success of the naval preparations and with the excitement of swiftly moving events and I with the pride at the glamor surrounding you and the navy.

". . . I remember feeling guilty and ashamed that the terrible casualties of those first battles did not sadden me more. I . . . wondered how much longer we should continue to tread on air . . ."

"When it is all over we shall be proud that you were a soldier and not a politician for the greater part of the war—soldiers and soldiers' wives seem to me the only people to be proud of."

The third volume of the biography is dominated by the disastrous Dardanelles campaign, when the Turks bloodily repulsed a British landing.

Gilbert said Lady Churchill later told him: "The Dardanelles haunted him for the rest of his life. When he left the Admiralty he thought he was finished. . . . I thought he would commit suicer the Dardanelles. I thought he would die of grief."

Quints Are Born In Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — The quintuplets born to a young Israeli kindergarten teasher were in good condition Sunday, their second day of life, a spokesman for Hadassah Hospital reported. Their chances for survival look normal, he added.

The weights of the five girls and two boys ranged from one pound eight ounces to two pounds 11 ounces. Doctors consider one pound five ounces the minimum for a healthy birth.

The mother, Mrs. Yitzhak Berman, 22, also was reported in good condition.

The 34-year-old father told reporters that pledges of support have been streaming in for the quints, Israel's first.

The hospital spokesman said Mrs. Berman had been taking anti-sterility pills. The Bermans have been married three years and have no other children.

What the Stars Say

Tuesday, October 26

GENERAL GUIDE—No major lines of activity today could after sundown putting us under an unreliable, unpredictable influence and throwing many plans into disorder. If action can be postponed until evening, dependable, satisfactory results will accrue. All moves before dark will be fool ish.

Aries (March 21-April 19). On the social side, you can count on a some a pproval, popularity with folks who had previously been indifferent to you. Valiant, friendly attitude attracts.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Your claims of being the best in your chosen field can be backed up now. Quit talking and get to work. Energy is high, letting you outdistance any competition.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). If inspiration strikes, find time to give new ideas a chance to develop. Routine chores can always be postponed for a few hours. Don't allow any interruptions.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Find out what can be salvaged before you decide to start from the beginning again. The promise of saving a few pennies can be sufficient incentive.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Refuse to be influenced by those who have a narrow, prejudiced outlook. Let your own experience and judgment tell you who can be trusted.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The opportunity to earn extra cash should not be passed up. An increase in status also can be yours. Those who are willing to show some enthusiasm in the job.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Talent and ability are the strongest allies against competition now. Just be sure, though, you follow up your bright ideas with some hard work.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Money at home certainly don't seem to be helping you cope with worries. In fact, unless you apply some discipline, they can provide a few extra problems.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Be ready to step out socially on the spur of the moment tonight. Friends have last minute ideas for fun. Place may require considerable travelling.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Keep a close on what bosses and authorities are doing now. Major reorganization at the top can bring in additional funds for Capricorns who switch their loyalties.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Nothing much transpires until evening when messages and calls start coming in. There's a good chance you'll be sent on somebody else's best one of touch by a local date.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). The slow pace today can give you a much-needed chance to catch up on chores or else just take it easy. Try to preserve the tranquility at home.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—Be extremely watchful all winter in partnership and alliances, lest you become victim of dissension you planted. Next March could bring an unreconcilable split if you become over-confident or dictatorial.

1♣	Pass	1♠	1♥
2♣	Pass	3♣	3♥
Pass	Pass	6NT	Pass
7♣	Dble	7NT	Dble
Pass	Pass	Redble

The importance of the opening lead is well illustrated in this deal from a match between Great Britain and Belgium.

At the first table, with Belgium North-South, the bidding went as shown. The British East-West pair undoubtedly did a fine job with their 10 points, capitalizing on the vulnerability in an effort to steer the opponents to a bad contract.

And in a sense they succeeded — for South got to seven notrump redoubled — but, unfortunately, West, faced with a difficult choice, led a diamond and declarer made the grand slam for a score of 2,330 points.

Had West led a spade, South would have gone down two — 100 points. Thus, in one play, West lost 2,330 points!

At the second table, the bidding went: 1D, 3C, 3D, 4C, 4NT, 6C, 7C. The Belgian West led a heart and the British declarer won with the queen, drew trumps, and then led the king of diamonds, overtaking it with the ace and hoping to run the suit.

But East showed up with four in the 10, and though South was able to dispose of two spades on the Q-J of diamonds, he had to lose a heart and a heart to go down one.

So the Belgians scored another 2,330 to produce a net gain of 3,030 points.

Declarer could have made the slam by ruffing a heart at trick two and overtaking dummy's king of clubs to draw trumps. That method of play would have subjected him to a 4-1 trump break, instead of a 4-1 diamond break, but in the actual hand this course of play would have succeeded.

Kosygin Made Indian Chief

EDMONTON (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was made an honorary Indian chief during his two-hour visit to Edmonton Sunday.

In a colorful ceremony at Government House, a sandstone mansion on the banks of the North Saskatchewan River valley, Premier Kosygin became an honorary member of the Enoch Indian band and was given the title Chief Golden Eagle.

Mr. Kosygin sat cross-legged on a deerskin hide to exchange a peace pipe with Chief Morris Wolfe and don a feathered head-dress.

Through an interpreter, he said it was "a great honor to be accepted into your tribe" and the ceremony would be "one of the most momentous moments in my life."

The Enoch-Cree band is from the Hobbema reserve, a few miles south of Edmonton.

Woman Wants To Emigrate To Soviet Union

EDMONTON (CP) — One of the women in a crowd of 150 demonstrators waiting for Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin Sunday carried a home-made placard which read:

"Kosygin: Wish to emigrate to U.S.S.R. Tired of sex and vodka. Wish to be employed."

She identified herself as Mary Bennett, 33, formerly of Vancouver, now living in Edmonton and out of work for more than a year.

Asked about the reference to sex and vodka, she said:

"When you're without a job, it's bad for mind and body and you can get into too much mischief by drinking and other things. . . ."

Miss Bennett said she is no "fed up" with being unemployed that she would be willing "to take a chance with someone else."

Kosygin Asked to Take Stand Against A-Test

VANCOUVER (CP) — The crew of the Greenpeace nuclear-protest mission sent a telegram to Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin Saturday, urging him to respond to world concern about nuclear tests.

The telegram was radioed from the Greenpeace vessel Phyllis Cormack in the Gulf of Alaska to communications coordinator Dorothy Metcalfe, who relayed it to Mr. Kosygin at the Hotel Vancouver.

It read:

"The men of the Canadian protest vessel Greenpeace urge you to respond to increasing world concern against all further nuclear tests and to make a long-awaited statement in this respect before you leave Canada."

It was signed by the 12 members of the Vancouver-based Greenpeace Mission, on their way home after abandoning plans to cruise off the Aleutian island of Amchitka on the day of a proposed United Sates five-megaton nuclear bomb test there.

Ukrainian Catholics Ask Review of Status

TORONTO (CP) — The Ukrainian Catholic Council of Canada forwarded a letter Sunday to Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin requesting that he review the present status of the church ad religious worship in the Soviet Union.

The letter, written by Bishop Isidore Borecky, asks that the question of the legal status of the Ukrainian Catholic Church be reconsidered.

Bishop Borecky also asks for the release of Wasyl Wellchitesky and other priests and religious figures who, he says, were "arrested unjustly."

The letter asks the Soviet leader to see that administrative functionaries respect the religious convictions of the faithful, formally guaranteed by the Soviet Union and the Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations."

Laird Confers With Allies

BRUSSELS (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird of the United States began three days of conferences today with NATO allies with a warning against cutting their defences.

Laird told reporters the prospect of negotiations with the Soviet Union on reduction of forces in Europe had inclined European parliaments to cut their forces in advance.

Canadian Flag Praised

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's flag was given a hearty endorsement Saturday by the world's only full-time vexillologist.

A vexillologist is a student of the history and symbolism of flags.

The expert who thinks Canada has "a very beautiful flag" is Whitney Smith, president of the American Vexillogy Society at the Flag Research Centre in Lexington, Mass.

In Ottawa to address the Heraldry Society of Canada, Mr. Smith said in an interview that "the maple leaf flag identifies Canada immediately to everyone."

He added it took a "real act of courage" by then prime minister Lester Pearson to introduce the flag through legislation in 1965.

Kissinger Back in Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — Members of the U.S. mission headed by President Nixon's envoy, Henry Kissinger, reappeared in Peking today and resumed their talks with Chinese leaders in the capital's Great Hall of the People.

The Americans were not seen in the capital Sunday.

The Kissinger mission now has been in Peking for six days discussing Nixon's forthcoming visit to China.

City Department Heads to Consider Belleville Winter Works

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A special joint meeting of city department heads to consider projects which might be eligible for federal or provincial loans to help start winter works projects will be called in the near future.

Such a meeting was approved yesterday by city council after it was noted by Mayor J. Russell Scott that it would be better to co-ordinate efforts than to make piecemeal applications for funds in today's winter works projects.

The main objective, however, should be to create jo's not just spend money, he said.

As announced some days ago from Ottawa, the attack on winter employment will be a many-pronged effort, ranging all the way from a stepped up Canada Manpower retraining program to encouragement of winter construction.

Certain job - creating capital projects will be encouraged by forgiveness of a large percentage of loans going for direct on-site labor costs until the end of May, 1972.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will move to liberalize its mortgage rules for months some $113 million in loans that it would have made under the National Housing Act next year.

Loans will include additional lending for low rental housing developments, home-owner housing, student housing and sewage treatment and water assembly projects.

Loans will also be made available to exhibition committees, church and associations to stimulate construction of multi-purpose fair buildings and facilities.

Two projects mentioned in council that could be eligible for loans are the proposed trunk sanitary sewer up the Moira River, and construction of the new garden service centre planned by the city parks board.

Tenders for the construction of the river trunk sewer have been recalled by the Ontario Water Resources Commission with slight contract loads and will close on Nov. 2.

If suitable tenders are received it is anticipated that a contract would follow in approximately three weeks.

Alderman Donald Soulter wondered if this was the normal time lag between opening of tenders and awarding of contract, urging that every effort be made to have work started as soon as possible.

City Engineer Walter Purcell replied that the three-month period was normal, while Mayor Scott noted the OWRC would have to go to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of the project but the same as if the sewer were being constructed by the city.

City Manager J. H. Reynolds was directed to determine whether the project was eligible for winter works loans.

As the river trunk sewer would serve part of Thurlow township, it was suggested that this municipality also be made application for a winter works loan for the project.

U.S. Suffers Rebuff As UN Seats China

Tito On Way Here

"Excuse me Mr. President. A defector from China to see you!"

BELGRADE (Reuter)—President Tito of Yugoslavia, on his second journey abroad this month, left by air today for the United States on a trip which will also take him to Canada and Britain.

President Tito starts the official part of his program in Washington Thursday morning. The party will stay in the U.S. until Nov. 2, but the program for their Canadian visit has not yet been announced. It is expected that Tito will spend a few days in Britain in November.

Taiwan Is Ousted By Two-to-one Vote

By STEVEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The People's Republic of China has been informed that the UN seat it has waited for more than 20 years is available.

Word was flashed to Peking by Secretary-General U Thant Monday night after the General Assembly, in a couple of dramatic hours, decided to expel the Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan and invite the mainland government to take the China seat here.

Word from friends of Peking was that the Communist Chinese could be at this 131-country world organization by the end of the week. The representatives may come from Ottawa, where the People's Republic has had an embassy since last year when Canada established relations with China.

The ambassador, Huang Hua, is a high official in China and it has been felt here for some time that he was sent to Ottawa to be available for the short trip to the UN.

DEFEAT FOR U.S.

Monday night's vote was a shattering defeat for the United States, which had campaigned hard here and in many capitals to retain a seat in the assembly for Taiwan.

It all came to naught when the assembly first gave an indication of the direction it was going, almost silently watched Nationalist China walk out and then voted 76 to 35 with 17 abstentions to expel Taiwan and seat the People's Republic.

There was a mighty cheer at the settlement of the China representation question that had bedevilled the UN since Mao Tse-tung and his Communist forces swept the forces of Chiang Kai-shek from the mainland in 1949.

The support that the Americans said they were convinced they had never materialized and it was early in the nearly two hours of voting that it became apparent that the U.S. would be defeated.

"A moment of infamy," U.S. Ambassador George Bush said to reporters after the assembly had passed the annual Albanian resolution calling for the expulsion of Taiwan and the seating of Peking.

Admission of the Communists will spell the doom of the United Nations, said Nationalist Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kai, only a few minutes after his delegation walked out of the assembly, knowing that they were about to be voted out.

Canada voted right down the line with the Albanians and against any attempt by the U.S. or any other country, notably Saudi Arabia, to swing the assembly to a two-China formula.

Canada's position was well known and today it will not even rise with many other countries to explain its vote.

Canadian Ambassador Yvon Beaulne said in an interview later that he was gratified with the result. He said if the U.S. had been successful the UN would have faced long frustrating debate as it attempted to clear up a confusing China representation situation.

He was gratified that the UN had "given a clear-cut decision" on the China question and that China would soon be here to take its seat.

A crucial point in the whole China debate that started here a week ago was a statement made by the Peking foreign minister last August that it would not sit here with Taiwan.

Albania, its friends and supporters including Canada, and Peking must be believed in this. The U.S. and its allies said variously that the Peking's statement may not be its final word and that at any rate that is not the business of the assembly.

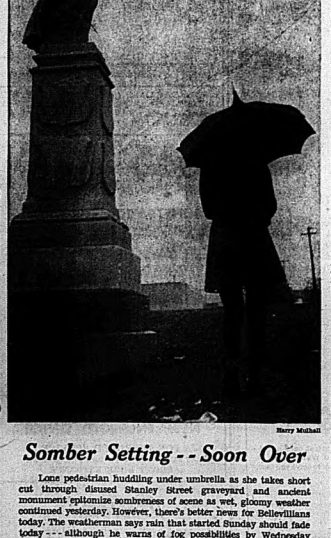
It was a firm assembly that settled down to the voting at about 9 p.m. EST. But within an hour the U.S. lost an important part of its two-China formula and it became obvious that China would be admitted.

The assembly burst into cheers. Delegates stood up and clapped.

The Americans and the Nationalists sat glumly.

The tension largely disappeared. But until the Albanian resolution finally came to a vote delegates took to pounding it into fractious debate over the delaying tactics of some.

But before midnight it was all over and less than an hour later the UN announced that Thant had sent by cable the text of the Albanian resolution to the foreign minister in Peking.



That resolution said the assembly decided "to restore all its rights to the People's Republic of China and to recognize representatives of China to the UN, and to expel forthwith the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek from the place which they unlawfully occupy at the UN and in all the organizations affiliated to it."

UN Envoys Relieved At End to Old Fight

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly exploded into cheers and applause when victory finally came to Peking's supporters Monday.

Most of the delegates from the 131-member assembly were elated for in the end, when all the procedural devices had failed, the vast majority supported the Albanian resolution to seat Communist China and oust Nationalist China.

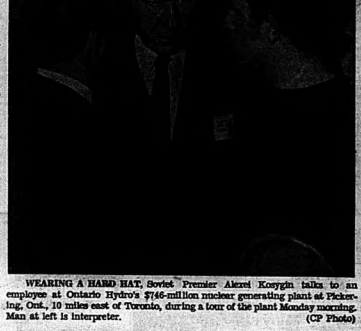
Reis Malile, the Albanian vice-minister for foreign affairs, took the floor and began saying in French that the decision was "a defeat for the United States of America."



Bush pulled off his earphone and threw it on the desk before him.

The long night of wrangling ended. It was nearly midnight.

A delegate walked up to Bush and embraced him. Sir Laurence McIntyre, the Australian ambassador, patted Bush's elbow. They started out of the hall together.

Outside the hall, delegates mingled about in crowded quarters in a rare show of warmth. A feeling of relief seemed to sweep the crowd.

Only Bush appeared genuinely stung by the decision.

Police Battle Demonstrators

Kosygin and Capitalists Dine as Mob Protests

TORONTO (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin told Canadian industrialists Monday night he is "deeply satisfied" with his tour of Canada—and as he was talking, police fought to control 6,000 angry demonstrators across the road from where he dined amiably on steak and strawberries.

Speaking to the cream of Canadian capitalism at a dinner sponsored by the Canadian Manufacturers Association at the $30 million Ontario Science Centre, Communist leader talked of brotherhood and peace among nations.

But outside in the streets he was the target of vitriolic and insulting derision from thousands of protesters, most of them Jewish, or with ethnic origins in the Soviet Union or Eastern Europe.

Police arrested 20 in a minor skirmish. They estimated the crowd at 14,000 to 15,000 spread over a wide area—6,000 at the science centre, another 8,000 to 9,000 at the premier's hotel and lining streets leading to the centre.

It was the last official function on his eight-day, cross-Canada expedition, which took Mr. Kosygin to Ottawa, Montreal, Vancouver and Edmonton. He left today at 8 a.m. EDT aboard a Russian Aeroflot passenger jet for Cuba.

As Mr. Kosygin delivered his message of peace and co-operation to the 650 CMA members and their wives, elements of a wandering, unruly crowd that lined Don Mills Road for half a mile tried unsuccessfully to breach the most formidable police security this city has ever seen.

The demonstrators were a United Nations of Eastern Europe—Estonians, Letvians, Lithuanians, Bulgars, Hungarians, Poles, Ukrainians, Germans and a liberal sprinkling of Canadian Jews worried about the fate of Russian Jewry in the Soviet Union.

Chanting and shouting, the placard-waving demonstrators edged off the curb and into the police lines. The policemen, arms linked and clad in rain slickers, scuffled with a number of them.

When it became apparent that the protesters might break through the first line of defence, about 30 mounted Toronto policemen charged their horses into the crowd.

The demonstrators responded with a barrage of eggs, placards, rocks and lighted candles hurled at the snorting, stamping horses and their shouting riders. The crowd reeled back after four charges by the mounted police.

The candles had been sold, at 25 cents each, as a sign of peaceful protest by members of the Ukrainian Students Union.

Twenty persons were arrested. At least four injured policemen were taken away. One was reported to have been hit by a metal bolt thrown from the crowd.

Police estimated that only 1,000 persons lined the road when Mr. Kosygin was whisked down Don Mills Road and into the science centre in his bullet-proof limousine. The motorcade was flanked by 20 motorcycle policemen and a flying squad of police police cruisers.

Police were recruited by the Ukrainian Canadian Committee, the Jewish Defence League and other ethnic organizations quickly swelled the ranks.

By the time Mr. Kosygin got to his feet to deliver his speech in the science centre banquet hall, police estimated there were 14,000 to 15,000 demonstrators strung out along two miles of Toronto traffic arteries. However, other observers numbered the crowd at less than 10,000.

At the science centre, there were no bomb scares.

Nothing came of them.

Mr. Kosygin was 40 minutes late in returning to his hotel.

There were reports that his delay was caused by a sniper scare, but police did not confirm this.

Russia and Canada Plan To Fight Arctic Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet Union and Canada have agreed to work together to prevent pollution of the Arctic and to examine prospects for a long-term economic agreement between the two countries.

The communique issued today at the conclusion of Premier Alexei Kosygin's Canadian visit envisioned a diversification and expansion of Soviet-Canadian trade.

A Canadian proposal to set up a joint commission for trade consultations will be discussed in talks scheduled to open early next year, aimed at renewal of the Canada-U.S.S.R. trade agreement. The agreement, expiring in the spring, is expected to be renewed for a further four years.

Dealing with international questions, the communique said early steps should be taken toward a mutual reduction of NATO and Warsaw pact forces in Central Europe, "without detriment to the participating states."

Alderman Opposes Bleecker Avenue Widening

Alderman Robin Jeffrey doesn't want Bleecker Ave. developed as a four-lane artery to provide a main north-south artery connecting Dundas Street with Canniffon Road.

She made this clear at yesterday's city council meeting when a traffic committee recommendation concerning the proposed Canniffon Road grade separation came up for consideration.

The alderman said she should strongly oppose any four-lane roadway development through a predominantly residential area.

She said such widening would completely denude the street of trees.

The alternative to using Bleecker Ave. as a main north-south artery would be to develop Station Street to the eastern limits of the city and there provide a link with Dundas Street.

"Some alternative must be found and I feel that Thorlow township would co-operate," she said.

Mayor J. Russell Scott added that the Ontario Municipal Board would not allow the city to spend money on a roadway outside the city limits.

The recommendation prompting discussion asked council to authorize Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd. to proceed with an engineering study on development of a grade separation over the CN/ double tracks east of the present Canniffon Road crossing.

This proposal would use Emily Street and Bleecker Ave. as a main north-south artery connecting with Dundas Street.

Alderman E. A. Orr said he opposed either an underpass or overpass on the present Canniffon Road crossing site.

"The only solution is a grade separation somewhere east of Canniffon Road," he said.

At the same time he noted that the railway station building and the increased number of tracks would rule out any grade separation so far from the present crossing.

In the end, council approved of an amended recommendation authorizing the engineering firm to proceed with an engineering study for a grade separation at the CN tracks east of Canniffon Road with two alternate connections with Sather Street.

Decision on the Canniffon Road grade separation was permitted All. Jeffrey had raised its excellent question which ultimately would have to be answered.

But he pointed out that it was the Belleville General Hospital and area industries that generated the traffic emanating from the Canniffon Road artery.

In answer to Ald. Jeffrey's proposal for a north - south route east of the city, he said there would be no point in providing a too - circuitous route, as motorists just would not use it.

Alderman Arthur Keegan added that the Ontario Municipal Board would not allow the city to spend money on a roadway outside the city limits.

The recommendation prompting discussion asked council to authorize Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd. to proceed with an engineering study on development of a grade separation over the CN/ double tracks east of the present Canniffon Road crossing.

Body Found In Bay

BRIGHTON (Staff) — The body of an unknown woman has been found in the Bay of Quinte near here and police conjecture her drowning could possibly mean another death in the area.

The woman was found shortly before noon yesterday, her body floating in the bay near Rossland Acres, east of Highway 33 and the Murray Canal.

Provincial police say there were no indications of foul play and there's always the possibility the woman was fishing with a companion when their boat overturned, said an officer. Hence anxiety to establish an identity soon. Her description does not fit any in police missing-persons files here.

A post mortem revealed all signs of death by drowning and the body was in the water 24-36 hours before being discovered.

The woman was aged 40-45, about five feet, four inches high, weighing 135-140 lbs.

She was clad in a long-sleeved, dark red or maroon pullover and dark brown - red slacks. She was not wearing shoes or socks.

Anyone who can help establish the woman's identity is asked to call provincial police here.

New Main One Answer

TRENTON (Staff) — Public Utilities Commissioner Charles Hilton has a $170,000 answer to the problem of poor-tasting water in northeast Trenton.

At yesterday's PUC meeting, Mr. Hilton gave his explanation of why the flavor of water deteriorates in the area during summer months to the point that Mayor Duncan McDonald calls it "swamp water."

The commissioner said the bad taste results by reversing the flow of water through the mains in this quarter of the town when drinking water is taken from the Trent River.

During most of the year, water is taken from the west side to the east with water flowing north from Dixon Drive. However, when the system is more heavily taxed i.e. summer, the water flow in these mains is reversed and ice area is served from the filtration plant on Chester Street.

Commissioner Hilton contends river water is not foul tasting but it suffers in taste because it is affected by sediment caked on the sides of ice water pipes when the flow is reversed.

The answer to all this, he says is an entirely new water main from the Chester Street filtration plant across town to the Victoria Street pumping station at the foot of Mount Pelion.

The commission will consider the suggestion but it is doubtful if action can be taken on the recommendation for several years.

Corby Library Plans Extension

The Corby Public Library is planning another extension either a branch library or an extension, but Mr. Hackett said the hope of the board was that the second could be commenced this year.

The possibility of financial assistance being obtained through the government winter works program will be explored.

Mr. Hackett said the present library site had its limitations with respect to building extension but said architects had been retained to provide preliminary sketch plans.

Three such plans were presented by the architects at a special meeting of the board last night but presently only one plan will be determined by available financing.

Depending on which plan is accepted, the floor area of the proposed extension would range between 4,259 and 8,282 square feet.

Minutes of library board meetings for September and October were included on the agenda for last night's council meeting at the request of Mayor J. Russell Scott who said this would be future policy to keep council informed of board activities.

Mayor Scott said the board decision had been that an extension at the present library would better serve city population needs than would a branch library.

Two extensions to the original Corby Public Library building have been added in the past decade. There is still no thought, however, of utilizing the third floor of the original structure.

"Without an elevator, people just would not walk up to a third floor," said Mr. Hackett.

Trick-or-treat Saturday Night

The witches and goblins will be asked to celebrate Hallowe'en one day early this year in Belleville.

The reason is that October 31 this year falls on Sunday and the local UNICEF committee feels it would be better for the trick-or-treaters to make their rounds on Saturday.

City council yesterday went along with the request and agreed that October 30 should be UNICEF Day.

Mayor Russel Scott agreed that it might not be proper for the UNICEF canvassers to make their rounds on a Sunday. Also, he said, if Hallowe'en was held on Saturday, police might be better able to control any vandalism and a third reason for the earlier celebration was that on Sunday many of the city fathers will be on their way to camps for the deer hunting season.

Second Vice-principal Approved for Moira

Moira Secondary School got its second vice - principal last night.

Acceptance of the proposal came on the second time around — trustees had debated the issue at their regular meeting two weeks ago without coming to any conclusion.

Board policy calls for appointment of a second vice-principal when a secondary school's enrolment reaches 1,200. Moira has 1,126 students this year, several portable classrooms, a wide variety of experimental programs and a pilot project in education under way. Because of the need for further administrative assistance to cope with the pilot project, principal E. J. Shipton asked for the second vice - principal this year, instead of waiting until next year when the enrolment will probably climb to 1,200.

Two weeks ago trustees seemed opposed to making an exception of Moira be appointing a second vice-principal.

The proposal came back to them last night in a new form. It was suggested that board policy be revised to state that the appointment or removal of a second vice-principal be considered on the basis of individual school requirements.

But trustees rejected this solution and finally voted to permit the second vice-principal at Moira on the basis of the school's particular and exceptional needs.

However, MacDonald Smith raised the question of appointing a non - academic as a business administrator in schools, thus freeing the principal and vice-principal for strictly academic duties.

Mr. Shipton said Moira is not ready for a business administrator.

"A competent secretary can handle most school business; give her a higher salary and more responsibility," he suggested.

Cautious Craftsman

For the second time in a month vandals have smashed windows at foundry of Aluminum Star Products on College Street West — thereby creating problem for craftsmen. Glass splinters become buried in moulding clay, which must be pressed in place by hand to seal molten aluminum in moulds. Here moulder Jim Babcock, watched by company president Stan Kvarda, gingerly lumps down clay, while keeping sharp eye for broken glass. Result, says Mr. Kvarda is a slowdown in production pace at plant because of vandalism.

COLDEN — In loving memory of a dear father, Arthur Colden, who passed away October 26, 1970. Time may heal the wounds but cannot take away the pain of loss. But I cannot fill the empty chair. Nor part the grief in two. We shall carry the grief in secret. And bear the pain alone.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Irene and son-in-law Ken.

COLDEN — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Arthur Colden, who passed away October 26, 1970.
What we would give if we could
But say
Bring back to the home old way.
Though time has passed and years have flown
And left a sad and lonely void
Your memory is always near
And in our hearts you will live forever.
Lovingly remembered by son Ken, daughter-in-law Irene, grandson Allen.

DOYLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Doyle, who passed away Oct. 26, 1966.
Though years have passed and I'm alone
And my face is not always wet with tears
There is a light and a burning that's hard to explain
Sad it may be, but I'm not ashamed
Proud I am of the love we shared
For I loved you and I miss you.
Ever in my thoughts
Lovingly missed by his wife Elsie.

MASTERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, Maurice Masterson, who passed away Oct. 25, 1969.
Our year has passed since you left us
Dear
Even one we loved was called away,
God in His wisdom has a place
Within our hearts he liveth still,
And memory keeps his image fair.
Never to part again.
Sadly missed by Norma and Sharon, Paul and Anne, Judy and Peter.

MASTERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, Maurice Masterson, who passed away Oct. 25, 1969.
Our year has passed since you left us dear
Even one we loved was called away,
God in His wisdom has a place
Within our hearts he liveth still,
And memory keeps his image fair.
Never to part again.
Lovingly remembered by son and daughter-in-law.

MASTERSON — In loving memory of a dear mother, Marjorie Irene Masterson, who passed away Oct. 26, 1970.
Love's remembrance entwists all,
Memory keeps the one we loved
dear,
Days are filled with remembrance of her.
—Dearly remembered by daughter, Helen, son-in-law Ken and grandchildren Ronald, Ross and Marjorie.

Bell Operators Back at Work

Telephone services in the Quinte district began returning to normal last night as operators ended a three-day protest, came in off the picket-line and began manning switchboards in Belleville.

Nearly 100 girls walked off the job Friday afternoon, protesting slowness of current contract negotiations. Supervisory and management personnel were hurriedly assembled to keep switchboards open — although services were slowed down.

"Everything's back to normal," said Bell's Belleville manager George Thompson this morning. "The operators started coming back at 8 o'clock last night and the others (management personnel), were released (from the switchboards) as they came in."

The walkout involved 8,000 operators in Ontario and Quebec, and was without union sanction. A Canadian Press report says the back-to-work move apparently came after Mary Lennox, president of the Traffic Employees Association, issued a return - to - work request Monday night.

Talks between the association and Bell broke off Monday and conciliation board chairman T. C. O'Connor said he would submit his report and recommendations to federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey at an early date.

The company interpreted Miss Lennox' directive as a move to put the operators in a legal position to strike. They may legally do so seven days after the report is received by the labor department.

The union is seeking wage parity with British Columbia telephone operators. The top rate at Bell is $105.75 a week and the rate paid by B.C. Telephone will be $135.45 in January.

Miss Lennox said Monday the union had rejected a wage increase of $15 a week over two years in the highest zones including Toronto and Montreal.

School Nursing Service Proposal to Committee

A school trustee who is also a nurse questioned a proposal to hire more school nurses last night and the matter was sent to a committee for further study.

Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Trenton expressed misgivings about the scheme by staff each secondary school with a full - time nurse as soon as it was proposed.

"There are some technical questions I want answered," she said. "I got a job description (of the nurses' duties) and some thing don't jibe with what we can do.

"You can't have a nurse in limbo — she must be backed by a medical man and that man should be the medical officer of health."

The issue was sent to the liaison committee of the board for study, but not before other members of the board had posed questions they wanted answered.

"Is this health or is it education? Who should pay for it?" asked MacDonald Smith.

The request for more nursing personnel in high schools and for a dental hygienist came from the administration, backed up by a letter from Moira Secondary School principal E. J. Shipton.

Mr. Shipton said a great number of high school students are bused to school and in many cases both parents work. Students who fall ill or suffer injury cannot be sent home and cannot be left in the health room for lack of supervision.

"We cannot insist that they get sick or suffer injury only on Tuesdays and Thursdays when those are the days the nurse is in," he said. "Then there is the involvement in the drug scene — although this is off this year to what it has been in the past".

John Hayman, principal of Quinte Secondary School backed up Mr. Shipton's statements with some figures from Quinte. He said his school has five "critical cases" a week and 19 to 21 less serious cases "need help".

"One such critical case took up a nurse's time for 1½ hours today," he said.

At present the board employs one registered nurse to serve the four Belleville secondary schools and three others to serve the other schools in the county. Public health nurses from the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit take care of the elementary schools.

Four more registered nurses would be necessary to staff all high schools full-time. The total cost to the board for the eight nurses would be $48,000 a year, $30,000 more than it is now paying for secondary school nursing services.

Another proposal called for the board to increase its nursing staff by 1½ registered nurses and for the health unit to provide the remaining nurses at a total annual cost of $18,000 more than the present cost.

A dental hygienist's salary was quoted at $12,000 a year.

Several trustees argued that a full-time nurse was as necessary in elementary schools as in high schools.

MacDonald Smith said that the arguments advanced for nursing service in secondary schools also applied to large elementary schools where most children are bused in, and cited Harmony School as an example.

"Hours and wages need looking into — they've always been in limbo," said Mrs. Hutchison. The issue was referred to the liaison committee with instructions that it study the entire school nurse picture from kindergarten to grade 13.

Council Considers Bylaw Enforcer

City council yesterday approved a Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee recommendation that consideration be given to the necessity of engaging a bylaw enforcement officer to enforce city zoning regulations and other bylaws.

Speaking on the recommendation Alderman E. A. Orr said the feeling was that city zoning regulations were not always being adhered to because of enforcement lack.

Council also approved a committee recommendation to deny a rezoning application from Texaco Canada Ltd. to allow construction of a service station at the southeast corner of Herchimer Ave. and Bridge Street.

It also went along with a committee recommendation that a public hearing be called to hear any objections to the application of the same company for rezoning at the southwest corner of Sidney and College streets — also to allow construction of a service station.

But council didn't go along with a policy recommendation which called for all notices of applications received by the committee of adjustment be referred to the subordinate advisory planning committee for referral of recommendation to council.

Alderman Donald Soutter said he would oppose the recommendation if it meant a delay in applications being processed.

He said if an application came in immediately after a committee meeting it could mean a delay of up to three weeks before it got to council.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the purpose of the recommendation was to reduce the work load at city council meetings.

"Council meetings are getting longer and longer," he said. "We must refer more work to committees."

He agreed, however, that if applications came in immediately after a committee meeting they should go directly to council.

Alderman Donald Russell said he also would oppose the recommendation.

"It would only lead to more confusion," he said.

Kitty Villa -- It's the Cat's Meeow

These early residents of the Quinte Humane Society's feline sanctuary, Kitty Villa, are just sitting around the house. And why not? There's food, water, heated shelter and good company all as close as their neighbor's front door. The sanctuary officially opens Sunday, Nov. 7 and will eventually house more than 30 cats which have been brought in as strays or for adoption.

Cats' Condominium Completed

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Kitty Villa, Belleville's newest housing development, is expected to attract more than 1,000 species including Mayor J. Russell Scott, to its Sunday, Nov. 7 opening.

Visitors to the modern subdivision will have a chance to look at 32 electrically-heated homes although none will be available for normal occupancy. The residents, you see, are specially selected cats which have been brought into the Quinte Humane Society and they are particularly fussy when it comes to choosing neighbors.

The opening ceremony is part of an Open House which the Humane Society is holding at the Avondagh Road shelter. Mayor Scott has proclaimed Nov. 7 through the 13th Animal Welfare Week in order to promote humane consideration of animals.

The sanctuary, comprising four apartments - like sections each containing eight heated cubicles, will house cats which have been brought in either for adoption or as strays. Potential residents are thoroughly checked out by a veterinarian and, if necessary, spayed or neutered before entering the domicile.

Superintendent Harry Brown said the Quinte cat shelter is the third such facility to open in the province. It will also be the largest. Built this summer by three students at a cost of $3,000, measures 80 feet by 25 feet and is surrounded by a wire mesh fence.

Most of the cost was defrayed by the Quaker Oats company of Trenton which donated cat food to the Humane Society. The fellow is fed canned meat or fish once a day and have a constant supply of cat chow for snacks.

Mr. Brown said cats from the sanctuary will be available for adoption once a price can be fixed. They will cost slightly more than normal cats because of the shots and operation they will have undergone but the Society will be able to guarantee a perfectly fit and contented animal.

"The cats really seem to thrive out there. They have everything they need including food, water and room to exercise," Sounds purr-fect.

Bill Becomes Hot Potato

TRENTON (Staff) — An engineering firm was hired last year to prepare a report on fluoridation of the Trenton water supply but a controversy has grown over who should pay for it.

Council asked the Public Utilities Commission to have the information accumulated and has forwarded the bill for $470 from engineers G o r e and Storrie to the PUC for payment.

Commissioner Charles Hilton told the PUC yesterday "council wanted the propaganda" to prepare for a referendum last Dec. 7 on the fluoridation question and council should pay.

Seeking recovery of the money, the PUC will seek a pledge from council that the commission will be reimbursed in next year's budget for paying the bill on council's behalf.

REAL ESTATE
A FAST SALE?

ED McKINLEY
J. E. McKINLEY Realty Ltd.

If a home owner lists his home for sale with a Realtor and two days later it is sold, you can't blame him for wondering if he couldn't have done the job himself.

There are exceptions of course, but basically a home is never "sold" in two days. What the seller sees may be only the final result of what may have been months of groundwork by the Realtor.

Realtors are constantly on the lookout for homes to suit specific buyers. If your home is listed and sold promptly, it is probable that the Realtor has been working with a buyer for weeks or even months trying to find "the" home.

When what he has been looking for appears on the market he recognizes it instantly. The sale may be as good as made.

Matching buyers to homes requires expertise in many aspects of real estate — location, price, neighborhood, size, age, architectural style, terms and finance.

It is an inventory of human wants and it requires painstaking attention to detail that never ends until buyer and seller are in full agreement.

Public Wants Quality

Mrs. Carolyn Emerson of the women's division of the Sales and Ad Club here gave an audience of home builders some interesting pointers last week when she projected the feminine viewpoint on that subject close to a woman's heart: the family home.

Besides presenting a list of home improvements which she believes could be effected in the homes of the seventies, she called for greater quality throughout.

Her pet complaint, as our news report of the event pointed out, is "the standard unsightly medical chest. They are too small, the mirrors are too far for children and they are cheap, cheap, cheap." This might seem like a small point, but cumulatively, extending over the entire range of manufacture of a home and its interior fittings, we would agree it can mean a great deal.

In advertising today, whatever the product, the word merchants and manufacturers like to emphasize is "quality." Yet we can all point to articles, to manufactured goods, that are shoddy, which do not function as they should, or fall apart after only brief usage, or wear out all too swiftly. And it does not matter whether it is clothing, household appliances or motor vehicles but this criticism applies to all. It applies to workmanship too when the time comes to effect repairs.

Do we have quality then . . . or is it too often the case that things are, in Mrs. Emerson's words, "cheap, cheap cheap?"

People appreciate quality and they also appreciate directness in their dealings with merchants, industry, service personnel and the like. Similarly with industry itself; thus Mrs. Emerson would like to see closer co-operation between contractors and sub-contractors for example. This way the public gets a better deal as well. Too often — and we are not referring to any one agent of endeavor — you get the proverbial runaround. If Canadian industry and commerce are going to talk about "quality" then let them concentrate on providing just that. We can have enough of "planned obsolescence."

Even Kansas

The State of Kansas, in good, solid, mid-western Bible-belt America, one would assume to be one of the more stable areas of the United States. Well stable it may be — but a safe place for citizens apparently not.

A letter signed "A Girl in Kansas" to Ann Landers the other day suggests that the U.S. interior, relatively far, one would think, from the madding crowd, is no safer than anywhere else. The girl, 19, from Kansas City, objected to events involving friends and family, including rape and a mugging in broad daylight. For herself, her parents will not let her walk "12 lousy blocks" for guitar lessons and she adds this poignant, pathetic comment: "You work. Somewhere there is love and peace and beauty and truth. Somewhere people live simple, decent lives. Somewhere people don't have guns in the house — they don't even lock their doors. Somewhere a person can walk down the street at night — and not be scared to death that he will be hit over the head. Or shot. Perhaps love and truth are too much to ask. But safety? Someone must be reached. Please help me. I don't understand."

In her reply Ann Landers laments that even the small towns are not safe any more and urges the public to demand tougher gun laws. Well, that is an old American chestnut if ever there was one; as Miss Landers herself admits, "almost every nut and his cousin has a gun." And how gunned down this situation being remedied, ever, in U.S. society.

Maybe the girl in Kansas has heard of Canada. We have our hoodlums here, instability among individuals and occasional violence, but it is nowhere near the level that exists in the U.S. There are other countries too where you can still walk the streets of cities by day or night and not be molested.

And if Kansas teen is unwilling or unable to leave the U.S. she and her family could still consider those communities at home where there is actually little trouble. Yes, they do exist, as a recent series by NBC television news team in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, Oregon and a spot on the coast of Maine whose name escapes us. No, not Bar Harbor or even Old Orchard Beach where we recall, a dozen years or so ago, a Quebecer vacationing at the ocean side with his wife was shot and seriously wounded by some transient.

There are indeed places in the U.S. where the loneliness that possesses other communities happily is absent. The difficulty is to find them.

From Inflation and Pot to the Monarchy

MP Lists Ten Top Issues for Public to Mull Over

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The constituency questionnaire, an old and familiar political tool, is responsible for the taking of the regional public pulse, has been given a dry and unfamiliar refinement.

Conservative Whip Tom Bell, MP for Saint John-Lancaster and veteran of seven elections and 18 years in the House of Commons, has done the new and different variation of an old theme.

It is a questionnaire of questionnaires.

After scanning dozens of them, culling the scores of different questions they all raised, he has selected the 10 most meaningful public issues.

Meaningful, that is, in the sense that these 10 questions were the ones that seemed uppermost in the minds of taxpayers in constituencies in every region, even in every province.

They were the ones which, when asked — never all on the one questionnaire before brought the heaviest response.

Now, for the first time, Tom Bell, seasoned parliamentarian that he is, has put them all together to produce the politically definitive questionnaire by assembling the Ten Top Issues in the one public opinion poll.

Having selected the 10 most interesting questions from a host of other questionnaires, he mailed it out to 30,000 of his constituents in Saint John where in the last election a total 32,682 votes were cast.

So his questionnaire covered two out of every three voters, selected at random.

He got a playback of something approaching 5,000, a very better return than the run - of - the - constituency - mill questionnaire routinely received.

On the basis that the questions themselves were correctly selected on the national basis of the most pressing public questions of the day, the Government might do worse than look at the response it was given.

Tom Bell's Top Ten Questions, in the order they followed:

1. Is the Government spending too big and powerful and interfering too much in the affairs of individuals?

Sixty-six percent replied "yes," 34 percent "no," and nine percent had no opinion. These, and other percentages ignore the breakages of less than one percent.

In the event of inflation continuing at its present rate, should the Government impose wage and price controls?

Here 80 percent believed it should, 13 percent thought not, six percent didn't know.

Should all the restrictions on the sale and use of marijuana be removed, and should it be legal to sell and use this drug?

Only eight percent were for legalized pot, with 87 percent against and four percent without conviction one way or the other.

Should the Government make abortion available on request at the discretion of any person?

In favor were 33 percent, in opposition 60 percent and without opinion, seven percent.

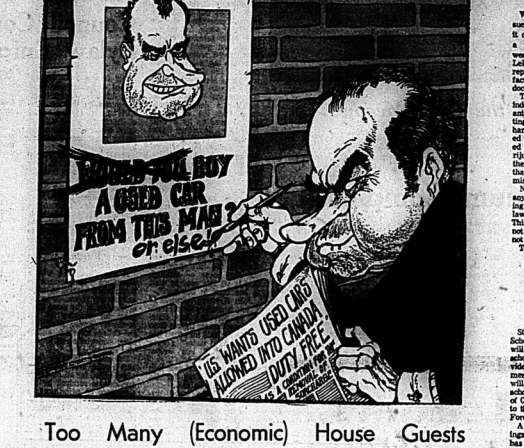
Do you believe capital punishment should be re-introduced?

Seventy-eight percent do, 16 do not and six cannot decide.

Do you feel current CBC programming generally portrays Canadian culture?

Just 20 percent feel it does, 65 percent are convinced it does not and 14 percent wonder.

Are you in favor of retaining the constitutional monarchy as our system of government?



Loyal to the crown are 78 percent, going for some other, likely republican, form of government, 16 percent and uncaring are six percent.

Top there was a question offering the choice of police for the July 1 holiday of Dominion Day, favored by 60 percent, or for Day Day if it appeared and Confederation Day also present.

In the 1968 election campaign for regional economic expansion (in the Atlantic provinces but in other questionnaires elsewhere) was considered a prime subject at the present time? . . . Some 22 percent thought so, 61 percent disagreed and 17 percent did not know.

Question Number Ten was particularly "right on," as the saying goes, asking what else might be on the constituency mind.

And what was, about of all else, was the harrowing welfare load and mounting abuse of social service entitlement. Inflation, or as most people put it, the rising cost of living rated second highest concern and unemployment third.

Too Many (Economic) House Guests

This is the second of a two-part series by AP business analyst John Cunliff giving the American viewpoint on Canada-U.S. trade relations. This article lists some suggestions for future trade relations between the two countries

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "Our economies are made to order for each other," said Harold B. Scott, U.S. assistant secretary of commerce, as he spoke in an interview of future U.S.-Canadian trade relations.

Each country has unique resources and abilities to offer the other, he said, adding: "If we sit down and talk we can plan a complementary relationship that will not antagonize each other."

Those relations now are somewhat strained as a result of the U.S. import surcharge of 10 per cent on goods from all foreign countries, Canada included. The U.S. market is Canada's largest.

Many Canadians, and some Americans also, feel that Canada should be exempt from the surcharge because the economics of the two countries are so inter-related, Scott disagrees.

Too many countries, he said, are building the U.S. market into their own economies. "We have too many house guests," he said. He indicated there will be no exemptions.

Mutually satisfactory objectives can be obtained by both countries, he said, if they agree to common planning in some industrial sectors. Neither country, he indicated, can ignore the unique needs and advantages of the other.

"If they are going to depend on our market we should sit down and talk. And if we depend on their natural resources we should plan ahead."

Scott described the complementary plans as "sectoral agreements," and said one already exists in the automotive industry which permits duty-free entry into the U.S. of Canadian-made vehicles.

He termed the automotive agreement a "great success historically," but noted that it contributed $800 million to the U.S. trade deficit.

"We should perhaps explore other areas in which the advantage is more to us than to them," he said.

Many Canadians, in and out of government, fear that agreements involving the dominant American economy may be to Canada's disadvantage. Typically, they say, Americans with them to become hewers of wood and drawers of water, insisting that Canada would be a mere supplier rather than a processor of natural resources for American cities, farms and factories.

they be supplying the Northeast with power?" The U.S. has the capital and Canada the water supplies to plan a mutually-beneficial arrangement.

The U.S. goal is retaining the extra tax levy on most Canadian goods is not to seek a complete balance of trade with Canada, he said. That relationship now tilts in favor of Canada by $1.3 billion a year.

Scott said the U.S. intention is not to reduce, to zero, He suggested that an "equilibrium" in which the U.S. still had a $500 million deficit might be acceptable, made up of a $1.5 billion trade deficit, reduced by a $1 billion return on investments.

Speaking of the overall goal of American trade policy, not just in regard to Canada but to all nations, Scott said there are "things we will settle for now, and things we are willing to work toward." The latter, he said, would involve agreements on future action.

"I think then we would ask for removal of the surcharge," he said.

Some New Opposition Faces

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

Both opposition parties will be weakened somewhat in calibre of their house representation through the election, but both also are broader in that most of their main people came through.

The great exception to this is the loss of Walter Pitman by the NDP.

The former Peterborough member who would have graced any party — and probably would still be a member if he had graced another one — will be missed by the party as a debater, he was one of the strongest in the house, and the party's credibility be added to the party image.

Perhaps importantly also, a voice of reason will be missing from the party caucus.

The only other big name not back in the house is young Hugh Peacock of Windsor West. And he, of course retired before the election.

Defeat of Margaret Renwick, beaten by newspaperman Frank Drea for the Scarborough Centre riding, does have some significance in that the party now doesn't have a woman in the house. The Conservatives with two women members, has the only possible (on paper representation). But the other losers, while good members, were not stars.

The most prominent Liberal loser was education critic Tim Reid of Scarborough East.

Different people would give you different assessments of the Scott maintains that this need not be the case.

"Instead of just sending us raw materials, they could process them," he said, thus adding to the value before export and simultaneously developing Canadian industry and employment.

But Scott suggested also that perhaps Canada de-velop industries competitive with those existing in the United States, that two countries might plan a complementary relationship.

As an example of one co-operative plan, he asked: "Shouldn't

More on Marijuana

Montreal Gazette

When 10 eminent doctors issue a warning about marijuana, it ought to invite reflection. At a press conference here last week the doctors criticized the LaDain commission's interim report as "highly permissive, fact - hiding" and "conciliatory" document.

The LaDain Commission did indeed seem somewhat reluctant to dwell on extensive suggesting that marijuana might have harmful effects. But it published unsigned letters from users who described the "delights" of using marijuana, which hardly displays the objective, scientific spirit that should animate this commission.

Nevertheless, why should anybody be punished for smoking marijuana? Why should the law prescribe such punishment? This is the issue for Parliament not the question of whether or not marijuana is harmful.

To say that the criminal law should ignore the smoking of marijuana is not to say that the substance is wonderful or useful or to say anything positive about it at all. It is simply to say that, in the course of the current debate in Canada, no convincing justification has been given for punishing as a crime the use of this substance, and the user is the one who want to inflict punishment.

Marijuana may do harm to some persons. These doctors are not the first medical authorities to say so. So may cigarettes. So may a smallpox vaccination.

This is not a crusade for marijuana. It is a plea for humanity and common sense so that an atmosphere may be created in this country in which the whole drug problem can become credible and sincere. It cannot be credible and sincere under laws that simply do not meet the situation and are widely flouted.

Princess Anne Aims At Olympics

LONDON (CP) — Her grandfather was pretty handy with a tennis racket and her father has earned himself an impressive reputation on the polo field.

But what of Princess Anne, recently crowned European Individual Champion after winning her first major horse-riding contest?

She may have joined the international sporting ranks of Queen Victoria, King George VI—who qualified for the Wimbledon tennis semi-finals in 1926, and Prince Philip, a representative for Britain's polo team on several occasions. But, at 21, the young princess seems set to outstrip most other royal claims to fame on the sports field.

She led the field at Burghley, in the three-day Raleigh Trophy event, from start to finish beating riders from eight other countries.

Anne now stands almost certainly in line for selection to the Olympic team next year although team officials have complained at the princess' win on her royal mount Doublet, a gift from the Queen.

Olympic selection secretary Sandy Duncan reported he was "surprised and pleased with the result" but emphasized that should Anne be chosen for the 1972 Munich games, "she would be treated as any other rider."

"But we have never had a member of the Royal Family in the team before," Duncan added.

Anne, like the other Royal Family members, base-had horses inherited in her grandsires early days. As a young teen-ager at school she attended the best riding establishments in the country for lessons.

Her first competition success came at 15 when she won the Windsor horse trials, a junior one-day event.

Earlier this year she finished fifth in the three-day Badminton meeting, a result which led to her selection for the Raleigh Trophy.

But with the probability of her being selected for the Olympic team comes a probability headache for the cool princess who until now has handled press and TV barrages to her advantage.

"The publicity which popular and successful British competitors, with a chance of a medal, must endure is a very heavy strain," Duncan writes one sports commentator here. "There is no escape. Photographers and journalists shouting them home and the world's television cameras zooming in for revealing close-ups."

Anne reckons she can take it all in her stride. After winning the Raleigh Trophy she felt the crowds urging her on and the TV and press eager to report her every move did not affect her.

"I am, above all, concerned about my own desire to win," she said.

School for Retarded Planned

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

Plans for a new school for the retarded were unveiled to Hastings county board of education trustees last night.

The school, to accommodate 90 to 100 pupils, will be built north of Centennial Secondary School at the intersection of Bridge St. West and Palmer Road.

Cost is estimated at $391,974.

Because of the school's location near Centennial and the Ontario School for the deaf, facilities of both schools will be offered to the pupils and staff of the retarded children's school.

The board is also investigating the possibility of setting up classes in Bancroft for the eight retarded children now being bussed to a school in Tury Hill, Hellbrton county.

Children in north Hastings travel 17 to 43 miles to the Tury Hill school, trustees were told.

Associate superintendent E. T. Morris gave a blit of the location of the classroom for the north Hastings retarded when he said the superintendent of local separate schools "feels he may be able to help us out."

The separate school board has a large elementary school in Bancroft.

Work for Retarded Is Recognized

Two Prince Edward County residents last night received certificates recognizing their support and contributions to the local association for the mentally retarded.

May Shannon, president of the Prince Edward Association for the mentally retarded presented the awards to Mrs. Clarence Brancatelli and Pam Rose, a student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Miss Rose was the co-ordinator of a recent walkathon which earned approximately $2,300 for donation to a workshop fund for the adult retarded.

Workshop for Retarded 'Freedom Said Vital

YERKEVILLE (Staff) — A successful workshop for the adult mentally retarded must provide freedom of choice for its trainees, not a group talent program.

Robert Renaud, chief occupational instructor at Prince Edward Heights last night emphasized this point in an address to approximately 50 members of the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded gathered at Happy Hearts School.

Mr. Renaud, who is a former director of the adult training and workshop section of the Ottawa Association for the Mentally Retarded, explained the term "workshop" is a misnomer.

"It's a location where young retarded adults become persons of worth with whatever talents they have," he added.

A member of the selection committee for the appointment of a supervisor for a workshop training program in Prince Edward, Mr. Renaud observed communities often feel they are in "never-never land" when they consider organization of this facility.

He noted that conditions frequently are not ideal for workshop programs but stressed the perfect situation can never be found and the important issue is a beginning.

An all - encompassing program is needed for the adult retarded who must be helped in becoming complete persons capable of living with those outside their "peer groups".

The retardate must see "how the other half lives" and can attain a sense of personal worth only if he knows what is expected of him.

A workshop program in Prince Edward would teach its trainees independence and its accompanying responsibilities.

Mr. Renaud explained that trainees should not be provided with coffee at the workshop but should learn that it can be bought in a restaurant and costs money.

This approach teaches the retardate to assume the responsibility of buying and paying for his coffee.

Trainees must learn how to live alone as well as how to work. Although scrubbing can be taught, it is a different matter to teach the retarded adult how to face community living.

Mr. Renaud suggested it is more important for these persons to know how to live than how to work.

The "work" side of a workshop program here will come slowly because Prince Edward offers little industry other than fruit growing.

A "unique local product" which would be purchased for its quality is important to the workshop. Attempts to sell products using sympathy as a lever undermine the workshop program's goals.

Volunteers will play an essential role in the workshop's operations and, in Mr. Renaud's opinion, organizers of this facility will never reach the point where volunteer workers are unnecessary".

He suggested a comfortable, warm, well lighted and ventilated location in all that is needed for the workshop's location.

Mr. Renaud recalled that the Ottawa workshop opened in an old home and later relocated in a sash and door factory. Originally three trainees were enrolled in the program.

He did not feel that it would become a problem to sustain progress in a local workshop.

Questioned by a member of Prince Edward association for the mentally retarded Mr. Renaud commented the program will "roll ahead too quickly unless it is controlled".

He suggested that the retarded have "a way of pushing us" and seem eager to undertake many projects in a short period of time.

Trainees must learn the proper use of leisure time and also the use of community facilities.

Plans for a workshop program in the county were announced earlier this month when students belonging to PEYMR (Prince Edward Youth for the Mentally Retarded) raised almost $2,300 in a walkathon for donation to a workshop fund.

Through five annual walkathons and other projects PEYMR members have raised a total of $8,000 toward this dream come true.

Willard Martin, a Picton resident who is chairman of the adult services committee of the local association for the retarded, said members now are meeting weekly to discuss the workshop program.

It has been agreed a building should be leased, instead of purchased and 10 possible Picton locations are being reviewed.

The Mental Retardation Board requires the provision of 100 square feet of space per trainee and organizers of the local workshop program are considering 1,000 square feet of space.

This area, hopefully, will include three to four rooms with a work area, a lunch corner and washroom facilities.

It has been decided the workshop should be centred in Picton and the program will start "as small as possible" to grow as large as possible.

Several applications already have been received for the position of workshop supervisor.

Singing Out the Y's Mens Cheer

By noon Saturday, over 150 delegates of the Y's Mens Club from Ontario and Quebec had entered the city for the climax of the three day convention, held in the Four Seasons Hotel over the weekend. Saturday night was devoted to guest speaker Joe Connell, general secretary of the Kitchener Waterloo Y, who spoke on keeping up with the times. The evening took a humorous bounce as the men from Kingston mounted the stage, garbed in floppy-brimmed hats, and sang some oldies.

$700 Stolen From Club

PICTON (Staff) — The theft of approximately $700 in cash and cheques from Prince Edward Yacht Club was reported yesterday by acting steward in charge Leon Gerow, Picton.

Regular club steward W. (Wally) Goodwin was vacationing when the incident occurred.

Picton Police Chief George Pitt said this morning that the missing money had been ready for bank deposit and placed in a drawer at the clubhouse. No evidence of forced entry was found during police investigations.

The theft occurred between 4 p.m. Sunday and 10 a.m. Monday.

Chief Pitt said approximately $600 in cash and $100 in cheques is missing. The theft is under investigation by Sergeant Scott Hale of the Picton police force.

Break-ins Plague Police

City police have been plagued by a recent series of break-ins which, this weekend alone, saw thieves get away with more than $1,500 in stolen goods.

One unlikely place to pick up valuables, Quinte Sanitation Services at 48 Dundas Street West, nevertheless netted thieves more than $500 in tools plus five gallons of gasoline.

The tools were recovered after a 14-year-old youth reported their presence in a field to police.

Some time last night, someone broke into the Alton Hadley Farm Implements building at 371 Front Street and removed two chain saws valued at $550. They have not been recovered.

Also last night, a custom radio and three other clearance lights were stolen from a truck parked on the Truck and Farm Supply yard at the corner of Church and Dundas Streets. Value of these unrecovered items is $118.

Police report the arrest of a 16-year-old Belleville area youth after they recovered a quantity of appliances removed from Ireland's Furniture and Appliances store at 380 Front Street.

The theft, discovered at 6 a.m. Sunday, resulted in the 6.15 a.m. arrest of Paul Joseph McDonell, of RR6, Belleville.

He will face charges of breaking and entering. The $470 worth of goods, including an eight-track tape player, were recovered from a cache on the Moira River at Station Street. A brick was used to smash the store window.

Three other minor breakins were also reported in the past several days, but nothing of consequence was taken.

Funeral

GEORGE H. CREWS
Gaster

The funeral of George H. Crews was held Saturday afternoon, Oct. 23, with the service conducted in the MacKenzie Funeral Home at Madoc by Simon Brownson of Bancroft.

Bearers were David Reid, Bert Perrett, Douglas Cass, James Hill, Harry Chatterton, and Hugh Reid.

Interment took place in Gilmour Cemetery.

It dates back to the year 1835, when the pharmacy was founded by the pioneer physician, Dr. R. Holden. At that time it was located at the corner of Front Street and Victoria Ave. In 1841, the store was registered with The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Upper Canada as an Apothecary and vendor of drugs.

In October, 1871, the business was purchased by Albert L. Geen, from Dr. Holden's son, J. C. Holden, and now 100 years later, it is still operated by his descendents.

Percival W. Geen, Phm. B., graduated from the Ontario College of Pharmacy in 1907, and today, at the age of 86, sparks enthusiasm in the store's operation, and is still registered with the College of Pharmacy.

Alwyn F. Geen, Phm. B., joined the firm after graduation from Pharmacy in 1941. Lyle Twiddy, Phm. B., joined the firm in 1942, and this year, a fourth pharmacist joined the staff, Steven Casselman, B. Sc., Phm.

A loyal and conscientious staff has been the key to success for Geen's Pharmacy. Special mention should be made of Mrs. Anna Foley, chief cosmetician, and Mr. Walter Symons, chief stockkeeper. These outstanding employees have done much for the reputation of this fine drug store.

'Boss of Year' Speaks At NSA Meeting

The October meeting of the National Secretaries' Association, Bay of Quinte Chapter, was held at the Hotel Quinte, Tuesday, Oct. 19 and at the conclusion of the dinner, a third anniversary cake was enjoyed in celebration.

"Boss of the Year" for 1971-72, Mr. Eric Runacres, director, Hastings County Board of Education, was the guest speaker at this special dinner and was introduced by his secretary, Mrs. Evelyn McSpadnam.

Mr. Runacres emphasized the necessity for continuing education or learning through out life. He discussed a number of skills and understandings he felt we all should acquire — the skill of handling data, the use of leisure time, how to be productive in work today and new skills in communications.

Under the topic of 'understanding' he discussed acquiring knowledge of human relationships, social relationships, politics in government, etc. He feels that we have been a technological society and we must re-educate ourselves towards a humanistic approach to life. If you put man together, you put the world together.

How do we do this? He suggested that we could go to school although not all schools have yet adopted this change in approach. We must individuals, must adjust our personal attitudes towards situations and people. Mr. Runacres outlined two approaches to people; the negative or pessimistic approach where you expect people to be unproductive, uncooperative and anxious to get out of work.

The other was the positive or optimistic approach where you expect good productivity and an eagerness to contribute — a person anxious to be at the front of things. Often what you expect of people is what you receive and relationships are a mirror of your own actions. A smile evokes a smile in return.

We should all look inward at our fundamental attitudes towards people and find ways of improving our attitudes, he said.

He further suggested that we should look at the media and learn to differentiate. We should read all we can and not be afraid to read, not to put down a book half through — all kinds of books.

He continued that we should seek ways of communicating better — particularly listening, as listening is sharing and being a part of things. We should develop sending of ideas.

He suggested that the generation gap perhaps is a matter of attitudes, the gap between what we say we want to do and what we actally do.

Mr. Runacres feels that as a part of our continuing learning, we should be active in our society, in politics, in youth work, service clubs, professional organizations. He feels we should re-introduce family relationships into our human relationships and adopt an attitude of caring. In schooling, in hobbies, in community involvement.

Mr. Runacres was thanked by Gail Luxsberg.

President, Mrs. Gabrielle Watkins presided over a short business meeting.

Mrs. Watkins read a congratulatory message from Miss Marie Switzer, president, Canadian Division, on the occasion of the third anniversary of the NSA.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her marriage Mrs. K. R. Reid (nee Lichty) was honored at a miscellaneous shower by friends in Elkcorner and the bridegroom at presentation by the congregation of Uxbridge Free Methodist Church. After returning from their wedding trip a reception was held in their honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Smith, Bloomfield. Mr. and Mrs. Walton Reid and Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Hawley assisted with the entertaining.

Mrs. Henry Fleming, England, was a guest at the recent wedding of her grandson, Dennis Richardson. Mrs. Fleming is a visitor at the Ham Richardson, R.R. 1, Foxboro home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilboro.

UCW MEETINGS

MOUNT PLEASANT HAWDON UCW

The Mount Pleasant-Hawdon UCW convened at the church hall for the Thanksgiving meeting with 35 members in attendance.

Mrs. Herbert Smith was in charge of the program. The devotional was in the form of a play given by Mrs. Jack Denham, Mrs. Percy Couch, Mrs. Robert Merrick, Mrs. Donald Johnson, Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mrs. Marguerite McMullen and Brenda and Bonnie Williams. The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Burton Sharpe. The theme "the open door" was presented by Mrs. Robert Merrick, Mrs. Ira David, Mrs. Percy Brooks, Mrs. Harry McAdam and Mrs. Elton Chapman.

A vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. Milton Shaw. Mrs. Milford Wrightman showed a variety of pictures of scenes in this area, since taken at a recent anniversary service of the Sunday school.

Mrs. Garth Joslin presided and the usual reports were given. Nice thank-you notes were read. An invitation to Hoards centennial tea was accepted.

A fellowship meeting for all the women of the various churches in the area was held on Monday, October 25 at Mount Pleasant.

Five dollars was donated to purchase four blankets for overseas relief. Refreshments for the social hour were provided by Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Mrs. F. Garth Joslin.

Honored at Convention

Life Membership Certificates Presented to Two WHA Members

Two members of the Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary were honored with the presentation of life memberships of Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario at the annual dinner of the Association held last evening at the Royal York Hotel during the Ontario Hospital Association convention.

Mrs. Ben E. Burley and Mrs. W. H. Finkle have both shown outstanding leadership and guidance in the association.

Mrs. Burley's association with the Auxiliary began in 1952. She was president in 1959-1960 and 1969-1970 and member of the Board of Governors during those years. Mrs. Burley has served on many committees and gave leadership in many phases of the hospital auxiliary work. Several of her outstanding projects included the annual fashion show, decoration of Education Hall, the fathers' room in memory of Mrs. J. E. Buchan and the plan of both the past and proposed coffee shops. She also served at the Provincial level as district chairman, on the constitution and resolution committees, as well as public relations and nominating committees.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle has been associated with the Auxiliary for approximately 31 years. She served as president in 1957-1958 and member of the Board of Governors of Belleville General Hospital. Her interest has been extensive in all phases of the auxiliary commencing with the WHA dance in 1940. She was Opportunity Shop convener in 1952-1954 and during her period in office as president, the In-Hospital volunteers program and the famous Strip-Teas were initiated.

Mrs. Finkle also attended several annual conventions and regional conferences as official delegate.

The Auxiliary finds they are most fortunate to have such valued and enthusiastic members, who never fail to respond to the needs of the hospital.

QMSA Plans Activities For Season

The sixth annual meeting of the Quinte Medical Secretaries was held October 13 in Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, and chaired by the president, Mrs. Diana Maxwell Hall.

Tentative programs for the new season were the main points of this meeting which included Christmas dinner — plans are well underway to be held at the Four Seasons Hotel. The Medical Secretaries from Trenton and Frankford were most willing to contribute to the program and a take sale is scheduled for November. Numerous other programs were discussed. The collection of store tapes was to be continued this year as the Quinte Medical Secretaries have decided to provide equipment which is in great demand for the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

After the regular business meeting, the following slate of officers and chairmen for the 1971-72 years was presented by Mrs. Cheryl Mott, President, Mrs. Diana Maxwell, honorary president, Dr. P. M. Swaine; vice-president, Mrs. Eileen Hanley; secretary, Mrs. Geraldine West; treasurer, Miss Barbara Lewis; telephone and membership, Mrs. Gene Potter; social, Mrs. Jacqueline Vivian, publicity and historian, Mrs. Mae Cathcart; program, Mrs. Dorothy Watzer.

The meeting was adjourned and the new slate of officers were advised that an executive meeting was to be held October 20.

This was held in the office of the honorary president, Dr. F. M. Swaine.

Membership by-law was discussed at gret; length. Plans for the annual Christmas dinner were formulated and the social convenor was left with the responsibility of all details.

The annual clinic day was presented and the program chairman was to obtain a list of prospective speakers and to present to the meeting as a whole at the November meeting.

The Ontario Medical Secretaries Association entered-estive for the year 1971-72 was appointed by the executive of the Quinte Medical Secretaries Association. This position is to be held by Mrs. Mae Cathcart.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Outingdyke, of Campbellford, wish to announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Cheryl Ann, to Wayne Frederick Risto, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Risto, Eganville, Ont. The marriage will take place in St. John's United Church, Campbellford, on November 20 at 3 p.m.

"Head into winter with wheels that head straight"

"As you well know, winter driving isn't always easy. It can be even tougher and more treacherous if your front wheels are out of alignment.

"The fact is, it can be hard to control your car even on the best of roads when the wheels are out of true. So it's even more critical when roads are snowy, wet or icy.

"And here's another thing. If you need a wheel alignment you are already paying a high price . . . In rapid tire wear. How can you tell if you need an alignment? The fact is every car needs a wheel alignment from time to time. Normal driving conditions put wheels out of true alignment.

"Bring your car in, and our Riding System specialists will tell you if you are ready for an alignment. We'd suggest you do it soon. Before winter adds to the hazards of driving."

Ann Landers

Ogden Nash Selects Ann's Column as Subject for Verse

Dear Ann Landers: Ogden Nash died recently. He was one of my favorite poets. I ran across a poem he wrote about you. It was in Dinner's Magazine. Please print it, Ann. Here it is:

But I Could Not Love Thee, Ann, So Much, Loved I Not Honors More

Some find the world in a grain of sand. I in the correspondence of Ann Landers.

I stress-top unabashed as she spoons out her acerb answers with even hand and lachrymose goose and truculent banders.

For desk is positively formicating, which means swarming by the spooning feeling though I might well employ the other word that sounds like unto it.

Because her mail consists mostly of letters from those confessors who have discovered about illicit sex that often there are more headaches than fun by it.

A present-day Emma Lazarus, she cries Give me your huddled problems, the wretched refuse of your wrongs, cowering for me your festering sores and stigmas;

Your poison by my mind, be it alcoholism, infidelity, frigidity, salyriasis, pre-marital pregnancy or homosexuality.

Yes, if anyone's Gordian love-knot requires a blade more cutting than Alexander's,

Let them call on Ann Landers.

No pussy - footer she, no purveyor of admonitions soothing or boltze;

It's tell the bum to jump in the lake, tell the old bag to go fly a kite.

If Anne of Cleves would have written to Ann Landers,

I bet them call on Anne have thought twice before calling her the mare of Flanders.

From a human comedy as varied as Balzac's I choose for you one excerpt, the ultimate in wells of poignant woe.

The plaint of a teen-ager who doubted the affection of her boy friend because the only compliment he ever paid her was You sweet 'kes than any fat girl I know.

Copyright 1971, by Diner's Club, Inc.

Dear Friend: Thank you so much for sending on that delightful item. I was deeply moved that Ogden Nash selected my column as a subject for his verse. I was not aware that he was a reader. When I read of his death in May I regretted that I never had the pleasure of meeting him. He was one of my favorites, too. The opening line of his poem is evidence that I underrate what my column is all about and it pleases me immensely.

The Ogden Nash poem which I have repeated most often is this one:

When you hit the ketchup bottle
None comes out -
And then a kettle

and this one:

Breakfast foods grow odder and odder -
It's a wise child who knows his fodder.

Successful Living

Air Travel with Greatest of Ease

By DORIS CLARK

It's not the space age but the spacious age. Thus quips the passenger on Air Canada's 747 — which holds 385 passengers and is nicknamed "Fat Albert". You can actually move around, take a walk, ascend the stairs to the Voyageur Lounge. You can see a movie, listen to stereo (classical or folk music); and, of course, earphones serve to reduce engine noise.

Such is the spaciousness of this five-cabin flying hotel that I am told the Wright Brothers could fly their first plane inside it.

I like the idea that families can travel all in a row, seated in the lounge chairs in the bucket seats and snooze. Nice to get a long rest after the hurry; especially if you take along young children or handicapped or elderly adults.

Dear Doris: When I was a child of 11, I saved up birthday money, Christmas money and whatever few cents I could scare up, until I got $3. It was a big moment when my money was hard to come by. My goal was to purchase a pair of skates, more than anything else in the world.

Finally I had borrowed the money from me but never returned it, and I never got the skates.

I think my stepfather was very unfair to take my money away from me. I have never forgotten it and I never shall. I asked a psychiatrist friend of ours once what I should do about it, and he told me to buy a pair of skates, but my husband would not let me, as I am 47 years old and he is 35 years older.

So, again I am done out of the skates. What is your advice? — Want Skates

Dear Want: I'm sorry. Those childhood frustrations have a way of hurting us all our lives — if we let them.

I'd suggest you try standing up on a pair of skates — borrowed — and see whether this could be an enjoyable activity for you. Find friends who enjoy skating and get them to put you through your paces.

If you still find you want this kind of activity show your husband that you do. It is probably scared about you taking a tumble and landing on some vulnerable part.

Many of us harbor regrets about events long past, some of much greater moment than a desire for skates. It was unfair of your stepfather not to return your money. O.K. Forgive him! For the sake of your own peace of mind. Try to understand the pressure he was under.

Dear Doris: Please send me the poem "Give Me Wisdom With The Years." It sounds like a prayer I would like to claim as mine.

We have four sons and two daughters. One daughter is a missionary in Sierra Leone, West Africa. She just left on a week ago to spend her second term there.

Love to read your column and all the good things in it. — Mrs. J. E. F.

Dear Mrs. J. E. F.: Would your missionary-girl care to share with us what goes on where she is?

Have you asked Doris about your dilemma? Perhaps she can suggest a Canadian resource that will help.

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

Many interested parents attended the first regular meeting of the King George Home and School Association.

King George School will once again participate in UNICEF.

A good response was received in forming a new Advisory Board.

After a brief business meeting the new executive for the coming year was installed by Mrs. Scrafton, Mrs. Revolin, Mrs. Merrill, Mr. Payton, Mrs. Derry, Mrs. Shultz, and Mrs. Bland.

Mr. McQuaid, Principal, was called on to introduce the teaching staff after which the staff retired to their respective rooms for interviews with the parents.

Refreshments and a social half hour brought the meeting to a close.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a painless healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reductions or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and (on important of all, results were so thorough that this unsurpassed was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

Must a good salesman believe in his product?

Answer: Yes, if he is selling a product or service that requires the skill of salesmanship. It doesn't really matter if he is merely the intermediary from a customer who already has decided what he wants to buy. Another thing, to sell his product, the good salesman must actually believe he is performing a service in selling it; it cannot be something that he must talk himself into thinking is worthwhile.

Answer: It is not a question of how much, but what kind of daydreaming a child does. It shows a child is developing his power of imagination when he daydreams. If a youngster, however, uses his daydreams as substitutes for the things he believes he is being deprived of, then his parents had better get professional advice in raising him. Perhaps the child feels that he is not getting the love that should be coming to him.

Do most happy couples have a lot of friends?

Answer: Yes, although the happiest couples are those who are happy to be married to each other and who happen to have a lot of friends because their happiness makes them the kind of people who attract friends. On the other hand, there are many couples who are on a continual social merry-go-round; they strive to make friends to compensate for their failure to find fulfillment in themselves as husband and wife.

Business and Professional Club Ends B and P Week Activities

Last week was proclaimed Business and Professional Women's week in the city of Belleville. The club started off the week by attending Tabernacle United Church in a body on Sunday, Oct. 17.

Barbara Allen, reeve of Tweed and a member of the club was the dinner speaker for the monthly meeting held in the Sun Valley Motel.

The theme of last week's proclamation is leadership in action and Mrs. Allen spoke on women in today's society. She feels women stay out of politics because it is easier than to get involved with political issues. It is easier to complain than to take action. It is just as important to have women in politics as it is to have the men.

A woman today has a choice that was never available before in the history of humanity. She may choose a traditional pattern of marriage and spend her days as a housewife and mother feeling as equally fulfilled as her counterpart who selects a career and sublimates her desire for children; or she may do both or to any combination. None of these choices is contingent upon pressure sanctions or standards of others. The world is her oyster if she would only recognize it.

Mrs. Allen went on to say that all occupations can be handled by women if so desired. It depends on the individual and her reactions to every rule. Technical advances have changed women's lives, but there still exist different rules for women than for men in society. However women as leaders of the community and women as mothers and wives are not mutually exclusive. Women should know more about themselves, often have inferiority complex of their role. Low job expectations are often the results of this inferiority complex.

Mrs. Charlotte Lockyer thanked the speaker and presented her with a gift of appreciation.

Mrs. Nettie Brown, committee chairwoman of the procedure of entering into the political arena. Questions were also raised about equal pay for equal work and the compensation amount paid to an injured woman compared to an injured man employee.

A vote of thanks went to Mrs. Nettie Brown for her organization of the week's club's activities. A short business meeting followed with future plans of the club in abeyance.

Measures Lost Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Marchand, minister of regional economic expansion, said Monday recent federal measures to combat inflation has resulted in higher unemployment.

"The latest statistics indicate that the province of Quebec, in particular, is heavily affected," Mr. Marchand told a news conference.

"In the city of Montreal alone, the number of unemployed people this winter could equal that of all of the Atlantic provinces taken together," he said.

He said British Columbia has the highest economic growth rate in Canada, but also has high unemployment because prosperity attracted people to the province.

Mr. Marchand also outlined some results of his department's Industrial Incentives Program which has pumped $758 million into economically deprived regions in Canada.

Mr. Marchand said that since the program began in July, 1969, until September, 1971, "the 853 manufacturing facilities which have accepted our offers of incentives, have created or will soon create more than 37,784 jobs across Canada."

In Quebec 418 projects have qualified for incentives, creating some 18,600 jobs.

Mr. Marchand said he was not optimistic about unemployment for the coming winter but felt that the tax cuts recently introduced by Finance Minister Edgar Benson "will help us maintain the unemployment rate at an acceptable level."

What The Stars Say

Wednesday, October 27

GENERAL GUIDE—Sharp words may flare between congressional spokesmen and financial leaders. Governmental controls that are being proposed won't be easily accepted by the large banking and investment factions. Personal profits are apt to be sliced considerably.

Aries (March 21-April 19). There's no reason to view friendly proposals with suspicion. The people you're dealing with now are above any petty, underhanded behavior.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). The rewards are most definitely there for those who are working hard. Be sure that higher-ups know you're determined to improve your professional standing.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). If the mental fires are still burning strong everyday considerations and responsibilities may still have to be shelved. Make the most of opportunities before interest fades.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). There can be a few more ways of adding to savings. Certain unnecessary personal expenses can be eliminated today. Learn to live without a few things.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). If you've allowed decisions to be based on the facts as you see them, not someone else's preconceived notions, you can confidently move ahead with plans.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22.) Willingness to take on extra work can begin to show results. The first improvement may be the go-ahead from bosses to expand your authority over co-workers.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). In creative matters, you should be the one to have the final say. Collaboration, or even too many outside suggestions, could destroy your masterpiece.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). You should take an old-fashioned view of family roles and relationships now. Mate and offspring mustn't be allowed to break with tradition.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Last night's active, busy pace is still going strong. The main focus is on messages, short trips, trying to find out what's really going on.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Unusual bargains can be picked up today, so try to get to the stores early. You can be intrigued by gadgets, appliances, the latest labor saving devices.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). If you've been working hard, make sure that the people at the top are well aware of the fact. They may not know the special problems you've been solving on the job.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Keep out of the path of trouble by remaining quietly off in your own quarter. Authorities are due to go on a rampage and you could be the first scapegoat they spot.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY—The big shake-ups this year are due in financial and security quarters. Though money will flow freely until February, it's wise to save as much as possible. April brings an expensive crisis.

Sharp Says Canada Will Not Bargain To End Surcharge

NEW YORK (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada said Monday night Canada will not bargain with the United States for removal of the 10-per-cent import surcharge.

Appearing on the NBC network newsprogram Nightly News, Sharp said Canada would like to help the U.S. solve its balance of payments problems, but added: "I don't think the U.S. is going about this in the way likely to produce the best results."

He suggested that if the surtax continues, public reaction in Canada might force Ottawa to impose retaliatory measures.

"The United States must remember that we have our public opinion too and if the U.S. persists in the kind of action they have already applied, or intend to apply, no government in the world can say its citizens won't demand retaliation," Sharp said.

"I've heard some of your officials say we (the U.S.) don't care about a trade war, we can win it," he said. "No one can win trade wars and we are doing our best to avoid entering any trade war with the United States."

Dollar Still Floats

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's policy of letting its currency float freely in international exchange markets has not changed, Finance Minister Edgar Benson said in the Commons Monday.

Replying to questions by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Mr. Benson also denied that deputy finance ministers of the Group of Ten, the world's leading finance countries, had suggested a general appreciation of world currencies by 10 per cent in relation to the United States dollar.

Mr. Benson said one of the problems facing the 10 was to decide how large a balance-of-payments deficit the U.S. faces on a long-term basis. The U.S. has said it needs a $13 billion reversal of its payments deficit. Other assessments have placed the deficit at only $8 billion.

If action was needed to correct an $8-billion U.S. deficit, Mr. Benson said, a 10-per-cent upward revaluation of other currencies would be necessary. This, he said, was merely an assessment by the Group of Ten of the size of the problem, not a recommendation that that much revaluation take place.

Sky Marshals Hijacked

MIAMI (AP) — A Boeing 747 jumbo jet hijacked by a gunman remained grounded in Cuba today. U.S. officials said three sky marshals and an off-duty FBI agent were aboard the plane carrying 221 passengers when it was commandeered.

A Federal Aviation Administration official said that although the pilot of the American Airlines plane had kept two engines running when it landed at Havana's Jose Marti Airport in hopes of an early departure, it had not been released by Cuban authorities.
